¹⁹ All the people said to Samuel, "Pray to the LORD your God for your servants, so that we may not die; for we have added to all our sins the evil of demanding a king for ourselves." ²⁰ And Samuel said to the people, "Do not be afraid; you have done all this evil, yet do not turn aside from following the LORD, but serve the LORD with all your heart; ²¹ and do not turn aside after useless things that cannot profit or save, for they are useless. ²² For the LORD will not cast away his people, for his great name's sake, because it has pleased the LORD to make you a people for himself. ²³ Moreover as for me, far be it from me that I should sin against the LORD by ceasing to pray for you; and I will instruct you in the good and the right way. ²⁴ Only fear the LORD, and serve him faithfully with all your heart; for consider what great things he has done for you. ²⁵ But if you still do wickedly, you shall be swept away, both you and your king."

3.12–30. 12.10 By the Baals and the Astartes the author means illicit or foreign gods and goddesses in general. 12.11 Jerubbaal was another name for Gideon (see Judg 6–8). The reference to Barak, Deborah's colleague in Judg 4–5, is textually doubtful. Jephthah is the Gileadite hero of Judg 11. The story of Samson is told in Judg 13–16. 12.12 This verse relates the people's demand for a king in 8.1–18 to the threat posed by King Nahash of the Ammonites (see 11.1–15). 12.17 The wheat harvest took place in early summer when thunder and rain were unnatural (Prov 26.1) and unexpected, a fact that underscores Samuel's special ability to invoke the Lord. 12.18–19 Shocked out of their refusal to see reality by the miracle of the thunderstorm, the people finally acknowledge their mistake and call on Samuel for help. 12.21 The useless things are idols, as in Isa 41.29, where the same word is translated "empty wind," and 44.9, where it is rendered "nothing." 12.23 Samuel promises to continue to do two things: he will pray for (a better translation is "intercede on behalf of") the people and he will instruct them in the good and the right way. With the advent of kingship, the role of the prophet in the new age is defined as twofold: the prophet will be an intercessor between Israel and the Lord and an advocate of morality and justice. 13.1–15a Anxious about the onset of a battle with the Philistines, Saul offers a sacrifice without waiting for Samuel to arrive. For this act of disobedience his kingship is repudiated. 13.1 The same formula introduces the reigns of other kings in the Deuteronomistic History (see, e.g., 2 Sam 2.10; 5.4; 1 Kings 14.21; 22.42), but the historian does not seem to have had the necessary chronological data for Saul's reign. 2 Saul chose three thousand out of Israel; two thousand were with Saul in Michmash and the hill country of Bethel, and a thousand were with Jonathan in Gibeah of Benjamin; the rest of the people he sent home to their tents. ³Jonathan defeated the garrison of the Philistines that was at Geba; and the Philistines heard of it. And Saul blew the trumpet throughout all the land, saying, "Let the Hebrews hear!" ⁴When all Israel heard that Saul had defeated the garrison of the Philistines, and also that Israel had become odious to the Philistines, the people were called out to join Saul at Gilgal.

5 The Philistines mustered to fight with Israel, thirty thousand chariots, and six thousand horsemen, and troops like the sand on the seashore in multitude; they came up and encamped at Michmash, to the east of Beth-aven. ⁶When the Israelites saw that they were in distress (for the troops were hard pressed), the people hid themselves in caves and in holes and in rocks and in tombs and in cisterns. ⁷Some Hebrews crossed the Jordan to the land of Gad and Gilead. Saul was still at Gilgal, and all the people followed him trembling.

8 He waited seven days, the time appointed by Samuel; but Samuel did not come to Gilgal, and the people began to slip away from Saul.^d ⁹So Saul said, "Bring the burnt offering here to me, and the offerings of well-being." And he offered the burnt offering. ¹⁰As soon as he had finished offering the burnt offering, Samuel arrived; and Saul went out to meet him and salute him. ¹¹Samuel said, "What have you done?" Saul replied, "When I saw that the people were slipping away from me, and that you did not come within the days appointed, and that the Philistines were mustering at Michmash, ¹²I said, 'Now the Philistines will come down upon me at Gilgal, and I have not entreated the favor of the LORD'; so I forced myself, and offered the burnt offering." ¹³Samuel said to Saul, "You have done foolishly; you have not kept the commandment of the LORD your God, which he commanded you. The LORD would have established your kingdom over Israel forever, ¹⁴but now your kingdom will not continue; the LORD has sought out a man after his own heart; and the LORD has appointed him to be ruler over his people, because you have not kept what the LORD commanded you." ¹⁵And Samuel left and went on his way from Gilgal.^e The rest of the people followed Saul to join the army; they went up from Gilgal toward Gibeah of Benjamin.^f biblical scholars tend to place Saul's reign late in the eleventh century B.C.E. 13.2 Michmash was a town about seven miles northeast of Jerusalem, a few miles southeast of Bethel (see 7.16–17). Gibeah of Benjamin. See note on 9.1. 13.3 Geba was a Benjaminite fortress about six miles north-northeast of Jerusalem. By blowing the trumpet, Saul is trying to rally support from other Hebrews, who, though kin to the Israelites, have not yet allied themselves politically (see note on 14.21). 13.4 Saul is now in Gilgal, where Samuel told him to wait for him in 10.8. 13.5 In his oracles against Bethel (Hebrew, "House of God") Hosea uses the name Beth-aven ("House of Wickedness") as a pejorative substitute (Hos 4.15; 5.8; 10.5), and Bethel is probably also intended here. 13.7 The tribal claim of Gad included most of modern Jordan north of the Dead Sea (see Josh 13.24–28). All but the southern portion of this was Gilead, a common designation for Transjordanian Israel. 13.8 Saul waits seven days, the time appointed by Samuel in 10.8 (but see 11.1). 13.9 Samuel told Saul that he would make the offerings himself (10.8); but Saul, seeing his army begin to desert (v. 8) and fearful of joining battle without sacrificing first (v. 12), goes ahead without him. 13.13 If not for this act of disobedience, the Lord would have established Saul's kingdom over Israel forever, i.e., he would have given Saul an enduring dynasty ("kingdom") like David's (see 2 Sam 7.15–16). 13.14 The Lord has sought out a man after his own heart, i.e., a man of his own choosing, rather than permit one of Saul's sons to succeed him. For the term ruler, which means "king-designate," see note on 9.16.

13.15b–22 Saul and his army prepare to engage the enemy, despite a shortage of weapons caused by Philistine control of metalworking. 13.16 Geba and Michmash were only a couple of miles apart (see note on 13.2), separated by a steep ravine, part of a strategically important wadi system that drains the Ephraimite hills into the

Geba of Benjamin; but the Philistines encamped at Michmash. ¹⁷And raiders came out of the camp of the Philistines in three companies; one company turned toward Ophrah, to the land of Shual, ¹⁸another company turned toward Beth-horon, and another company turned toward the mountains that looks down upon the valley of Zeboim toward the wilderness.

¹⁹Now there was no smith to be found throughout all the land of Israel; for the Philistines said, "The Hebrews must not make swords or spears for themselves"; ²⁰so all the Israelites went down to the Philistines to sharpen their plowshares, mattocks, axes, or sickles; ²¹The charge was two-thirds of a shekelⁱ for the plowshares and for the mattocks, and one-third of a shekel for sharpening the axes and for setting the goads.^j ²²So on the day of the battle neither sword nor spear was to be found in the possession of any of the people with Saul and Jonathan; but Saul and his son Jonathan had them.

Jonathan Routs the Philistines

²³Now a garrison of the Philistines had gone out to the pass of Michmash.

14 ¹One day Jonathan son of Saul said to the young man who carried his armor, "Come, let us go over to the Philistine garrison on the other side." But he did not tell his father. ²Saul was staying in the outskirts of Gibeah under the pomegranate tree that is at Migron; the troops that were with him were about six hundred men, ³along with Ahijah son of Ahitub, Ichabod's brother, son of Phinehas son of Eli, the priest of the LORD in Shiloh, carrying an ephod. Now the people did not know that Jonathan had gone. ⁴In the pass,^k by which Jonathan tried to go over to the Philistine garrison, there was a rocky crag on one side and a rocky crag on the other; the name of the one was Bozez, and the name of the other Seneh. ⁵One crag rose on the north in front of Michmash, and the other on the south in front of Geba.

⁶Jonathan said to the young man who carried his armor, "Come, let us go over to the garrison of these uncircumcised; it may be that the LORD will act for us; for nothing can hinder the LORD from saving by many or by few." ⁷His armor-bearer said to him, "Do all that your mind inclines to.^l I am with you; as your mind is, so is mine."^m ⁸Then Jonathan said, "Now we will cross over to those men and will show ourselves to them. ⁹If they say to us, 'Wait until we come to you,' then we will stand still in our place, and we will not go up to them. ¹⁰But if they say, 'Come up to us,' then we will go up; for the LORD has given them into our hand. That will be the sign for us." ¹¹So both of them showed themselves to the garrison of the Philistines; and the Philistines said, "Look, Hebrews are coming out of the holes where they have hidden themselves." ¹²The men of the garrison hailed Jona-

Jordan. 13.17 Ophrah (Josh 18.23) was north of Michmash. The land of Shual was probably another name for the land of Shaalim (see note on 9.4). 13.18 There were two towns named Beth-horon, Upper and Lower. Upper Beth-horon was about ten miles west of Michmash. The valley of Zeboim (Hebrew, "Valley of Hyenas") was south-east of Michmash. 13.19–22 The Philistines strictly controlled access to metalworking so that the Israelites could not arm themselves. 13.21 The word translated two-thirds of a shekel (pim) occurs nowhere else in the Hebrew Bible, but it has been found inscribed on ancient stone weights averaging about what is indicated in the present translation.

13.23–14.23 With only a single companion Jonathan makes his way into the Philistine camp and starts a panic that leads to a rout and a major

Israelite victory. 14.2 Geba and Gibeah are often confused in the text, and the former is likely to be correct here. Migron is a town associated with Michmash and Geba in Isa 10.28. 14.3 Saul's priest, Ahijah son of Ahitub, is one of the Shilonite priests, who are condemned in 2.27–36 and slaughtered in 22.6–23, with Ahijah's nephew, Abiathar, the only survivor. The ephod or priestly garment that Ahijah is wearing (rather than carrying) is probably more elaborate than Samuel's linen loincloth. It probably contains a pouch containing the Urim and Thummim used by Saul in v. 41. 14.4 The pass by which Jonathan and his companion cross the deep ravine that separates the two battle camps (see v. 16) is flanked by two outcroppings of rock with names that suggest that the passage is treacherous, Bozez (Hebrew, "Swampy" or "Gleaming") and Seneh than and his armor-bearer, saying, "Come up to us, and we will show you something." Jonathan said to his armor-bearer, "Come up after me; for the LORD has given them into the hand of Israel." ¹³Then Jonathan climbed up on his hands and feet, with his armor-bearer following after him. The Philistinesⁿ fell before Jonathan, and his armor-bearer, coming after him, killed them. ¹⁴In that first slaughter Jonathan and his armor-bearer killed about twenty men within an area about half a furrow long in an acre^o of land. ¹⁵There was a panic in the camp, in the field, and among all the people; the garrison and even the raiders trembled; the earth quaked; and it became a very great panic.

¹⁶Saul's lookouts in Gibeah of Benjamin were watching as the multitude was surging back and forth.^p ¹⁷Then Saul said to the troops that were with him, "Call the roll and see who has gone from us." When they had called the roll, Jonathan and his armor-bearer were not there. ¹⁸Saul said to Ahijah, "Bring the ark^q of God here." For at that time the ark^q of God went with the Israelites. ¹⁹While Saul was talking to the priest, the tumult in the camp of the Philistines increased more and more; and Saul said to the priest, "Withdraw your hand." ²⁰Then Saul and all the people who were with him rallied and went into the battle; and every sword was against the other, so that there was very great confusion. ²¹Now the Hebrews who previously had been with the Philistines and had gone up with them into the camp turned and joined the Israelites who were with Saul and Jonathan. ²²Likewise, when all the Israelites who had gone into hiding in the hill country of Ephraim heard that the Philistines were fleeing,

they too followed closely after them in the battle. ²³So the LORD gave Israel the victory that day.

The battle passed beyond Beth-aven, and the troops with Saul numbered altogether about ten thousand men. The battle spread out over the hill country of Ephraim.

Saul's Rash Oath

²⁴Now Saul committed a very rash act on that day.^r He had laid an oath on the troops, saying, "Cursed be anyone who eats food before it is evening and I have been avenged on my enemies." So none of the troops tasted food. ²⁵All the troops^s came upon a honeycomb; and there was honey on the ground. ²⁶When the troops came upon the honeycomb, the honey was dripping out; but they did not put their hands to their mouths, for they feared the oath. ²⁷But Jonathan had not heard his father charge the troops with the oath; so he extended the staff that was in his hand, and dipped the tip of it in the honeycomb, and put his hand to his mouth; and his eyes brightened. ²⁸Then one of the soldiers said, "Your father strictly charged the troops with an oath, saying, 'Cursed be anyone who eats food this day.' And so the troops are faint." ²⁹Then Jonathan said, "My father has troubled the land; see how my eyes have brightened because I tasted a little of this honey. ³⁰How much better if today the troops had eaten freely of the spoil taken from their enemies; for now the slaughter among the Philistines has not been great."

("Thorny"). 14.16 As in v. 2, Geba should probably be read in place of Gibeah. 14.18 The Septuagint preserves the text of this verse more accurately: "Saul said to Ahijah, 'Bring the ephod here.' For at that time he wore the ephod before Israel." Saul wants to consult the Urim and Thummim (see note on 14.3) to discover the source of the turmoil in the Philistine camp. 14.21 The term Hebrews is an ethnic, not a political designation. These Hebrews are people with a recognized kinship to the Israelites who have not yet joined Israel politically (see 13.3). Jonathan's heroism has inspired them to side with their kin. 14.23 Beth-aven, probably a reference to Bethel; see note on 13.5.

14.24–35 Saul impetuously makes an oath condemning anyone who eats before sundown, and Jonathan, who knows nothing of the oath, eats honey and finds himself in mortal danger. 14.27 The meaning of the statement that Jonathan's eyes brightened is that he was refreshed or invigorated (see, e.g., Ezra 9.8). 14.31–35 This episode, which blurs the main story's focus on Jonathan, may have originated as an independent tradition about Saul's first altar (v. 35). 14.31 Aijalon was a few miles southwest of Beth-horon, so that the direction of the rout was to the west (see 13.18) toward Philistine territory.

Philistines that day from Michmash to Ajalon, the troops were very faint; ³²so the troops flew upon the spoil, and took sheep and oxen and calves, and slaughtered them on the ground; and the troops ate them with the blood. ³³Then it was reported to Saul, "Look, the troops are sinning against the LORD by eating with the blood." And he said, "You have dealt treacherously; roll a large stone before me here."^t ³⁴Saul said, "Disperse yourselves among the troops, and say to them, 'Let all bring their oxen or their sheep, and slaughter them here, and eat; and do not sin against the LORD by eating with the blood.'" So all of the troops brought their oxen with them that night, and slaughtered them there. ³⁵And Saul built an altar to the LORD; it was the first altar that he built to the LORD.

Jonathan in Danger of Death

³⁶ Then Saul said, "Let us go down after the Philistines by night and despoil them until the morning light; let us not leave one of them." They said, "Do whatever seems good to you." But the priest said, "Let us draw near to God here." ³⁷So Saul inquired of God, "Shall I go down after the Philistines? Will you give them into the hand of Israel?" But he did not answer him that day. ³⁸Saul said, "Come here, all you leaders of the people; and let us find out how this sin has arisen today. ³⁹For as the LORD lives who saves Israel, even if it is in my son Jonathan, he shall surely die!" But there was no one among all the people who answered him. ⁴⁰He said to all Israel, "You shall be on one side, and I and my son Jonathan will be on the other side." The people said to Saul, "Do what seems good to you." ⁴¹Then Saul said, "O LORD God of Israel, why have you not answered your servant today? If this guilt is in me or in my son Jonathan, O LORD God of Israel, give Urim; but if this guilt is in your people Israel,^u give Thummim." And Jonathan and Saul were indicated by the lot, but the people were cleared. ⁴²Then Saul said, "Cast the lot between me and my son Jonathan." And Jonathan was taken.

⁴³ Then Saul said to Jonathan, "Tell me what you have done." Jonathan told him, "I tasted a little honey with the tip of the staff that was in my hand; here I am, I will die." ⁴⁴Saul said, "God do so to me and more also; you shall surely die, Jonathan!" ⁴⁵Then the people said to Saul, "Shall Jonathan die, who has accomplished this great victory in Israel? Far from it! As the LORD lives, not one hair of his head shall fall to the ground; for he has worked with God today." So the people ransomed Jonathan, and he did not die. ⁴⁶Then Saul withdrew from pursuing the Philistines; and the Philistines went to their own place.

Further Notices About Saul's Reign

⁴⁷ When Saul had taken the kingship over Israel, he fought against all his enemies on every side—against Moab, against the Ammonites, against Edom, against the kings of Zobah, and against the Philistines; wherever he turned he routed

14.32 When victory is assured, Saul's oath is no longer in effect, and the famished troops slaughter captured livestock for food; but they sin by eating the meat with the blood, which was reserved for the deity, thereby violating the prohibition recorded in Lev 19.26; Deut 12.23–27. 14.33–34 Slaughtering the livestock on the large stone, rather than the ground (v. 32), will permit the blood to drain.

14.36–46 Jonathan's violation of Saul's oath is discovered by casting lots. Saul condemns his son to death, but the people intervene and ransom Jonathan. 14.38 Saul assumes, correctly, that the failure of the divination attempted in v. 37 was a result of some sin, but he does not yet know that Jonathan has violated his oath. 14.40–42 As in the lottery that selected Saul king them. ⁴⁸He did valiantly, and struck down the Amalekites, and rescued Israel out of the hands of those who plundered them.

⁴⁹ Now the sons of Saul were Jonathan, Ishvi, and Malchishua; and the names of his two daughters were these: the name of the firstborn was Merab, and the name of the younger, Michal. ⁵⁰ The name of Saul's wife was Ahinoam daughter of Ahimaaz. And the name of the commander of his army was Abner son of Ner, Saul's uncle; ⁵¹ Kish was the father of Saul, and Ner the father of Abner was the son of Abiel.

⁵² There was hard fighting against the Philistines all the days of Saul; and when Saul saw any strong or valiant warrior, he took him into his service.

Saul Defeats the Amalekites

15 Samuel said to Saul, "The LORD sent me to anoint you king over his people Israel; now therefore listen to the words of the LORD. ² Thus says the LORD of hosts, 'I will punish the Amalekites for what they did in opposing the Israelites when they came up out of Egypt. ³ Now go and attack Amalek, and utterly destroy all that they have; do not spare them, but kill both man and woman, child and infant, ox and sheep, camel and donkey.'"

⁴ So Saul summoned the people, and numbered them in Telaim, two hundred thousand foot soldiers, and ten thousand soldiers of Judah. ⁵ Saul came to the city of the Amalekites and lay in wait in the valley. ⁶ Saul said to the Kenites, "Go! Leave! Withdraw from among the Amalekites, or I will destroy you with them; for you showed kindness to all the people of Israel when they came up out of Egypt." So the Kenites withdrew from the Amalekites. ⁷ Saul defeated the Amalekites, from Havilah as far as Shur, which is east of Egypt. ⁸ He took King Agag of the Amalekites alive, but utterly destroyed all the people with the edge of the sword. ⁹ Saul and the people spared Agag, and the best of the sheep and of the cattle and of the fatlings, and the lambs, and all that was valuable, and would not utterly destroy them; all that was despised and worthless they utterly destroyed.

The Rejection of Saul

¹⁰ The word of the LORD came to Samuel: ¹¹ "I regret that I made Saul king, for he has turned back from following

14.48 The statement that Saul did valiantly implies that he acquired territorial gains, restoring lands lost in previous wars and extending Israel's borders. His victory over the Amalekites is described in the next chapter in less complimentary terms.

14.49 Of the sons of Saul listed here only Jonathan has a role in the biblical narrative. Ishvi, however, may be the same as Ishbaal (see 2 Sam 2.8); the list of Saul's sons who died with him on Mount Gilboa does not mention Ishvi and adds another name, Abinadab (1 Sam 31.2). For Merab and Michal, see 18.17–30. 14.50 Ahinoam daughter of Ahimaaz is mentioned nowhere else. Abner remained Saul's chief military officer throughout his reign and set Ishbaal on the throne after Saul's death (2 Sam 2.8). 14.51 Abiel was Kish's father (9.1). Cf. 1 Chr 8.33; 9.39.

15.1–9 Saul is called upon to avenge an ancient grievance against the Amalekites. 15.2 The Amalekites were a nomadic tribe who lived in the desert south of Judah. Saul is told to avenge their attack on the Israelites at the oasis of Rephidim during the journey from Egypt to Canaan (Ex 17.8–13). At the time the Lord swore to "utterly blot out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven," and Moses vowed "war with Amalek from generation to generation" (Ex 17.14–16). 15.3 The rules of Israel's holy war required that everything captured in battle be consecrated to the Lord. This meant that the soldiers could not take spoils and that any person or animal captured alive had to be put to death (see Deut 20.10–18). Though this fate was normally reserved for enemies living within the promised land, the Amalekites are subject to a special directive (see Deut 25.17–19). 15.4 Telaim was probably another name for Telem, a town in the extreme southern portion of Judah (see Josh 15.24). 15.5 It is surprising that there should be a city of the Amalekites, who were camel-riding nomads. 15.6 The Kenites were desert-dwelling, nomadic metalworkers or smiths, who had settled among the Amalekites (see Judg 1.16). 15.7 The wording of this verse may have been influenced by the description of the Ishmaelite homeland in Gen 25.18. Havilah, which was somewhere on the western edge of the Arabian Peninsula, seems out of place. The wilderness of Shur lay northeast of Egypt. 15.9 Agag is known only from this episode, but the reference to him in Num 24.7 suggests that he was a famous enough king to be a standard of comparison.

15.10–34 By violating the ban on leaving any of the Amalekites alive, Saul incurs the anger of me, and has not carried out my commands." Samuel was angry; and he cried out to the LORD all night. ¹²Samuel rose early in the morning to meet Saul, and Samuel was told, "Saul went to Carmel, where he set up a monument for himself, and on returning he passed on down to Gilgal." ¹³When Samuel came to Saul, Saul said to him, "May you be blessed by the LORD; I have carried out the command of the LORD." ¹⁴But Samuel said, "What then is this bleating of sheep in my ears, and the lowing of cattle that I hear?" ¹⁵Saul said, "They have brought them from the Amalekites; for the people spared the best of the sheep and the cattle, to sacrifice to the LORD your God; but the rest we have utterly destroyed." ¹⁶Then Samuel said to Saul, "Stop! I will tell you what the LORD said to me last night." He replied, "Speak."

¹⁷Samuel said, "Though you are little in your own eyes, are you not the head of the tribes of Israel? The LORD anointed you king over Israel. ¹⁸And the LORD sent you on a mission, and said, 'Go, utterly destroy the sinners, the Amalekites, and fight against them until they are consumed.' ¹⁹Why then did you not obey the voice of the LORD? Why did you swoop down on the spoil, and do what was evil in the sight of the LORD?" ²⁰Saul said to Samuel, "I have obeyed the voice of the LORD, I have gone on the mission on which the LORD sent me, I have brought Agag the king of Amalek, and I have utterly destroyed the Amalekites. ²¹But from the spoil the people took sheep and cattle, the best of the things devoted to destruction, to sacrifice to the LORD your God in Gilgal." ²²And Samuel said,

"Has the LORD as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices,
as in obedience to the voice of the LORD?

Surely, to obey is better than sacrifice,
and to heed than the fat of rams.

²³ For rebellion is no less a sin than divination,
and stubbornness is like iniquity and idolatry.

Because you have rejected the word of the LORD,
he has also rejected you from being king."

²⁴ Saul said to Samuel, "I have sinned; for I have transgressed the commandment of the LORD and your words, because I feared the people and obeyed their voice. ²⁵Now therefore, I pray, pardon my sin, and return with me, so that I may worship the LORD." ²⁶Samuel said to Saul, "I will not return with you; for you have rejected the word of the LORD, and the LORD has rejected you from being king over Israel." ²⁷As Samuel turned to go away, Saul caught hold of the hem of his robe, and it tore. ²⁸And Samuel said to him, "The LORD has torn the kingdom of Israel from you this very day, and has given it to a neighbor of yours, who is better than you. ²⁹Moreover the Glory of Israel will not recant or change his mind; for he is not a mortal, that he should change his mind." ³⁰Then Saul^w said, "I have sinned; yet honor me now before the elders of my people and before Israel, and return with me, so that I may worship the LORD your God." ³¹So Samuel turned the Lord, who rejects him as king. 15.12 Carmel, about seven miles south of Hebron (Josh 15.55), is the village where David meets his wife Abigail (see 1 Sam 25.2–42). 15.15 Saul defends himself by claiming that the animals were spared so that they could be sacrificed to the Lord. 15.22–23 Samuel's poetic censure of Saul is reminiscent of the oracles against empty cultic practice that abound in the prophetic writings (see, e.g., Isa 66.2b–4; Hos 6.6; Am 5.21–24; Mic 6.6–8). 15.23 The term for divination used here implies foreign practices (Num 22.7) and false prophecy (Jer 14.14), not the permitted form utilizing the Urim and Thummim (see note on 14.41). The Hebrew term rendered idolatry here is teraphim (English teraphim in 19.13, text note h), used here as a term for idol worship in general. 15.27 By grasping the hem of his robe Saul is appealing to Samuel with a traditional gesture of supplication that was widespread in the ancient Near East. 15.28 Samuel turns the accidental tear into a symbolic prophetic act. The prophet Ahijah denounces Jeroboam with a similar gesture in 1 Kings 11.29–32. 15.29 Cf. Num 23.19, but also cf. 1 Sam 15.35; Jon 3.9–10. 15.30–31 These verses seem to represent an alternate ending to the episode. Samuel is now willing to return with Saul without question or comment, after angrily refusing to do

back after Saul; and Saul worshiped the LORD.

32 Then Samuel said, "Bring Agag king of the Amalekites here to me." And Agag came to him haltingly.^x Agag said, "Surely this is the bitterness of death."^y

33 But Samuel said,

"As your sword has made women
childless,
so your mother shall be

And Samuel hewed Agag in pieces before the LORD in Gilgal.

The Anointing of David

34 Then Samuel went to Ramah; and Saul went up to his house in Gibeah of Saul. 35 Samuel did not see Saul again until the day of his death, but Samuel grieved over Saul. And the LORD was sorry that he had made Saul king over Israel.

16 The LORD said to Samuel, "How long will you grieve over Saul? I have rejected him from being king over Israel. Fill your horn with oil and set out; I will send you to Jesse the Bethlehemite, for I have provided for myself a king among his sons." 2 Samuel said, "How can I go? If Saul hears of it, he will kill me." And the LORD said, "Take a heifer with you, and say, 'I have come to sacrifice to the LORD.' 3 Invite Jesse to the sacrifice, and I will show you what you shall do; and you shall anoint for me the one whom I name to you." 4 Samuel did what the LORD commanded, and came to Bethlehem. The elders of the city came to meet him trembling, and said, "Do you come peaceably?" 5 He said, "Peaceably; I have come to sacrifice to the LORD; sanctify yourselves and come with me to the sacrifice." And he sanctified Jesse and his sons and invited them to the sacrifice.

6 When they came, he looked on Eliab and thought, "Surely the LORD's anointed is now before the LORD."^z 7 But the LORD said to Samuel, "Do not look on his appearance or on the height of his stature, because I have rejected him; for the LORD does not see as mortals see; they look on the outward appearance, but the LORD looks on the heart." 8 Then Jesse called Abinadab, and made him pass before Samuel. He said, "Neither has the LORD chosen this one." 9 Then Jesse made Shammah pass by. And he said, "Neither has the LORD chosen this one." 10 Jesse made seven of his sons pass before Samuel, and Samuel said to Jesse, "The LORD has not chosen any of these." 11 Samuel said to Jesse, "Are all your sons here?" And he said, "There remains yet the youngest, but he is keeping the sheep." And Samuel said to Jesse, "Send and bring him; for we will not sit down until he comes here." 12 He sent and brought him in. Now he was ruddy, and had beautiful eyes, and was handsome. The LORD said, "Rise and anoint him; for this is the one." 13 Then Samuel took the horn of oil, and anointed him in the presence of his brothers; and the spirit of the LORD came mightily upon David from that day forward. Samuel then set out and went to Ramah.

so in vv. 24-29. 15.32 The obscure Hebrew word rendered haltingly more likely means "in chains" (see Job 38.31). The statement that Samuel hewed Agag in pieces before the LORD indicates that the execution is a ritual dismemberment of the kind associated with covenant violations (see 11.7).

15.35-16.13 Samuel is sent to Bethlehem to anoint a new king. 16.1 The Lord tells Samuel, "Fill your horn with oil" in preparation for anointing a new king (v. 13); see 9.16; 10.1; for the horn, see 1 Kings 1.39. Jesse, a member of the tribe of Judah and the clan of Perez (Ruth 4.12, 17-22; 1 Chr 2.3-12), was the grandson of Ruth and Boaz. As a Bethlehemite, he lived in Judah about six miles south of Jerusalem. 16.6 Samuel mistakenly assumes that Eliab, Jesse's firstborn

(1 Chr 2.13), is the LORD's anointed, i.e., the messiah, Hebrew, "anointed one" or "messiah" of the Lord. 16.8 Abinadab is Jesse's second son (1 Chr 2.13). 16.9 Jesse's third son, Shammah, is called Shimeah (2 Sam 13.3, 32), Shimei (2 Sam 21.21), or Shimea (1 Chr 2.13; 20.7) elsewhere. 16.10 Jesse shows Samuel seven of his sons before mentioning David, and 17.12 indicates that he had eight sons. According to 1 Chr 2.13-15, however, David was the seventh of seven sons, and the motif of the seventh son who surpasses his brothers is widespread in world folklore. 16.11 The verb sit down probably implies sitting down to eat the part of the sacrifice (v. 5; cf. 9.13) not reserved for the Lord (see Sir 32.1). 16.13 The spirit of the LORD possesses David as it did Saul (see 10.6; 11.6).

14 Now the spirit of the LORD departed from Saul, and an evil spirit from the LORD tormented him. 15 And Saul's servants said to him, "See now, an evil spirit from God is tormenting you. 16 Let our lord now command the servants who attend you to look for someone who is skillful in playing the lyre; and when the evil spirit from God is upon you, he will play it, and you will feel better." 17 So Saul said to his servants, "Provide for me someone who can play well, and bring him to me." 18 One of the young men answered, "I have seen a son of Jesse the Bethlehemite who is skillful in playing, a man of valor, a warrior, prudent in speech, and a man of good presence; and the LORD is with him." 19 So Saul sent messengers to Jesse, and said, "Send me your son David who is with the sheep." 20 Jesse took a donkey loaded with bread, a skin of wine, and a kid, and sent them by his son David to Saul. 21 And David came to Saul, and entered his service. Saul loved him greatly, and he became his armor-bearer. 22 Saul sent to Jesse, saying, "Let David remain in my service, for he has found favor in my sight." 23 And whenever the evil spirit from God came upon Saul, David took the lyre and played it with his hand, and Saul would be relieved and feel better, and the evil spirit would depart from him.

David and Goliath

17 Now the Philistines gathered their armies for battle; they were gathered at Socoh, which belongs to Judah, and encamped between Socoh and Azekah, in Ephes-dammim. 2 Saul and the Israelites gathered and encamped in the valley of Elah, and formed ranks against the Philistines. 3 The Philistines stood on the mountain on the one side, and Israel stood on the mountain on the other side, with a valley between them. 4 And there came out from the camp of the Philistines a champion named Goliath, of Gath, whose height was six^a cubits and a span. 5 He had a helmet of bronze on his head, and he was armed with a coat of mail; the weight of the coat was five thousand shekels of bronze. 6 He had greaves of bronze on his legs and a javelin of bronze slung

16.14–23 David is summoned to court as a musician. 16.14 The spirit of the LORD that empowered Saul to prophesy and rule (see 10.6; 11.6) is now replaced by an evil spirit from the LORD that will torment him. 16.15 Saul's servants are the ranking members of his court. 16.16 The notion that music can tame or banish evil spirits is widespread in world folklore. 16.18 In the tradition underlying this account, David was a warrior when he came to Saul's court, not an inexperienced shepherd boy as in the chapter that follows (see 17.33, 39). Whatever personal assets David has, however, none is as important as the fact that the LORD is with him, a theme echoed throughout the story of David's rise to power (see 18.14). 16.21–22 Though subsequent events will poison their relationship, David at first inspires affection and loyalty in Saul.

17.1–58 The familiar story of David and Goliath is actually a composite of two accounts of David's victory over a Philistine champion. The first account begins in v. 1. The second, which was added late enough to be completely missing from the oldest Greek manuscripts, begins in v. 12. 17.1 Socoh was a small town in the hills about fourteen miles west of Bethlehem; Israel regarded it as a part of Judah (Josh 15.35), but because of its border location it was disputed with Philistia (see 2 Chr 11.7; 28.18). Azekah, a few miles northwest of Socoh, was a fortress that guarded the main road across the valley of Elah (v. 2). Ephes-dammim, called Pas-dammim in 1 Chr 11.13, was probably about four miles northeast of Socoh. 17.2 The valley of Elah was one of the principal wadis, the next south of Sorek (see note on 6.9), in the western watershed of the Judean hills. 17.4 The term rendered a champion here is used in the War Scroll of Qumran (1QM) to mean "an infantryman." The name Goliath is at home in Anatolia, one of the places from which the Philistines and other Sea Peoples came; it occurs only here in the older version of David's fight with the Philistine champion, and it may have been borrowed from 2 Sam 21.19, where the slayer of Goliath the Gittite is not David but Elhanan, one of his heroes. The Masoretic Text's six cubits and a span make the Philistine champion almost 10 feet tall. According to the Septuagint and a scroll from Qumran (4QSam^a), which probably preserve a superior reading here, he was "four cubits and a span," or about 6 feet, 9 inches tall—a true giant but not a fairy-tale monster. 17.5–6 The description of the Philistine's armor prepares readers for v. 49 by showing that he had no vulnerable spot except his forehead. 17.6 The term rendered javelin (Hebrew kidon) refers more likely between his shoulders. ⁷The shaft of his spear was like a weaver's beam, and his spear's head weighed six hundred shekels of iron; and his shield-bearer went before him. ⁸He stood and shouted to the ranks of Israel, "Why have you come out to draw up for battle? Am I not a Philistine, and are you not servants of Saul? Choose a man for yourselves, and let him come down to me. ⁹If he is able to fight with me and kill me, then we will be your servants; but if I prevail against him and kill him, then you shall be our servants and serve us." ¹⁰And the Philistine said, "Today I defy the ranks of Israel! Give me a man, that we may fight together." ¹¹When Saul and all Israel heard these words of the Philistine, they were dismayed and greatly afraid.

¹² Now David was the son of an Ephrathite of Bethlehem in Judah, named Jesse, who had eight sons. In the days of Saul the man was already old and advanced in years.^b ¹³The three eldest sons of Jesse had followed Saul to the battle; the names of his three sons who went to the battle were Eliab the firstborn, and next to him Abinadab, and the third Shammah. ¹⁴David was the youngest; the three eldest followed Saul, ¹⁵but David went back and forth from Saul to feed his father's sheep at Bethlehem. ¹⁶For forty days the Philistine came forward and took his stand, morning and evening.

¹⁷ Jesse said to his son David, "Take for your brothers an ephah of this parched grain and these ten loaves, and carry them quickly to the camp to your brothers; ¹⁸also take these ten cheeses to the commander of their thousand. See how your brothers fare, and bring some token from them."

²⁴ All the Israelites, when they saw the man, fled from him and were very much afraid. ²⁵The Israelites said, "Have you seen this man who has come up? Surely he has come up to defy Israel. The king will greatly enrich the man who kills him, and will give him his daughter and make his family free in Israel." ²⁶David said to the men who stood by him, "What shall be done for the man who kills this Philistine, and takes away the reproach from Israel? For who is this uncircumcised Philistine that he should defy the armies of the living God?" ²⁷The people answered him in the same way, "So shall it be done for the man who kills him."

²⁸ His eldest brother Eliab heard him talking to the men; and Eliab's anger was kindled against David. He said, "Why

to a curved and flat-bladed sword or scimitar (see v. 51). 17.7 The expression like a weaver's beam derives from 2 Sam 21.19; it probably means that the spear had a thong attached to a ring, similar to the rod and ring of a weaver's heddle rod, by which the spear could be slung in battle. The spearhead is iron, a metal harder than bronze that was available because of new metalworking techniques being introduced in the region at the time; according to biblical tradition, the Philistines carefully controlled the new technology (see 13.19–22). 17.12 This is the beginning of the second version of the story of David and the Philistine champion, which has been combined with the first by an editor. Jesse and his sons are introduced as if for the first time (see 16.1–13).

Jesse was an Ephrathite, a member of clan that settled in Benjamin near Kiriath-jearim (see 10.2) and in Judah near Bethlehem. 17.25 On the promise of marriage to Saul's daughter, see 18.17–30. To be free in Israel probably means to be exempt from taxation and the obligations of palace service because of a brave deed at arms. 17.26 David's remarks in this verse, still part of the secondarily added alternate version of the story, seem influenced by the language of v. 36, which belongs to the primary version. In both verses David refers to the Lord as the living God, an epithet that stresses the reality and power of the God of Israel (see Jer 10.10) while implying that anyone who would challenge the authority of have you come down? With whom have you left those few sheep in the wilderness? I know your presumption and the evil of your heart; for you have come down just to see the battle." ²⁹David said, "What have I done now? It was only a question." ³⁰He turned away from him toward another and spoke in the same way; and the people answered him again as before.

³¹ When the words that David spoke were heard, they repeated them before Saul; and he sent for him. ³²David said to Saul, "Let no one's heart fail because of him; your servant will go and fight with this Philistine." ³³Saul said to David, "You are not able to go against this Philistine to fight with him; for you are just a boy, and he has been a warrior from his youth." ³⁴But David said to Saul, "Your servant used to keep sheep for his father; and whenever a lion or a bear came, and took a lamb from the flock, ³⁵I went after it and struck it down, rescuing the lamb from its mouth; and if it turned against me, I would catch it by the jaw, strike it down, and kill it. ³⁶Your servant has killed both lions and bears; and this uncircumcised Philistine shall be like one of them, since he has defied the armies of the living God." ³⁷David said, "The LORD, who saved me from the paw of the lion and from the paw of the bear, will save me from the hand of this Philistine." So Saul said to David, "Go, and may the LORD be with you!"

³⁸ Saul clothed David with his armor; he put a bronze helmet on his head and clothed him with a coat of mail. ³⁹David strapped Saul's sword over the armor, and he tried in vain to walk, for he was not used to them. Then David said to Saul, "I cannot walk with these; for I am not used to them." So David removed them. ⁴⁰Then he took his staff in his hand, and chose five smooth stones from the wadi, and put them in his shepherd's bag, in the pouch; his sling was in his hand, and he drew near to the Philistine.

⁴¹ The Philistine came on and drew near to David, with his shield-bearer in front of him. ⁴²When the Philistine looked and saw David, he disdained him, for he was only a youth, ruddy and handsome in appearance. ⁴³The Philistine said to David, "Am I a dog, that you come to me with sticks?" And the Philistine cursed David by his gods. ⁴⁴The Philistine said to David, "Come to me, and I will give your flesh to the birds of the air and to the wild animals of the field." ⁴⁵But David said to the Philistine, "You come to me with sword and spear and javelin; but I come to you in the name of the LORD of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom you have defied. ⁴⁶This very day the LORD will deliver you into my hand, and I will strike you down and cut off your head; and I will give the dead bodies of the Philistine army this very day to the birds of the air and to the wild animals of the earth, so that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel, ⁴⁷and that all this assembly may know that the LORD does not save by sword and spear; for the battle is the LORD's and he will give you into our hand."

the Lord will fail (see 2 Kings 19.4, 16; Isa 37.4, 17; Jer 23.36). 17.33-37 Saul argues that David is unfit to take on the Philistine champion because he is just a boy. David's rejoinder is that his experience as a shepherd with lions and bears has prepared him to deal with the Philistine. 17.38-39 Saul lends David his own armor, but when fully dressed, David, who is depicted in this episode as a shepherd without military training, is unable to walk. 17.40 Instead, David chooses his staff and his sling, the weapons he is comfortable with. The wadi that provides the sling stones is the valley (i.e., wadi) of Elah of v. 2. 17.42 The words ruddy and handsome in appearance, which are out of place here, were probably added by a scribe who was remembering 16.12. 17.44-45 The Philistine expresses contempt for David's rude weapons, but David's retort expresses the true contrast between the two champions (see v. 47). The Philistine relies on sword and spear and javelin, ordinary weapons, but David is armed with the name of the LORD, drawing upon the spiritual power he grasped his sword, drew it out of its sheath, and killed him; then he cut off his head with it.

When the Philistines saw that their champion was dead, they fled. ⁵²The troops of Israel and Judah rose up with a shout and pursued the Philistines as far as Gath^c and the gates of Ekron, so that the wounded Philistines fell on the way from Shaaraim as far as Gath and Ekron. ⁵³The Israelites came back from chasing the Philistines, and they plundered their camp. ⁵⁴David took the head of the Philistine and brought it to Jerusalem; but he put his armor in his tent.

⁵⁵When Saul saw David go out against the Philistine, he said to Abner, the commander of the army, "Abner, whose son is this young man?" Abner said, "As your soul lives, O king, I do not know." ⁵⁶The king said, "Inquire whose son the stripling is." ⁵⁷On David's return from killing the Philistine, Abner took him and brought him before Saul, with the head of the Philistine in his hand. ⁵⁸Saul said to him, "Whose son are you, young man?" And David answered, "I am the son of your servant Jesse the Bethlehemite."

Jonathan's Covenant with David

18 When David^d had finished speaking to Saul, the soul of Jonathan was bound to the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul. ²Saul took him that day and would not let him return to his father's house. ³Then Jonathan made a covenant with David, because he loved him as his own soul. ⁴Jonathan stripped himself of the robe that he was wearing, and gave it to David, and his armor, and even his sword and his bow and his belt. ⁵David went out and was successful wherever Saul sent him; as a result, Saul set him over the army. And all the people, even the servants of Saul, approved.

⁶As they were coming home, when David returned from killing the Philistine, the women came out of all the towns of Israel, singing and dancing, to meet King Saul, with tambourines, with songs of joy, and with musical instruments.^c ⁷And the women sang to one another as they made merry,

"Saul has killed his thousands,
and David his ten thousands."

⁸Saul was very angry, for this saying displeased him. He said, "They have ascribed to David ten thousands, and to me they have ascribed thousands; what more can he have but the kingdom?" ⁹So Saul eyed David from that day on.

Saul's Fear of David

¹⁰The next day an evil spirit from God rushed upon Saul, and he raved within his house, while David was playing the lyre, as he did day by day. Saul had his spear in his hand; ¹¹and Saul threw the spear, for he thought, "I will pin David to the wall." But David eluded him twice.

¹²Saul was afraid of David, because the LORD was with him but had departed from Saul. ¹³So Saul removed him from his presence, and made him a commander of a thousand; and David marched out and came in, leading the army. ¹⁴David of the God of Israel. 17.52 Shaaraim was a town in Judah (Josh 15.36) near Socoh and Azekah (see note on 17.1); it apparently lay to the west in the direction of Gath and Ekron (see 5.8, 10). 17.54 The mention of Jerusalem is surprising, since it did not become an Israelite city until after David became king (see 2 Sam 5.6–9). Although David puts Goliath's armor in his tent, he acquires his sword at the shrine of Nob in 21.9. 17.55 On Abner, see note on 14.50.

18.1–9 David receives Jonathan's loyalty, and as David's success on the battlefield grows, Saul begins to look on him with suspicion. 18.1 To say that the soul of Jonathan was bound to the soul of David is to describe inseparable devotion, like that of Jacob for his son Benjamin (see Gen

44.30–31). For the political overtones of the statement that Jonathan loved David as his own soul (also v. 3), see note on 20.17. 18.3 Jonathan and David enter into a covenant, a formal agreement of friendship and mutual loyalty. 18.4 It has been suggested that by giving David his robe and other apparel, Jonathan is formally transferring his claim on Saul's throne to David. 18.6–9 Saul's jealousy of David begins when David's military exploits become the subject of public celebration.

18.10–16 Saul takes measures to rid himself of David. 18.10–11 This episode is not in the Septuagint; it may have been added in anticipation of 19.9–10. For the evil spirit from God, see 16.14–15. 18.14 Here and throughout the story of his rise to power David's extraordinary had success in all his undertakings; for the LORD was with him. ¹⁵When Saul saw that he had great success, he stood in awe of him. ¹⁶But all Israel and Judah loved David; for it was he who marched out and came in leading them.

David's Marriage to Michal

¹⁷ Then Saul said to David, "Here is my elder daughter Merab; I will give her to you as a wife; only be valiant for me and fight the LORD's battles." For Saul thought, "I will not raise a hand against him; let the Philistines deal with him." ¹⁸David said to Saul, "Who am I and who are my kinsfolk, my father's family in Israel, that I should be son-in-law to the king?" ¹⁹But at the time when Saul's daughter Merab should have been given to David, she was given to Adriel the Meholathite as a wife.

²⁰ Now Saul's daughter Michal loved David. Saul was told, and the thing pleased him. ²¹Saul thought, "Let me give her to him that she may be a snare for him and that the hand of the Philistines may be against him." Therefore Saul said to David a second time, ^f "You shall now be my son-in-law." ²²Saul commanded his servants, "Speak to David in private and say, 'See, the king is delighted with you, and all his servants love you; now then, become the king's son-in-law.'" ²³So Saul's servants reported these words to David in private. And David said, "Does it seem to you a little thing to become the king's son-in-law, seeing that I am a poor man and of no repute?" ²⁴The servants of Saul told him, "This is what David said." ²⁵Then Saul said, "Thus shall you say to David, 'The king desires no marriage present except a hundred foreskins of the Philistines, that he may be avenged on the king's enemies.'" Now Saul planned to make David fall by the hand of the Philistines. ²⁶When his servants told David these words, David was well pleased to be the king's son-in-law. Before the time had expired, ²⁷David rose and went, along with his men, and killed one hundred^g of the Philistines; and David brought their foreskins, which were given in full number to the king, that he might become the king's son-in-law. Saul gave him his daughter Michal as a wife. ²⁸But when Saul realized that the LORD was with David, and that Saul's daughter Michal loved him, ²⁹Saul was still more afraid of David. So Saul was David's enemy from that time forward.

³⁰ Then the commanders of the Philistines came out to battle; and as often as they came out, David had more success than all the servants of Saul, so that his fame became very great.

Jonathan Intercedes for David

19 Saul spoke with his son Jonathan and with all his servants about killing David. But Saul's son Jonathan took great delight in David. ²Jonathan told David, "My father Saul is trying to kill you; therefore be on guard tomorrow morning; stay in a secret place and hide yourself. ³I will go out and stand beside my father in the field where you are, and I will speak to my father about you; if I learn anything I will tell you." ⁴Jonathan spoke well of David to his father Saul, saying to him, "The king should not sin against his servant David, because he has not sinned against you, and because his deeds have been of good service to you; ⁵for he took his life in his hand when he attacked the Philistine, and the LORD brought about a great victory for all Israel. success is attributed to the fact that the LORD was with him (see v. 13; 16.18; 17.37; 18.28–29a; 2 Sam 5.10). 18.16 Saul's attempt to protect himself against David's growing popularity by sending him to war (v. 13) proves counterproductive; as a military leader David earns the loyalty of all Israel and Judah.

18.17–30 In 17.25 Saul's daughter was promised to the man who slew the Philistine champion. In this section, however, each of Saul's daughters is offered to David as a ruse to get him slain by the Philistines. 18.17 Merab was introduced in 14.49. 18.19 Adriel the Meholathite was from the town of Abel-meholah, which was east of the Jordan, not far from Jabesh-gilead (see 10.27). 18.25 The unusual marriage present or bride-price is calculated both to tempt David, who would otherwise be too poor (v. 23) to marry a king's daughter, and to put him in harm's way.

19.1–7 After learning that Saul is plotting to kill David, Jonathan intervenes and persuades his father to spare David's life.

killing David without cause?" 6Saul heeded the voice of Jonathan; Saul swore, "As the LORD lives, he shall not be put to death." 7So Jonathan called David and related all these things to him. Jonathan then brought David to Saul, and he was in his presence as before.

David's Flight from the Court of Saul

8 Again there was war, and David went out to fight the Philistines. He launched a heavy attack on them, so that they fled before him. 9Then an evil spirit from the LORD came upon Saul, as he sat in his house with his spear in his hand, while David was playing music. 10Saul sought to pin David to the wall with the spear; but he eluded Saul, so that he struck the spear into the wall. David fled and escaped that night.

11 Saul sent messengers to David's house to keep watch over him, planning to kill him in the morning. David's wife Michal told him, "If you do not save your life tonight, tomorrow you will be killed." 12So Michal let David down through the window; he fled away and escaped. 13Michal took an idol^h and laid it on the bed; she put a netⁱ of goats' hair on its head, and covered it with the clothes. 14When Saul sent messengers to take David, she said, "He is sick." 15Then Saul sent the messengers to see David for themselves. He said, "Bring him up to me in the bed, that I may kill him." 16When the messengers came in, the idol^j was in the bed, with the coveringⁱ of goats' hair on its head. 17Saul said to Michal, "Why have you deceived me like this, and let my enemy go, so that he has escaped?" Michal answered Saul, "He said to me, 'Let me go; why should I kill you?'"

Saul Among the Prophets

18 Now David fled and escaped; he came to Samuel at Ramah, and told him all that Saul had done to him. He and Samuel went and settled at Naioth. 19Saul was told, "David is at Naioth in Ramah." 20Then Saul sent messengers to take David. When they saw the company of the prophets in a frenzy, with Samuel standing in charge ofⁱ them, the spirit of God came upon the messengers of Saul, and they also fell into a prophetic frenzy. 21When Saul was told, he sent other messengers, and they also fell into a frenzy. Saul sent messengers again the third time, and they also fell into a frenzy. 22Then he himself went to Ramah. He came to the great well that is in Secu;^k he asked, "Where are Samuel and David?" And someone said, "They are at Naioth in Ramah." 23He went there, toward Naioth in Ramah; and the spirit of God came upon him. As he was going, he fell into a prophetic frenzy, until he came to Naioth in Ramah. 24He too stripped off his clothes, and he too fell into a frenzy before Samuel. He lay naked all that day and all that night. Therefore it is said, "Is Saul also among the prophets?"

19.8–17 Despite his oath in v. 6, Saul resumes his plans to kill David, but with Michal's help David is able to escape. 19.9–10 See 18.10–11, where a duplicate of this incident has been added, probably secondarily, to the story. 19.12 Perhaps Michal's house, like Rahab's (Josh 2.15), was built into the city wall, so that by letting David down through the window she made it possible for him to escape the city without risking the gate. 19.13 The idol or teraphim Michal uses to simulate her sleeping husband is a household god like those Rachel steals from Laban in Gen 31.19. The same word is rendered idolatry in 15.23. 19.17 Michal lies to her father, claiming that David threatened her life.

19.18–24 This episode is almost certainly a secondary addition to the story. It was obviously unknown to the author of the statement in 15.35

that Samuel would not see Saul again alive, and it offers an alternate explanation of the saying, Is Saul also among the prophets? (see note on 10.11). 19.18 Ramah of Benjamin, here apparently confused with Samuel's hometown of Ramathaim (see 1.1, 19), was only a few miles north of Gibeah. Naioth seems to mean "encampments" and may refer to camps where groups of prophets lived communally. 19.20–21 Each group of Saul's messengers is caught up in the contagious prophetic frenzy (see 10.5) as soon as it arrives. 19.22 No such place as Secu is known, and the Septuagint reading (see text note ^k) may be correct, especially since both threshing floors (Hos 9.1) and bare heights (Jer 3.2) were customary places of religious ritual. 19.24 By stripping off his clothes and lying naked Saul is indulging in another form of ecstatic behavior (see 10.5).

The Friendship of David and Jonathan

20 David fled from Naioth in Ramah. He came before Jonathan and said, "What have I done? What is my guilt? And what is my sin against your father that he is trying to take my life?" ²He said to him, "Far from it! You shall not die. My father does nothing either great or small without disclosing it to me; and why should my father hide this from me? Never!" ³But David also swore, "Your father knows well that you like me; and he thinks, 'Do not let Jonathan know this, or he will be grieved.' But truly, as the LORD lives and as you yourself live, there is but a step between me and death." ⁴Then Jonathan said to David, "Whatever you say, I will do for you." ⁵David said to Jonathan, "Tomorrow is the new moon, and I should not fail to sit with the king at the meal; but let me go, so that I may hide in the field until the third evening. ⁶If your father misses me at all, then say, 'David earnestly asked leave of me to run to Bethlehem his city; for there is a yearly sacrifice there for all the family.' ⁷If he says, 'Good!' it will be well with your servant; but if he is angry, then know that evil has been determined by him. ⁸Therefore deal kindly with your servant, for you have brought your servant into a sacred covenant^l with you. But if there is guilt in me, kill me yourself; why should you bring me to your father?" ⁹Jonathan said, "Far be it from you! If I knew that it was decided by my father that evil should come upon you, would I not tell you?" ¹⁰Then David said to Jonathan, "Who will tell me if your father answers you harshly?" ¹¹Jonathan replied to David, "Come, let us go out into the field." So they both went out into the field.

sounded out my father, about this time tomorrow, or on the third day, if he is well disposed toward David, shall I not then send and disclose it to you? ¹³But if my father intends to do you harm, the LORD do so to Jonathan, and more also, if I do not disclose it to you, and send you away, so that you may go in safety. May the LORD be with you, as he has been with my father. ¹⁴If I am still alive, show me the faithful love of the LORD; but if I die,^m ¹⁵never cut off your faithful love from my house, even if the LORD were to cut off every one of the enemies of David from the face of the earth." ¹⁶Thus Jonathan made a covenant with the house of David, saying, "May the LORD seek out the enemies of David." ¹⁷Jonathan made David swear again by his love for him; for he loved him as he loved his own life.

¹⁸ Jonathan said to him, "Tomorrow is the new moon; you will be missed, because your place will be empty. ¹⁹On the day after tomorrow, you shall go a long way down; go to the place where you hid yourself earlier, and remain beside the stone there."^m ²⁰I will shoot three arrows to the side of it, as though I shot at a mark. ²¹Then I will send the boy, saying, 'Go, find the arrows.' If I say to the boy, 'Look, the arrows are on this side of you, collect them,' then you are to come, for, as the LORD lives, it is safe for you and there is no danger. ²²But if I say to the young man, 'Look, the arrows are beyond you,' then go; for the LORD has sent you away. ²³As for the matter about which you and I have spoken, the LORD is witnessⁿ between you and me forever."

²⁴ So David hid himself in the field. When the new moon came, the king sat at the feast to eat. ²⁵The king sat upon his

20.1-42 David goes to Jonathan to ask his help again. Jonathan finds it hard to believe that Saul is really plotting to take David's life, but after an elaborate investigation he finds that it is true and passes the word to David. 20.5 The new moon was celebrated with special offerings (see Num 28.11-15) and a festival lasting at least three days. 20.8 The sacred covenant that binds Jonathan to David is mentioned in 18.3. 20.10 Jonathan's answer to David's question is found in vv. 18-23. 20.16 Thus Jonathan made a covenant with the house of David probably originally read

"And if the name of Jonathan is cut off from the house of David." The enemies of David is probably a scribal euphemism; in the original version Jonathan invoked the Lord's punishment of David himself, but in view of Jonathan's fate a scribe inserted "the enemies of" to protect David from the curse. 20.17 The statement that Jonathan loved David as he loved his own life is an indication not only of personal affection but also of political loyalty; it evokes the traditional language of ancient Near Eastern fealty oaths (see also 18.3).

seat, as at other times, upon the seat by the wall. Jonathan stood, while Abner sat by Saul's side; but David's place was empty.

26 Saul did not say anything that day; for he thought, "Something has befallen him; he is not clean, surely he is not clean." 27 But on the second day, the day after the new moon, David's place was empty. And Saul said to his son Jonathan, "Why has the son of Jesse not come to the feast, either yesterday or today?" 28 Jonathan answered Saul, "David earnestly asked leave of me to go to Bethlehem; 29 he said, 'Let me go; for our family is holding a sacrifice in the city, and my brother has commanded me to be there. So now, if I have found favor in your sight, let me get away, and see my brothers.' For this reason he has not come to the king's table."

30 Then Saul's anger was kindled against Jonathan. He said to him, "You son of a perverse, rebellious woman! Do I not know that you have chosen the son of Jesse to your own shame, and to the shame of your mother's nakedness? 31 For as long as the son of Jesse lives upon the earth, neither you nor your kingdom shall be established. Now send and bring him to me, for he shall surely die." 32 Then Jonathan answered his father Saul, "Why should he be put to death? What has he done?" 33 But Saul threw his spear at him to strike him; so Jonathan knew that it was the decision of his father to put David to death. 34 Jonathan rose from the table in fierce anger and ate no food on the second day of the month, for he was grieved for David, and because his father had disgraced him.

35 In the morning Jonathan went out into the field to the appointment with David, and with him was a little boy. 36 He said to the boy, "Run and find the arrows that I shoot." As the boy ran, he shot an arrow beyond him. 37 When the boy came to the place where Jonathan's arrow had fallen, Jonathan called after the boy and said, "Is the arrow not beyond you?" 38 Jonathan called after the boy, "Hurry, be quick, do not linger." So Jonathan's boy gathered up the arrows and came to his master. 39 But the boy knew nothing; only Jonathan and David knew the arrangement. 40 Jonathan gave his weapons to the boy and said to him, "Go and carry them to the city." 41 As soon as the boy had gone, David rose from beside the stone heap and prostrated himself with his face to the ground. He bowed three times, and they kissed each other, and wept with each other; David wept the more.^p 42 Then Jonathan said to David, "Go in peace, since both of us have sworn in the name of the LORD, saying, 'The LORD shall be between me and you, and between my descendants and your descendants, forever.'" He got up and left; and Jonathan went into the city.^q

20.26 David's absence on the first day does not arouse Saul's suspicion, because he assumes that David is not clean, i.e., that some minor accident has rendered David ritually ineligible to participate in the festival of the new moon (v. 5). 20.30 By calling Jonathan the son of a perverse, rebellious woman Saul means to brand Jonathan as genetically disloyal, but the choice of words points the insult at Jonathan's mother; his mother's nakedness refers euphemistically to her pudenda, which are shamed by his having entered the world thereby. 20.31 Saul reminds Jonathan that David stands between him and the throne. 20.42 Jonathan again reminds David of the covenantal oath that binds them together (see 18.3; 20.5).

21.1-9 David requests provisions from Ahimelech, the chief priest of Nob. Although he is suspicious, Ahimelech is persuaded by David's dissembling assurances to give him bread and a sword. 21.1 Nob, called the city of the priests in 22.19, was near Gibeah in Benjamin (see Neh 11.31-32; Isa 10.32); it seems to have been the seat of the house of Eli after the fall of Shiloh (see 1.3; 2.31-33; 4.4, 17). Ahimelech, the great-grandson of Eli and chief priest at Nob, is the son of Ahitub (22.9) and the brother of Ahijah (14.3); his anxiety at seeing David alone is probably caused by a suspicion that he is harboring a refugee. 21.2 David's facile lie is intended to allay the priest's concern; the young men are David's matter, and said to me, 'No one must know anything of the matter about which I send you, and with which I have charged you.' I have made an appointment^s with the young men for such and such a place. ³Now then, what have you at hand? Give me five loaves of bread, or whatever is here." ⁴The priest answered David, "I have no ordinary bread at hand, only holy bread—provided that the young men have kept themselves from women." ⁵David answered the priest, "Indeed women have been kept from us as always when I go on an expedition; the vessels of the young men are holy even when it is a common journey; how much more today will their vessels be holy?" ⁶So the priest gave him the holy bread; for there was no bread there except the bread of the Presence, which is removed from before the LORD, to be replaced by hot bread on the day it is taken away.

⁸ David said to Ahimelech, "Is there no spear or sword here with you? I did not bring my sword or my weapons with me, because the king's business required haste." ⁹The priest said, "The sword of Goliath the Philistine, whom you killed in the valley of Elah, is here wrapped in a cloth behind the ephod; if you will take that, take it, for there is none here except that one." David said, "There is none like it; give it to me."

David Flees to Gath

¹⁰ David rose and fled that day from Saul; he went to King Achish of Gath. ¹¹The servants of Achish said to him, "Is this not David the king of the land? Did they not sing to one another of him in dances,

'Saul has killed his thousands,

¹²David took these words to heart and was very much afraid of King Achish of Gath. ¹³So he changed his behavior before them; he pretended to be mad when in their presence.^t He scratched marks on the doors of the gate, and let his spittle run down his beard. ¹⁴Achish said to his servants, "Look, you see the man is mad; why then have you brought him to me? ¹⁵Do I lack madmen, that you have brought this fellow to play the madman in my presence? Shall this fellow come into my house?"

usual retinue of soldiers. 21.3–6 David solicits food and receives the ceremonial bread used in the rites of the shrine of Nob; this incident is cited in the NT as an instance of an excusable violation of ritual rules (see Mt 12.3–4; Mk 2.25–26; Lk 6.3–4). 21.4 Although Ahimelech has no ordinary bread, he does have holy bread (see v. 6); but he will make this available to David's men only if they meet the ritual qualification of abstinence from sexual activity (cf. Ex 19.15). 21.5 David insists that his troops routinely maintain ritual purity when on active duty; the term vessels, if the text is sound, is probably a euphemism. 21.6 For the bread of the Presence, see Ex 25.30; Lev 24.5–9. 21.7 Doeg, probably a mercenary from Edom (see 14.47), will inform on David and Ahimelech (22.9–10) and serve as the executioner of the priests of Nob (22.18–19); his title, chief of Saul's shepherds, is doubtful, and many scholars prefer "chief of Saul's guard" on the basis of 22.17. The phrase detained before the LORD, which occurs nowhere else in the Hebrew Bible, suggests some kind of ritual confinement at the shrine.

21.9 For the sword of Goliath, see 17.54; here it is kept behind an ephod, a term that usually designates a priestly garment (see 2.18; 14.3) but sometimes seems to denote an idol or some similar cultic object (see cf. Ex 32.2–4; Judg 8.27).

21.10–15 This episode, probably a late addition to the story, anticipates David's subsequent decision to expatriate and live among the Philistines (see 27.1). 21.10 David later serves as a mercenary of King Achish (see chs. 28–30), whose west Anatolian name is probably the same as that of Anchises of Troy, the father of Aeneas. Gath. See note on 5.8. 21.11 We do not know why David should be called the king of the land at this point; perhaps it simply means that he is a powerful and successful military leader. What is clear is that the Philistines recognize him. This puts him in danger, and he feigns madness to protect himself.

22.1–5 David becomes a leader of a band of outlaws recruited from those who, like David himself, have been discredited or disenfranchised by Saul's regime. 22.1 In vv. 4–5 the cave to which

³ David went from there to Mizpeh of Moab. He said to the king of Moab, "Please let my father and mother come to you, until I know what God will do for me." ⁴He left them with the king of Moab, and they stayed with him all the time that David was in the stronghold. ⁵Then the prophet Gad said to David, "Do not remain in the stronghold; leave, and go into the land of Judah." So David left, and went into the forest of Hereth.

Saul Slaughters the Priests at Nob

⁶ Saul heard that David and those who were with him had been located. Saul was sitting at Gibeah, under the tamarisk tree on the height, with his spear in his hand, and all his servants were standing around him. ⁷Saul said to his servants who stood around him, "Hear now, you Benjaminites; will the son of Jesse give every one of you fields and vineyards, will he make you all commanders of thousands and commanders of hundreds? ⁸Is that why all of you have conspired against me? No one discloses to me when my son makes a league with the son of Jesse, none of you is sorry for me or discloses to me that my son has stirred up my servant against me, to lie in wait, as he is doing today." ⁹Doeg the Edomite, who was in charge of Saul's servants, answered, "I saw the son of Jesse coming to Nob, to Ahimelech son of Ahitub; ¹⁰he inquired of the LORD for him, gave him provisions, and gave him the sword of Goliath the Philistine."

¹¹ The king sent for the priest Ahimelech son of Ahitub and for all his father's house, the priests who were at Nob; and all of them came to the king. ¹²Saul said, "Listen now, son of Ahitub." He answered, "Here I am, my lord." ¹³Saul said to him, "Why have you conspired against me, you and the son of Jesse, by giving him bread and a sword, and by inquiring of God for him, so that he has risen against me, to lie in wait, as he is doing today?"

¹⁴ Then Ahimelech answered the king, "Who among all your servants is so faithful as David? He is the king's son-in-law, and is quick to do your bidding, and is honored in your house. ¹⁵Is today the first time that I have inquired of God for him? By no means! Do not let the king impute anything to his servant or to any member of my father's house; for your servant has known nothing of all this, much or little." ¹⁶The king said, "You shall surely die, Ahimelech, you and all

David flees is described as his stronghold, and many scholars prefer to emend the word cave to stronghold in this verse. Adullam was a fortress of Judah about sixteen miles southwest of Jerusalem (see 2 Sam 23.13–14). 22.2 David, now a fugitive from Saul's justice, becomes the champion and leader of everyone in the region who is disfranchised, disenchanted, and embittered. 22.3 Although Mizpeh is mentioned nowhere else, we assume it was an important city in Moab, which lay east of the Dead Sea (see 14.47); David traced his connections with Moab to his great-grandmother Ruth (see Ruth 4.13–22). 22.5 For the prophet Gad, whose appearance at this point is a surprise, see 2 Sam 24.11–19; 1 Chr 21.9–19; 29.29; 2 Chr 29.25. The forest of Hereth, mentioned nowhere else, was probably in the vicinity of Keilah (see 23.1).

22.6–23 Enraged by his discovery that Ahimelech gave David provisions and unimpressed by the priest's explanation that he believed David a loyal servant of Saul, the desperate king orders the massacre of the priests of Nob. 22.6 This description of Saul corresponds to the classic depiction of a ruler sitting under a sacred tree (here a tamarisk) judging the people. In this case, Saul's seat of judgment is located at the height or "high place," i.e., the local place of sacrifice, at Gibeah, Saul's hometown and capital (see note on 9.1). 22.7–8 Saul's angry words to his servants (the ranking members of his court) accuse them of hoping for favors from David, while implicitly reminding them that as Benjaminites they cannot expect such favors from a Judahite. 22.9 Doeg. See note on 21.7. 22.10 Our account of David's visit to Nob (21.1–9) does not mention the fact that Ahimelech inquired of the Lord for him. 22.14–15 Ahimelech's excuse is true and honest: he believed David to be a fully trusted servant of Saul and knew nothing of the animosity that had developed between the two men. But the servants of the king would not raise their hand to attack the priests of the LORD. 18Then the king said to Doeg, "You, Doeg, turn and attack the priests." Doeg the Edomite turned and attacked the priests; on that day he killed eighty-five who wore the linen ephod. 19Nob, the city of the priests, he put to the sword; men and women, children and infants, oxen, donkeys, and sheep, he put to the sword.

20 But one of the sons of Ahimelech son of Ahitub, named Abiathar, escaped and fled after David. 21 Abiathar told David that Saul had killed the priests of the LORD. 22 David said to Abiathar, "I knew on that day, when Doeg the Edomite was there, that he would surely tell Saul. I am responsible^w for the lives of all your father's house. 23 Stay with me, and do not be afraid; for the one who seeks my life seeks your life; you will be safe with me."

David Saves the City of Keilah

23 Now they told David, "The Philistines are fighting against Keilah, and are robbing the threshing floors." 2 David inquired of the LORD, "Shall I go and attack these Philistines?" The LORD said to David, "Go and attack the Philistines and save Keilah." 3 But David's men said to him, "Look, we are afraid here in Judah; how much more then if we go to Keilah against the armies of the Philistines?" 4 Then David inquired of the LORD again. The LORD answered him, "Yes, go down to Keilah; for I will give the Philistines into your hand." 5 So David and his men went to Keilah, fought with the Philistines, brought away their livestock, and dealt them a heavy defeat. Thus David rescued the inhabitants of Keilah.

6 When Abiathar son of Ahimelech fled to David at Keilah, he came down with an ephod in his hand. 7 Now it was told Saul that David had come to Keilah. And Saul said, "God has given^x him into my hand; for he has shut himself in by entering a town that has gates and bars." 8 Saul summoned all the people to war, to go down to Keilah, to besiege David and his men. 9 When David learned that Saul was plotting evil against him, he said to the priest Abiathar, "Bring the ephod here." 10 David said, "O LORD, the God of Israel, your servant has heard that Saul seeks to come to Keilah, to destroy the city on my account. 11 And now, will^y Saul come down as your servant has heard? O LORD, the God of Israel, I beseech you, tell your servant." The LORD said, "He will come down." 12 Then David said, "Will the men of Keilah surrender me and my men into the hand of Saul?" The LORD said, "They will surrender you." 13 Then David and his men, who were about six hundred, set out and left Keilah; they wandered wherever they could go. The linen ephod is the livery of priesthood (see 2.18; 14.3, 18). 22.20 The only survivor of the massacre at Nob and, therefore, of the Shilonite priesthood (see note on 21.1) is Abiathar, a son of Ahimelech (see notes on 2.31–33; 2.33). 22.22–23 Admitting that by deceiving Ahimelech (see 21.1–8) he put the priesthood of Nob in mortal danger, David offers its only survivor his patronage. David Eludes Saul in the Wilderness

15 David was in the Wilderness of Ziph at Horesh when he learned that^a Saul had come out to seek his life. 16 Saul's son Jonathan set out and came to David at Horesh; there he strengthened his hand through the LORD.^b 17 He said to him, "Do not be afraid; for the hand of my father Saul shall not find you; you shall be king over Israel, and I shall be second to you; my father Saul also knows that this is so." 18 Then the two of them made a covenant before the LORD; David remained at Horesh, and Jonathan went home.

19 Then some Ziphites went up to Saul at Gibeah and said, "David is hiding among us in the strongholds of Horesh, on the hill of Hachilah, which is south of Jeshimon. 20 Now, O king, whenever you wish to come down, do so; and our part will be to surrender him into the king's hand." 21 Saul said, "May you be blessed by the LORD for showing me compassion! 22 Go and make sure once more; find out exactly where he is, and who has seen him there; for I am told that he is very cunning.

23 Look around and learn all the hiding places where he lurks, and come back to me with sure information. Then I will go with you; and if he is in the land, I will search him out among all the thousands of Judah." 24 So they set out and went to Ziph ahead of Saul.

David and his men were in the wilderness of Maon, in the Arabah to the south of Jeshimon. 25 Saul and his men went to search for him. When David was told, he went down to the rock and stayed in the wilderness of Maon. When Saul heard that, he pursued David into the wilderness of Maon. 26 Saul went on one side of the mountain, and David and his men on the other side of the mountain. David was hurrying to get away from Saul, while Saul and his men were closing in on David and his men to capture them. 27 Then a messenger came to Saul, saying, "Hurry and come; for the Philistines have made a raid on the land." 28 So Saul stopped pursuing David, and went against the Philistines; therefore that place was called the Rock of Escape.^c 29^d David then went up from there, and lived in the strongholds of En-gedi.

Wilderness of Ziph, a part of the Judean hills that lay several miles southeast of Keilah. The town of Ziph was on a hilltop about five miles south-southeast of Hebron.

23.15–29 Another narrow escape for David. 23.15 Horesh means "Forest" in Hebrew, and there is a ruin with a similar name near the site of ancient Ziph. 23.16 The expression strengthened his hand through the LORD means not only that Jonathan offered David encouragement and reassurance (cf. Neh 6.9), but also that he gave him tangible support (cf. Judg 9.24). 23.17 Jonathan's pledge of loyalty to David echoes the language of 20.12–17, where he sought David's protection for his family. Here he acknowledges that David will become king. By saying I shall be second to you Jonathan may simply mean that he will be subordinate to David, but there is some evidence to suggest that "the second to the king" or "the next in authority to the king" was the name of an office Jonathan hoped to fill in David's administration (see 2 Chr 28.7). 23.18 In the present form of the narrative Jonathan and David have made a covenant before (see 18.3; 20.8), but this may have been the first time in an earlier version of the story. 23.19 A group of Ziphites, residents of the Wilderness of Ziph, seek to curry favor with Saul by betraying David. Except that they must be near Horesh (see v. 15) and Maon (v. 24) the locations of the hill of Hachilah and Jeshimon are unknown. 23.24 Maon was on a hilltop ca. eight miles south of Hebron; David's camp is in the Arabah or rift valley east of the town. 23.26 Saul's troops have David trapped on the other side of the mountain; they are closing in on him, i.e., circling around the mountain from both directions. 23.27 Saul's army is called away by other duties, affording David a last minute escape. 23.28 If the name Rock of Escape is understood as Rock of Division (see text note c), the point of the wordplay may be that two hostile parties were divided here and went their separate ways. 23.29 David retreats farther into the Judean wilderness, finding shelter near the oasis of En-gedi, about eighteen miles east-southeast of Hebron on the western shore of the Dead Sea (see Josh 15.62).

David Spares Saul's Life

24 When Saul returned from following the Philistines, he was told, "David is in the wilderness of En-gedi." ²Then Saul took three thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and went to look for David and his men in the direction of the Rocks of the Wild Goats. ³He came to the sheepfolds beside the road, where there was a cave; and Saul went in to relieve himself.^e Now David and his men were sitting in the innermost parts of the cave. ⁴The men of David said to him, "Here is the day of which the LORD said to you, 'I will give your enemy into your hand, and you shall do to him as it seems good to you.'" Then David went and stealthily cut off a corner of Saul's cloak. ⁵Afterward David was stricken to the heart because he had cut off a corner of Saul's cloak. ⁶He said to his men, "The LORD forbid that I should do this thing to my lord, the LORD's anointed, to raise my hand against him; for he is the LORD's anointed." ⁷So David scolded his men severely and did not permit them to attack Saul. Then Saul got up and left the cave, and went on his way.

⁸ Afterwards David also rose up and went out of the cave and called after Saul, "My lord the king!" When Saul looked behind him, David bowed with his face to the ground, and did obeisance. ⁹David said to Saul, "Why do you listen to the words of those who say, 'David seeks to do you harm'?" ¹⁰This very day your eyes have seen how the LORD gave you into my hand in the cave; and some urged me to kill you, but I spared^f you. I said, 'I will not raise my hand against my lord; for he is the LORD's anointed.' ¹¹See, my father, see the corner of your cloak in my hand; for by the fact that I cut off the corner of your cloak, and did not kill you, you may know for certain that there is no wrong or treason in my hands. I have not sinned against you, though you are hunting me to take my life. ¹²May the LORD judge between me and you! May the LORD avenge me on you; but my hand shall not be against you. ¹³As the ancient proverb says, 'Out of the wicked comes forth wickedness'; but my hand shall not be against you. ¹⁴Against whom has the king of Israel come out? Whom do you pursue? A dead dog? A single flea? ¹⁵May the LORD therefore be judge, and give sentence between me and you. May he see to it, and plead my cause, and vindicate me against you."

¹⁶ When David had finished speaking these words to Saul, Saul said, "Is this your voice, my son David?" Saul lifted up his voice and wept. ¹⁷He said to David, "You are more righteous than I; for you have repaid me good, whereas I have repaid you evil. ¹⁸Today you have explained how you have dealt well with me, in that you did not kill me when the LORD put me into your hands. ¹⁹For who has ever found an enemy, and sent the enemy safely away? So may the LORD reward you with good for what you have done to me this day. ²⁰Now I know that you shall surely be king, and that the kingdom of Israel shall be established in your hand. ²¹Swear to me therefore by the LORD that you will not cut off my descendants after me, and that you will not wipe out my name from my father's house." ²²So

24.1–22 In the first of two very similar episodes (see ch. 26), David passes up an opportunity to kill his pursuer, and Saul is moved to a sincere but fleeting change of heart. 24.2 The exact location of the Rocks of the Wild Goats is unknown, but ibexes remain plentiful in the vicinity of En-gedi today. 24.4 We were not told previously that the Lord has promised to deliver his enemy to him, and the words of David's men should probably be understood as a traditional saying. David's reason for cutting off a corner of Saul's cloak is to use it later (v. 11) as visible evidence that he had an opportunity to harm Saul and declined to do so; in 26.12, 16 he will use a spear and a water jar for the same purpose. 24.6–7 David refuses to permit his men to harm Saul, who, as the LORD's anointed (see 9.16), is a sacrosanct individual whose slaying would be a sacrilege (see also 26.9, 11, 16, 23; 2 Sam 1.14, 16). 24.14 In this highly rhetorical self-abasement David compares himself to a dead dog (see 2 Sam 9.8; 2 Kings 8.13, Septuagint) and even a single flea on a dead dog. 24.16–19 Confronted with irrefutable evidence of David's loyalty, Saul admits that David's case is just, but this change of heart will be only temporary. 24.20 Saul acknowledges what Jonathan has already said (23.17), that David will be king. 24.21 Saul's plea for the safety of his family echoes that of Jonathan (see 20.15). 24.22 The stronghold to which David returns is probably

David swore this to Saul. Then Saul went home; but David and his men went up to the stronghold.

The Death of Samuel

25 Now Samuel died; and all Israel assembled and mourned for him. They buried him at his home in Ramah.

Then David got up and went down to the wilderness of Paran.

David, Nabal, and Abigail

2 There was a man in Maon, whose property was in Carmel. The man was very rich; he had three thousand sheep and a thousand goats. He was shearing his sheep in Carmel. ³Now the name of the man was Nabal, and the name of his wife Abigail. The woman was clever and beautiful, but the man was surly and mean; he was a Calebite. ⁴David heard in the wilderness that Nabal was shearing his sheep. ⁵So David sent ten young men; and David said to the young men, "Go up to Carmel, and go to Nabal, and greet him in my name. ⁶Thus you shall salute him: 'Peace be to you, and peace be to your house, and peace be to all that you have. ⁷I hear that you have shearers; now your shepherds have been with us, and we did them no harm, and they missed nothing, all the time they were in Carmel. ⁸Ask your young men, and they will tell you. Therefore let my young men find favor in your sight; for we have come on a feast day. Please give whatever you have at hand to your servants and to your son David.'"

9 When David's young men came, they said all this to Nabal in the name of David; and then they waited. ¹⁰But Nabal answered David's servants, "Who is David? Who is the son of Jesse? There are many servants today who are breaking away from their masters. ¹¹Shall I take my bread and my water and the meat that I have butchered for my shearers, and give it to men who come from I do not know where?" ¹²So David's young men turned away, and came back and told him all this. ¹³David said to his men, "Every man strap on his sword!" And every one of them strapped on his sword; David also strapped on his sword; and about four hundred men went up after David, while two hundred remained with the baggage.

14 But one of the young men told Abigail, Nabal's wife, "David sent messengers out of the wilderness to salute our master; and he shouted insults at them. ¹⁵Yet the men were very good to us, and we suffered no harm, and we never missed anything when we were in the fields, as long as we were with them; ¹⁶they were a wall to us both by night and by day, all the while we were with them keeping the sheep. ¹⁷Now therefore know this and consider what you should do; for evil has been decided against our master and against all his house; he is so ill-natured that no one can speak to him."

18 Then Abigail hurried and took two hundred loaves, two skins of wine, five Adullam (see note on 22.1).

25.1 Samuel's obituary prepares readers for the story of the evocation of his ghost in 28.3–25. Ramah. See notes on 1.1; 1.19. The wilderness of Paran was south of Canaan in the northeastern part of the Sinai Peninsula, too far away to fit here, and most scholars prefer to follow the Septuagint and read "wilderness of Maon."

25.2–44 When David seeks help from a prosperous Judahite and is rudely rejected, he angrily marches out to seek revenge but is prevented from incurring bloodguilt by the timely intervention of Abigail, the wife of his offender. 25.2 The towns of Maon (see note on 23.24) and Carmel (see note on 15.12) were not far apart. 25.3 Nabal's name is the Hebrew word traditionally rendered "fool" in most English Bibles. It refers to someone whose behavior violates the social norms of etiquette or law, so that it is a very apt name for Abigail's churlish husband. As a Calebite

he traced his ancestry to Caleb, one of the heroes of the conquest tradition (see Num 13–14). Calebite territory was the region around the city of Hebron (see Josh 14.13–15), a district that included the town where the present story takes place.

25.7 The time of shearers or sheepshearing was a time of work, but also merrymaking (cf. 2 Sam 13.23–29). 25.8 The phrase rendered here as a feast day (lit. "a good day") came to be a general designation for a legal holiday in postbiblical times. Here, however, it simply refers to an occasion of celebration, eating, and drinking—in this case, shearing time. In addressing Nabal, who is probably much older and certainly much wealthier, David refers to himself as your son, a gesture of courtesy. 25.13 Enraged by the report of Nabal's stingy response to his request, David precipitately orders his men to arm themselves and march off to avenge the insult. 25.18 Abigail, determined to prevent a confrontation that would sheep ready dressed, five measures of parched grain, one hundred clusters of raisins, and two hundred cakes of figs. She loaded them on donkeys¹⁹ and said to her young men, "Go on ahead of me; I am coming after you." But she did not tell her husband Nabal.²⁰ As she rode on the donkey and came down under cover of the mountain, David and his men came down toward her; and she met them.²¹ Now David had said, "Surely it was in vain that I protected all that this fellow has in the wilderness, so that nothing was missed of all that belonged to him; but he has returned me evil for good."²² God do so to David's and more also, if by morning I leave so much as one male of all who belong to him."

²³ When Abigail saw David, she hurried and alighted from the donkey, and fell before David on her face, bowing to the ground.²⁴ She fell at his feet and said, "Upon me alone, my lord, be the guilt; please let your servant speak in your ears, and hear the words of your servant."²⁵ My lord, do not take seriously this ill-natured fellow, Nabal; for as his name is, so is he; Nabal^h is his name, and folly is with him; but I, your servant, did not see the young men of my lord, whom you sent.

²⁶ "Now then, my lord, as the LORD lives, and as you yourself live, since the LORD has restrained you from bloodguilt and from taking vengeance with your own hand, now let your enemies and those who seek to do evil to my lord be like Nabal.²⁷ And now let this present that your servant has brought to my lord be given to the young men who follow my lord.²⁸ Please forgive the trespass of your servant; for the LORD will certainly make my lord a sure house, because my lord is fighting the battles of the LORD; and evil shall not be found in you so long as you live.²⁹ If anyone should rise up to pursue you and to seek your life, the life of my lord shall be bound in the bundle of the living under the care of the LORD your God; but the lives of your enemies he shall sling out as from the hollow of a sling.³⁰ When the LORD has done to my lord according to all the good that he has spoken concerning you, and has appointed you prince over Israel,³¹ my lord shall have no cause of grief, or pangs of conscience, for having shed blood without cause or for having saved himself. And when the LORD has dealt well with my lord, then remember your servant."

³² David said to Abigail, "Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, who sent you to meet me today!³³ Blessed be your good sense, and blessed be you, who have kept me today from bloodguilt and from avenging myself by my own hand!³⁴ For as surely as the LORD the God of Israel lives, who has restrained me from hurting you, unless you had hurried and come to meet me, truly by morning there would not have been left to Nabal so much as

be disastrous for both David and Nabal, assembles the provisions her husband refused to provide.^{25.22} David says, God do so to David and more also, if he does not massacre the males of Nabal's family. The threat is never carried out, and a scribe who was concerned about the consequences of the oath changed the Hebrew text to the enemies of David (see text note ^g). In the kjv the expression one male is rendered more literally and less euphemistically as "any that pisseth against the wall."^{25.24} To Abigail's words Upon me alone, my lord, be the guilt, cf. the words of the woman of Tekoa in 2 Sam 14.9. The expression is a formulaic courtesy meaning, "Please hear me out, and if anything harmful should arise from our conversation, I shall accept responsibility for it."^{25.25} Nabal means "Fool" (see note on 25.3), so that Abigail is saying, "[Fool] is his name, and folly is with him." Cf. Isa 32.6. ^{25.28–30} This part of Abigail's speech seems to have been inserted secondarily as an expression of the Deuteronomistic historian's theme (see Introduction) of David's sure house (see 2 Sam 7.16; 1 Kings 11.38), the same phrase that was used to forecast the sure house of the priest Zadok in 2.35. ^{25.29} The term rendered bundle here refers to a tied document (cf. Isa 8.16), so that the bundle of the living is the same as "the book of the living" (Ps 69.28), a heavenly book in which the name of every living person is recorded and exclusion from which means death (see Ex 32.32–33). In later Judeo-Christian thought "the book of life" was a record of all those people throughout history who were destined for salvation and eternal life (see Dan 12.1; Rev 3.5; 13.8; 17.8; 20.12; 21.27). ^{25.30} For the term prince (Hebrew nagid, which is the same as that rendered ruler in 9.16; 10.1; and 13.14), see note on 9.16. ^{25.33} David acknowledges that Abigail's intervention has prevented his incurring bloodguilt by avenging himself rather one male." ³⁵Then David received from her hand what she had brought him; he said to her, "Go up to your house in peace; see, I have heeded your voice, and I have granted your petition."

³⁶ Abigail came to Nabal; he was holding a feast in his house, like the feast of a king. Nabal's heart was merry within him, for he was very drunk; so she told him nothing at all until the morning light. ³⁷In the morning, when the wine had gone out of Nabal, his wife told him these things, and his heart died within him; he became like a stone. ³⁸About ten days later the LORD struck Nabal, and he died.

³⁹ When David heard that Nabal was dead, he said, "Blessed be the LORD who has judged the case of Nabal's insult to me, and has kept back his servant from evil; the LORD has returned the evildoing of Nabal upon his own head." Then David sent and wooed Abigail, to make her his wife. ⁴⁰When David's servants came to Abigail at Carmel, they said to her, "David has sent us to you to take you to him as his wife." ⁴¹She rose and bowed down, with her face to the ground, and said, "Your servant is a slave to wash the feet of the servants of my lord." ⁴²Abigail got up hurriedly and rode away on a donkey; her five maids attended her. She went after the messengers of David and became his wife.

⁴³ David also married Ahinoam of Jezreel; both of them became his wives. ⁴⁴Saul had given his daughter Michal, David's wife, to Palti son of Laish, who was from Gallim.

David Spares Saul's Life Again

26 Then the Ziphites came to Saul at Gibeah, saying, "David is in hiding on the hill of Hachilah, which is opposite Jeshimon."ⁱ ²So Saul rose and went down to the Wilderness of Ziph, with three thousand chosen men of Israel, to seek David in the Wilderness of Ziph. ³Saul encamped on the hill of Hachilah, which is opposite Jeshimonⁱ beside the road. But David remained in the wilderness. When he learned that Saul had come after him into the wilderness, ⁴David sent out spies, and learned that Saul had indeed arrived. ⁵Then David set out and came to the place where Saul had encamped; and David saw the place where Saul lay, with Abner son of Ner, the commander of his army. Saul was lying within the encampment, while the army was encamped around him.

⁶ Then David said to Ahimelech the Hittite, and to Joab's brother Abishai son of Zeruiah, "Who will go down with me into the camp to Saul?" Abishai said, "I will go down with you." ⁷So David and Abishai went to the army by night; there Saul lay sleeping within the encampment, with his spear stuck in the ground at his head; and Abner and the army lay around him. ⁸Abishai said to David, "God has given your enemy into your hand today; now therefore let me pin him to the ground with one stroke of the spear; I will not strike him twice." ⁹But David said to

than leaving vengeance to the Lord, whose justice can be relied upon (see v. 38). 25.35 The expression and I have granted your petition, lit. "and I have lifted up your face," also occurs in Gen 19.21 ("I grant you this favor"); Job 42.8 ("I will accept his prayer"); 42.9 ("and the LORD accepted Job's prayer"). 25.39 For the words the LORD has returned the evildoing of Nabal upon his own head, cf. 1 Kings 2.44. 25.43-44 This notice is of the type also found in 14.47-52. 25.43 Ahinoam of Jezreel became the mother of Amnon, David's firstborn (see 2 Sam 3.2; 1 Chr 3.1); her home was not the well-known Jezreel near the Sea of Galilee but a small Judahite town of the same name near Maon, Ziph, and Carmel (see Josh 15.55-56). Because Ahinoam's name is the same as that of Saul's wife (see 14.50) some scholars have speculated that David married not only Saul's daughters but also his wife (cf. 2 Sam 12.8). 25.44 Saul's annulment of David's marriage to Michal was intended to thwart any claim to the throne David might make on the basis of the marriage; she will be returned to David just before he becomes king of Israel (see 2 Sam 3.13-16). Palti son of Laish is called by a longer form of his name, "Paltiel," in 2 Sam 3.15; for Gallim, his hometown, see Isa 10.30.

26.1-25 As in ch. 24, David, while fleeing from Saul, is given an opportunity to take his pursuer's life. Once again, he spares the king and asks for reconciliation. 26.1 Cf. the details of this verse to those of 23.19. 26.5 Abner son of Ner is Saul's uncle (see 14.50-51). 26.6 Ahimelech the Hittite is mentioned only here. Abishai was one of the three sons of David's sister Zeruiah (see 1 Chr 2.16), the others being Joab (see 2 Sam 2.13) and Asahel (see 2 Sam 2.18-23); all three are fiercely loyal partisans of David. 26.9 David's command

Abishai, "Do not destroy him; for who can raise his hand against the LORD's anointed, and be guiltless?" ¹⁰David said, "As the LORD lives, the LORD will strike him down; or his day will come to die; or he will go down into battle and perish. ¹¹The LORD forbid that I should raise my hand against the LORD's anointed; but now take the spear that is at his head, and the water jar, and let us go." ¹²So David took the spear that was at Saul's head and the water jar, and they went away. No one saw it, or knew it, nor did anyone awake; for they were all asleep, because a deep sleep from the LORD had fallen upon them.

¹³ Then David went over to the other side, and stood on top of a hill far away, with a great distance between them. ¹⁴David called to the army and to Abner son of Ner, saying, "Abner! Will you not answer?" Then Abner replied, "Who are you that calls to the king?" ¹⁵David said to Abner, "Are you not a man? Who is like you in Israel? Why then have you not kept watch over your lord the king? For one of the people came in to destroy your lord the king. ¹⁶This thing that you have done is not good. As the LORD lives, you deserve to die, because you have not kept watch over your lord, the LORD's anointed. See now, where is the king's spear, or the water jar that was at his head?"

¹⁷ Saul recognized David's voice, and said, "Is this your voice, my son David?" David said, "It is my voice, my lord, O king." ¹⁸And he added, "Why does my lord pursue his servant? For what have I done? What guilt is on my hands? ¹⁹Now therefore let my lord the king hear the words of his servant. If it is the LORD who has stirred you up against me, may he accept an offering; but if it is mortals, may they be cursed before the LORD, for they have driven me out today from my share in the heritage of the LORD, saying, 'Go, serve other gods.' ²⁰Now therefore, do not let my blood fall to the ground, away from the presence of the LORD; for the king of Israel has come out to seek a single flea, like one who hunts a partridge in the mountains."

²¹ Then Saul said, "I have done wrong; come back, my son David, for I will never harm you again, because my life was precious in your sight today; I have been a fool, and have made a great mistake." ²²David replied, "Here is the spear, O king! Let one of the young men come over and get it. ²³The LORD rewards everyone for his righteousness and his faithfulness; for the LORD gave you into my hand today, but I would not raise my hand against the LORD's anointed. ²⁴As your life was precious today in my sight, so may my life be precious in the sight of the LORD, and may he rescue me from all tribulation." ²⁵Then Saul said to David, "Blessed be you, my son David! You will do many things and will succeed in them." So David went his way, and Saul returned to his place.

27 David said in his heart, "I shall now perish one day by the hand of Saul; there is nothing better for me than to escape to the land of the Philistines; then Saul will despair of seeking me any longer within the borders of Israel, and I shall escape out of his hand." ²So David set out and went over, he and the

to Abishai is more specific than an admonition not to strike or kill Saul. The verb rendered destroy implies mutilation or disfigurement, and as in 24.6, David's concern is with violence done to the sacrosanct body of the LORD's anointed. 26.12 The spear and the water jar are taken as proof that David was there, exactly as in the case of the corner of Saul's cloak in 24.4. The deep sleep from the LORD (cf. Gen 2.21; 15.12; Isa 29.10) shows that David is receiving divine help. 26.19 The statement may he accept an offering is lit. "may he smell an offering," as in Gen 8.21. By excluding him from the heritage of the LORD, i.e., from Israel, David's enemies would prevent him from worshipping the God of Israel. 26.20 A single flea. See 24.14. David's simile comparing Saul to one who hunts partridge in the mountains is particularly fitting for two reasons; first, the partridge was hunted by relentless pursuit, and second, its Hebrew name meant "the caller" and David is in fact calling in the mountains (see v. 14). 26.21 Once again (see 24.16–19) Saul acknowledges the justice of David's cause.

27.1–28.2 Despite Saul's apparent change of heart in 26.21–25, David despairs any hope of reconciliation and decides that if he is to stay alive he must flee Israel. He enters the service of the king of the Philistine city of Gath. 27.2 For King Achish and his city, Gath, see note on 21.10. We now learn that his father's name was Maoch; he is six hundred men who were with him, to King Achish son of Maach of Gath. ³David stayed with Achish at Gath, he and his troops, every man with his household, and David with his two wives, Ahinoam of Jezreel, and Abigail of Carmel, Nabal's widow. ⁴When Saul was told that David had fled to Gath, he no longer sought for him.

⁵ Then David said to Achish, "If I have found favor in your sight, let a place be given me in one of the country towns, so that I may live there; for why should your servant live in the royal city with you?" ⁶So that day Achish gave him Ziklag; therefore Ziklag has belonged to the kings of Judah to this day. ⁷The length of time that David lived in the country of the Philistines was one year and four months.

⁸ Now David and his men went up and made raids on the Geshurites, the Girzites, and the Amalekites; for these were the landed settlements from Telam on the way to Shur and on to the land of Egypt. ⁹David struck the land, leaving neither man nor woman alive, but took away the sheep, the oxen, the donkeys, the camels, and the clothing, and came back to Achish. ¹⁰When Achish asked, "Against whom^k have you made a raid today?" David would say, "Against the Negeb of Judah," or "Against the Negeb of the Jerahmeelites," or, "Against the Negeb of the Kenites." ¹¹David left neither man nor woman alive to be brought back to Gath, thinking, "They might tell about us, and say, 'David has done so and so.'" Such was his practice all the time he lived in the country of the Philistines. ¹²Achish trusted David, thinking, "He has made himself utterly abhorrent to his people Israel; therefore he shall always be my servant."

28 In those days the Philistines gathered their forces for war, to fight against Israel. Achish said to David, "You know, of course, that you and your men are to go out with me in the army." ²David said to Achish, "Very well, then you shall know what your servant can do." Achish said to David, "Very well, I will make you my bodyguard for life." "

Saul Consults a Medium at Endor

³ Now Samuel had died, and all Israel had mourned for him and buried him in Ramah, his own city. Saul had expelled the mediums and the wizards from the land. ⁴The Philistines assembled, and came and encamped at Shunem. Saul gathered all Israel, and they encamped at Gilboa. ⁵When Saul saw the army of the Philistines, he was afraid, and his heart trembled greatly. ⁶When Saul inquired of the LORD, the LORD did not answer him, called Maacah in 1 Kings 2.39. 27.3 For David's two wives, see 25.42–43. 27.5–6 David requests and receives a military fiefdom, a grant of landed property in return for service at arms. Ziklag, a stronghold in the southwestern Judean hills controlled at this time by Gath, was claimed by the tribe of Simeon (Josh 19.5) and listed among the Judahite cities (Josh 15.31). 27.8–12 David deludes Achish by pretending to raid and plunder Israel and its allies while really fighting against Israel's enemies. 27.8 The Geshurites were obscure neighbors of the Philistines (see Josh 13.2–3) with no apparent connection to the land of Geshur in the southern Golan (see 2 Sam 3.3). The Girzites are otherwise unknown, and the Hebrew text is vocalized as if the reading were "Gezerites," i.e., people of Gezer, the Israelite-Philistine border city west-northwest of Jerusalem; but Gezer is much too far away. For the Amalekites, see note on 15.2. Telam is probably another name for the town called Telaim in 15.4 and Telem in Josh 15.24. The way to Shur (cf. 15.7) was the central east-west route through the Sinai Peninsula. 27.10 The term Negeb meant "Southland" and referred to the southern desert of Judah. Specifically, the Negeb of Judah was the region around Beer-sheba (see 2 Sam 24.7; 2 Chr 28.18), and the Negeb of the Jerahmeelites (cf. 30.29) probably lay farther south. Instead of the Negeb of the Kenites we should read "the Negeb of the Kenizzites" with the Septuagint; the territory of the Kenizzites, parent tribe of the Calebites (see 25.3), was in the region around and south of Hebron.

28.3–25 Anxious about the impending battle with the Philistines, Saul engages a medium to bring up Samuel from the dead and seek his advice. 28.3 That Samuel had died was reported in 25.1. The mediums and the wizards are practitioners of black magic through whom the dead speak to the living (2 Kings 23.24); their craft was prohibited by priestly law (Lev 19.31; 20.6, 27). 28.4 Shunem was a town on the southern slope of the Hill of Moreh, which stood opposite Mount Gilboa in the Valley of Jezreel (see 29.1). 28.6 Saul is now estranged from the Lord, and the standard methods of divination are un-not by dreams, or by Urim, or by prophets. ⁷Then Saul said to his servants, "Seek out for me a woman who is a medium, so that I may go to her and inquire of her." His servants said to him, "There is a medium at Endor."

⁸ So Saul disguised himself and put on other clothes and went there, he and two men with him. They came to the woman by night. And he said, "Consult a spirit for me, and bring up for me the one whom I name to you." ⁹The woman said to him, "Surely you know what Saul has done, how he has cut off the mediums and the wizards from the land. Why then are you laying a snare for my life to bring about my death?" ¹⁰But Saul swore to her by the LORD, "As the LORD lives, no punishment shall come upon you for this thing." ¹¹Then the woman said, "Whom shall I bring up for you?" He answered, "Bring up Samuel for me." ¹²When the woman saw Samuel, she cried out with a loud voice; and the woman said to Saul, "Why have you deceived me? You are Saul!" ¹³The king said to her, "Have no fear; what do you see?" The woman said to Saul, "I see a divine being¹ coming up out of the ground." ¹⁴He said to her, "What is his appearance?" She said, "An old man is coming up; he is wrapped in a robe." So Saul knew that it was Samuel, and he bowed with his face to the ground, and did obeisance.

¹⁵ Then Samuel said to Saul, "Why have you disturbed me by bringing me up?" Saul answered, "I am in great distress, for the Philistines are warring against me, and God has turned away from me and answers me no more, either by prophets or by dreams; so I have summoned you to tell me what I should do."

¹⁶Samuel said, "Why then do you ask me, since the LORD has turned from you and become your enemy? ¹⁷The LORD has done to you just as he spoke by me; for the LORD has torn the kingdom out of your hand, and given it to your neighbor, David. ¹⁸Because you did not obey the voice of the LORD, and did not carry out his fierce wrath against Amalek, therefore the LORD has done this thing to you today. ¹⁹Moreover the LORD will give Israel along with you into the hands of the Philistines; and tomorrow you and your sons shall be with me; the LORD will also give the army of Israel into the hands of the Philistines."

²⁰ Immediately Saul fell full length on the ground, filled with fear because of the words of Samuel; and there was no strength in him, for he had eaten nothing all day and all night. ²¹The woman came to Saul, and when she saw that he was terrified, she said to him, "Your servant has listened to you; I have taken my life in my hand, and have listened to what you have said to me. ²²Now therefore, you also listen to your servant; let me set a morsel of bread before you. Eat, that you may have strength when you go on your way." ²³He refused, and said, "I will not eat." But his servants, together with the woman, urged him; and he listened to their words. So he got up from the ground and sat on the bed. ²⁴Now the woman had a fatted calf in the house. She quickly slaughtered it, and she took flour, kneaded it, and baked unleavened cakes. ²⁵She put them before Saul and his servants, and they ate. Then they rose and went away that night.

available to him; for Urim, divinatory lots, see notes on 14.3; 14.41. 28.7 In his frustration Saul seeks out a medium, whose activities he has personally prohibited (v. 3). Endor was a town of the tribe of Manasseh (Josh 17.11) located a few miles northeast of the Philistine camp at Shunem on the northern slope of the Hill of Moreh (see v. 4). 28.14 The woman's description of An old man . . . wrapped in a robe, Samuel's characteristic garment (see 15.27), is enough for Saul to recognize Samuel. 28.15 The verb rendered disturbed here refers specifically to the interruption of the rest of the dead (cf. "Sheol beneath is stirred up" in Isa 14.9); it occurs in ancient tomb inscriptions

as a description of the activity of graverobbers. 28.17–18 Samuel is alluding to the story of the rejection of Saul's kingship in 15.10–35. The statement that the LORD has torn the kingdom out of your hand, and given it to your neighbor is a direct reference to 15.28; for the Lord's fierce wrath against Amalek, see ch. 15 in general. 28.20 The reason Saul had eaten nothing all day and all night was probably that he had fasted to purify himself ritually in preparation for the evocation of the ghost of Samuel. 28.24 The familiar NT image of the fatted calf (see Lk 15.23) appears elsewhere in the OT only as a metaphor, in Jer. 46.21; Mal 4.2 ("calves from the stall").

The Philistines Dismiss David

29 Now the Philistines gathered all their forces at Aphek, while the Israelites were encamped by the fountain that is in Jezreel. ²As the lords of the Philistines were passing on by hundreds and by thousands, and David and his men were passing on in the rear with Achish, ³the commanders of the Philistines said, "What are these Hebrews doing here?" Achish said to the commanders of the Philistines, "Is this not David, the servant of King Saul of Israel, who has been with me now for days and years? Since he deserted to me I have found no fault in him to this day." ⁴But the commanders of the Philistines were angry with him; and the commanders of the Philistines said to him, "Send the man back, so that he may return to the place that you have assigned to him; he shall not go down with us to battle, or else he may become an adversary to us in the battle. For how could this fellow reconcile himself to his lord? Would it not be with the heads of the men here? ⁵Is this not David, of whom they sing to one another in dances,

'Saul has killed his thousands,

⁶ Then Achish called David and said to him, "As the LORD lives, you have been honest, and to me it seems right that you should march out and in with me in the campaign; for I have found nothing wrong in you from the day of your coming to me until today. Nevertheless the lords do not approve of you. ⁷So go back now; and go peaceably; do nothing to displease the lords of the Philistines." ⁸David said to Achish, "But what have I done? What have you found in your servant from the day I entered your service until now, that I should not go and fight against the enemies of my lord the king?" ⁹Achish replied to David, "I know that you are as blameless in my sight as an angel of God; nevertheless, the commanders of the Philistines have said, 'He shall not go up with us to the battle.' ¹⁰Now then rise early in the morning, you and the servants of your lord who came with you, and go to the place that I appointed for you. As for the evil report, do not take it to heart, for you have done well before me.^m Start early in the morning, and leave as soon as you have light." ¹¹So David set out with his men early in the morning, to return to the land of the Philistines. But the Philistines went up to Jezreel.

David Avenges the Destruction of Ziklag

30 Now when David and his men came to Ziklag on the third day, the Amalekites had made a raid on the Negeb and on Ziklag. They had attacked Ziklag, burned it down, ²and taken captive the women and allⁿ who were in it, both small and great; they killed none of them, but carried them off, and went their way. ³When David and his men came to the city, they found it burned down, and their wives and sons and daughters taken captive. ⁴Then David

29.1–11 Although Achish is convinced of his loyalty, the other Philistine lords are suspicious of David and send him home before the impending battle. 29.1 This episode occurs at Aphek (see note on 4.1b), far to the south of Shunem, where the Philistines are currently mustering (see 28.4). The town of Jezreel was on the northwestern slope of Mount Gilboa (see 28.4), about thirty-five to forty miles northeast of Aphek. 29.3 The Philistine leaders refer to David and his companions not by the political designation Israelites but by the ethnic term Hebrews (see 13.3; 14.21). Achish, who has been completely duped by David (see note on 27.8–12), tries to defend his vassal. 29.4 By the place that you have assigned to him the Philistine leaders mean Ziklag. 29.5 Cf. 18.7; 21.11. 29.6 Achish swears As the LORD lives, as if he were a worshiper of the God of Israel; perhaps this is a courteous gesture to David. 29.8 Although Achish hears only the surface meaning of David's wish to fight against the enemies of my lord the king, i.e., the enemies of Achish, readers, who know David's true loyalties, understand that what he really wants is to fight against the enemies of Saul. 29.9 Elsewhere David is given credit for having the juridical insight of an angel of God (see 2 Sam 14.17; 19.27), but the Septuagint is probably correct in omitting the phrase in this passage.

30.1–31 David defeats a band of brigands who have plundered his stronghold in his absence and distributes the booty he takes from them to the towns of Judah. 30.1 The Amalekites, ancient enemies of Israel (see note on 15.2) against whom David has recently gone raiding (see 27.8), have and the people who were with him raised their voices and wept, until they had no more strength to weep. ⁵David's two wives also had been taken captive, Ahinoam of Jezreel, and Abigail the widow of Nabal of Carmel. ⁶David was in great danger; for the people spoke of stoning him, because all the people were bitter in spirit for their sons and daughters. But David strengthened himself in the LORD his God.

⁷ David said to the priest Abiathar son of Ahimelech, "Bring me the ephod." So Abiathar brought the ephod to David. ⁸David inquired of the LORD, "Shall I pursue this band? Shall I overtake them?" He answered him, "Pursue; for you shall surely overtake and shall surely rescue." ⁹So David set out, he and the six hundred men who were with him. They came to the Wadi Besor, where those stayed who were left behind. ¹⁰But David went on with the pursuit, he and four hundred men; two hundred stayed behind, too exhausted to cross the Wadi Besor.

¹¹ In the open country they found an Egyptian, and brought him to David. They gave him bread and he ate; they gave him water to drink; ¹²they also gave him a piece of fig cake and two clusters of raisins. When he had eaten, his spirit revived; for he had not eaten bread or drunk water for three days and three nights. ¹³Then David said to him, "To whom do you belong? Where are you from?" He said, "I am a young man of Egypt, servant to an Amalekite. My master left me behind because I fell sick three days ago. ¹⁴We had made a raid on the Negeb of the Cherethites and on that which belongs to Judah and on the Negeb of Caleb; and we burned Ziklag down." ¹⁵David said to him, "Will you take me down to this raiding party?" He said, "Swear to me by God that you will not kill me, or hand me over to my master, and I will take you down to them."

¹⁶ When he had taken him down, they were spread out all over the ground, eating and drinking and dancing, because of the great amount of spoil they had taken from the land of the Philistines and from the land of Judah. ¹⁷David attacked them from twilight until the evening of the next day. Not one of them escaped, except four hundred young men, who mounted camels and fled. ¹⁸David recovered all that the Amalekites had taken; and David rescued his two wives. ¹⁹Nothing was missing, whether small or great, sons or daughters, spoil or anything that had been taken; David brought back everything. ²⁰David also captured all the flocks and herds, which were driven ahead of the other cattle; people said, "This is David's spoil."

²¹ Then David came to the two hundred men who had been too exhausted to follow David, and who had been left at the Wadi Besor. They went out to meet David and to meet the people who were with him. When David drew near to the people he saluted them. ²²Then all the corrupt and worthless fellows among the men who had gone with David said, "Because they did not go with us, we will not give them any of the spoil that we have recovered, except that each man may take his wife and children, and leave." ²³But David said, "You shall not do so, my brothers, with what the LORD has given us; he has preserved us and handed over to us the raiding party that attacked us. ²⁴Who would listen to you in this matter? For the share of the one who goes down into the battle shall be the same as the share of the one who stays by the baggage; they shall share alike." ²⁵From that day forward he made it a statute and an ordinance for Israel; it continues to the present day.

used the opportunity of David's absence to attack Ziklag. 30.5 For David's two wives, see 25.42–43; 27.3. 30.7 As he did after the liberation of Keilah (see 23.6–12) David calls upon Abiathar (see 22.20–23) to seek an oracle using the ephod, which here, as in 23.6, is an instrument of divination. 30.9 Although the Wadi Besor is not mentioned outside of this episode, it must have been one of the prominent wadi systems that drain the Negeb into the Mediterranean. 30.14 On the Negeb and its districts, see note on 27.10. The Cherethites probably traced their ancestry to Crete or Caphtor, also the place of origin of the Philistines (see Jer 47.4; Am 9.7), and the two peoples are closely associated in the Bible (see Ezek 25.16; Zeph 2.5); when he is king, David's bodyguard will include staunchly loyal Cherethites (see 2 Sam 8.18). The Negeb of Caleb must have been a subdistrict of the Negeb of the Kenizzites (see note on 27.10). 30.17 Rather than twilight the word probably has its less common meaning here of "dawn," as in Job 7.4; Ps 119.147; and postbiblical Hebrew. 30.21–25 The policy David establishes here for the distribution of booty is reminiscent of 26 When David came to Ziklag, he sent part of the spoil to his friends, the elders of Judah, saying, "Here is a present for you from the spoil of the enemies of the LORD"; 27 it was for those in Bethel, in Ramoth of the Negeb, in Jattir, 28 in Aroer, in Siphmoth, in Eshtemoa, 29 in Racal, in the towns of the Jerahmeelites, in the towns of the Kenites, 30 in Hormah, in Bor-ashan, in Athach, 31 in Hebron, all the places where David and his men had roamed.

The Death of Saul and His Sons

31 Now the Philistines fought against Israel; and the men of Israel fled before the Philistines, and many fell^o on Mount Gilboa. 2 The Philistines overtook Saul and his sons; and the Philistines killed Jonathan and Abinadab and Malchishua, the sons of Saul. 3 The battle pressed hard upon Saul; the archers found him, and he was badly wounded by them. 4 Then Saul said to his armor-bearer, "Draw your sword and thrust me through with it, so that these uncircumcised may not come and thrust me through, and make sport of me." But his armor-bearer was unwilling; for he was terrified. So Saul took his own sword and fell upon it. 5 When his armor-bearer saw that Saul was dead, he also fell upon his sword and died with him. 6 So Saul and his three sons and his armor-bearer and all his men died together on the same day. 7 When the men of Israel who were on the other side of the valley and those beyond the Jordan saw that the men of Israel had fled and that Saul and his sons were dead, they forsook their towns and fled; and the Philistines came and occupied them.

8 The next day, when the Philistines came to strip the dead, they found Saul and his three sons fallen on Mount Gilboa. 9 They cut off his head, stripped off his armor, and sent messengers throughout the land of the Philistines to carry the good news to the houses of their idols and to the people. 10 They put his armor in that in Deut 20.14. 30.26–31 David parcels out the spoil of the enemies of the LORD among the towns of Judah. The redistribution of booty is a common way in which a military chieftain earns the loyalty of his followers, and we can see that David is preparing the way for his assumption of the kingship of Judah (see 2 Sam 2.4). 30.27 Bethel was not in Judah, and we should follow the Septuagint in reading Beth-zur, a Calebite town in the Judean hills a few miles north of Hebron (see Josh 15.58). The location of Ramoth of the Negeb, called Baalath-beer in Josh 19.8, is unknown. Jattir was a Levitical city in the Judean hills about twelve miles south-southwest of Hebron (see Josh 15.48; 21.14). 30.28 The Transjordanian city of Aroer (see Num 32.34) is less likely to have been intended here than Ararah, a town in the Negeb of Judah about twelve miles southeast of Beer-sheba (see Josh 15.22, where Ararah should be read for Adadah). Siphmoth is otherwise unknown. Eshtemoa was a Levitical city in the Judean hills about eight miles south of Hebron (see Josh 15.50; 21.14). 30.29 Racal is probably a corruption of Carmel, which the Septuagint preserves (see note on 15.12). Though the Jerahmeelites may have once been an independent tribe, they were eventually incorporated into Judah (see 1 Chr 2.9, 25–27); the location of their territory is unknown, but it may have been south of Beer-sheba (see 27.10). As in 27.10 the Kenites should be corrected to the Kenizzites as found in the Septuagint and, in this case, a manuscript from Qumran (4QSam^a).

30.30 Hormah must have been close to Ziklag (see note on 27.5–6); it, too, was formally claimed by Simeon (Josh 19.4) but included in the list of the cities of Judah (Josh 15.30). Bor-ashan, or Ashan, was a Levitical city in the Judean hills a few miles northwest of Beer-sheba (see Josh 15.42; 19.7; 21.16, where Ain should probably be corrected to Ashan). Athach should probably be corrected to Ether, which is paired with Ashan in Josh 15.42; 19.7; it was about fifteen miles northwest of Hebron. 30.31 Hebron was the principal city of the region, the traditional capital of Judah, where David was first proclaimed king (see 2 Sam 2.4). It was about nineteen miles south-southwest of Jerusalem in the Judean hills.

31.1–13 Saul, Jonathan, and his brothers lose their lives in a battle with the Philistines on Mount Gilboa. 31.1 For Mount Gilboa, see note on 28.4. 31.2 For the sons of Saul, see note on 14.49. 31.4 The armor-bearer's fear of delivering the coup de grace is probably based on his awareness of Saul's status as the sacrosanct anointed of the Lord (see 24.6; 26.9). 31.7 The Israelites who were on the other side of the valley are probably those who lived north of the Valley of Jezreel where the battle occurred, but those beyond the Jordan may be a secondary expansion; the parallel account in 1 Chr 10.7 mentions only the Israelites "who were in the valley." 31.10 Saul's armor, like Goliath's (see 21.9–10), is deposited in a temple. Astarte, the name of a prominent Canaanite goddess, is used by the biblical writers as a

the temple of Astarte;^p and they fastened his body to the wall of Beth-shan. ¹¹But when the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead heard what the Philistines had done to Saul, ¹²all the valiant men set out, traveled all night long, and took the body of Saul and the bodies of his sons from the wall of Beth-shan. They came to Jabesh and burned them there. ¹³Then they took their bones and buried them under the tamarisk tree in Jabesh, and fasted seven days.

generic designation for a goddess (see 7.4), and here it probably refers to the goddess of Beth-shan, whose name was Antit. Beth-shan was a major Egyptian and Canaanite fortress that guarded the eastern end of the Valley of Jezreel; it seems now to be under Philistine control. 31.11–13 Jabesh-gilead was not far south of Bethshan on the other side of the Jordan (see 10.27). The people of Jabesh have a long-standing debt to Saul for rescuing them from Nahash the Ammonite (see 10.27–11.15). David will eventually return the bones of Saul and Jonathan to their family tomb in Benjamin (see 2 Sam 21.12–14).

Saul's Death Reported to David

1 After the death of Saul, when David had returned from defeating the Amalekites, David remained two days in Ziklag. 2 On the third day, a man came from Saul's camp, with his clothes torn and dirt on his head. When he came to David, he fell to the ground and did obeisance. 3 David said to him, "Where have you come from?" He said to him, "I have escaped from the camp of Israel." 4 David said to him, "How did things go? Tell me!" He answered, "The army fled from the battle, but also many of the army fell and died; and Saul and his son Jonathan also died." 5 Then David asked the young man who was reporting to him, "How do you know that Saul and his son Jonathan died?" 6 The young man reporting to him said, "I happened to be on Mount Gilboa;

and there was Saul leaning on his spear, while the chariots and the horsemen drew close to him. 7 When he looked behind him, he saw me, and called to me. I answered, 'Here sir.' 8 And he said to me, 'Who are you?' I answered him, 'I am an Amalekite.' 9 He said to me, 'Come, stand over me and kill me; for convulsions have seized me, and yet my life still lingers.' 10 So I stood over him, and killed him, for I knew that he could not live after he had fallen. I took the crown that was on his head and the armlet that was on his arm, and I have brought them here to my lord."

11 Then David took hold of his clothes and tore them; and all the men who were with him did the same. 12 They mourned and wept, and fasted until evening for Saul and for his son Jonathan, and for the army of the LORD and for the

1.1–16 David responds to the news of the death of Saul and Jonathan with genuine sorrow. 1.1 2 Samuel begins After the death of Saul just as Joshua begins "After the death of Moses ..." and Judges "After the death of Joshua ..." For the Amalekites in general, see note on 1 Sam 15.2; the present reference is to David's punitive raid, described in 1 Sam 30, against a band of Amalekites who had attacked his personal fortress of Ziklag (see 1 Sam 27.6). 1.2 An Amalekite (see v. 8) arrives in David's camp with his clothes torn and dirt on his head, the conventional gestures of grief (see 1 Sam 4.12; 2 Sam 15.32), but he may be dissembling (cf. Josh 9.3–15). 1.6–10 The Amalekite's account of the death of Saul is quite different from that given in 1 Sam 31.3–5. The simplest explanation of the contradiction is that the Amalekite is lying on the very false assumption that David would reward him for having taken Saul's life. Readers are probably to understand that the Amalekite came upon the body of Saul, stripped off his crown and armlet, then conceived of the idea that they might be most valuable to him if he brought them to David. 1.6 Mount Gilboa, the scene of the fatal battle (see 1 Sam 31.1), stood at the northern limit of the Samaritan hills overlooking the Valley of Jezreel. It has been suggested that Saul was leaning on his spear in an attempt to commit suicide (cf. 1 Sam 31.4), but it is more likely that he was supporting himself with the spear after receiving mortal wounds. 1.9 The word translated convulsions here is obscure; it might refer to giddiness or dizziness. 1.10 The crown and armlet are royal insignia. The former is more likely to have been a diadem worn on the forehead than a crown; the king received it at the time of his investiture (see 2 Kings 11.12). The armlet is mentioned nowhere else in the Bible (though some would restore it in house of Israel, because they had fallen by the sword. ¹³David said to the young man who had reported to him, "Where do you come from?" He answered, "I am the son of a resident alien, an Amalekite." ¹⁴David said to him, "Were you not afraid to lift your hand to destroy the LORD's anointed?" ¹⁵Then David called one of the young men and said, "Come here and strike him down." So he struck him down and he died. ¹⁶David said to him, "Your blood be on your head; for your own mouth has testified against you, saying, 'I have killed the LORD's anointed.'"

David's Lament over Saul and Jonathan

¹⁷ David intoned this lamentation over Saul and his son Jonathan. ¹⁸(He ordered that The Song of the Bow^a be taught to the people of Judah; it is written in the Book of Jashar.) He said:

- ¹⁹ Your glory, O Israel, lies slain
upon your high places!
How the mighty have fallen!
²⁰ Tell it not in Gath, proclaim it not in the streets of Ashkelon;
or the daughters of the Philistines
will rejoice,

the daughters of the uncircumcised will exult.

- ²¹ You mountains of Gilboa,
let there be no dew or rain
upon you,
nor bounteous fields!^b
For there the shield of the mighty was defiled,
the shield of Saul, anointed
with oil no more.
- ²² From the blood of the slain,
from the fat of the mighty,
the bow of Jonathan did not turn
back,
nor the sword of Saul return
empty.
- ²³ Saul and Jonathan, beloved and lovely!
In life and in death they were not divided;
they were swifter than eagles,
they were stronger than lions.
- ²⁴ O daughters of Israel, weep over Saul,

2 Kings 11.12). 1.13–16 The status of resident alien means that the Amalekite was a foreigner living legally and permanently in Israel; he was entitled to protection and most of the same privileges as native-born Israelites, but he was also subject to most of the same rules of behavior, including respect for the sanctity of the LORD's anointed. David, who has always been scrupulous with regard to this last point where Saul was concerned (see 1 Sam 24.6; 26.9), decides that the Amalekite's own testimony warrants a sentence of death.

1.17–27 This is one of the Bible's earliest poems, and its attribution to David is likely to be authentic. 1.17 The Song of the Bow may be the ancient name of David's lament, but it seems unlikely and appears in no ancient manuscripts of the text. The Masoretic Text has simply "a bow," and some have interpreted this to mean that David commanded that the people should be trained in archery. The Septuagint has nothing at all, understanding the lamentation of v. 17 to be what David wanted taught to the people. We know of at least two and possibly three poems that were included in the lost Book of Jashar, or "Book of the Upright": David's lament, the command to sun and moon to stand still in Josh 10.12–13, and possibly Solomon's verses about the temple of the Lord in 1 Kings 8.12–13, which are assigned to "the Book of Hashir (the Song)" in the Septuagint. 1.19 If this rendering of this difficult passage is correct, Israel's glory is Saul; another interpretation is to understand the word to mean "gazelle," an example of the common practice of referring to military commanders with the names of strong male animals. Presumably the high places mentioned here are the heights of Gilboa, but the same expression is used in the Qumran War Scroll (1QM 12.10) to mean "backs of the slain." How the mighty have fallen! (also in vv. 25, 27) is the refrain that unifies this elegant poem. 1.20 Gath and Ashkelon are two of the principal cities of the Philistines (see note on 1 Sam 5.8). 1.21 The expression rendered bounteous fields is an old crux; other interpretations and emendations include "fields of offerings" and "upwellings of the deeps." The translation, like the Hebrew text, is ambiguous as to whether it is Saul or his shield that is anointed with oil no more. Although Saul was the anointed of the Lord (see 1 Sam 9.16; 24.6–7; 26.9), it is probably the shield that is meant; a leather shield was rubbed with oil to keep it supple and ready for battle (see Isa 21.5). 1.24 The dried bodies of "kermes" insects produced the

David Anointed King of Judah

2 After this David inquired of the LORD, "Shall I go up into any of the cities of Judah?" The LORD said to him, "Go up." David said, "To which shall I go up?" He said, "To Hebron." ²So David went up there, along with his two wives, Ahinoam of Jezreel, and Abigail the widow of Nabal of Carmel. ³David brought up the men who were with him, every one with his household; and they settled in the towns of Hebron. ⁴Then the people of Judah came, and there they anointed David king over the house of Judah.

When they told David, "It was the people of Jabesh-gilead who buried Saul," ⁵David sent messengers to the people of Jabesh-gilead, and said to them, "May you be blessed by the LORD, because you showed this loyalty to Saul your lord, and buried him! ⁶Now may the LORD show steadfast love and faithfulness to you! And I too will reward you because you have done this thing. ⁷Therefore let your hands be strong, and be valiant; for Saul your lord is dead, and the house of Judah has anointed me king over them."

Ishbaal King of Israel

8 But Abner son of Ner, commander of Saul's army, had taken Ishbaal^c son of Saul, and brought him over to Mahanaim. ⁹He made him king over Gilead, the Ash-brilliant red dye called crimson that was a sign of luxury (see Prov 31.21). 1.25–26 David's lament is most personal when he expresses his grief over his friend Jonathan; on Jonathan's love for David, see 1 Sam 18.1; 20.17.

2.1–7 David's kin, the people of Judah, are the first to embrace him as king. 2.1 Hebron. See note on 1 Sam 30.31. 2.2 For David's two wives, see 1 Sam 25.42–43; 27.3; 30.5. Jezreel and Carmel were both towns in the vicinity of Hebron (see notes on 1 Sam 15.12; 25.43). 2.4 The people of Judah are probably the same as the elders of Judah in 1 Sam 30.26–31 to whom David distributed the booty from his raid against the Amalekites (cf. 2 Sam 19.11, 14). In the present form of the story, which has been shaped by a prophetic view of kingship (see Introduction), David has already been anointed in private by Samuel. Here, in an early part of the narrative, he is anointed by the leading citizens of Judah in a public ceremony. Saul's burial by the people of Jabesh-gilead is reported in 1 Sam 31.11–13. 2.5–7 David's message to the people of Jabesh-gilead is an overture to an alliance with one of Saul's principal constituencies; it will lead to conflict with Saul's heir, as the rest of the chapter shows.

2.8–11 Abner sets up a rump government in Transjordan with Saul's son Ishbaal as king.

2.8 Abner, Saul's uncle and chief military officer (see 1 Sam 14.50–51), installs Saul's only surviving son on the throne of Israel. Ishbaal's name in Hebrew means "Man of Baal," but this does not mean that the family of Saul worshiped the god Baal (Jonathan's name contains the name of the God of Israel). The word baal meant "lord" or "master" and was an acceptable way of referring to the God of Israel in Saul's day. In later times the strong association of the word with the Canaanite god Baal caused it to be avoided. Scribes who hated the word baal often replaced it with bosheth, "shame," so that Saul's heir seems to be called "Man of Shame" (see text note c). Mahanaim was a town in the Transjordanian tribal territory of Gad (see Josh 13.26, 30); its exact location is uncertain. Abner probably moved the government of Israel to Transjordan because of Philistine domination of the central hills in the aftermath of the battle of Mount Gilboa; it was too dangerous to place a son of Saul on the throne in Saul's capital of Gibeah. 2.9 Gilead, a common designation for Transjordanian Israel in general, is here used in its stricter sense as the territory of the tribes of Gad and Reuben, which Saul ruled as a result of his victory over Nahash the Ammonite (see 1 Sam 10.27–11.15). The Ashurites of the Masoretic Text ought to be the Assyrians, who are wholly out of place here. Some emend the text to urites, Jezreel, Ephraim, Benjamin, and over all Israel. ¹⁰Ishbaal,^d Saul's son, was forty years old when he began to reign over Israel, and he reigned two years. But the house of Judah followed David. ¹¹The time that David was king in Hebron over the house of Judah was seven years and six months.

The Battle of Gibeon

¹² Abner son of Ner, and the servants of Ishbaal^d son of Saul, went out from Mahanaim to Gibeon. ¹³Joab son of Zeruiah, and the servants of David, went out and met them at the pool of Gibeon. One group sat on one side of the pool, while the other sat on the other side of the pool. ¹⁴Abner said to Joab, "Let the young men come forward and have a contest before us." Joab said, "Let them come forward." ¹⁵So they came forward and were counted as they passed by, twelve for Benjamin and Ishbaal^d son of Saul, and twelve of the servants of David. ¹⁶Each grasped his opponent by the head, and thrust his sword in his opponent's side; so they fell down together. Therefore that place was called Helkath-hazzurim,^e which is at Gibeon. ¹⁷The battle was very fierce that day; and Abner and the men of Israel were beaten by the servants of David.

¹⁸ The three sons of Zeruiah were there, Joab, Abishai, and Asahel. Now Asahel was as swift of foot as a wild gazelle. ¹⁹Asahel pursued Abner, turning neither to the right nor to the left as he followed him. ²⁰Then Abner looked back and said, "Is it you, Asahel?" He answered, "Yes, it is." ²¹Abner said to him, "Turn to your right or to your left, and seize one of the young men, and take his spoil." But Asahel would not turn away from following him. ²²Abner said again to Asahel, "Turn away from following me; why should I strike you to the ground? How then could I show my face to your brother Joab?" ²³But he refused to turn away. So Abner struck him in the stomach with the butt of his spear, so that the spear came out at his back. He fell there, and died where he lay. And all those who came to the place where Asahel had fallen and died, stood still.

²⁴ But Joab and Abishai pursued Abner. As the sun was going down they came to the hill of Ammah, which lies before Giah on the way to the wilderness of Gibeon. ²⁵The Benjaminites rallied around Abner and formed a single band; they took their stand on the top of a hill. ²⁶Then Abner called to Joab, "Is the

"Asherites," i.e., people of the tribe of north Galilean tribe of Asher, but they, too, are too far away. The Peshitta and Vulgate reflect "Geshurites," who lived north of Gilead and east of Jezreel, which fits perfectly into the present list. Jezreel was the eastern section of the fertile valley that separated the Galilee from the Ephraimite hills. Ephraim here probably refers to the Samaritan hill country in general, including the hills of both Ephraim and Manasseh. Benjamin, located to the south, was the home base of the house of Saul. The expression all Israel (cf. 3.12, 21) is probably intended as a summary reference to the territories just listed. 2.10–11 The chronological notices that conclude this section derive from the hand of the Deuteronomistic historian (see Introduction; note on 1 Sam 13.1).

2.12–32 The conflict between David's army and that of Ishbaal erupts in open hostility. 2.12 Abner's expedition should probably be interpreted as a show of force in response to David's overture to the people of Jabesh-gilead. Gibeon was about six miles north-northwest of Jerusalem. 2.13 Joab, the most prominent of the three sons of David's sister Zeruiah (see 1 Sam 26.6), was the commander of David's army (see 8.16; 20.23). The pool of Gibeon was a well-known landmark (see Jer 41.12); it has been identified with the Iron Age water system of the city, a very deep and wide circular cavity carved out of the rock on the northern part of the site. 2.14–16 This event is sometimes interpreted as a sporting contest that went out of control, but the term translated young men can be used to refer to seasoned soldiers, and the engagement is more likely to be a battle by representatives similar to the famous contest between the Roman Horatii and Curiatii. Apparently, however, everyone on both sides was slain, so that the contest was inconclusive and a general battle ensued. 2.18 For Abishai, see 1 Sam 26.6. Asahel, the youngest of the sons of Zeruiah and a member of David's elite corps of the Thirty (see 2 Sam 23.24), shares the fierce impetuosity of his older brothers. Wild gazelle. Cf. 1 Chr 12.8. 2.24 Ammah probably means "water channel" and Giah probably means "spring," so that the pursuit that began at one water system (v. 13) seems to end at another; the general direction is to the east toward the wilderness of Gibeon.

sword to keep devouring forever? Do you not know that the end will be bitter? How long will it be before you order your people to turn from the pursuit of their kinsmen?" 27 Joab said, "As God lives, if you had not spoken, the people would have continued to pursue their kinsmen, not stopping until morning." 28 Joab sounded the trumpet and all the people stopped; they no longer pursued Israel or engaged in battle any further.

29 Abner and his men traveled all that night through the Arabah; they crossed the Jordan, and, marching the whole forenoon,^f they came to Mahanaim. 30 Joab returned from the pursuit of Abner; and when he had gathered all the people together, there were missing of David's servants nineteen men besides Asahel. 31 But the servants of David had killed of Benjamin three hundred sixty of Abner's men. 32 They took up Asahel and buried him in the tomb of his father, which was at Bethlehem. Joab and his men marched all night, and the day broke upon them at Hebron.

The Sons of David

3 There was a long war between the house of Saul and the house of David; David grew stronger and stronger, while the house of Saul became weaker and weaker.

2 Sons were born to David at Hebron: his firstborn was Amnon, of Abinoam of Jezreel; 3 his second, Chileab, of Abigail the widow of Nabal of Carmel; the third, Absalom son of Maacah, daughter of King Talmai of Geshur; 4 the fourth, Adonijah son of Haggith; the fifth, Shephatiah son of Abital; 5 and the sixth, Ithream, of David's wife Eglah. These were born to David in Hebron.

The Death of Abner

6 While there was war between the house of Saul and the house of David, Abner was making himself strong in the house of Saul. 7 Now Saul had a concubine whose name was Rizpah daughter of Aiah. And Ishbaal^g said to Abner, "Why have you gone in to my father's concubine?" 8 The words of Ishbaal^h made Abner very angry; he said, "Am I a dog's head for Judah? Today I keep showing loyalty to the house of your father Saul, to his brothers, and to his friends, and have not given you into the hand of David; and yet you charge me now with a crime concerning this woman. 9 So may God do to Abner and so may he add to it! For just what the LORD has sworn to David, that will I accomplish for him, 10 to transfer

2.29 Abner's troops return by marching northwest through the Arabah or rift valley south of the Sea of Galilee.

3.1-5 The story is interrupted by a list of the sons of David who were born while he was living in Hebron. 3.2 For the story of Amnon, David's ill-fated firstborn, see ch. 13; for Amnon's mother, Abinoam, see 1 Sam 25.43. 3.3 David's second son is called Chileab in the Masoretic Text, but the reading is probably incorrect; it should be corrected to "Daluiah" with the Septuagint and a scroll from Qumran (4QSam^a; cf. "Daniel" in 1 Chr 3.1). Whatever his name was, he does not figure in the story elsewhere; for his mother, Abigail, and her first husband Nabal, see 1 Sam 25.2-43. For the story of Absalom, see chs. 13-19; in 13.37 he will seek refuge in the Transjordanian kingdom of Geshur (see 2.9) with his grandfather Talmai. 3.4-5 For the story of Adonijah, see 1 Kings 1-2; nothing else is known of his mother, Haggith. Shephatiah and Ithream are mentioned only here and in a similar list in 1 Chr 3.3.

3.6-39 After attempting to reach an agreement with David, Abner is slain by Joab for personal reasons. 3.6 This verse repeats the essence of v. 1 after the interruption of the list of David's sons, adding now the news of Abner's increasing power. 3.7 Rizpah daughter of Aiah plays an important role in the grim story in 21.1-14, where we are told that she had borne two sons to Saul. This gave her considerable status, despite the fact that she was only a concubine, a slave woman attached to the house of Saul, so that Ishbaal's sensitivity about her relationship with Abner is understandable. If Abner has made a claim on Saul's harem, as Ishbaal charges, he is only a step away from seizing the throne (see 16.20-22; 1 Kings 2.13-25). 3.8 Dogs are often mentioned in expressions of self-abasement (see 9.8), and by using the expression a dog's head Abner may be euphemistically suggesting that he is being treated like a dog's rear end. It has also been suggested that the expression refers to the dog-faced baboon, so that he may be claiming that he is being treated like an ape. 3.9-10 These two verses, in which Abner justifies his actions in terms that reflect the editorial viewpoint of the Deuteronomistic historian (see Introduction), are the kingdom from the house of Saul, and set up the throne of David over Israel and over Judah, from Dan to Beer-sheba." 11 And Ishbaalⁱ could not answer Abner another word, because he feared him.

12 Abner sent messengers to David at Hebron,^j saying, "To whom does the land belong? Make your covenant with me, and I will give you my support to bring all Israel over to you." 13 He said, "Good; I will make a covenant with you. But one thing I require of you: you shall never appear in my presence unless you bring Saul's daughter Michal when you come to see me." 14 Then David sent messengers to Saul's son Ishbaal,^k saying, "Give me my wife Michal, to whom I became engaged at the price of one hundred foreskins of the Philistines." 15 Ishbaal^k sent and took her from her husband Paltiel the son of Laish. 16 But her husband went with her, weeping as he walked behind her all the way to Bahurim. Then Abner said to him, "Go back home!" So he went back.

17 Abner sent word to the elders of Israel, saying, "For some time past you have been seeking David as king over you. 18 Now then bring it about; for the LORD has promised David: Through my servant David I will save my people Israel from the hand of the Philistines, and from all their enemies." 19 Abner also spoke directly to the Benjaminites; then Abner went to tell David at Hebron all that Israel and the whole house of Benjamin were ready to do.

20 When Abner came with twenty men to David at Hebron, David made a feast for Abner and the men who were with him. 21 Abner said to David, "Let me go and rally all Israel to my lord the king, in order that they may make a covenant with you, and that you may reign over all that your heart desires." So David dismissed Abner, and he went away in peace.

22 Just then the servants of David arrived with Joab from a raid, bringing much spoil with them. But Abner was not with David at Hebron, for David^l had dismissed him, and he had gone away in peace. 23 When Joab and all the army that was with him came, it was told Joab, "Abner son of Ner came to the king, and he has dismissed him, and he has gone away in peace." 24 Then Joab went to the king and said, "What have you done? Abner came to you; why did you dismiss him, so that he got away? 25 You know that Abner son of Ner came to deceive you, and to learn your comings and goings and to learn all that you are doing."

26 When Joab came out from David's presence, he sent messengers after Abner, probably a secondary addition to the older story. The expression from Dan to Beer-sheba is a conventional way of describing the totality of ancient Israel, from the city of Dan on the southern slope of Mount Hermon to Beer-sheba, about twenty-three miles southwest of Hebron. 3.12 Having fallen out with Ishbaal, Abner now offers to swing his support to David. 3.13 David agrees, on the condition that Abner return Saul's daughter Michal to David; their marriage (see 1 Sam 18.20–28), which Saul annulled (1 Sam 25.44) after Michal helped David escape from Saul (1 Sam 19.8–17), provided David with a claim on the throne of Israel. 3.14 By citing the bride-price of one hundred foreskins of the Philistines (see 1 Sam 18.25, 27) David is stating a legal claim to Michal. 3.15 For Paltiel, see note on 1 Sam 25.44. 3.16 Bahurim was a Benjaminite town just north of Jerusalem on the main road connecting Israel and Judah; it was the home of Shimei, David's nemesis at the time of Absalom's revolt (see 16.5; 19.16; 1 Kings 2.8), and Azmaveth, a member of David's elite corps of the Thirty (23.31). 3.17 We have not been told explicitly that the Israelite leaders wanted David as their king, but it has been implicit in the references to their loyalty to him and his military leadership (see 1 Sam 18.16). 3.18 The second part of this verse probably stems from the hand of the Deuteronomistic historian (see Introduction); it looks forward to the Lord's dynastic promise to David in ch. 7, in which the new king is also referred to as my servant David (vv. 5, 8; cf. v. 26), and to the synopsis in ch. 8 of his victories over the Philistines (8.1; cf. 5.17–25; 21.15–22; 23.8–17) and Israel's other enemies. 3.19 The narrator reminds the Benjaminites in his audience, who may have been suspicious of David's complicity in Abner's assassination, that Abner was negotiating on David's behalf just before his death. 3.21 Here and at the end of the next two verses the narrator stresses that Abner left David in peace. 3.25 Joab tries to convince David that Abner came to Jerusalem as a spy to discover his military plans or comings and goings (see, e.g., 1 Sam 18.13, 16; 29.6). 3.26 Abner traveled two or three miles north from Hebron, where the cistern of Sirah was located, before being summoned back by Joab. Again, the narrator insists that and they brought him back from the cistern of Sirah; but David did not know about it. ²⁷When Abner returned to Hebron, Joab took him aside in the gateway to speak with him privately, and there he stabbed him in the stomach. So he died for shedding^m the blood of Asahel, Joab'sⁿ brother. ²⁸Afterward, when David heard of it, he said, "I and my kingdom are forever guiltless before the LORD for the blood of Abner son of Ner. ²⁹May the guilt^o fall on the head of Joab, and on all his father's house; and may the house of Joab never be without one who has a discharge, or who is leprous,^p or who holds a spindle, or who falls by the sword, or who lacks food!" ³⁰So Joab and his brother Abishai murdered Abner because he had killed their brother Asahel in the battle at Gibeon.

³¹ Then David said to Joab and to all the people who were with him, "Tear your clothes, and put on sackcloth, and mourn over Abner." And King David followed the bier. ³²They buried Abner at Hebron. The king lifted up his voice and wept at the grave of Abner, and all the people wept. ³³The king lamented for Abner, saying,

"Should Abner die as a fool dies?

³⁴ Your hands were not bound,
your feet were not fettered;
as one falls before the wicked
you have fallen."

And all the people wept over him again. ³⁵Then all the people came to persuade David to eat something while it was still day; but David swore, saying, "So may God do to me, and more, if I taste bread or anything else before the sun goes down!" ³⁶All the people took notice of it, and it pleased them; just as everything the king did pleased all the people. ³⁷So all the people and all Israel understood that day that the king had no part in the killing of Abner son of Ner. ³⁸And the king said to his servants, "Do you not know that a prince and a great man has fallen this day in Israel? ³⁹Today I am powerless, even though anointed king; these men, the sons of Zeruiah, are too violent for me. The LORD pay back the one who does wickedly in accordance with his wickedness!"

Ishbaal Assassinated

4 When Saul's son Ishbaal^q heard that Abner had died at Hebron, his courage failed, and all Israel was dismayed. ²Saul's son had two captains of raiding bands; the name of the one was Baanah, and the name of the other Rechab. They were sons of Rimmon a Benjaminite from Beeroth—for Beeroth is considered to be-

David did not know about it. 3.27 Joab kills Abner to avenge the blood of Asahel (see 2.17–28). 3.28–29 These verses show expansion by a Deuteronomistic editor (see Introduction), who was concerned not only about David's guilt but also that of his kingdom or dynasty (cf. 7.12, 16). The oath against Joab anticipates the language of Solomon when he condemns Joab to death in 1 Kings 2.31–33. If holds a spindle is the correct translation, the meaning must be "a man who holds the distaff," i.e., an effeminate male; but another possible rendering is "clings to a crutch." 3.30 For Abishai, see 2.18; 1 Sam 26.6. The statement that he, too, murdered Abner contradicts v. 27, which indicates that Joab did it privately, but the original text, preserved by the Septuagint and a scroll from Qumran (4QSam^a), read "Joab and his brother Abishai had been setting an ambush for Abner" (cf. Prov 1.11, 18). 3.32 Though a Benjaminite, Abner, like Ishbaal (4.12), is buried at Hebron. 3.33 The Hebrew term rendered fool in English Bibles refers to someone who commits a serious breach of society's norms (see 13.13; 1 Sam 25.3); David's point is that Abner is a prince and a great man (v. 38) and should not have suffered the ignominious death of an outcast lacking the protection of society. 3.36–37 The narrator stresses the popular approval of David's behavior, adding that David's innocence of complicity in the murder was acknowledged by everyone, including not only Judah but all Israel, Abner's own kin. 3.39 David says that he cannot control his nephews, the sons of Zeruiah, who, though fiercely loyal to him, are consistently ruthless and impetuous, as we have already seen (1 Sam 26.8; 2 Sam 2.18–23). The LORD pay back . . . wickedness is lacking in a scroll from Qumran (4QSam^a); it probably arose as the comment of a pious scribe.

4.1–12 Seeking to gain favor with David, two Benjaminites murder Ishbaal. 4.2 Beeroth, four to five miles northwest of Jerusalem, was one of the four Gibeonite cities that survived destruction during the conquest by tricking Joshua into making a treaty with them (see Josh 9, esp. v. 17); it was subsequently assigned to Benjamin by lot long to Benjamin. ³(Now the people of Beeroth had fled to Gittaim and are there as resident aliens to this day).

4 Saul's son Jonathan had a son who was crippled in his feet. He was five years old when the news about Saul and Jonathan came from Jezreel. His nurse picked him up and fled; and, in her haste to flee, it happened that he fell and became lame. His name was Mephibosheth.^r

5 Now the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, Rechab and Baanah, set out, and about the heat of the day they came to the house of Ishbaal,^s while he was taking his noonday rest. ⁶They came inside the house as though to take wheat, and they struck him in the stomach; then Rechab and his brother Baanah escaped.^t ⁷Now they had come into the house while he was lying on his couch in his bedchamber; they attacked him, killed him, and beheaded him. Then they took his head and traveled by way of the Arabah all night long. ⁸They brought the head of Ishbaal^s to David at Hebron and said to the king, "Here is the head of Ishbaal,^s son of Saul, your enemy, who sought your life; the LORD has avenged my lord the king this day on Saul and on his offspring."

9 David answered Rechab and his brother Baanah, the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, "As the LORD lives, who has redeemed my life out of every adversity, ¹⁰when the one who told me, 'See, Saul is dead,' thought he was bringing good news, I seized him and killed him at Ziklag—this was the reward I gave him for his news. ¹¹How much more then, when wicked men have killed a righteous man on his bed in his own house! And now shall I not require his blood at your hand, and destroy you from the earth?"

¹²So David commanded the young men, and they killed them; they cut off their hands and feet, and hung their bodies beside the pool at Hebron. But the head of Ishbaal^s they took and buried in the tomb of Abner at Hebron.

David Anointed King of All Israel

5 Then all the tribes of Israel came to David at Hebron, and said, "Look, we are your bone and flesh. ²For some time, while Saul was king over us, it was you who led out Israel and brought it in. The LORD said to you: It is you who shall be shepherd of my people Israel, you who shall be ruler over Israel." ³So all the elders of Israel came to the king at Hebron; and King David made a covenant with them at Hebron before the LORD, and they anointed David king over Israel. ⁴David was thirty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years.

(Josh 18.25). 4.3 The location of Gittaim, Hebrew, "the Double Gath (Winepress)," is unknown; it is mentioned elsewhere only in Neh 11.33. We are not told why the people of Beeroth fled to Gittaim, but it probably had something to do with Saul's hostility toward the Gibeonites (see 21.2). Resident aliens. See note on 1.13-16. 4.4 The flow of the narrative is interrupted for the introduction of Mephibosheth. The name was originally Mephibaal ("Out of the Mouth of the Lord") before the substitution of bosheth, "shame," for baal, "lord, Baal" (see note on 2.8). The name is confused in the biblical text with another similar name, Merib-baal ("The Lord is Advocate"); Mephibaal was probably the name of a son of Saul by his concubine Rizpah (see 21.8), while Merib-baal was the name of Jonathan's crippled son (see 1 Chr 8.34; 9.40). 4.7 As in 2.29, the journey to Mahanaim, Ishbaal's capital (see 2.8), passes through the Arabah. 4.10 David recalls events of 1.2-16. 4.12 For the tomb of Abner, see 3.32.

5.1-5 David becomes king a second time, now of the northern tribes. 5.1-2 These two verses, which have a number of verbal parallels with the oracle of Nathan in ch. 7, were inserted by a Deuteronomistic editor in whose time it was natural for the Israelites to describe themselves in relation to David, a Judahite, as your bone and flesh; in the older narrative (19.13) David uses the same expression to signify his kinship to the people of Judah in contrast to the people of Israel. David led out Israel and brought it in, i.e., he led the army (for the expression, see Num 27.17; 1 Chr 2.11; cf. 1 Sam 18.13, 16; 29.6). For David as Israel's shepherd, see 2 Sam 7.7; ruler (Hebrew nagid) translates the same word as prince in 7.8 (cf. note on 1 Sam 9.16). 5.3 A second, older account of David's appointment as king. By making a covenant with the Israelite elders David is binding himself to certain obligations in return for fealty. 5.4-5 These chronological notices belong to the Deuteronomistic framework of the narrative (see Introduction; 2.10-11; note on 1 Sam 13.1). Contemporary biblical scholars generally date David's reign to the first half of the tenth century, or approximately 1000-960 B.C.E.

5 At Hebron he reigned over Judah seven years and six months; and at Jerusalem he reigned over all Israel and Judah thirty-three years.

Jerusalem Becomes David's Capital

6 The king and his men marched to Jerusalem against the Jebusites, the inhabitants of the land, who said to David, "You will not come in here, even the blind and the lame will turn you back"—thinking, "David cannot come in here." 7 Nevertheless David took the stronghold of Zion, which is now the city of David. 8 David had said on that day, "Whoever would strike down the Jebusites, let him get up the water shaft to attack the lame and the blind, those whom David hates."^u Therefore it is said, "The blind and the lame shall not come into the house." 9 David occupied the stronghold, and named it the city of David. David built the city all around from the Millo inward. 10 And David became greater and greater, for the LORD, the God of hosts, was with him.

11 King Hiram of Tyre sent messengers to David, along with cedar trees, and carpenters and masons who built David a house. 12 David then perceived that the LORD had established him king over Israel, and that he had exalted his kingdom for the sake of his people Israel.

13 In Jerusalem, after he came from Hebron, David took more concubines and wives; and more sons and daughters were born to David. 14 These are the names of those who were born to him in Jerusalem: Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, Solomon, 15 Ibhar, Elishua, Nepheg, Japhia, 16 Elishama, Eliada, and Eliphelet.

Victories over the Philistines

17 When the Philistines heard that David had been anointed king over Israel,

^u Another reading is those who hate David

5.6–16 David's private army successfully besieges the city of the Jebusites. 5.6 In biblical tradition the Jebusites were the indigenous inhabitants of Jerusalem whom Joshua failed to drive away (Josh 15.63; Judg 1.21). There have been many attempts to explain the role of the blind and the lame in this account. The present translation reflects the interpretation that the Jebusites are taunting David: "We are so much stronger than you that even our blind and lame can keep you out." 5.7 The stronghold of Zion was a fortified hilltop on the southeast corner of the later city. In the strict sense, then, Zion and the city of David refer only to this hill (see 1 Kings 8.1), but both terms were extended to mean the city as a whole. 5.8 At this point in the Chronicler's version of the capture of Jerusalem (1 Chr 11.6) Joab wins the position as commander-in-chief of David's army by leading the attack on the city. The present translation assumes that the water shaft was a vertical passage used by the Jebusites to have access to the Gihon, Jerusalem's primary water source, from within the city walls. Another possible meaning is "the windpipe"; if this is correct, David is telling his troops to strike at the windpipe, dealing only fatal blows so as not to leave the city full of maimed people (the lame and the blind). The narrator uses the story to explain a rule excluding the lame and blind from the house, i.e., the temple (cf. Lev 21.16–23; Deut 23.1). 5.9 Named. Ancient Near Eastern conquerors often renamed cities in their own honor. The Millo, which in Hebrew seems to mean "the Fill," ought to be an earthwork of some kind, perhaps a building platform created by filling a ravine; Solomon amplified or rebuilt it (1 Kings 9.15, 24; 11.27). 5.10 The old story of David's rise to power (see Introduction) probably ended here, with a final recapitulation of its central motif (see 1 Sam 16.18; 18.14, 28). 5.11 King Hiram will later supply Solomon with the skilled workers and materials necessary for the construction of the temple (see 1 Kings 5.1–10); extrabiblical sources indicate that his reign was long and productive. The port of Tyre was the chief city of Phoenicia, ancient Lebanon; it was about fifty miles south of Beirut. For millennia, the cedars of Lebanon were prized for use in the building of temples and royal residences; for David's house of cedar, see also 7.2. 5.12 The language of this verse anticipates that of the dynastic promise in ch. 7 (see esp. 7.12). 5.13–15 Cf. 3.2–5, where David's sons born in Hebron are listed. The present list names those born in Jerusalem (see also 1 Chr 14.3–4); there is a composite listing in 1 Chr 3.1–9. Of the sons mentioned here, only Solomon will play a significant role in the story.

5.17–25 A miscellany detailing David's success in the Philistine wars. 5.17 The stronghold to which David retreats is probably not Zion (vv. 7, 9) but Adullam, a Judahite fortress ca. sixteen miles to the southwest where he has sought refuge in the past (see 1 Sam 22.1, 4; 24.22) and where he will be in another encounter with Philistines in the valley of Rephaim (see 2 Sam 23.13, 14).

all the Philistines went up in search of David; but David heard about it and went down to the stronghold. ¹⁸Now the Philistines had come and spread out in the valley of Rephaim. ¹⁹David inquired of the LORD, "Shall I go up against the Philistines? Will you give them into my hand?" The LORD said to David, "Go up; for I will certainly give the Philistines into your hand." ²⁰So David came to Baal-perazim, and David defeated them there. He said, "The LORD has burst forth against^v my enemies before me, like a bursting flood." Therefore that place is called Baal-perazim.^w ²¹The Philistines abandoned their idols there, and David and his men carried them away.

²² Once again the Philistines came up, and were spread out in the valley of Rephaim. ²³When David inquired of the LORD, he said, "You shall not go up; go around to their rear, and come upon them opposite the balsam trees. ²⁴When you hear the sound of marching in the tops of the balsam trees, then be on the alert; for then the LORD has gone out before you to strike down the army of the Philistines." ²⁵David did just as the LORD had commanded him; and he struck down the Philistines from Geba all the way to Gezer.

David Brings the Ark to Jerusalem

6 David again gathered all the chosen men of Israel, thirty thousand. ²David and all the people with him set out and went from Baale-judah, to bring up from there the ark of God, which is called by the name of the LORD of hosts who is enthroned on the cherubim. ³They carried the ark of God on a new cart, and brought it out of the house of Abinadab, which was on the hill. Uzzah and Ahio,^x the sons of Abinadab, were driving the new cart ⁴with the ark of God;^y and Ahio^x went in front of the ark. ⁵David and all the house of Israel were dancing before the LORD with all their might, with songs^z and lyres and harps and tambourines and castanets and cymbals.

⁶ When they came to the threshing floor of Nacon, Uzzah reached out his hand to the ark of God and took hold of it, for the oxen shook it. ⁷The anger of the LORD was kindled against Uzzah; and God struck him there because he reached out his hand to the ark;^a and he died there beside the ark of God. ⁸David was

5.18 The valley of Rephaim (see Josh 15.8; 18.16) is usually identified with a plain southwest of Jerusalem. 5.20 Baal-perazim ("the lord of Perazim") must have been a sanctuary on or near Mount Perazim (see Isa 28.21); here, its name is playfully traced to David's victory. 5.21 Just as the Philistines carried off the ark after their victory in 1 Sam 4.1–11, David and his men carry away their idols (lit. "gods") now. 5.23 The term rendered balsam trees is obscure; it might refer to some kind of tree or bush, but it might also be a place-name, "Bachaim." 5.24 The sound of marching will indicate that the LORD has gone out as the Divine Warrior to fight on David's behalf. 5.25 Most scholars prefer to emend Geba, which was northeast of Jerusalem (see 1 Sam 13.3), to Gibeon, which was northwest of the city (see 2.12 above) and therefore more suited to the geography of the present passage. Gezer was about fifteen miles west of Gibeon in the direction of the Philistine plain.

Kiriath-jearim (cf. Josh 15.9), where the ark has been since its return from Philistia (see 1 Sam 7.2). 6.2 The ark of God, the most sacred object in Israelite worship, marks the presence of the Lord. For the epithet the LORD of hosts who is enthroned on the cherubim, see note on 1 Sam 4.4. 6.3 The cart in which the ark returned from Philistia was burned in a sacrifice (1 Sam 6.14), and in any case a new cart is necessary for ritual purposes; see note at 1 Sam 6.7. For the house of Abinadab, which was on the hill, see 1 Sam 6.21; 7.1. Uzzah and Ahio were not mentioned in 1 Sam 7.1, where we were told that Abinadab's son Eleazar was consecrated for service with the ark; it is possible that Eleazar and Uzzah are the same person. 6.6–7 Because of its great sacredness the ark is potentially very dangerous (cf. 1 Sam 6.19), and it must be treated with great care. Although Uzzah's purpose in reaching for the ark was probably only to steady it, he was not ritually prepared to touch it, and his lapse proves fatal. 6.8 The meaning of Perez-uzzah, as the threshing floor of Nacon was known in the time of the author of this verse, is explained by a reference to the events just angry because the LORD had burst forth with an outburst upon Uzzah; so that place is called Perez-uzzah,^b to this day. ⁹David was afraid of the LORD that day; he said, "How can the ark of the LORD come into my care?" ¹⁰So David was unwilling to take the ark of the LORD into his care in the city of David; instead David took it to the house of Obed-edom the Gittite. ¹¹The ark of the LORD remained in the house of Obed-edom the Gittite three months; and the LORD blessed Obed-edom and all his household.

¹² It was told King David, "The LORD has blessed the household of Obed-edom and all that belongs to him, because of the ark of God." So David went and brought up the ark of God from the house of Obed-edom to the city of David with rejoicing; ¹³and when those who bore the ark of the LORD had gone six paces, he sacrificed an ox and a fatling. ¹⁴David danced before the LORD with all his might; David was girded with a linen ephod. ¹⁵So David and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of the LORD with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet.

¹⁷ They brought in the ark of the LORD, and set it in its place, inside the tent

that David had pitched for it; and David offered burnt offerings and offerings of well-being before the LORD. ¹⁸When David had finished offering the burnt offerings and the offerings of well-being, he blessed the people in the name of the LORD of hosts, ¹⁹and distributed food among all the people, the whole multitude of Israel, both men and women, to each a cake of bread, a portion of meat,^c and a cake of raisins. Then all the people went back to their homes.

²⁰ David returned to bless his household. But Michal the daughter of Saul came out to meet David, and said, "How the king of Israel honored himself today, uncovering himself today before the eyes of his servants' maids, as any vulgar fellow might shamelessly uncover himself!" ²¹David said to Michal, "It was before the LORD, who chose me in place of your father and all his household, to appoint me as prince over Israel, the people of the LORD, that I have danced before the LORD. ²²I will make myself yet more contemptible than this, and I will be abased in my own eyes; but by the maids of whom you have spoken, by them I shall be held in honor." ²³And Michal the daughter of Saul had no child to the day of her death.

described. 6.9–10 David becomes fearful of the holy object and temporarily abandons his plan to bring it into the city. Obed-edom the Gittite may have been one of the soldiers whose loyalty David won when he served in the army of the king of Gath (see 1 Sam 27) and who followed him when he returned to Israel (see 15.18); because of his association with the ark he had been given a Levitical genealogy by the time of the Chronicler (1 Chr 15.18, 21, 24; 16.5, 38). 6.12–19 The ceremony described in these verses is typical of ancient Near Eastern rituals involving the introduction of the statue of the national god (to which the ark corresponds in Israel's aniconic religion) to a newly built or newly captured royal city. These rites typically involve a ceremonial march in which the god is borne into the city with numerous sacrifices along the way (v. 13) and which ends with the installation of the god in the sanctuary (v. 17) followed by the distribution of food and drink to the populace (v. 19). 6.13 The meaning of this verse may be that for every six paces the ark bearers advance David sacrifices an ox and a fatling (i.e., "a fatted ox"); he is progressively sanctifying the city of David so that it will be ritually suitable to house the ark. 6.14 David's ritual dance has a sacerdotal aspect, as indicated by his garment, a linen ephod (see 1 Sam 2.18; 22.18). 6.16 For Michal daughter of Saul, see 3.13–16; her displeasure is apparently a reaction to David's scant clothing (see v. 20). 6.17 The ark customarily resides in a tent (see 7.6), so that David has prepared one for it here. 6.21 This verse, part of which looks ahead to 7.8, may have been expanded by a Deuteronomistic editor (see Introduction). 6.22 David's retort to Michal's accusation is that what seems vulgar behavior to her is actually pious self-humiliation in the presence of the Lord. 6.23 The principal purpose of vv. 20–23 is to explain Michal's childlessness and to show that the blood of the house of Saul was never mixed with that of the house of David.

Nathan's Oracle

7 Now when the king was settled in his house, and the LORD had given him rest from all his enemies around him, ²the king said to the prophet Nathan, "See now, I am living in a house of cedar, but the ark of God stays in a tent." ³Nathan said to the king, "Go, do all that you have in mind; for the LORD is with you."

⁴ But that same night the word of the LORD came to Nathan: ⁵Go and tell my servant David: Thus says the LORD: Are you the one to build me a house to live in? ⁶I have not lived in a house since the day I brought up the people of Israel from Egypt to this day, but I have been moving about in a tent and a tabernacle. ⁷Wherever I have moved about among all the people of Israel, did I ever speak a word with any of the tribal leaders^d of Israel, whom I commanded to shepherd my people Israel, saying, "Why have you not built me a house of cedar?" ⁸Now therefore thus you shall say to my servant David: Thus says the LORD of hosts: I took you from the pasture, from following the sheep to be prince over my people Israel; ⁹and I have been with you wherever you went, and have cut off all your enemies from before you; and I will make for you a great name, like the name of the great ones of the earth. ¹⁰And I will appoint a place for my people Israel and will plant them, so that they may live in their own place, and be disturbed no more; and evil-doers shall afflict them no more, as formerly, ¹¹from the time that I appointed judges over my people Israel; and I will give you rest from all your enemies. Moreover the LORD declares to you that the LORD will make you a house. ¹²When your days are fulfilled and you lie down with your ancestors, I will raise up your offspring after you, who shall come forth from your body, and I will establish his kingdom. ¹³He shall build a house for my name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever. ¹⁴I will be a father to him, and he shall be a son to me. When

d Or any of the tribes

7.1–17 This passage expresses in prophetic form the royal theology of the Davidic dynasty. 7.2 The prophet Nathan has not been mentioned previously; he figures prominently here, in the story of David and Bathsheba (ch. 12), and in the account of the accession of Solomon (1 Kings 1). The contrast David draws between his own house of cedar and the tent in which the ark is lodged points to 5.11; 6.17; though he does not say so explicitly, David's words clearly imply a wish to build a temple for the Lord. 7.5 The Lord's rhetorical question (Are you the one . . . ?) implies that it is not David but someone else who will build the temple, and we soon learn that it will be David's son (v. 13). 7.6–7 In its present, Deuteronomistically edited form (see Introduction), Nathan's oracle merely defers the erection of a temple to the next generation. These two verses, however, reflect the idea that the ark should be housed in a tent, a portable shrine, and seem hostile to a temple under any circumstances; they may represent the core of an older oracle prohibiting rather than postponing the construction of a temple. The phrase since the day I brought up the people of Israel from Egypt refers to the exodus, as in 1 Sam 8.8; 2 Kings 21.15, and numerous other passages. The expressions I have been moving about, Wherever I have moved about use language that stresses the freedom the Lord has to go where he pleases. For a house of cedar, i.e., a temple, see notes on 5.11; 7.2. 7.8 I took you from the pasture alludes to 1 Sam 16.11. For the term prince, elsewhere translated ruler, see note on 1 Sam 9.16. 7.10 The place prophesied here is not the promised land, in which Israel is already living, but the place where the Lord chooses to be worshiped (see Deut 12.5, 11, 14, 18, 21, 26), i.e., the temple in Jerusalem. The evildoers mentioned here are probably Hophni and Phinehas (see 1 Sam 2.12–26). 7.11 The expression I will give you rest connects the present events with the Deuteronomistic theme of the promise of rest from their enemies that the Israelites were given by Moses in Deut 12.9–10; the promise was fulfilled in preliminary form by the conquest of Canaan (see Josh 21.44), but its final realization awaits the erection of the temple (see 1 Kings 8.56). The Lord promises David a house, i.e., a dynasty. 7.12 This verse refers to Solomon, as v. 13 makes clear, but also to the Davidic dynasty in general. 7.13 The house that David's offspring will build is the house or temple of v. 5; the author of this passage is playing on two meanings of the word house in Hebrew—David's house or dynasty and the LORD's house or temple. The Lord's name refers to his presence in the temple in a way that avoids the theological objection that no earthly dwelling could serve as a dwelling for such a great transcendent deity (see esp. 1 Kings 8.27–30). 7.14 In Israel and contemporary societies, the relationship between father and son was used to express the special relationship between the dynastic deity and the king, who was regarded the adoptive son of the national god; for David as he commits iniquity, I will punish him with a rod such as mortals use, with blows inflicted by human beings. ¹⁵But I will not take^e my steadfast love from him, as I took it from Saul, whom I put away from before you. ¹⁶Your house and your kingdom shall be made sure forever before me;^f your throne shall be established forever. ¹⁷In accordance with all these words and with all this vision, Nathan spoke to David.

David's Prayer

18 Then King David went in and sat before the LORD, and said, "Who am I, O Lord God, and what is my house, that you have brought me thus far? ¹⁹And yet this was a small thing in your eyes, O Lord God; you have spoken also of your servant's house for a great while to come. May this be instruction for the people,^g O Lord God! ²⁰And what more can David say to you? For you know your servant, O Lord God! ²¹Because of your promise, and according to your own heart, you have wrought all this greatness, so that your servant may know it. ²²Therefore you are great, O LORD God; for there is no one like you, and there is no God besides you, according to all that we have heard with our ears. ²³Who is like your people, like Israel? Is there another^h nation on earth whose God went to redeem it as a people, and to make a name for himself, doing great and awesome things for them,ⁱ by driving out^j before his people nations and their gods?^k ²⁴And you established your people Israel for yourself to be your people forever; and you, O LORD, became their God. ²⁵And now, O LORD God, as for the word that you have spoken concerning your servant and concerning his house, confirm it forever; do as you have promised. ²⁶Thus your name will be magnified forever in the saying, 'The LORD of hosts is God over Israel'; and the house of your servant David will be established before you. ²⁷For you, O LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, have made this revelation to your servant, saying, 'I will build you a house'; therefore your servant has found courage to pray this prayer to you. ²⁸And now, O Lord God, you are God, and your words are true, and you have promised this good thing to your servant; ²⁹now therefore may it please you to bless the house of your servant, so that it may continue forever before you; for you, O Lord God, have spoken, and with your blessing shall the house of your servant be blessed forever."

This means that neither David nor one of his successors will become another Saul (see 1 Sam 13.13–14; 15.26–28).

7.18–29 David's response to Nathan's oracle. 7.18 We are told that David went in (i.e., into the tent, 6.17; 7.2) and sat before the LORD (i.e., in front of the ark), but it was not customary to sit during prayer, and the meaning may be that "David remained before the LORD" after others departed. 7.19 On the basis of the Hebrew and Greek texts of 1 Chr 17.17 it is possible to show that the obscure sentence here translated May this be instruction for the people may have originally read "and you have shown me the generation to come." 7.21 For the expression according to your own heart, see 1 Sam 13.14; the point is that the Lord has acted at his own initiative and not in response to some gesture by David, such as his offer to build a temple (see 7.2). 7.22–26 This passage, which is replete with stereotypical Deuteronomistic language, is regarded by scholars as partly or wholly an expansion of David's prayer by the Deuteronomistic historian (see Introduction), whose purpose was to incorporate the Lord's benefaction toward the house of David into the larger context of his graciousness towards Israel as a whole. 7.23 On the question beginning Is there another nation, cf. Deut 4.7, 8, 32–40. 7.24 This verse refers to the covenant between Israel and the Lord (cf. Deut 29.10–13), which in Deuteronomistic thought was linked to the special relationship between the Davidic king and the Lord (see v. 14).

2 He also defeated the Moabites and, making them lie down on the ground, measured them off with a cord; he measured two lengths of cord for those who were to be put to death, and one length¹ for those who were to be spared. And the Moabites became servants to David and brought tribute.

3 David also struck down King Hadadezer son of Rehob of Zobah, as he went to restore his monument^m at the river Euphrates. 4 David took from him one thousand seven hundred horsemen, and twenty thousand foot soldiers. David hamstringed all the chariot horses, but left enough for a hundred chariots. 5 When the Arameans of Damascus came to help King Hadadezer of Zobah, David killed twenty-two thousand men of the Arameans. 6 Then David put garrisons among the Arameans of Damascus; and the Arameans became servants to David and brought tribute. The LORD gave victory to David wherever he went. 7 David took the gold shields that were carried by the servants of Hadadezer, and brought them to Jerusalem. 8 From Betah and from Berothai, towns of Hadadezer, King David took a great amount of bronze.

9 When King Toi of Hamath heard that David had defeated the whole army of Hadadezer, 10 Toi sent his son Joram to King David, to greet him and to congratulate him because he had fought against Hadadezer and defeated him. Now Hadadezer had often been at war with Toi. Joram brought with him articles of silver, gold, and bronze; 11 these also King David dedicated to the LORD, together with the silver and gold that he dedicated from all the nations he subdued, 12 from Edom, Moab, the Ammonites, the Philistines, Amalek, and from the spoil of King Hadadezer son of Rehob of Zobah.

13 David won a name for himself. When he returned, he killed eighteen thousand Edomitesⁿ in the Valley of Salt. 14 He put garrisons in Edom; throughout all Edom he put garrisons, and all the Edomites became David's servants. And the LORD gave victory to David wherever he went.

The patronymic son of Rehob suggests that he may have been a native of Beth-rehob, an Aramean state that fought against David (see 10.6); he may have united Beth-rehob and Zobah under his rule just as David did with Judah and Israel. Zobah, which was located on the western slope of Mount Hermon, was the leading Aramean state before the rise of Damascus. If Hadadezer had been marching north to restore his monument at the Euphrates, he would not have been likely to encounter David, who lived far to the south. It seems more likely that it was David who marched north "to leave his monument" at the Euphrates after his victory at Helam (see 10.15–18). 8.4 Apparently David had use for only a hundred chariot horses and hamstringed the rest so that they could not be used against him; but Josh 11.6–9 suggests that David might have been following some kind of ritual requirement. 8.5 Damascus, at this point an ally and probably a vassal of Zobah, will rise to preeminence late in the reign of Solomon under the leadership of a survivor of the present conflict (see 1 Kings 11.23–25). 8.7 The gold shields were actually ceremonial gold bow cases that were carried by royal officials on formal occasions. 8.8 Betah should probably be read "Tebah" as in certain Greek and Syriac manuscripts (cf. "Tibhath" in 1 Chr 18.8); it was in the Bekaa Valley south of modern Homs. Berothai (cf. "Berothah" in Ezek 47.16) was also in the Bekaa a few miles south of Baalbek. 8.9 Hamath, modern Hama on the middle Orontes, was a Neo-Hittite city-state that bordered on Zobah to the north. 8.10 Surprisingly, Toi's son Joram has a name that means "Yahweh is exalted" in Hebrew. His name in 1 Chr 18.10 is Hadoram, which means "(the Aramean god) Hadad is exalted," and many scholars would replace Joram with Hadoram in the present passage; but it has also been suggested that Hadoram's name was changed to Joram as a gesture of fealty to David. 8.13 The Valley of Salt probably ran from somewhere in Edom into the Dead Sea; in the Septuagint David's victory there is credited to Abishai son of Zeruiah (see 2.18, 30; 1 Sam 26.6).

David's Officers

15 So David reigned over all Israel; and David administered justice and equity to all his people. ¹⁶Joab son of Zeruiah was over the army; Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was recorder; ¹⁷Zadok son of Ahitub and Ahimelech son of Abiathar were priests; Seraiah was secretary; ¹⁸Benaiah son of Jehoiada was over^o the Cherethites and the Pelethites; and David's sons were priests.

David's Kindness to Mephibosheth

9 David asked, "Is there still anyone left of the house of Saul to whom I may show kindness for Jonathan's sake?" ²Now there was a servant of the house of Saul whose name was Ziba, and he was summoned to David. The king said to him, "Are you Ziba?" And he said, "At your service!" ³The king said, "Is there anyone remaining of the house of Saul to whom I may show the kindness of God?" Ziba said to the king, "There remains a son of Jonathan; he is crippled in his feet." ⁴The king said to him, "Where is he?" Ziba said to the king, "He is in the house of Machir son of Ammiel, at Lo-debar." ⁵Then King David sent and brought him from the house of Machir son of Ammiel, at Lo-debar. ⁶Mephibosheth^p son of Jonathan son of Saul came to David, and fell on his face and did obeisance. David said, "Mephibosheth!"^p He answered, "I am your servant." ⁷David said to him, "Do not be afraid, for I will show you kindness for the sake of your father Jonathan; I will restore to you all the land of your grandfather Saul, and you yourself shall eat at my table always." ⁸He did obeisance and said, "What is your

8.15–18 This is the first of two lists of the members of David's administration. The second is in 20.23–26. 8.16 Joab (see 2.13) may have received the command of the army as a result of his role in the siege of Jerusalem (see note on 5.8). Jehoshaphat will remain in office under Solomon (see 1 Kings 4.3); as recorder he was probably responsible for keeping public records, but the title has been compared to that of an Egyptian officer whose chief responsibility was to communicate between the king and the public. 8.17 Two high priests served simultaneously during David's reign. One was Zadok, who survived Solomon's purge and became the ancestor of the dominant priestly family in Jerusalem, as forecast in the oracle in 1 Sam 2.27–36. The other was not Ahimelech son of Abiathar but Abiathar son of Ahimelech, as shown clearly by 15.24, 29, 35; 17.15; 19.11; the mistake in the present passage is replicated in 1 Chr 18.16 but not in 2 Sam 20.25. Abiathar, the only survivor of Saul's massacre of the Shilonite priesthood (see 1 Sam 22.6–23), became David's personal priest (1 Sam 22.20–23) and remained at court until he was banished by Solomon for having sided against his succession (see 1 Kings 1.7; 2.26–27). The name Seraiah is doubtful; the Septuagint points to Shausha, and the name in 20.25 is Sheva. Like recorder, the title of secretary has been compared to that of an Egyptian officer who served as the personal secretary of the king. 8.18 For Benaiah, see 23.20–23. The Cherethites and the Pelethites were David's personal bodyguard (cf. 23.23); like the Philistines, near whose territory they settled, they were probably Aegean in origin. David probably earned their loyalty while he was in the service of the king of Gath (1 Sam 27–30). If the assertion that David's sons were priests is correct (the textual evidence is confused), then we must suppose that membership in the priesthood was not limited to Levites in the time of David.

9.1–13 David finds the surviving heir to the house of Saul and invites him to live at court. If there was any suspicion that David's hospitality was actually a form of house arrest, intended to keep an eye on Mephibosheth, the narrator refutes this by insisting David's only motive was loyalty to the memory of Jonathan (vv. 1, 3, 7). 9.1 Note the connection between this verse and 21.7; the account of the execution of the family of Saul in 21.1–14 probably once stood as an introduction to ch. 9. 9.2 Ziba, though a servant of the house of Saul, i.e., a ranking officer at Saul's court, becomes a valuable supporter of David (see 16.1–4; cf. 19.24–30). 9.4 Like Ziba, Machir will prove helpful to David during the crisis provoked by Absalom's revolt (see 17.27). Lo-debar was a town in northern Transjordan (see "the territory of Debir" in Josh 13.26), not far from Mahanaim (see 2.8) and Jabesh-gilead (see 2.4b–7) in the territory settled by a clan of Manasseh also known as Machir (see Num 32.39–40; Deut 3.15); the house of Saul always had its staunchest support in this region as a result of Saul's liberation of Jabesh (see 1 Sam 10.27–11.11). 9.6 Mephibosheth. See note on 4.4. 9.7 To eat at the king's table was a special privilege (see 1 Kings 2.7; 18.19; 2 Kings 25.27–29; Jer 52.31–33; cf. Ps 23.5). 9.8 For the self-abasing expression dead dog, see note on servant, that you should look upon a dead dog such as I?"

9 Then the king summoned Saul's servant Ziba, and said to him, "All that belonged to Saul and to all his house I have given to your master's grandson. 10 You and your sons and your servants shall till the land for him, and shall bring in the produce, so that your master's grandson may have food to eat; but your master's grandson Mephibosheth^q shall always eat at my table." Now Ziba had fifteen sons and twenty servants. 11 Then Ziba said to the king, "According to all that my lord the king commands his servant, so your servant will do." Mephibosheth^q ate at David's^r table, like one of the king's sons. 12 Mephibosheth^q had a young son whose name was Mica. And all who lived in Ziba's house became Mephibosheth's^s servants. 13 Mephibosheth^q lived in Jerusalem, for he always ate at the king's table. Now he was lame in both his feet.

The War with the Aramean Coalition

10 Some time afterward, the king of the Ammonites died, and his son Hanun succeeded him. 2 David said, "I will deal loyally with Hanun son of Nahash, just as his father dealt loyally with me." So David sent envoys to console him concerning his father. When David's envoys came into the land of the Ammonites, 3 the princes of the Ammonites said to their lord Hanun, "Do you really think that David is honoring your father just because he has sent messengers with condolences to you? Has not David sent his envoys to you to search the city, to spy it out, and to overthrow it?" 4 So Hanun seized David's envoys, shaved off half the beard of each, cut off their garments in the middle at their hips, and sent them away. 5 When David was told, he sent to meet them, for the men were greatly ashamed. The king said, "Remain at Jericho until your beards have grown, and then return."

6 When the Ammonites saw that they had become odious to David, the Ammonites sent and hired the Arameans of Beth-rehob and the Arameans of Zobah, twenty thousand foot soldiers, as well as the king of Maacah, one thousand men, and the men of Tob, twelve thousand men. 7 When David heard of it, he sent Joab and all the army with the warriors. 8 The Ammonites came out and drew up in battle array at the entrance of the gate; but the Arameans of Zobah and of Rehob, and the men of Tob and Maacah, were by themselves in the open country.

9 When Joab saw that the battle was set against him both in front and in the rear, he chose some of the picked men of Israel, and arrayed them against the Arameans; 10 the rest of his men he put in the charge of his brother Abishai, and he arrayed them against the Ammonites. 11 He said, "If the Arameans are too strong for me, then you shall help me; but if the Ammonites are too strong for you, then I will come and help you. 12 Be strong, and let

1 Sam 24.14. 9.10 The original point of David's remarks in this verse, better preserved in the Greek version, was that Ziba and his household would be supported by the income from Mephibosheth's estate, but that Mephibosheth himself would be supported at David's expense. 9.12 According to 1 Chr 8.34–35; 9.40–41, Mica had four sons, thus ensuring the posterity of the house of Saul (cf. 1 Sam 20.14–16; 24.21–22). 9.13 The fact that Mephibosheth, the heir to the house of Saul, is lame in both his feet is important; as a cripple he is unlikely to be able to make a successful attempt to revive his line's claim to the throne.

10.1–19 Chronologically, this section seems to be prior to 8.3–14. 10.2 Nahash was an enemy of Saul (1 Sam 10.27–11.11) and may have regarded David, after his split with Saul, as an ally. The only occasion on which he is reported to have dealt loyally with David was when his son Shobi supplied provisions to him after he fled Jerusalem during Absalom's revolt (17.27); if this is what David is referring to here, the revolt must have preceded the events described here. 10.5 Jericho was on the west bank of the Jordan at a point intermediate between Jerusalem and the Ammonite capital. 10.6 For the Arameans of Beth-rehob and Zobah, see note on 8.3. Maacah was north of Geshur (see 2.9) in the Golan Heights. Tob was a small state southeast of the Sea of Galilee. 10.8 The Ammonites confront Joab's army at the entrance of the gate, i.e., of Rabbah, their capital city (see 11.1). 10.10 For Abishai, see 2.18; 1 Sam 26.6. 10.12 The cities of our God to which Joab refers may be old Israelite centers and sanctuaries of Yahweh in southern Transjordan, a region with strong associations in early Israelite us be courageous for the sake of our people, and for the cities of our God; and may the LORD do what seems good to him." ¹³So Joab and the people who were with him moved forward into battle against the Arameans; and they fled before him. ¹⁴When the Ammonites saw that the Arameans fled, they likewise fled before Abishai, and entered the city. Then Joab returned from fighting against the Ammonites, and came to Jerusalem.

¹⁵ But when the Arameans saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they gathered themselves together. ¹⁶Hadadezer sent and brought out the Arameans who were beyond the Euphrates; and they came to Helam, with Shobach the commander of the army of Hadadezer at their head. ¹⁷When it was told David, he gathered all Israel together, and crossed the Jordan, and came to Helam. The Arameans arrayed themselves against David and fought with him. ¹⁸The Arameans fled before Israel; and David killed of the Arameans seven hundred chariot teams, and forty thousand horsemen,^t and wounded Shobach the commander of their army, so that he died there. ¹⁹When all the kings who were servants of Hadadezer saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they made peace with Israel, and became subject to them. So the Arameans were afraid to help the Ammonites any more.

David Commits Adultery with Bathsheba

11 In the spring of the year, the time when kings go out to battle, David sent Joab with his officers and all Israel with him; they ravaged the Ammonites, and besieged Rabbah. But David remained at Jerusalem.

² It happened, late one afternoon, when David rose from his couch and was walking about on the roof of the king's house, that he saw from the roof a woman bathing; the woman was very beautiful. ³David sent someone to inquire about the woman. It was reported, "This is Bathsheba daughter of Eliam, the wife of Uriah the Hittite." ⁴So David sent messengers to get her, and she came to him, and he lay with her. (Now she was purifying herself after her period.) Then she returned to her house. ⁵The woman conceived; and she sent and told David, "I am pregnant."

⁶ So David sent word to Joab, "Send me Uriah the Hittite." And Joab sent Uriah to David. ⁷When Uriah came to him, David asked how Joab and the people fared, and how the war was going. ⁸Then David said to Uriah, "Go down to your house, and wash your feet." Uriah went out of the king's house, and there followed him a present from the king. ⁹But Uriah slept at the entrance of the king's house with all the servants of his tradition. 10.16 For Hadadezer, king of Zobah and leader of the Aramean coalition, see note on 8.3. The Arameans who were beyond the Euphrates were people living in northwestern Mesopotamia in the central and upper Euphrates region. Helam was probably the same town or region that is called "Alema" in 1 Macc 5.26; it lay east of the Sea of Galilee on the Transjordanian plateau. Shobach is called "Shopach" in 1 Chr 19.16, 18.

11.1–13 The incident related here took place during David's Ammonite wars and portrays Israel's greatest king as a sinful human being. 11.1 Rabbah, modern Amman, was the Ammonite capital. 11.2 The story begins as David awakens from an afternoon nap on the roof of his palace, the best place to sleep (see note on 1 Sam 9.25). 11.3 Eliam, Bathsheba's father, is sometimes identified with Eliam son of Ahithophel, a member of David's elite corps of the Thirty (23.34). Uriah the Hittite was also a member (23.39); although his name (Hebrew, "Yahweh is my light") shows that he was probably a native-born Israelite, his title suggests that he was descended from the Hittites, an Anatolian people of the second millennium B.C.E. whose descendants populated a number of Syrian cities in the time of David. 11.4 The purpose of the parenthetical remark that she was purifying herself after her period is to indicate both that her intercourse with David occurred at a time that was propitious for conception and that Uriah cannot have been the father of the child she conceives. 11.6–12 David brings Uriah home on furlough in the hope that he will have intercourse with Bathsheba and the child she is carrying will be thought to be his; but, ironically, Uriah's loyalty to David and sense of duty as a soldier prevents this scheme from succeeding. 11.8 The expression wash your feet is probably a euphemism for sexual intercourse. The translation and there followed him a present from the king is based on a very doubtful Hebrew text. 11.11 Uriah rejects David's suggestion that he go home and lie with lord, and did not go down to his house. ¹⁰When they told David, "Uriah did not go down to his house," David said to Uriah, "You have just come from a journey. Why did you not go down to your house?" ¹¹Uriah said to David, "The ark and Israel and Judah remain in booths;^u and my lord Joab and the servants of my lord are camping in the open field; shall I then go to my house, to eat and to drink, and to lie with my wife? As you live, and as your soul lives, I will not do such a thing." ¹²Then David said to Uriah, "Remain here today also, and tomorrow I will send you back." So Uriah remained in Jerusalem that day. On the next day, ¹³David invited him to eat and drink in his presence and made him drunk; and in the evening he went out to lie on his couch with the servants of his lord, but he did not go down to his house.

The Death of Uriah

¹⁴ In the morning David wrote a letter to Joab, and sent it by the hand of Uriah. ¹⁵In the letter he wrote, "Set Uriah in the forefront of the hardest fighting, and then draw back from him, so that he may be struck down and die." ¹⁶As Joab was besieging the city, he assigned Uriah to the place where he knew there were valiant warriors. ¹⁷The men of the city came out and fought with Joab; and some of the servants of David among the people fell. Uriah the Hittite was killed as well. ¹⁸Then Joab sent and told David all the news about the fighting; ¹⁹and he instructed the messenger, "When you have finished telling the king all the news about the fighting, ²⁰then, if the king's anger rises, and if he says to you, 'Why did you go so near the city to fight? Did you not know that they would shoot from the wall? ²¹Who killed Abimelech son of Jerubbaal?^v Did not a woman throw an upper millstone on him from the wall, so that he died at Thebez? Why did you go so near the wall?' then you shall say, 'Your servant Uriah the Hittite is dead too.'"

²² So the messenger went, and came and told David all that Joab had sent him to tell. ²³The messenger said to David, "The men gained an advantage over us, and came out against us in the field; but we drove them back to the entrance of the gate. ²⁴Then the archers shot at your servants from the wall; some of the king's servants are dead; and your servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also." ²⁵David said to the messenger, "Thus you shall say to Joab, 'Do not let this matter trouble you, for the sword devours now one and now another; press your attack on the city, and overthrow it.' And encourage him."

²⁶ When the wife of Uriah heard that her husband was dead, she made lamentation for him. ²⁷When the mourning was over, David sent and brought her to his house, and she became his wife, and bore him a son.

Nathan's Parable

But the thing that David had done displeased the LORD, ¹and the LORD sent Nathan to David. He came to him, and said to him, "There were two men in a certain city, the one rich and the other poor. ²The rich man had very many flocks and herds; ³but the poor man had nothing but one little ewe lamb, which he had bought. He brought it up, and it grew up with him and with his chilhis wife: he is a pious soldier, careful to observe the ritual regulations of the battle camp (Deut 23.9–14), which forbade intimate relations with women (cf. note on 1 Sam 21.5). When in the field, the army lived in tents, not in booths, and the correct translation here is probably at Succoth (see text note ^u), a town east of the Jordan and roughly midway between Jerusalem and Rabbah.

11.14–27a Having failed to induce the pious Uriah to violate the ritual regulations of the battle camp, David now plots to have him killed. 11.14–15 Uriah carries his own death sentence to Joab. 11.21 The death of Abimelech son of Jerubbaal is reported in Judg 9.50–55; he was killed by an upper millstone thrown by a woman as a result of venturing too close to the city wall during his siege of Thebez. 11.27 According to custom, the period of mourning was seven days (see Gen 50.10; Jdt 16.24).

11.27b–12.15a Nathan tells David a story as if it were a current court case; but in fact it is a parable. The basis of the parable is tribal law, which permitted someone to slaughter an animal from a neighbor's livestock when the rules of hospitality made it absolutely necessary to do so; but this privilege was forbidden to anyone whose own property included available livestock, and it was strictly forbidden when the neighbor's animal was dren; it used to eat of his meager fare, and drink from his cup, and lie in his bosom, and it was like a daughter to him. ⁴Now there came a traveler to the rich man, and he was loath to take one of his own flock or herd to prepare for the wayfarer who had come to him, but he took the poor man's lamb, and prepared that for the guest who had come to him." ⁵Then David's anger was greatly kindled against the man. He said to Nathan, "As the LORD lives, the man who has done this deserves to die; ⁶he shall restore the lamb fourfold, because he did this thing, and because he had no pity."

⁷ Nathan said to David, "You are the man! Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: I anointed you king over Israel, and I rescued you from the hand of Saul; ⁸I gave you your master's house, and your master's wives into your bosom, and gave you the house of Israel and of Judah; and if that had been too little, I would have added as much more. ⁹Why have you despised the word of the LORD, to do what is evil in his sight? You have struck down Uriah the Hittite with the sword, and have taken his wife to be your wife, and have killed him with the sword of the Ammonites. ¹⁰Now therefore the sword shall never depart from your house, for you have despised me, and have taken the wife of Uriah the Hittite to be your wife. ¹¹Thus says the LORD: I will raise up trouble against you from within your own house; and I will take your wives before your eyes, and give them to your neighbor, and he shall lie with your wives in the sight of this very sun. ¹²For you did it secretly; but I will do this thing before all Israel, and before the sun." ¹³David said to Nathan, "I have sinned against the LORD." Nathan said to David, "Now the LORD has put away your sin; you shall not die. ¹⁴Nevertheless, because by this deed you have utterly scorned the LORD, the child that is born to you shall die." ¹⁵Then Nathan went to his house.

The First Child of David and Bathsheba Dies

The LORD struck the child that Uriah's wife bore to David, and it became very ill. ¹⁶David therefore pleaded with God for the child; David fasted, and went in and lay all night on the ground. ¹⁷The elders of his house stood beside him, urging him to rise from the ground; but he would

a personal pet. 12.4 The statement that the rich man took the poor man's lamb invokes the theme of royal abuse of power as expressed in 1 Sam 8.11-18, where the verb take is used repeatedly with the king as subject. 12.6 The stipulation of fourfold restitution comes from Ex 22.1, but in the original text of the present passage, preserved in most Greek manuscripts, David demanded that the lamb be restored sevenfold (cf. Prov 6.31). 12.7 The account of the time when the Lord anointed David king over Israel is in 1 Sam 16.1-13. 12.8 Errors in transmission of this verse have obscured its main point. Instead of your master's house, we should read "your master's daughter," the reference here being to Michal (see 3.13-16). The phrase your master's wives must refer to Saul's wives, and entry into a king's harem was a way of claiming his throne (see 16.21-22). We have no direct report that David took any of Saul's wives; but the Talmud (Sanhedrin 18a) and a few modern scholars have speculated that David's wife Ahinoam, the mother of Amnon (see 3.2; 1 Sam 25.43), was the same as Saul's wife, Ahinoam daughter of Ahimaaz (1 Sam 14.50). Rather than the house of Israel and of Judah, the Lord says he gave David "the daughters of Israel and Judah"; the point being made is that

David was given as many women as he could possibly want, but, like the rich man in the parable, he wantonly took something that belonged to someone who had been less generously treated. 12.10 The statement the sword shall never depart from your house interprets events to come in terms of David's contrivance of the death of Uriah; the author is thinking specifically of the violent deaths of David's sons Amnon (13.23-29), Absalom (18.15), and Adonijah (1 Kings 2.25). 12.11 Again, the statement I will raise up trouble against you from within your own house interprets the grievous events of Absalom's revolt as a consequence of David's sin against Uriah. Specifically, someone (Absalom) will enter David's harem in the sight of this very sun (see 16.21-22). 12.13-14 David is told that the Lord has put away your sin or rather that "the LORD has transferred your sin"; David will not die but someone must, and David is told that the child that is born to you shall die.

12.15b-23 David fasts, lies in the dirt, and implores the Lord to spare the condemned infant. When the child dies, David bathes and eats. His astonished servants see all this as a reversal of normal behavior, since fasting and self-abasement usually followed a death as gestures of mourn-

not, nor did he eat food with them. ¹⁸On the seventh day the child died. And the servants of David were afraid to tell him that the child was dead; for they said, "While the child was still alive, we spoke to him, and he did not listen to us; how then can we tell him the child is dead? He may do himself some harm." ¹⁹But when David saw that his servants were whispering together, he perceived that the child was dead; and David said to his servants, "Is the child dead?" They said, "He is dead."

²⁰Then David rose from the ground, washed, anointed himself, and changed his clothes. He went into the house of the LORD, and worshiped; he then went to his own house; and when he asked, they set food before him and he ate. ²¹Then his servants said to him, "What is this thing that you have done? You fasted and wept for the child while it was alive; but when the child died, you rose and ate food." ²²He said, "While the child was still alive, I fasted and wept; for I said, 'Who knows? The LORD may be gracious to me, and the child may live.' ²³But now he is dead; why should I fast? Can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but he will not return to me."

The Birth of Solomon

²⁴Then David consoled his wife Bathsheba, and went to her, and lay with her; and she bore a son, and he named him Solomon. The LORD loved him, ²⁵and sent a message by the prophet Nathan; so he named him Jedidiah,^x because of the LORD.

The Sack of Rabbah

²⁶Now Joab fought against Rabbah of the Ammonites, and took the royal city. ²⁷Joab sent messengers to David, and said, "I have fought against Rabbah; moreover, I have taken the water city. ²⁸Now, then, gather the rest of the people together, and encamp against the city, and take it; or I myself will take the city, and it will be called by my name." ²⁹So David gathered all the people together and went to Rabbah, and fought against it and took it. ³⁰He took the crown of Milcom^y from his head; the weight of it was a talent of gold, and in it was a precious stone; and it was placed on David's head. He also brought forth the spoil of the city, a very great amount. ³¹He brought out the people who were in it, and set them to work with saws and iron picks and iron axes, or sent them to the brickworks. Thus he did to all the cities of the Ammonites. Then David and all the people returned to Jerusalem.

The Rape of Tamar

13 Some time passed. David's son Absalom had a beautiful sister whose name was Tamar; and David's son Amnon fell in love with her. ²Amnon was so tormented that he made himself ill because of his sister Tamar, for she was a virgin and it seemed impossible to Amnon to do anything to her. ³But Amnon had a friend whose name was Jonadab, the son of David's brother Shimeah; and Jonadab

12.24–25 Though explained differently in 1 Chr 22.9, the name Solomon, Hebrew shelomoh, means "his replacement," referring to the child who died in v. 18. The name Jedidiah, which is mentioned nowhere else in the Bible, may have been an official throne name used alongside the personal name Solomon.

12.26–31 The continuation and completion of the siege begun in 11.1. 12.26–27 Evidently the royal city and the water city were two designations for the same place; it may have been a royal fortress that stood on the high citadel and guarded the spring that provided the city's water supply. 12.30 Milcom was the national god of the Am-monites. His crown with its single jewel (cf. Zech 9.16) would have been worn by his cult statue, which to judge by the size of the crown (a talent of gold or about 75 pounds) was larger than the size of a man. 12.31 The work assigned to Ammonites with saws and iron picks and iron axes is probably the dismantling of the city's fortifications.

13.1–22 This story may be viewed as a prologue to the account of Absalom's rebellion in chs. 15–20. 13.1 Tamar is Absalom's full sister, the daughter of David and Maacah (see 3.3), and Amnon's half sister. 13.2 For Amnon's lovesickness, cf. Song 2.5; 5.8. Amnon knows that as a virgin and a member of the royal family Tamar would be closely guarded. 13.3 Elsewhere Shimeah is called Shimea (1 Chr 2.13; 20.7), Shimei (21.21), and Shammah (1 Sam 16.9; 17.13).

was a very crafty man. ⁴He said to him, "O son of the king, why are you so haggard morning after morning? Will you not tell me?" Amnon said to him, "I love Tamar, my brother Absalom's sister." ⁵Jonadab said to him, "Lie down on your bed, and pretend to be ill; and when your father comes to see you, say to him, 'Let my sister Tamar come and give me something to eat, and prepare the food in my sight, so that I may see it and eat it from her hand.'" ⁶So Amnon lay down, and pretended to be ill; and when the king came to see him, Amnon said to the king, "Please let my sister Tamar come and make a couple of cakes in my sight, so that I may eat from her hand."

⁷ Then David sent home to Tamar, saying, "Go to your brother Amnon's house, and prepare food for him." ⁸So Tamar went to her brother Amnon's house, where he was lying down. She took dough, kneaded it, made cakes in his sight, and baked the cakes. ⁹Then she took the pan and set them^z out before him, but he refused to eat. Amnon said, "Send out everyone from me." So everyone went out from him. ¹⁰Then Amnon said to Tamar, "Bring the food into the chamber, so that I may eat from your hand." So Tamar took the cakes she had made, and brought them into the chamber to Amnon her brother. ¹¹But when she brought them near him to eat, he took hold of her, and said to her, "Come, lie with me, my sister." ¹²She answered him, "No, my brother, do not force me; for such a thing is not done in Israel; do not do anything so vile! ¹³As for me, where could I carry my shame? And as for you, you would be as one of the scoundrels in Israel. Now therefore, I beg you, speak to the king; for he will not withhold me from you." ¹⁴But he would not listen to her; and being stronger than she, he forced her and lay with her.

¹⁵ Then Amnon was seized with a very great loathing for her; indeed, his loathing was even greater than the lust he had felt for her. Amnon said to her, "Get out!" ¹⁶But she said to him, "No, my brother;^a for this wrong in sending me away is greater than the other that you did to me." But he would not listen to her. ¹⁷He called the young man who served him and said, "Put this woman out of my presence, and bolt the door after her." ¹⁸(Now she was wearing a long robe with sleeves; for this is how the virgin daughters of the king were clothed in earlier times.^b) So his servant put her out, and bolted the door after her. ¹⁹But Tamar put ashes on her head, and tore the long robe that she was wearing; she put her hand on her head, and went away, crying aloud as she went.

²⁰ Her brother Absalom said to her, "Has Amnon your brother been with you? Be quiet for now, my sister; he is your brother; do not take this to heart." So Tamar remained, a desolate woman, in her brother Absalom's house. ²¹When King David heard of all these things, he became

13.6 The dish Tamar prepares, which is made from dough that is kneaded and boiled (v. 8), seems to be dumplings or puddings of some kind rather than cakes. 13.8 The word baked should be translated "boiled" (cf. v. 6). 13.12 The word here translated anything so vile refers to behavior that seriously violates the norms of etiquette or law; cf. 1 Sam 25.25, where the same word is translated folly; see also note on 13.13 (scoundrels). 13.13 The word translated scoundrels is the plural of Hebrew nabal (see note on 1 Sam 25.3); by flouting the norms of Israelite society Amnon will, says Tamar, become an outcast. Intercourse with a man's sister or half sister is prohibited by biblical law (Lev 18.9, 11; 20.17; Deut 27.22), so that Tamar's statement that David will not withhold me from you, unless she is lying to buy time, must mean that these laws were not in effect at the time, or that the royal family was exempt from them, or that David would be willing to act in disregard of them. 13.16 According to Deut 22.28–29 (cf. Ex 22.16) a man who rapes a virgin is required to marry her and is forbidden to send her away; Tamar is appealing to some such regulation as this when she protests this wrong in sending me away. 13.18 The exact appearance or significance of a long robe with sleeves (see also Gen 37.3) is unknown; it may have been a robe that reached the extremities (the wrists and ankles). 13.19 The ashes, the tearing of the robe, the hand on the head, and the crying are all customary gestures of grief. 13.20 Rejected by Amnon, her virginity lost, Tamar has become a desolate woman, i.e., childless and without hope of marriage (see, ironically, Isa 54.1). 13.21 David is depicted as acting too leniently out of love for his son; the same weakness will affect his dealings with Absalom at the time of his revolt (see 13.37–39; 18.5).

very angry, but he would not punish his son Amnon, because he loved him, for he was his firstborn.^c 22 But Absalom spoke to Amnon neither good nor bad; for Absalom hated Amnon, because he had raped his sister Tamar.

The Death of Amnon

23 After two full years Absalom had sheepshearers at Baal-hazor, which is near Ephraim, and Absalom invited all the king's sons. 24 Absalom came to the king, and said, "Your servant has sheepshearers; will the king and his servants please go with your servant?" 25 But the king said to Absalom, "No, my son, let us not all go, or else we will be burdensome to you." He pressed him, but he would not go but gave him his blessing. 26 Then Absalom said, "If not, please let my brother Amnon go with us." The king said to him, "Why should he go with you?" 27 But Absalom pressed him until he let Amnon and all the king's sons go with him. Absalom made a feast like a king's feast.^d 28 Then Absalom commanded his servants, "Watch when Amnon's heart is merry with wine, and when I say to you, 'Strike Amnon,' then kill him. Do not be afraid; have I not myself commanded you? Be courageous and valiant." 29 So the servants of Absalom did to Amnon as Absalom had commanded. Then all the king's sons rose, and each mounted his mule and fled.

30 While they were on the way, the report came to David that Absalom had killed all the king's sons, and not one of them was left. 31 The king rose, tore his garments, and lay on the ground; and all his servants who were standing by tore their garments. 32 But Jonadab, the son of David's brother Shimeah, said, "Let not my lord suppose that they have killed all the young men the king's sons; Amnon alone is dead. This has been determined by Absalom from the day Amnon^e raped his sister Tamar. 33 Now therefore, do not let my lord the king take it to heart, as if all the king's sons were dead; for Amnon alone is dead."

34 But Absalom fled. When the young man who kept watch looked up, he saw many people coming from the Horonaim road^f by the side of the mountain. 35 Jonadab said to the king, "See, the king's sons have come; as your servant said, so it has come about." 36 As soon as he had finished speaking, the king's sons arrived, and raised their voices and wept; and the king and all his servants also wept very bitterly.

37 But Absalom fled, and went to Talmai son of Ammihud, king of Geshur. David mourned for his son day after day. 38 Absalom, having fled to Geshur, stayed there three years. 39 And the heart of the king went out, yearning for Absalom; for he was now consoled over the death of Amnon.

Absalom Returns to Jerusalem

14 Now Joab son of Zeruiah perceived that the king's mind was on Absalom. 2 Joab sent to Tekoa and brought from there a wise woman. He

13.23-39 Absalom avenges the violence done to his sister by killing his brother. 13.23 For the festival of sheepshearers, see 1 Sam 25.7. Baal-hazor was a town in the central hills about twenty miles north of Jerusalem; about two miles to the southeast was Ephraim (see Jn 11.54), also known as Ophrah (see Josh 18.23) and Ephron (2 Chr 13.19). 13.27 As in 1 Sam 25.36, a king's feast would be expected to include a lot of drinking, which is, as the next verse shows, an important part of Absalom's plot. 13.29 It seems to have been customary for a king or prince to ride a mule rather than a donkey or a horse at this time (see 18.9; 1 Kings 1.33, 38, 44); if Israelites were forbidden to hybridize horses at this time (cf. Lev 19.19), the royal mules must have been imported. 13.32 It is Jonadab, Amnon's friend (v. 3), who reports the true state of affairs to the king. 13.34 The royal party approaches the city along the Horonaim road, which ran northwest in the direction of "the two Horons" (Hebrew horonaim), i.e., Upper and Lower Beth-horon (see Josh 16.3, 5). 13.37 Absalom finds sanctuary with Talmai son of Ammihud, his maternal grandfather (see 3.3); for Geshur, see notes on 2.9; 3.3.

14.1-24 Joab persuades David to allow Absalom to return to Jerusalem. 14.2 Tekoa, the home of the prophet Amos (Am 1.1), was a village in the Judean hills about ten miles south of Jerusalem. Joab arranges for the services of a wise woman, an expression that in this case, as in said to her, "Pretend to be a mourner; put on mourning garments, do not anoint yourself with oil, but behave like a woman who has been mourning many days for the dead. ³Go to the king and speak to him as follows." And Joab put the words into her mouth.

⁴ When the woman of Tekoa came to the king, she fell on her face to the ground and did obeisance, and said, "Help, O king!" ⁵The king asked her, "What is your trouble?" She answered, "Alas, I am a widow; my husband is dead. ⁶Your servant had two sons, and they fought with one another in the field; there was no one to part them, and one struck the other and killed him. ⁷Now the whole family has risen against your servant. They say, 'Give up the man who struck his brother, so that we may kill him for the life of his brother whom he murdered, even if we destroy the heir as well.' Thus they would quench my one remaining ember, and leave to my husband neither name nor remnant on the face of the earth."

⁸ Then the king said to the woman, "Go to your house, and I will give orders concerning you." ⁹The woman of Tekoa said to the king, "On me be the guilt, my lord the king, and on my father's house; let the king and his throne be guiltless." ¹⁰The king said, "If anyone says anything to you, bring him to me, and he shall never touch you again." ¹¹Then she said, "Please, may the king keep the LORD your God in mind, so that the avenger of blood may kill no more, and my son not be destroyed." He said, "As the LORD lives, not one hair of your son shall fall to the ground."

¹² Then the woman said, "Please let your servant speak a word to my lord the king." He said, "Speak." ¹³The woman said, "Why then have you planned such a thing against the people of God? For in giving this decision the king convicts himself, inasmuch as the king does not bring his banished one home again. ¹⁴We must all die; we are like water spilled on the ground, which cannot be gathered up. But God will not take away a life; he will devise plans so as not to keep an outcast banished forever from his presence.^{h} ¹⁵Now I have come to say this to my lord the king because the people have made me afraid; your servant thought, 'I will speak to the king; it may be that the king will perform the request of his servant. ¹⁶For the king will hear, and deliver his servant from the hand of the man who would cut both me and my son off from the heritage of God.' ¹⁷Your servant thought, 'The word of my lord the king will set me at rest'; for my lord the king is like the angel of God, discerning good and evil. The LORD your God be with you!"

¹⁸ Then the king answered the woman, "Do not withhold from me anything I ask you." The woman said, "Let my lord the king speak." ¹⁹The king said, "Is the hand of Joab with you in all this?" The woman answered and said, "As surely as you live, my lord the king, one cannot turn right or left from anything that my lord the king has said. For it was your servant Joab who commanded me; it was he who put all these words into the mouth of your servant. ²⁰In order to change the course of affairs your servant Joab did this. But my lord has wisdom like the wisdom of the angel of God to know all things that are on the earth."

20.16, refers to a woman skilled in rhetoric. 14.5–7 The normal procedures of justice would require that the woman's son, who is guilty of manslaughter, be turned over to the family so that blood vengeance could be exacted; but the king has the power to free the slayer (see v. 16), and she petitions him to do so on the grounds that she is a widow and her son is her late husband's only heir. 14.11 The woman asks David to keep the LORD your God in mind or rather to mention or utter the name of the Lord; she is asking David to swear a binding oath, and he does (As the LORD lives). The avenger of blood, the man mentioned in

v. 16, is the kinsman who has the responsibility of avenging the death of the woman's son according to the customs of family blood vengeance (see Num 35.16–28; Deut 19.4–13). 14.16 Here the heritage of God, a common way of referring to the promised land, designates the people of Israel. 14.17 By saying that David's decision will set me at rest the woman is not expressing confidence in a favorable judgment; instead, she is flattering the king by expressing the conviction that whatever he decides will be just. Her comparison of the king's wisdom to that of an angel of God is also rhetorical adulation, as in v. 20; 19.27.

young man Absalom.”²² Joab prostrated himself with his face to the ground and did obeisance, and blessed the king; and Joab said, “Today your servant knows that I have found favor in your sight, my lord the king, in that the king has granted the request of his servant.”²³ So Joab set off, went to Geshur, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem.²⁴ The king said, “Let him go to his own house; he is not to come into my presence.” So Absalom went to his own house, and did not come into the king’s presence.

David Forgives Absalom

25 Now in all Israel there was no one to be praised so much for his beauty as Absalom; from the sole of his foot to the crown of his head there was no blemish in him.²⁶ When he cut the hair of his head (for at the end of every year he used to cut it; when it was heavy on him, he cut it), he weighed the hair of his head, two hundred shekels by the king’s weight.²⁷ There were born to Absalom three sons, and one daughter whose name was Tamar; she was a beautiful woman.

28 So Absalom lived two full years in Jerusalem, without coming into the king’s presence.²⁹ Then Absalom sent for Joab to send him to the king; but Joab would not come to him. He sent a second time, but Joab would not come.³⁰ Then he said to his servants, “Look, Joab’s field is next to mine, and he has barley there; go and set it on fire.” So Absalom’s servants set the field on fire.³¹ Then Joab rose and went to Absalom at his house, and said to him, “Why have your servants set my field on fire?”³² Absalom answered Joab, “Look, I sent word to you: Come here, that I may send you to the king with the question, ‘Why have I come from Geshur? It would be better for me to be there still.’ Now let me go into the king’s presence; if there is guilt in me, let him kill me!”³³ Then Joab went to the king and told him; and he summoned Absalom. So he came to the king and prostrated himself with his face to the ground before the king; and the king kissed Absalom.

Absalom Usurps the Throne

15 After this Absalom got himself a chariot and horses, and fifty men to run ahead of him.² Absalom used to rise early and stand beside the road into the gate; and when anyone brought a suit before the king for judgment, Absalom would call out and say, “From what city are you?” When the person said, “Your servant is of such and such a tribe in Israel,”³ Absalom would say, “See, your claims are good and right; but there is no one deputed by the king to hear you.”⁴ Absalom said moreover, “If only I were judge in the land! Then all who had a suit or cause might come to me, and I would give them justice.”⁵ Whenever people came near to do obeisance to him, he would put out his hand and take hold of them, and kiss them.⁶ Thus Absalom did to every Israelite who came to the king for judgment; so Absalom stole the hearts of the people of Israel.

7 At the end of fourⁱ years Absalom said to the king, “Please let me go to Hebron and pay the vow that I have made to the LORD.⁸ For your servant made a vow

14.25–33 Through Joab’s mediation, David and Absalom are reconciled. 14.25 Absalom’s beauty partially explains how he stole the hearts of the people of Israel (15.6) and why David loved him so deeply that he was unable to discipline him. 14.26 The reference to Absalom’s hair prepares readers for the bizarre calamity that occurs later in 18.9; two hundred shekels would be about 6 pounds. 14.27 This notice that Absalom had three sons seems to be contradicted by 18.18; his one daughter is named for her aunt (13.1). 14.28–33 Although he has to set his field on fire to get his attention, Absalom persuades Joab to intervene with his father and a reconciliation of David and Absalom takes place.

15.1–12 Now that he is back at court, Absalom uses his position to ingratiate himself with the people of Israel. Eventually he claims the throne at Hebron. 15.1 Absalom’s chariot and horses, and fifty men to run ahead of him are a flamboyant way of claiming to be king, as 1 Kings 1.5 shows. 15.6 The statement that Absalom stole the hearts of the people means not so much that he won their affection as that he beguiled them; cf. Gen 31.20, where the same expression is translated “deceived.” 15.7–8 Absalom must go to Hebron, he says, because he promised to worship the LORD in Hebron, i.e., the God of Israel in his local Hebronite manifestation, so that the vow cannot be fulfilled by worshipping the Lord in Jerusalem. For while I lived at Geshur in Aram: If the LORD will indeed bring me back to Jerusalem, then I will worship the LORD in Hebron.”^j 9The king said to him, “Go in peace.” So he got up, and went to Hebron. 10But Absalom sent secret messengers throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, “As soon as you hear the sound of the trumpet, then shout: Absalom has become king at Hebron!” 11Two hundred men from Jerusalem went with Absalom; they were invited guests, and they went in their innocence, knowing nothing of the matter. 12While Absalom was offering the sacrifices, he sent for^k Ahithophel the Gilonite, David’s counselor, from his city Giloh. The conspiracy grew in strength, and the people with Absalom kept increasing.

David Flees Jerusalem

13 A messenger came to David, saying, “The hearts of the Israelites have gone after Absalom.” 14Then David said to all his officials who were with him at Jerusalem, “Get up! Let us flee, or there will be no escape for us from Absalom. Hurry, or he will soon overtake us, and bring disaster down upon us, and attack the city with the edge of the sword.” 15The king’s officials said to the king, “Your servants are ready to do whatever our lord the king decides.” 16So the king left, followed by all his household, except ten concubines whom he left behind to look after the house. 17The king left, followed by all the people; and they stopped at the last house. 18All his officials passed by him; and all the Cherethites, and all the Pelethites, and all the six hundred Gittites who had followed him from Gath, passed on before the king.

19 Then the king said to Ittai the Gittite, “Why are you also coming with us? Go back, and stay with the king; for you are a foreigner, and also an exile from your home. 20You came only yesterday, and shall I today make you wander about with us, while I go wherever I can? Go back, and take your kinsfolk with you; and may the LORD show^l steadfast love and faithfulness to you.” 21But Ittai answered the king, “As the LORD lives, and as my lord the king lives, wherever my lord the king may be, whether for death or for life, there also your servant will be.” 22David said to Ittai, “Go then, march on.” So Ittai the Gittite marched on, with all his men and all the little ones who were with him. 23The whole country wept aloud as all the people passed by; the king crossed the Wadi Kidron, and all the people moved on toward the wilderness.

24 Abiathar came up, and Zadok also, with all the Levites, carrying the ark of the covenant of God. They set down the ark of God, until the people had all passed out of the city. 25Then the king said to Zadok, “Carry the ark of God back into the city. If I find favor in the eyes of the LORD, he will bring me back and let me see both it and the place where it stays. 26But if he says, ‘I take no pleasure in you,’ here I am, let him do to me what seems good to him.” 27The king also said to the priest Zadok, “Look,^m go back to Absalom’s term in exile at Geshur in Aram, see 13.38. 15.10 Absalom chooses Hebron as the site from which to launch his rebellion; it was his birthplace (see 3.3) and the traditional capital of Judah. 15.12 Ahithophel was a Judahite; his hometown of Giloh was at an unknown location in the hill country of Judah (see Josh 15.51).

15.13–31 The news of Absalom’s successful rebellion forces David to abandon the city. 15.16 The mention of the ten concubines looks ahead to 16.21–22. 15.18 The soldiers who remain loyal to David are those in his personal retinue who have been with him since his days as a fugitive from Saul’s justice and a mercenary in the Philistine army. For the Cherethites and Pelethites, see note on 8.18; David won their loyalty and that of the six hundred Gittites when he lived in Ziklag and served the king of the Philistine city of Gath (see 1 Sam 27; 29–30). 15.19–21 Cf. the language of this passage to that of Ruth 1.8–17. Ittai, who is probably the commander of David’s Gittite forces, will command a third of David’s troops in the battle against Absalom’s army (see 18.2). 15.23 David leaves Jerusalem by crossing the Wadi Kidron, the valley separating the City of David from the Mount of Olives to the east that was regarded as the boundary of the city in the time of David (cf. 1 Kings 2.37). 15.24 For Abiathar and Zadok, David’s two chief priests, see note on 8.17; the mention of the Levites, the official priestly tribe, may be a secondary addition (cf. 1 Sam 6.15). 15.25 The Hebrew underlying the expression the place where it stays suggests a tent shrine (see 6.17; 7.6), in contrast to 12.20.

the city in peace, you and Abiathar,ⁿ with your two sons, Ahimaaz your son, and Jonathan son of Abiathar. ²⁸See, I will wait at the fords of the wilderness until word comes from you to inform me.” ²⁹So Zadok and Abiathar carried the ark of God back to Jerusalem, and they remained there.

³⁰ But David went up the ascent of the Mount of Olives, weeping as he went, with his head covered and walking barefoot; and all the people who were with him covered their heads and went up, weeping as they went. ³¹David was told that Ahithophel was among the conspirators with Absalom. And David said, “O LORD, I pray you, turn the counsel of Ahithophel into foolishness.”

The Mission of Hushai the Archite

³² When David came to the summit, where God was worshiped, Hushai the Archite came to meet him with his coat torn and earth on his head. ³³David said to him, “If you go on with me, you will be a burden to me. ³⁴But if you return to the city and say to Absalom, ‘I will be your servant, O king; as I have been your father’s servant in time past, so now I will be your servant,’ then you will defeat for me the counsel of Ahithophel. ³⁵The priests Zadok and Abiathar will be with you there. So whatever you hear from the king’s house, tell it to the priests Zadok and Abiathar. ³⁶Their two sons are with them there, Zadok’s son Ahimaaz and Abiathar’s son Jonathan; and by them you shall report to me everything you hear.”

³⁷So Hushai, David’s friend, came into the city, just as Absalom was entering Jerusalem.

Ziba’s Report

16 When David had passed a little beyond the summit, Ziba the servant of Mephibosheth^o met him, with a couple of donkeys saddled, carrying two hundred loaves of bread, one hundred bunches of raisins, one hundred of summer fruits, and one skin of wine. ²The king said to Ziba, “Why have you brought these?” Ziba answered, “The donkeys are for the king’s household to ride, the bread and summer fruit for the young men to eat, and the wine is for those to drink who faint in the wilderness.” ³The king said, “And where is your master’s son?” Ziba said to the king, “He remains in Jerusalem; for he said, ‘Today the house of Israel will give me back my grandfather’s kingdom.’” ⁴Then the king said to Ziba, “All that belonged to Mephibosheth^o is now yours.” Ziba said, “I do obeisance; let me find favor in your sight, my lord the king.”

Shimei Curses David

15.28 David’s plan is to camp at the fords of the wilderness, i.e., on the west bank of the Jordan, until he receives information from Zadok (see 15.27–29; 17.16). 15.31 David’s wish for a way to subvert the counsel of Ahithophel (see v. 12) will be fulfilled in 17.5–14 through the efforts of the man David will meet at the top of the mountain.

15.32–37 David meets Hushai and asks him to counteract Ahithophel’s counsel at Absalom’s court. 15.32 We know of no place where God was worshiped atop the Mount of Olives except the so-called Mount of Destruction (see 2 Kings 23.13), which was probably farther south than the place where David meets Hushai. Hushai may be the same man who is identified in 1 Kings 4.16 as the father of Baana, one of Solomon’s twelve supply officers; but Baana has responsibility for Asher, whereas the Archite clan was Benjaminite and inhabited the region southwest of Bethel (Josh 16.2). 15.37 David’s friend. In a list of civic officials in 1 Chr 27.33 Hushai is called “the king’s friend,” and in all probability this description is an official title; the title, which had parallels in Egyptian administrative language, probably meant something like “privy counselor.”

16.1–4 David receives the support of Ziba, Mephibosheth’s steward. 16.1 Ziba was introduced in 9.2 and Mephibosheth in 4.4. 16.3 When he and David meet after the revolt has been quelled, Mephibosheth will deny Ziba’s accusation and accuse him of slander (see 19.24–30).

16.5–14 David endures Shimei’s curses with penitential submission to the Lord. 16.5 For the village of Bahurim, see note on 3.16. The family of the house of Saul was Matri (see 1 Sam 10.21).

⁷Shimei shouted while he cursed, “Out! Out! Murderer! Scoundrel!” ⁸The LORD has avenged on all of you the blood of the house of Saul, in whose place you have reigned; and the LORD has given the kingdom into the hand of your son Absalom. See, disaster has overtaken you; for you are a man of blood.”

⁹ Then Abishai son of Zeruiah said to the king, “Why should this dead dog curse my lord the king? Let me go over and take off his head.” ¹⁰But the king said, “What have I to do with you, you sons of Zeruiah? If he is cursing because the LORD has said to him, ‘Curse David,’ who then shall say, ‘Why have you done so?’” ¹¹David said to Abishai and to all his servants, “My own son seeks my life; how much more now may this Benjaminite! Let him alone, and let him curse; for the LORD has bidden him. ¹²It may be that the LORD will look on my distress,^p and the LORD will repay me with good for this cursing of me today.” ¹³So David and his men went on the road, while Shimei went along on the hillside opposite him and cursed as he went, throwing stones and flinging dust at him. ¹⁴The king and all the people who were with him arrived weary at the Jordan;^q and there he refreshed himself.

The Counsel of Ahithophel

David’s friend, came to Absalom, Hushai said to Absalom, “Long live the king! Long live the king!” ¹⁷Absalom said to Hushai, “Is this your loyalty to your friend? Why did you not go with your friend?” ¹⁸Hushai said to Absalom, “No; but the one whom the LORD and this people and all the Israelites have chosen, his I will be, and with him I will remain. ¹⁹Moreover, whom should I serve? Should it not be his son? Just as I have served your father, so I will serve you.”

²⁰ Then Absalom said to Ahithophel, “Give us your counsel; what shall we do?” ²¹Ahithophel said to Absalom, “Go in to your father’s concubines, the ones he has left to look after the house; and all Israel will hear that you have made yourself odious to your father, and the hands of all who are with you will be strengthened.” ²²So they pitched a tent for Absalom upon the roof; and Absalom went in to his father’s concubines in the sight of all Israel. ²³Now in those days the counsel that Ahithophel gave was as if one consulted the oracle^s of God; so all the counsel of Ahithophel was esteemed, both by David and by Absalom.

17 Moreover Ahithophel said to Absalom, “Let me choose twelve thousand men, and I will set out and pursue David tonight. ²¹I will come upon him while he is weary and discouraged, and throw him into a panic; and all the people

16.7–8 Shimei’s words show that he holds David responsible for the blood of the house of Saul, i.e., for the death of many of his kin; these included at least the seven sons and grandsons of Saul whom David executed at Gibeon (see ch. 21), but probably also Abner (see ch. 3) and Ishbaal (see ch. 4), and maybe Saul and Jonathan, too (see 1 Sam 31; 2 Sam 2). 16.9 It is characteristic of Abishai (see 2.18) to think of a quick and violent solution to one of David’s problems; cf. 1 Sam 26.8. On the expression dead dog, see 9.8; 1 Sam 24.14. 16.10–12 David’s attitude toward Abishai and the other ruthless sons of Zeruiah is expressed more fully in 3.29. Here as elsewhere, David is depicted as restrained and lenient in dealing with the kin and partisans of Saul—a depiction that protects him against charges like those made by Shimei in vv. 7–8; but according to 1 Kings 2.8–9, where the narrator’s concern is to defend Solomon’s actions rather than David’s, it was David’s death-bed wish that Shimei be executed for this “terrible curse.”

16.15–17.4 Meanwhile back in Jerusalem, Hushai undermines the counsel of Ahithophel. 16.16–19 Hushai’s dissembling pledge of allegiance to Absalom is filled with irony and double entendre; for example, his acclamation Long live the king! is sincere, but he is not thinking of Absalom. For the title David’s friend, see note on 15.37. 16.21–22 Absalom’s public arrogation of his father’s concubines, anticipated in Nathan’s warning (see 12.11), constitutes a claim to the throne (see 3.7; 12.8). 17.1–3 Although Hushai will mislead Absalom into believing otherwise, Ahithophel’s plan is sound; the best chance of defeating David is to attack while he is weary and discouraged, but if he is given time he will be able to draw on his extensive experience as a guerrilla warrior and organize a formidable resistance.

who are with him will flee. I will strike down only the king, ³and I will bring all the people back to you as a bride comes home to her husband. You seek the life of only one man,^t and all the people will be at peace.” ⁴The advice pleased Absalom and all the elders of Israel.

The Counsel of Hushai

5 Then Absalom said, “Call Hushai the Archite also, and let us hear too what he has to say.” ⁶When Hushai came to Absalom, Absalom said to him, “This is what Ahithophel has said; shall we do as he advises? If not, you tell us.” ⁷Then Hushai said to Absalom, “This time the counsel that Ahithophel has given is not good.” ⁸Hushai continued, “You know that your father and his men are warriors, and that they are enraged, like a bear robbed of her cubs in the field. Besides, your father is expert in war; he will not spend the night with the troops. ⁹Even now he has hidden himself in one of the pits, or in some other place. And when some of our troops^u fall at the first attack, whoever hears it will say, ‘There has been a slaughter among the troops who follow Absalom.’ ¹⁰Then even the valiant warrior, whose heart is like the heart of a lion, will utterly melt with fear; for all Israel knows that your father is a warrior, and that those who are with him are valiant warriors. ¹¹But my counsel is that all Israel be gathered to you, from Dan to Beer-sheba, like the sand by the sea for multitude, and that you go to battle in person. ¹²So we shall come upon him in whatever place he may be found, and we shall light on him as the dew falls on the ground; and he will not survive, nor will any of those with him. ¹³If he withdraws into a city, then all Israel will bring ropes to that city, and we shall drag it into the valley, until not even a pebble is to be found there.” ¹⁴Absalom and all the men of Israel said, “The counsel of Hushai the Archite is better than the counsel of Ahithophel.” For the LORD had ordained to defeat the good counsel of Ahithophel, so that the LORD might bring ruin on Absalom.

Hushai Warns David to Escape

15 Then Hushai said to the priests Zadok and Abiathar, “Thus and so did Ahithophel counsel Absalom and the elders of Israel; and thus and so I have counseled. ¹⁶Therefore send quickly and tell David, ‘Do not lodge tonight at the fords of the wilderness, but by all means cross over; otherwise the king and all the people who are with him will be swallowed up.’” ¹⁷Jonathan and Ahimaaz were waiting at En-rogel; a servant-girl used to go and tell them, and they would go and tell King David; for they could not risk being seen entering the city. ¹⁸But a boy saw them, and told Absalom; so both of them went away quickly, and came to the house of a man at Bahurim, who had a well in his courtyard; and they went down into it. ¹⁹The man’s wife took a covering, stretched it over the well’s mouth, and spread out grain on it; and nothing was known of it. ²⁰When Absalom’s servants came to the woman at the house, they said, “Where are Ahimaaz and Jonathan?” The woman said to them, “They have crossed over the brook^v of water.” And when they had searched and could not find them, they returned to Jerusalem.

21 After they had gone, the men came up out of the well, and went and told King

17.5–14 Using specious arguments Hushai persuades Absalom and his supporters to reject the plan of Ahithophel. 17.11 The key to Hushai’s strategy is to buy time for David; the size of Absalom’s army will not matter if David is able to deploy his expert warriors in rugged terrain. For the expression from Dan to Beer-sheba, see note on 3.9–10. 17.14 It was the narrator’s conviction that the shaping force in these events was the Lord’s determination to bring ruin on Absalom.

17.15–29 Absalom prefers Hushai’s counsel over that of Ahithophel, thus allowing David to escape and regroup. 17.15 David left Zadok and Abiathar behind in Jerusalem for the specific purpose of sending messages like this one (see 15.27–29). 17.16 For the fords of the wilderness, see 15.28. 17.17 Jonathan and Ahimaaz, the sons of Zadok and Abiathar (see 15.27), carry the actual messages. En-rogel is the spring in the Wadi Kidron (see note on 15.23) southwest of the City of David. 17.18 For Bahurim see note on 3.16; 16.5. 17.20 The obscure expression translated the brook of water may suggest that the woman is saying that Ahimaaz and Jonathan have crossed

David. They said to David, "Go and cross the water quickly; for thus and so has Ahithophel counseled against you." ²²So David and all the people who were with him set out and crossed the Jordan; by daybreak not one was left who had not crossed the Jordan.

²⁷ When David came to Mahanaim, Shobi son of Nahash from Rabbah of the Ammonites, and Machir son of Ammiel from Lo-debar, and Barzillai the Gileadite from Rogelim, ²⁸brought beds, basins, and earthen vessels, wheat, barley, meal, parched grain, beans and lentils,^x ²⁹honey and curds, sheep, and cheese from the herd, for David and the people with him to eat; for they said, "The troops are hungry and weary and thirsty in the wilderness."

The Defeat of Absalom's Army

18 Then David mustered the men who were with him, and set over them commanders of thousands and commanders of hundreds. ²And David divided the army into three groups:^y one third under the command of Joab, one third under the command of Abishai son of Zeruiah, Joab's brother, and one third under the command of Ittai the Gittite. The king said to the men, "I myself will also go out with you." ³But the men said, "You shall not go out. For if we flee, they will not care about us. If half of us die, they will not care about us. But you are worth ten thousand of us;^z therefore it is better that you send us help from the city." ⁴The king said to them, "Whatever seems best to you I will do." So the king stood at the side of the gate, while all the army marched out by hundreds and by thousands. ⁵The king ordered Joab and Abishai and Ittai, saying, "Deal gently for my sake with the young man Absalom." And all the people heard when the king gave orders to all the commanders concerning Absalom.

⁶ So the army went out into the field against Israel; and the battle was fought in the forest of Ephraim. ⁷The men of Israel were defeated there by the servants

the Jordan. 17.23 Ahithophel's own city was Giloh (see 15.12); this report of his death may have had a shaping effect on Matthew's account of the suicide of Judas, who also hanged himself (see Mt 27.5). 17.24 Mahanaim, once the capital of his enemy, Ishbaal (see 2.8), is now a place of refuge for David. 17.25 Amasa was a kinsman of David by marriage and therefore a Judahite; after the revolt David will attempt to placate Absalom's Judahite supporters by putting Amasa in charge of the army (see 19.13). The information about Amasa's parentage is textually uncertain; evidently he was the child of an Ishmaelite, i.e., a nomad, and a niece of David's sister Zeruiah (see 1 Sam 26.6). 17.26 For the land of Gilead, which here simply refers to the east bank of the Jordan, see 2.9. 17.27 Shobi son of Nahash, the Ammonite king introduced in 1 Sam 10.27, is mentioned nowhere else; it is possible that the help he gives David here is the act of loyalty David refers to at the time of Nahash's death, which may have occurred after Absalom's revolt (see note on 10.2). For Machir and his hometown of Lo-debar, see note on 9.4. In return for his help here, Barzillai will receive an invitation to live at court in Jerusalem (see 19.33); although he will decline, his sons will become houseguests of Solomon (see 1 Kings 2.7). The location of Rogelim is unknown.

18.1–18 In the ensuing battle, troops loyal to David defeat the followers of Absalom, who is killed by Joab. 18.2 For Abishai, see 2.18. For Ittai the Gittite, see 15.19–21. 18.3 David receives similar advice in 21.17. 18.5 This narrative seems to be addressed to citizens of Israel and especially Judah who were outraged by the battle-field execution of Absalom; in order to shield David from blame, the author gives special stress not only to his absence from the battle (vv. 3–5) but also to his insistence on the lenient treatment of Absalom. 18.6 The forest of Ephraim seems to have been a wooded region in Transjordan; it may have been settled by Ephraimites moving east of David, and the slaughter there was great on that day, twenty thousand men. ⁸The battle spread over the face of all the country; and the forest claimed more victims that day than the sword.

⁹ Absalom happened to meet the servants of David. Absalom was riding on his mule, and the mule went under the thick branches of a great oak. His head caught fast in the oak, and he was left hanging^a between heaven and earth, while the mule that was under him went on. ¹⁰A man saw it, and told Joab, "I saw Absalom hanging in an oak." ¹¹Joab said to the man who told him, "What, you saw him! Why then did you not strike him there to the ground? I would have been glad to give you ten pieces of silver and a belt." ¹²But the man said to Joab, "Even if I felt in my hand the weight of a thousand pieces of silver, I would not raise my hand against the king's son; for in our hearing the king commanded you and Abishai and Ittai, saying: For my sake protect the young man Absalom! ¹³On the other hand, if I had dealt treacherously against his life^b (and there is nothing hidden from the king), then you yourself would have stood aloof." ¹⁴Joab said, "I will not waste time like this with you." He took three spears in his hand, and thrust them into the heart of Absalom, while he was still alive in the oak. ¹⁵And ten young men, Joab's armor-bearers, surrounded Absalom and struck him, and killed him.

Israel, for Joab restrained the troops. ¹⁷They took Absalom, threw him into a great pit in the forest, and raised over him a very great heap of stones. Meanwhile all the Israelites fled to their homes. ¹⁸Now Absalom in his lifetime had taken and set up for himself a pillar that is in the King's Valley, for he said, "I have no son to keep my name in remembrance"; he called the pillar by his own name. It is called Absalom's Monument to this day.

David Hears of Absalom's Death

¹⁹ Then Ahimaaz son of Zadok said, "Let me run, and carry tidings to the king that the LORD has delivered him from the power of his enemies." ²⁰Joab said to him, "You are not to carry tidings today; you may carry tidings another day, but today you shall not do so, because the king's son is dead." ²¹Then Joab said to a Cushite, "Go, tell the king what you have seen." The Cushite bowed before Joab, and ran. ²²Then Ahimaaz son of Zadok said again to Joab, "Come what may, let me also run after the Cushite." And Joab said, "Why will you run, my son, seeing that you have no reward^c for the tidings?" ²³"Come what may," he said, "I will run." So he said to him, "Run." Then Ahimaaz ran by the way of the Plain, and outran the Cushite.

²⁴ Now David was sitting between the two gates. The sentinel went up to the roof of the gate by the wall, and when he

from their home in the central hills. 18.8 A battle in which the forest claimed more victims . . . than the sword would be greatly to the advantage of David's army, which in contrast to Absalom's conscript militia was a professional fighting force with extensive experience of guerrilla warfare; this situation shows the cleverness of Hushai's disingenuous advice to Absalom (see 17.5–14). 18.9 The mule was the customary mount of royalty (see 13.29). The traditional interpretation of Absalom's accident, which is maintained by many modern scholars, is that he is caught in the tree by his remarkable hair (see 14.26), the cause of his pride now becoming the cause of his ruin. 18.18 This verse was added by an editor to identify a monument known in his time (to this day). Elsewhere (Gen 14.17) the King's Valley is called "the Valley of Shaveh," and it may have been the name of a broad section of the Wadi Kidron (see note on 15.23) or the place of its confluence with the Valley of Hinnom. Absalom's assertion that he has no son conflicts with 14.27. The reference to Absalom's Monument here has led to the designation of a spectacular tomb from the Hellenistic or Roman period in the Wadi Kidron as "Absalom's Tomb."

18.19–32 Two messengers inform David of the outcome of the battle. 18.19 Ahimaaz son of Zadok (see 15.27; 17.17) is unaware of the death of Absalom (see v. 29). 18.20–21 Joab knows that if he tells Ahimaaz, who has always been loyal to David's wishes, that Absalom has been slain despite David's request to the contrary (see 18.5), Ahimaaz will make an unfavorable report to the king. So Joab declines Ahimaaz's offer to report the news to David and gives the assignment to a Cushite, probably an Ethiopian or Nubian. 18.23 The way of the Plain is the lower Jordan Valley—the rougher but the shorter route to Jerusalem.

looked up, he saw a man running alone. ²⁵The sentinel shouted and told the king. The king said, "If he is alone, there are tidings in his mouth." He kept coming, and drew near. ²⁶Then the sentinel saw another man running; and the sentinel called to the gatekeeper and said, "See, another man running alone!" The king said, "He also is bringing tidings." ²⁷The sentinel said, "I think the running of the first one is like the running of Ahimaaz son of Zadok." The king said, "He is a good man, and comes with good tidings."

²⁸ Then Ahimaaz cried out to the king, "All is well!" He prostrated himself before the king with his face to the ground, and said, "Blessed be the LORD your God, who has delivered up the men who raised their hand against my lord the king." ²⁹The king said, "Is it well with the young man Absalom?" Ahimaaz answered, "When Joab sent your servant,^d I saw a great tumult, but I do not know what it was." ³⁰The king said, "Turn aside, and stand here." So he turned aside, and stood still.

³¹ Then the Cushite came; and the Cushite said, "Good tidings for my lord the king! For the LORD has vindicated you this day, delivering you from the power of all who rose up against you." ³²The king said to the Cushite, "Is it well with the young man Absalom?" The Cushite answered, "May the enemies of my lord the king, and all who rise up to do you harm, be like that young man."

David Mourns for Absalom

^{33e} The king was deeply moved, and went up to the chamber over the gate, and wept; and as he went, he said, "O my son Absalom, my son, my son Absalom! Would I had died instead of you, O Absalom, my son, my son!"

19 It was told Joab, "The king is weeping and mourning for Absalom." ²So the victory that day was turned into mourning for all the troops; for the troops heard that day, "The king is grieving for his son." ³The troops stole into the city that day as soldiers steal in who are ashamed when they flee in battle. ⁴The king covered his face, and the king cried with a loud voice, "O my son Absalom, O Absalom, my son, my son!" ⁵Then Joab came into the house to the king, and said, "Today you have covered with shame the faces of all your officers who have saved your life today, and the lives of your sons and your daughters, and the lives of your wives and your concubines, ⁶for love of those who hate you and for hatred of those who love you. You have made it clear today that commanders and officers are nothing to you; for I perceive that if Absalom were alive and all of us were dead today, then you would be pleased. ⁷So go out at once and speak kindly to your servants; for I swear by the LORD, if you do not go, not a man will stay with you this night; and this will be worse for you than any disaster that has come upon you from your youth until now." ⁸Then the king got up and took his seat in the gate. The troops were all told, "See, the king is sitting in the gate"; and all the troops came before the king.

David Returns to Jerusalem

Meanwhile, all the Israelites had fled to their homes. ⁹All the people were disputing throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, "The king delivered us from the hand of our enemies, and saved us from the hand of the Philistines; and now he has fled out of the land because of Absalom. ¹⁰But Absalom, whom we anointed over us, is dead in battle. Now therefore why do you say nothing about bringing the king back?"

¹¹ King David sent this message to the priests Zadok and Abiathar, "Say to the elders of Judah, 'Why should you be the last to bring the king back to his house? The talk of all Israel has come to the king.'^f ¹²You are my kin, you are my bone and my flesh; why then should you be the last to bring back the king?" ¹³And

18.33-19.8a Joab chides David for his excessive grief over Absalom. 19.6 The terms love and hatred refer to political loyalty. 19.8 David, by sitting in the gate, is assuming the traditional role of judge in Israel (cf. 1 Sam 4.12-18), thus symbolically reclaiming his sovereignty.

19.8b-15 David and the people of Judah are reconciled. 19.12 For the expression my bone and my flesh, see note on 5.1; David's point is that the people of Judah, his kin, should be the first to restore his rule. 19.13 To conciliate the people of Judah, who must have represented Absalom's say to Amasa, 'Are you not my bone and my flesh? So may God do to me, and more, if you are not the commander of my army from now on, in place of Joab.'"¹⁴ Amasa^g swayed the hearts of all the people of Judah as one, and they sent word to the king, "Return, both you and all your servants."¹⁵ So the king came back to the Jordan; and Judah came to Gilgal to meet the king and to bring him over the Jordan.

David Pardons Shimei

16 Shimei son of Gera, the Benjaminite, from Bahurim, hurried to come down with the people of Judah to meet King David; ¹⁷with him were a thousand people from Benjamin. And Ziba, the servant of the house of Saul, with his fifteen sons and his twenty servants, rushed down to the Jordan ahead of the king, ¹⁸while the crossing was taking place,^h to bring over the king's household, and to do his pleasure.

Shimei son of Gera fell down before the king, as he was about to cross the Jordan, ¹⁹and said to the king, "May my lord not hold me guilty or remember how your servant did wrong on the day my lord the king left Jerusalem; may the king not bear it in mind. ²⁰For your servant knows that I have sinned; therefore, see, I have come this day, the first of all the house of Joseph to come down to meet my lord the king."²¹ Abishai son of Zeruiah answered, "Shall not Shimei be put to death for this, because he cursed the LORD's anointed?" ²²But David said, "What have I to do with you, you sons of Zeruiah, that you should today become an adversary to me? Shall anyone be put to death in Israel this day? For do I not know that I am this day king over Israel?" ²³The king said to Shimei, "You shall not die." And the king gave him his oath.

David Meets with Mephibosheth

24 Mephiboshethⁱ grandson of Saul came down to meet the king; he had not taken care of his feet, or trimmed his beard, or washed his clothes, from the day the king left until the day he came back in safety. ²⁵When he came from Jerusalem to meet the king, the king said to him, "Why did you not go with me, Mephibosheth?"ⁱ ²⁶He answered, "My lord, O king, my servant deceived me; for your servant said to him, 'Saddle a donkey for me,^j so that I may ride on it and go with the king.' For your servant is lame. ²⁷He has slandered your servant to my lord the king. But my lord the king is like the angel of God; do therefore what seems good to you. ²⁸For all my father's house were doomed to death before my lord the king; but you set your servant among those who eat at your table. What further right have I, then, to appeal to the king?" ²⁹The king said to him, "Why speak any more of your affairs? I have decided: you and Ziba shall divide the land." ³⁰Mephiboshethⁱ said to the king, "Let him take it all, since my lord the king has arrived home safely."

chief support, David appoints his kinsman Amasa (see 17.25) as commander of the army in place of Joab, who executed Absalom. 19.15 The ancient shrine of Gilgal had special associations with kingship; see note on 1 Sam 10.8.

19.16–23 Shimei asks for David's forgiveness. 19.16 The account of David's hostile encounter with Shimei is found in 16.5–14. 19.17 For Ziba, the servant of Mephibosheth, see 9.2; 16.1–4. 19.20 Knowing that his life is in jeopardy, Shimei pleads that he is the first of all the house of Joseph, i.e., the first non-Judahite, to welcome the king on his return. 19.21 True to his character (see 2.18; 1 Sam 26.8) and consistent with his role in the earlier Shimei incident (see 16.9), Abishai proposes a violent reaction to Shimei's reappearance; he believes that Shimei has committed a capital crime because he cursed the LORD's anointed, who is sacrosanct (see 1 Sam 24.6–7). 19.23 David grants Shimei a royal pardon now, but at the end of his own life he will consign the Benjaminite to death (see 1 Kings 2.8–9, 36–46).

19.24–30 The background to this section is the dispute between Mephibosheth and Ziba, described in 9.1–13; 16.1–4. 19.24 The statement that Mephibosheth had not taken care of his feet is obscure; it may relate to his crippled condition (see 9.13). 19.27 For the comparison of the king's wisdom to that of the angel of God, see 14.17. 19.28 By my father's house, Mephibosheth means the house of Saul. David's Kindness to Barzillai

31 Now Barzillai the Gileadite had come down from Rogelim; he went on with the king to the Jordan, to escort him over the Jordan. ³²Barzillai was a very aged man, eighty years old. He had provided the king with food while he stayed at Mahanaim, for he was a very wealthy man. ³³The king said to Barzillai, "Come over with me, and I will provide for you in Jerusalem at my side." ³⁴But Barzillai said to the king, "How many years have I still to live, that I should go up with the king to Jerusalem?" ³⁵Today I am eighty years old; can I discern what is pleasant and what is not? Can your servant taste what he eats or what he drinks? Can I still listen to the voice of singing men and singing women? Why then should your servant be an added burden to my lord the king? ³⁶Your servant will go a little way over the Jordan with the king. Why should the king recompense me with such a reward? ³⁷Please let your servant return, so that I may die in my own town, near the graves of my father and my mother. But here is your servant Chimham; let him go over with my lord the king; and do for him whatever seems good to you." ³⁸The king answered, "Chimham shall go over with me, and I will do for him whatever seems good to you; and all that you desire of me I will do for you." ³⁹Then all the people crossed over the Jordan, and the king crossed over; the king kissed Barzillai and blessed him, and he returned to his own home. ⁴⁰The king went on to Gilgal, and Chimham went on with him; all the people of Judah, and also half the people of Israel, brought the king on his way.

41 Then all the people of Israel came to the king, and said to him, "Why have our kindred the people of Judah stolen you away, and brought the king and his household over the Jordan, and all David's men with him?" ⁴²All the people of Judah answered the people of Israel, "Because the king is near of kin to us. Why then are you angry over this matter? Have we eaten at all at the king's expense? Or has he given us any gift?" ⁴³But the people of Israel answered the people of Judah, "We have ten shares in the king, and in David also we have more than you. Why then did you despise us? Were we not the first to speak of bringing back our king?" But the words of the people of Judah were fiercer than the words of the people of Israel.

The Rebellion of Sheba

20 Now a scoundrel named Sheba son of Bichri, a Benjaminite, happened to be there. He sounded the trumpet and cried out,

"We have no portion in David,
no share in the son of Jesse!

Everyone to your tents, O Israel!"

²So all the people of Israel withdrew from David and followed Sheba son of Bichri; but the people of Judah followed their king steadfastly from the Jordan to Jerusalem.

3 David came to his house at Jerusalem; and the king took the ten concubines whom he had left to look after the house, and put them in a house under guard, and provided for them, but did not go in to them. So they were shut up until the day of their death, living as if in widowhood.

4 Then the king said to Amasa, "Call the men of Judah together to me within three days, and be here yourself." ⁵So Amasa went to summon Judah; but he delayed beyond the set time that had been appointed him. ⁶David said to Abishai, "Now Sheba son of Bichri will do us more harm than Absalom; take your lord's servants and pursue him, or he will find fortified cities for himself, and escape from

19.31–43 Barzillai was one of those who befriended David when he arrived in Mahanaim after his flight from Jerusalem (see 17.27–29). 19.35 Barzillai declines David's invitation on the grounds that he is too old to be able to enjoy life at court. 19.37 Many scholars think that Chimham was one of the sons of Barzillai commended by David on his deathbed in 1 Kings 2.6. 19.41–43 In these verses the people refers to the tribal militia of Judah or Israel; the issue is sectional hostility between the Judahites, to whom David is near of kin, and the Israelites, who claim ten shares in the king because of the ten northern tribes.

20.1–22 The slogan of this revolt contains an anticipation of the revolt that ends the union of Judah and Israel after the death of Solomon (see 1 Kings 12.16). 20.3 David arrests the ten concubines claimed by Absalom during his revolt us." 7Joab's men went out after him, along with the Cherethites, the Pelethites, and all the warriors; they went out from Jerusalem to pursue Sheba son of Bichri. 8When they were at the large stone that is in Gibeon, Amasa came to meet them. Now Joab was wearing a soldier's garment and over it was a belt with a sword in its sheath fastened at his waist; as he went forward it fell out. 9Joab said to Amasa, "Is it well with you, my brother?" And Joab took Amasa by the beard with his right hand to kiss him. 10But Amasa did not notice the sword in Joab's hand; Joab struck him in the belly so that his entrails poured out on the ground, and he died. He did not strike a second blow.

Then Joab and his brother Abishai pursued Sheba son of Bichri. 11And one of Joab's men took his stand by Amasa, and said, "Whoever favors Joab, and whoever is for David, let him follow Joab." 12Amasa lay wallowing in his blood on the highway, and the man saw that all the people were stopping. Since he saw that all who came by him were stopping, he carried Amasa from the highway into a field, and threw a garment over him. 13Once he was removed from the highway, all the people went on after Joab to pursue Sheba son of Bichri.

14 Sheba^k passed through all the tribes of Israel to Abel of Beth-maacah;^l and all the Bichrites^m assembled, and followed him inside. 15Joab's forcesⁿ came and besieged him in Abel of Beth-maacah; they threw up a siege ramp against the city, and it stood against the rampart. Joab's forces were battering the wall to break it down. 16Then a wise woman called from the city, "Listen! Listen! Tell Joab, 'Come here, I want to speak to you.'" 17He came near her; and the woman said, "Are you Joab?" He answered, "I am." Then she said to him, "Listen to the words of your servant." He answered, "I am listening." 18Then she said, "They used to say in the old days, 'Let them inquire at Abel'; and so they would settle a matter. 19I am one of those who are peaceable and faithful in Israel; you seek to destroy a city that is a mother in Israel; why will you swallow up the heritage of the LORD?" 20Joab answered, "Far be it from me, far be it, that I should swallow up or destroy! 21That is not the case! But a man of the hill country of Ephraim, called Sheba son of Bichri, has lifted up his hand against King David; give him up alone, and I will withdraw from the city." The woman said to Joab, "His head shall be thrown over the wall to you." 22Then the woman went to all the people with her wise plan. And they cut off the head of Sheba son of Bichri, and threw it out to Joab. So he blew the trumpet, and they dispersed from the city, and all went to their homes, while Joab returned to Jerusalem to the king.

The Bichrites were members of the same clan as Sheba son of Bichri. 20.16 The people of Abel choose a wise woman to negotiate for them; her skills are the same as those of the wise woman of Tekoa employed by Joab (see 14.2). 20.18 Citing an old adage, Let them inquire at Abel, the woman tells Joab that he has come to a town known for its wisdom and good judgment. 20.19 With a bit of rhetorical exaggeration, the woman describes Abel as a mother in Israel, i.e., a principal city or metropolis.

20.23-26 Another list of David's officers appears in 8.15-18. 20.24 Adoram should be listed as Adoniram; he continued in office under Solomon (see 1 Kings 4.6; 5.14) and Rehoboam (1 Kings 12.18; cf. 2 Chr 10.18, "Hadoram"). He was in charge of the forced labor, i.e., the impressment of Israelites into work on state projects, a practice that seems to have generated strong opposition during Solomon's reign (see 1 Kings 9.21; 2 Chr 8.8). 20.26 Ira the Jairite was a native of Havvoth-jair in Gilead (see, e.g., Num 32.41; Deut 3.14); in contrast to later periods it seems to

David Avenges the Gibeonites

21 Now there was a famine in the days of David for three years, year after year; and David inquired of the LORD. The LORD said, "There is blood-guilt on Saul and on his house, because he put the Gibeonites to death."² So the king called the Gibeonites and spoke to them. (Now the Gibeonites were not of the people of Israel, but of the remnant of the Amorites; although the people of Israel had sworn to spare them, Saul had tried to wipe them out in his zeal for the people of Israel and Judah.)³ David said to the Gibeonites, "What shall I do for you? How shall I make expiation, that you may bless the heritage of the LORD?"⁴ The Gibeonites said to him, "It is not a matter of silver or gold between us and Saul or his house; neither is it for us to put anyone to death in Israel." He said, "What do you say that I should do for you?"⁵ They said to the king, "The man who consumed us and planned to destroy us, so that we should have no place in all the territory of Israel—⁶ let seven of his sons be handed over to us, and we will impale them before the LORD at Gibeon on the mountain of the LORD."⁷ The king said, "I will hand them over."

⁷ But the king spared Mephibosheth,⁹ the son of Saul's son Jonathan, because of the oath of the LORD that was between them, between David and Jonathan son of Saul.⁸ The king took the two sons of Rizpah daughter of Aiah, whom she bore to Saul, Armoni and Mephibosheth;⁹ and the five sons of Merab daughter of Saul, whom she bore to Adriel son of Barzillai the Meholahite;⁹ he gave them into the hands of the Gibeonites, and they impaled them on the mountain before the LORD. The seven of them perished together. They were put to death in the first days of harvest, at the beginning of barley harvest.

¹⁰ Then Rizpah the daughter of Aiah took sackcloth, and spread it on a rock for herself, from the beginning of harvest until rain fell on them from the heavens; she did not allow the birds of the air to come on the bodies^s by day, or the wild animals by night.¹¹ When David was told what Rizpah daughter of Aiah, the concubine of Saul, had done,¹² David went and took the bones of Saul and the bones of his son Jonathan from the people of Jabesh-gilead, who had stolen them from the public square of Beth-shan, where the Philistines had hung them up, on the day the Philistines killed Saul on Gilboa.¹³ He brought up from there the bones of Saul and the bones of his son Jonathan; and they gathered the bones of those who had been impaled.¹⁴ They buried the bones of Saul and of his son Jonathan in the land of Benjamin in Zela, in the tomb of his father Kish; they did all that the king commanded. After that, God heeded supplications for the land.

21.1-14 David puts seven sons and grandsons of Saul to death to avert a famine caused by bloodguilt resulting from Saul's slaughter of the Gibeonites. 21.1 There is no account in the Bible of the crime against the Gibeonites for which Saul incurred bloodguilt, but there may have been a connection to his slaughter of the priesthood of Nob (see 1 Sam 22.6-23). 21.2 The story of Israel's unusual alliance with the Gibeonites is told in Josh 9. 21.6 The meaning of the term of execution translated impale here is unknown; it was probably some form of crucifixion. 21.7 For the oath of the LORD between David and Jonathan, see 1 Sam 20.12-17. 21.8 Rizpah was the concubine of Saul over whom Abner and Ishbaal quarreled in 3.7-11. For Merab, see 1 Sam 18.17-19; Barzilai, the father of Adriel (see 1 Sam 18.19), may be the same man who appears in 17.27: 19.31-40.

21.9 The textual witnesses suggest that instead of in the first days of harvest, the reading should be "in the days of Ziv," the old Canaanite month name also mentioned in 1 Kings 6.1, 37. 21.12 For the care of the people of Jabesh for the bones of Saul and the bones of his son Jonathan, see 1 Sam 31.12-13. 21.14 The meaning of the expression in Zela, in the tomb of his father Kish is probably "in a chamber in the tomb of his father Kish": for Kish, see 1 Sam 9.1.

Exploits of David's Warriors

15 The Philistines went to war again with Israel, and David went down together with his servants. They fought against the Philistines, and David grew weary. 16 Ishbi-benob, one of the descendants of the giants, whose spear weighed three hundred shekels of bronze, and who was fitted out with new weapons,^t said he would kill David. 17 But Abishai son of Zeruiah came to his aid, and attacked the Philistine and killed him. Then David's men swore to him, "You shall not go out with us to battle any longer, so that you do not quench the lamp of Israel."

18 After this a battle took place with the Philistines, at Gob; then Sibbecai the Hushathite killed Saph, who was one of the descendants of the giants. 19 Then there was another battle with the Philistines at Gob; and Elhanan son of Jaare-oregim, the Bethlehemite, killed Goliath the Gittite, the shaft of whose spear was like a weaver's beam. 20 There was again war at Gath, where there was a man of great size, who had six fingers on each hand, and six toes on each foot, twenty-four in number; he too was descended from the giants. 21 When he taunted Israel, Jonathan son of David's brother Shimei, killed him. 22 These four were descended from the giants in Gath; they fell by the hands of David and his servants.

David's Song of Thanksgiving

22 David spoke to the LORD the words of this song on the day when the LORD delivered him from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul. 2 He said:

The LORD is my rock, my fortress, and my deliverer,
3 my God, my rock, in whom I
take refuge,
my shield and the horn of my
salvation,
my stronghold and my refuge,
my savior; you save me from violence.

4 I call upon the LORD, who is worthy to be praised,
and I am saved from my enemies.

5 For the waves of death
encompassed me,
the torrents of perdition
assailed me;

6 the cords of Sheol entangled me,
the snares of death
confronted me.

7 In my distress I called upon the LORD;
to my God I called.
From his temple he heard my
voice,
and my cry came to his ears.

no clear parallel, but for the sentiment, cf. 18.3. 21.18 The town of Gob is mentioned only here and in the next verse. Sibbecai was a native of the town of Hushah, southwest of Bethlehem (cf. 1 Chr 4.4); see also 2 Sam 23.27. 21.19 In the story as we know it (see 1 Sam 17) the Bethlehemite warrior who slew Goliath the Gittite was David. This has led scholars to suggest that Elhanan, who is called son of Dodo in 23.24, was another name for David, or, as seems more likely, that the Elhanan story caused the name Goliath to become attached secondarily to the anonymous Philistine slain by David. The description of Goliath's spear as being like a weaver's beam is also in 1 Sam 17.7. 21.20 At Jericho and an archaeological site in Amman, Neolithic statues have been found with six fingers and toes; the Israelites may have made similar discoveries, leading them to tell the story in this verse. 21.21 For David's brother Shimei, see 13.3, where he is called Shimeah.

22.1–51 This magnificent poem is preserved in two very similar versions, the present passage and Ps 18. It has two clearly discernible sections: the first (vv. 2–20) praises the Lord, as revealed in the storm, for the rescue of the psalmist from his enemies; the second section (vv. 29–51) describes the psalmist as a mighty conqueror; an intervening section (vv. 21–28) connects the two major units. The theme of conquest in the second section may have led to the poem's association with David, but features of the language show that it was composed centuries after his lifetime. 22.1 The opening verse, which is not a part of the poem itself, serves to identify the psalm with the events of David's life (cf. Pss 3; 7; 34; 51; 52; 54; 56; 57; 59; 60; 63; 142). 22.2–3 The Lord is praised under the image of a mountain refuge. 22.5–6 For the watery imagery of Sheol, the dark abode of the dead, cf. 23.1–7 These verses are centered on the comparison in vv. 3b–4 of a just ruler to a bright morning sun. Though it touches on timeless themes and contains late elements, such as v. 2, there are some indications that this poem is quite archaic, possibly dating to the early monarchical period (tenth century B.C.E.). 23.1 Cf. the opening of the poem to the opening of the oracles of Balaam (Num 24.3, 15), which are generally regarded as very ancient. The expression the man whom God exalted can be used to stress the elevation of someone without royal ancestry to the throne; cf. “the LORD will raise up for himself a king,” a reference to Baasha, in 1 Kings 14.14 (cf. 1 Kings 15.27–30). The divine epithet Strong One is probably more concrete in its meaning—thus, “Stronghold,” to which cf. the use of fortress and stronghold in 22.2–3. 23.2 This verse may be a late insertion, introducing the notion that the word of God uttered in vv. 3b–4 is a message intended not just for David but for all Israel. 23.3 To the Rock of Israel as a divine epithet likening the Lord to a mountain refuge, cf. my rock in 22.2–3. A king who rules in the fear of God rules not only in religious awe but also in the knowledge of divine commandments. 23.4 The just ruler is compared to a bright sun that causes vegetation to sprout after rainfall. 23.5 David says that his house is like this, i.e., members of his family are like the just rulers described in the previous verses; the expression with God means “in the opinion of God” (cf. 1 Sam 2.26). God’s everlasting covenant with David refers to the dynastic promise made in ch. 7; see also 2 Chr 13.5; 21.7; Pss 89.19–37; 132.12; Isa 55.3; Jer 33.17, 20–22. The expression ordered in all things and secure draws on formal legal terminology, indicating that the covenant is clearly articulated on all points and irrevocable. 23.6–7 The text of these two verses is obscure, but they seem to draw on the metaphor of vv. 3b–4: when the bright light of the just ruler shines on those who are disloyal, they are consumed in fire like uprooted thorns.

23.8–39 This section is an archival relic with three sections: a report on the Three, who were distinguished warriors in David’s army (vv. 8–12), an account of the exploits of Abishai and Benaiah (vv. 18–23), and a list of the Thirty, David’s elite corps (vv. 24–39). 23.8 Josheb-basshebeth is a euphemism for “Jeshbaal,” which was altered by a scribe who believed it meant “Baal exists,” though it might have meant “The Lord (i.e., Yahweh) exists” (see note on 2.8); more information about him is given in 1 Chr 11.11, where he is called “Jashobeam.” Tahchemonite is a mistake for “Hachmonite” or “son of Hachmoni” (see 1 Chr

9 Next to him among the three warriors was Eleazar son of Dodo son of Ahohi. He was with David when they defied the Philistines who were gathered there for battle. The Israelites withdrew, ¹⁰but he stood his ground. He struck down the Philistines until his arm grew weary, though his hand clung to the sword. The LORD brought about a great victory that day. Then the people came back to him—but only to strip the dead.

11 Next to him was Shammah son of Agee, the Hararite. The Philistines gathered together at Lehi, where there was a plot of ground full of lentils; and the army fled from the Philistines. ¹²But he took his stand in the middle of the plot, defended it, and killed the Philistines; and the LORD brought about a great victory.

13 Towards the beginning of harvest three of the thirty^e chiefs went down to join David at the cave of Adullam, while a band of Philistines was encamped in the valley of Rephaim. ¹⁴David was then in the stronghold; and the garrison of the Philistines was then at Bethlehem. ¹⁵David said longingly, "O that someone would give me water to drink from the well of Bethlehem that is by the gate!" ¹⁶Then the three warriors broke through the camp of the Philistines, drew water from the well of Bethlehem that was by the gate, and brought it to David. But he would not drink of it; he poured it out to the LORD, ¹⁷for he said, "The LORD forbid that I should do this. Can I drink the blood of the men who went at the risk of their lives?" Therefore he would not drink it. The three warriors did these things.

18 Now Abishai son of Zeruiah, the brother of Joab, was chief of the Thirty.^f With his spear he fought against three hundred men and killed them, and won a name beside the Three. ¹⁹He was the most renowned of the Thirty,^g and became their commander; but he did not attain to the Three.

20 Benaiah son of Jehoiada was a valiant warrior^h from Kabzeel, a doer of great deeds; he struck down two sons of Arieliⁱ of Moab. He also went down and killed a lion in a pit on a day when snow had fallen. ²¹And he killed an Egyptian, a handsome man. The Egyptian had a spear in his hand; but Benaiah went against him with a staff, snatched the spear out of the Egyptian's hand, and killed him with his own spear. ²²Such were the things Benaiah son of Jehoiada did, and won a name beside the three warriors. ²³He was renowned among the Thirty, but he did not attain to the Three. And David put him in charge of his bodyguard.

24 Among the Thirty were Asahel brother of Joab; Elhanan son of Dodo of Bethlehem; ²⁵Shammah of Harod; Elik

11.11). 23.9 The Hebrew text here rendered when they defied the Philistines who is defective; it should be corrected to "when the Philistines defied them at Pas-dammim, and the Philistines" (cf. 1 Chr 11.13; 1 Sam 17.1). 23.11 Lehi was the place in Judah where Samson slew a thousand Philistines with the jawbone (Hebrew lechi) of an ass (see Judg 15.9–19). 23.13 The cave of Adullam was David's private stronghold during his days as a leader of outlaws and a refugee from Saul's justice (see 1 Sam 22.1), and the episode reported here in vv. 13–17 probably belongs to that period. For the valley of Rephaim, see note on 5.18. 23.15 David's remark is probably motivated more by nostalgia for his hometown of Bethlehem than by thirst, hence his angry reaction in vv. 16b–17 when he learns that his men have risked their lives unnecessarily. 23.16b–17 Because David regards the water as the blood of the men who went he pours it out on the ground in accordance with religious law (cf. Lev 17.10–13; Deut 12.23–24). 23.18 For Abishai, see 2.18. 23.20 For Benaiah, see 8.18; 20.23. Kabzeel was a town in southern Judah near Beersheba (Josh 15.21). The meaning of Ariel is unknown; if it is not a personal name (cf. Ezra 8.16) or a place name (cf. Isa 29.1–2), it might mean "altar hearth" (cf. Ezek 43.15–16). 23.21 The correct description of the Egyptian is less likely to be a handsome man than "a man of great stature," as in 1 Chr 11.23. 23.24 This list must predate the battle of Gibeon, in which Asahel was slain by Abner (see 2.18–23). Elhanan was the slayer of Goliath (see 21.19). 23.25 The home of these two warriors is less likely to have been the Spring of Herod near Jezreel (see Judg 7.1) than a less well known town southeast of Jerusalem. 23.26 Helez the Palitite was a member of the Calebite clan of Pelet (1 Chr 2.47) or a native of the town of Beth-pelet in southern Judah (Josh 15.27)

of Harod; ²⁶Helez the Paltite; Ira son of Ikkes of Tekoa; ²⁷Abiezer of Anathoth; Mebunnai the Hushathite; ²⁸Zalmon the Ahohite; Maharai of Netophah; ²⁹Heleb son of Baanah of Netophah; Ittai son of Ribai of Gibeah of the Benjaminites; ³⁰Benaiah of Pirathon; Hiddai of the torrents of Gaash; ³¹Abi-albon the Arbathite; Azmaveth of Bahurim; ³²Eliabha of Shaalbon; the sons of Jashen: Jonathan ³³son of J Shammah the Hararite; Ahiam son of Sharar the Hararite; ³⁴Eliphelet son of Ahasbai of Maacah; Eliam son of Ahithophel the Gilonite; ³⁵Hezro^k of Carmel; Paarai the Arbite; ³⁶Igal son of Nathan of Zobah; Bani the Gadite; ³⁷Zelek the Ammonite; Naharai of Beer-oth, the armor-bearer of Joab son of Zeruiah; ³⁸Ira the Ithrite; Gareb the Ithrite; ³⁹Uriah the Hittite—thirty-seven in all.

David's Census of Israel and Judah

24 Again the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel, and he incited David against them, saying, "Go, count the people of Israel and Judah." ²So the king said to Joab and the commanders of the army,^l who were with him, "Go through all the tribes of Israel, from Dan to Beer-sheba, and take a census of the people, so that I may know how many there are." ³But Joab said to the king, "May the LORD your God increase the number of the people a hundredfold, while the eyes of my lord the king can still see it! But why does my lord the king want to do this?" ⁴But the king's word prevailed against Joab and the commanders or perhaps both. For Tekoa, see 14.2. 23.27 Anathoth, also the home of the prophet Jeremiah (see Jer 1.1), was the priestly town in Benjamin to which Abiathar was banished (1 Kings 2.26). Mebunnai is probably a mistake for Sibbecai (see 21.18; 1 Chr 11.29). 23.28 Netophah was a town southeast of Bethlehem. 23.29 Heleb is probably Hildai of 1 Chr 27.15, where we learn that he was descended from the judge Othniel (cf. Judg 3.7–11). Gibeah of the Benjaminites was Saul's home (see note on 1 Sam 9.1). 23.30 Pirathon. Home of the minor judge Abdon (Judg 12.13–15), may have been southwest of Shechem in Ephraim in the direction of Mount Gaash (Josh 24.30; Judg 2.9). 23.31 Abi-albon the Arbathite is probably a corruption of Abial the Beth-arabathite; the town of Beth-arabah was on the border between Judah and Benjamin (Josh 15.6; 18.18). For Bahurim, the home of Azmaveth, whose name means "The (god) Death is strong," see note on 3.16. 23.32 Eliabha's hometown is called "Shaalabbin" in Josh 19.42 and "Shaalbim" in Judg 1.35; 1 Kings 4.9; it was northwest of Jerusalem in the territory of Dan. The best Greek manuscript lacks the sons of and calls Jashen "the Gunite" (cf. "the Gizonite" in 1 Chr 11.34); perhaps his home was Gimzo, which was not far from Shaalbim (cf. 2 Chr 28.18). 23.33 For Shammah the Hararite, see v. 11. 23.34 Eliphelet's home is less likely to be the Aramean kingdom of Maacah (see 10.6) or Beth-maacah near Dan (see 20.14–15) than the territory of the Judahite clan of Maacah near Eshtemoa south of Hebron (1 Chr 4.19). For Ahithophel the Gilonite see 15.12; Eliam might be the same as the Eliam who was Bathsheba's father (see 11.3). 23.35 For Carmel, see note on 1 Sam 25.2. If Paarai was really an Arbite, he might have come from the town of Arab near Hebron (Josh 15.52), though we would have expected "Arabite"; but some manuscripts call him an Archite (cf. 15.32). 23.36 The original reading of this verse, partially preserved in the Septuagint and 1 Chr 11.37, was probably "Igal son of Nathan, the commander of the army of the Hagrites," a group of nomadic tribes living east of Gilead on the Transjordanian plateau (see 1 Chr 5.10, 19–22). 23.37 David must have won the loyalty of Zelek the Ammonite in the days before the incident described in 10.1–5 brought his friendly relations with the Ammonites to an end. For Beer-oth, see 4.2–3. 23.38 The Ithrites were one of the leading families of Kiriath-jearim (1 Chr 2.53; cf. 1 Sam 7.1; 2 Sam 6.1). 23.39 Uriah the Hittite was the first husband of Bathsheba (see chs. 11–12). We can only guess how the number thirty-seven was arrived at; in our list there are only thirty or thirty-one.

24.1–9 David takes a census of Israel and Judah, and the Lord is displeased. 24.1 The anger of the LORD seems to function independently of the Lord himself in this passage, inciting David to do something that the Lord condemns; in this regard, note that the Chronicler, in his version of the story, replaces the anger of the LORD with "Satan" (see 1 Chr 21.1). 24.2 From Dan to Beer-sheba. See note on 3.9–10. 24.3 Joab's counsel (cf. 19.5–8) about the prospect of a census is rooted in the notion that its primary purpose is to determine the number of men eligible for military service and soldiers on active duty are subject to a strict regimen of ritual procedures and are especially vulnerable, therefore, to cultic dangers (see Ex 30.11); thus the plague that results is no sur-

of the army. So Joab and the commanders of the army went out from the presence of the king to take a census of the people of Israel. ⁵They crossed the Jordan, and began from^m Aroer and from the city that is in the middle of the valley, toward Gad and on to Jazer. ⁶Then they came to Gilead, and to Kadesh in the land of the Hittites;ⁿ and they came to Dan, and from Dan^o they went around to Sidon, ⁷and came to the fortress of Tyre and to all the cities of the Hivites and Canaanites; and they went out to the Negeb of Judah at Beer-sheba. ⁸So when they had gone through all the land, they came back to Jerusalem at the end of nine months and twenty days. ⁹Joab reported to the king the number of those who had been recorded: in Israel there were eight hundred thousand soldiers able to draw the sword, and those of Judah were five hundred thousand.

The Census Plague

10 But afterward, David was stricken to the heart because he had numbered the people. David said to the LORD, "I have sinned greatly in what I have done. But now, O LORD, I pray you, take away the guilt of your servant; for I have done very foolishly." ¹¹When David rose in the morning, the word of the LORD came to the prophet Gad, David's seer, saying,

¹²"Go and say to David: Thus says the LORD: Three things I offer^p you; choose one of them, and I will do it to you." ¹³So Gad came to David and told him; he asked him, "Shall three^q years of famine come to you on your land? Or will you flee three months before your foes while they pursue you? Or shall there be three days' pestilence in your land? Now consider, and decide what answer I shall return to the one who sent me." ¹⁴Then David said to Gad, "I am in great distress; let us fall into the hand of the LORD, for his mercy is great; but let me not fall into human hands."

¹⁵ So the LORD sent a pestilence on Israel from that morning until the appointed time; and seventy thousand of the people died, from Dan to Beer-sheba. ¹⁶But when the angel stretched out his hand toward Jerusalem to destroy it, the LORD relented concerning the evil, and said to the angel who was bringing destruction among the people, "It is enough; now stay your hand." The angel of the LORD was then by the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite. ¹⁷When David saw the angel who was destroying prise. 24.5–7 The census itinerary seems to surround the kingdom, but perhaps we are to understand that it includes the interior areas as well. Aroer was in southern Transjordan at the southeast corner of David's kingdom (see Deut 4.48; Josh 12.2); Gad was the Israelite tribe that inhabited this region (see Josh 13.8–13, 24–28; notes on 1 Sam 10.27; 13.7); Jazer was situated on the Israelite-Ammonite boundary. 24.6 For Gilead, see note on 2.9. Kadesh in the land of the Hittites ought to be Kadesh on the Orontes in Syria, but this is much too far north and Kadesh of Naphtali, near Lake Huleh, seems more likely; in any case, the text is suspicious. Dan was the traditional northern border of the promised land (cf. v. 2); Sidon was an important Phoenician city, but in this case it probably designates Phoenicia as a whole, modern Lebanon. 24.7 The fortress of Tyre was the northwest turning point in the census; it seems to refer to the Phoenician capital, but it is more likely to be an Israelite-Phoenician border fortification. The cities of the Hivites and Canaanites were probably the towns along the coastal plain west of Israel and Judah; the census is now proceeding southward. The Negeb of Judah was the southern desert, and Beer-sheba was the traditional southern border corresponding to Dan in v. 6. 24.9 Modern scholarship has still not learned how to interpret population statistics of the kind expressed here; they are much too high to correspond to historical reality.

24.10–17 David's census provokes divine punishment in the form of a pestilence sent against Israel. 24.10 David's change of heart is probably a result of his realization of the ritual danger in which he has placed his subjects, something Joab understood from the beginning. 24.11 The prophet Gad, about whom we know very little, made his first appearance in 1 Sam 22.5; he may have been David's personal seer. 24.14 The hand of the Lord is plague, as in, e.g., 1 Sam 5.6. 24.15 The cause of the pestilence is probably the ritual jeopardy brought on by a census (see note on 24.3); the cause is explained differently in 1 Chr 21.6–7. 24.16 The direct agent of the plague, the angel, is restrained by the Lord in order to protect Jerusalem; for Araunah the Jebusite, see the section that follows.

the people, he said to the LORD, "I alone have sinned, and I alone have done wickedly; but these sheep, what have they done? Let your hand, I pray, be against me and against my father's house."

The Threshing Floor of Araunah the Jebusite

18 That day Gad came to David and said to him, "Go up and erect an altar to the LORD on the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite." 19 Following Gad's instructions, David went up, as the LORD had commanded. 20 When Araunah looked down, he saw the king and his servants coming toward him; and Araunah went out and prostrated himself before the king with his face to the ground. 21 Araunah said, "Why has my lord the king come to his servant?" David said, "To buy the threshing floor from you in order to build an altar to the LORD, so that the plague may be averted from the people."

22 Then Araunah said to David, "Let my lord the king take and offer up what seems good to him; here are the oxen for the burnt offering, and the threshing sledges and the yokes of the oxen for the wood. 23 All this, O king, Araunah gives to the king." And Araunah said to the king, "May the LORD your God respond favorably to you."

24 But the king said to Araunah, "No, but I will buy them from you for a price; I will not offer burnt offerings to the LORD my God that cost me nothing." So David bought the threshing floor and the oxen for fifty shekels of silver. 25 David built there an altar to the LORD, and offered burnt offerings and offerings of well-being. So the LORD answered his supplication for the land, and the plague was averted from Israel.

24.18–25 David purchases a piece of land that will become the site of the altar of the Jerusalem temple; cf. the more detailed account in 1 Chr 21–22. 24.18 In the ancient world the threshing floor was thought of as a place where divine power might manifest itself; cf. 6.6; Judg 6.37; 1 Kings 22.10. The name Araunah is not Semitic, and scholars have proposed that his ancestry was Hurrian or Hittite; the pertinent fact for this account, however, is that he is a Jebusite, a member of the pre-Israelite population of Jerusalem (see note on 5.6). 24.21–24 Cf. Abraham's negotiations with the people of Hebron in Gen 23.3–16.

1 KINGS

Content

THE BOOKS OF 1 AND 2 KINGS were originally a single literary work that provided a continuous account of Israel's history from the death of David and the accession of Solomon (ca. 970 B.C.E.) to the release of the exiled King Jehoiachin from prison in Babylon (561/60 B.C.E.). Within this larger work, 1 Kings covers the end of David's reign and the reign of Solomon (1 Kings 1–11), the division of Israel into the two separate kingdoms of Israel and Judah (1 Kings 12), and the history of the two kingdoms to the death of the Israelite king Ahab and the succession of his son Ahaziah (1 Kings 13–22).

Name and Canonical Position

The division of Kings into two separate books took place in Hebrew texts in the Middle Ages under the influence of much earlier Greek and Latin translations, which saw Kings as the continuation of a history of Israelite kingship beginning in 1 Samuel with an account of Saul's accession. Within this larger history, 1 and 2 Kings constituted the third and fourth books of Reigns or Kingdoms. In Jewish tradition 1 and 2 Kings are part of the division of the Bible known as the Former Prophets, which consists of the books of Joshua, Judges, 1 and 2 Samuel, and 1 and 2 Kings. Together these books recount Israel's history from the conquest of Canaan to the end of the monarchy and the beginning of the exile. Modern scholars usually refer to them as the Deuteronomistic History because they share similar literary styles and theological outlooks and appear to be heavily influenced by the book of Deuteronomy.

Literary Character

The books of Kings trace a continuous history of the period that they cover, but they make no claim to be completely original or comprehensive. At a number of points in the narrative readers are referred to external sources, such as the Book of the Acts of Solomon (1 Kings 11.41), the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah (e.g., 1 Kings 14.29; 15.7, 23; 22.45), and the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel (e.g., 1 Kings 14.19; 15.31; 16.5, 14). These works, none of which has survived, presumably contained additional information on the reigns of the kings being discussed and may have provided some of the information incorporated in Kings. Scholars also suspect that other sources, both written and oral, may have been used during the process of composition. Additional records from temple or palace archives may lie behind the account of Solomon's court and building activities (1 Kings 4–7), while traditional collections of prophetic stories may form the basis of the history of the Northern Kingdom (Israel) from Ahab to Jehu (1 Kings 17–2 Kings 10).

Although Kings presents readers with a coherent history of Israel, the work contains enough shifts in literary style and point of view to make scholars suspect that it has had a complex literary history. While some specialists maintain that Kings is basically the work of a single author and attribute the shifts to the various sources that were employed in the composition, others have suggested that Kings was originally written in the preexilic period and then revised one or more times. There is still much disagreement about the details of the book's editorial history, but many scholars advocate an original edition in the time of Hezekiah (ca. 715–687/6 B.C.E.) or Josiah (ca. 640–609 B.C.E.), with final editing taking place sometime early in the exile (586–539 B.C.E.).

In addition to creating an impression of literary unity by presenting events in rough chronological sequence, Kings also uses other devices to give a coherent structure to the whole work. The most obvious of these devices are the formulaic introductions and conclusions that are used to frame the stories of individual rulers. The reign of each king is introduced with a note on the date of his accession, calculated according to the regnal year of the king in the neighboring kingdom (e.g., 1 Kings 15.1, 25). This system of correlative dating creates insoluble chronological problems within the whole work, but it has the effect of stressing the fundamental unity of Israel and Judah, even though the two kingdoms were technically separate political entities throughout much of their history. (On the problems of chronology in 1 and 2 Kings, see the table, "Chronology of the Kings of the Divided Monarchy," at 1 Kings 12.) The note of the king's accession is followed by an indication of the length of his reign (1 Kings 15.2, 25) and, in the case of Judean kings, by a record of his age at accession and the name of his mother (1 Kings 15.2; 22.42). The king's reign is then evaluated by the historian, and sometimes additional information is provided (1 Kings 15.3–5, 26). At the end of the account, readers are referred to other literary works for additional data. The king's death, burial, and successor are then recorded (1 Kings 15.8, 27–28). Another feature of the literary structure of Kings is the use of the motif of prophecy and fulfillment, particularly in the history of the Northern Kingdom (1 Kings 13–2 Kings 17). Whenever the narrative records a prophet's words concerning the fate of a king or dynasty, the fulfillment of that prophecy is usually noted (e.g., 1 Kings 14.7–11; 15.29–30).

Message

Although the books of Kings in fact contain much historical information, their overall interest is religious rather than historiographic in the modern sense. Kings clearly reflects the theological concerns of the book of Deuteronomy, although there is no unambiguous literary relationship between the two. The theology of Kings is most obvious in the evaluations made of each king and in the occasional comments on crucial historical events, such as the fall of the Northern Kingdom (2 Kings 17.1–23). Underlying this theology is the Deuteronomic principle that the Lord is Israel's only God (Deut 6.4). The worship of other gods is forbidden, and all of the Lord's covenant laws must be obeyed, including the requirement that the Lord may legitimately be worshiped in only one place (Deut 12). According to Kings, all of the Northern kings followed the evil example of their ancestor Jeroboam, who violated divine law by setting up rival sanctuaries outside of Jerusalem and by encouraging the people to worship the bull images that he had set up in them (1 Kings 12.25–33). Later Northern kings continued to worship other gods, particularly the Canaanite god Baal, and refused prophetic demands for reform. For these crimes the Northern Kingdom was eventually destroyed (2 Kings 17.1–23). In Judah Solomon's willingness to allow the worship of other gods was punished by the loss of the Northern tribes (1 Kings 11). Yet, God's promise that David would have an eternal dynasty remained firm (2 Sam 7.1–17), in spite of the fact that Judean kings allowed irregular worship at sanctuaries outside of Jerusalem until the time of Hezekiah. Eventually, however, Judah too followed the evil ways of the Northern Kingdom and was punished. Jerusalem was destroyed, its inhabitants were exiled, and the monarchy came to an end. Robert R. Wilson

The Struggle for the Succession

1 King David was old and advanced in years; and although they covered him with clothes, he could not get warm. ²So his servants said to him, "Let a young virgin be sought for my lord the king, and let her wait on the king, and be his attendant; let her lie in your bosom, so that my lord the king may be warm." ³So they searched for a beautiful girl throughout all the territory of Israel, and found Abishag the Shunammite, and brought her to the king. ⁴The girl was very beautiful. She became the king's attendant and served him, but the king did not know her sexually.

⁵Now Adonijah son of Haggith exalted himself, saying, "I will be king"; he prepared for himself chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him. ⁶His father had never at any time displeased him by asking, "Why have you done thus and so?" He was also a very handsome man, and he was born next after Absalom. ⁷He conferred with Joab son of Zeruiah and with the priest Abiathar, and they supported Adonijah. ⁸But the priest Zadok, and Benaiah son of Jehoiada, and the prophet Nathan, and Shimei,

¹¹Then Nathan said to Bathsheba, Solomon's mother, "Have you not heard that Adonijah son of Haggith has become king and our lord David does not know it? ¹²Now therefore come, let me give you advice, so that you may save your own life and the life of your son Solomon. ¹³Go in at once to King David, and say to him, 'Did you not, my lord the king, swear to your servant, saying: Your son Solomon shall succeed me as king, and he shall sit on my throne? Why then is Adonijah king?' ¹⁴Then while you are still there speaking with the king, I will come in after you and confirm your words."

¹⁵So Bathsheba went to the king in his room. The king was very old; Abishag the Shunammite was attending the king. ¹⁶Bathsheba bowed and did obeisance to the king, and the king said, "What do you wish?" ¹⁷She said to him, "My lord, you swore to your servant by the Lord your

1.1–53 1 Kings opens with an account of the political intrigue that finally led to the accession of Solomon, whose reign claims a large share of the narrator's attention (chs. 1–11). The first two chapters of the book are actually the conclusion of the "Throne Succession Narrative" (2 Sam 9–20), an originally independent literary work that scholars usually ascribe to an eyewitness to the events being described. As a whole, the narrative shows that in spite of David's character flaws and the self-destructive tendencies within the royal family itself, God was nevertheless willing to honor the promise that David's dynasty would be eternal (2 Sam 7.1–17). For the narrator the accession of Solomon is a definitive sign of the promise's fulfillment. 1.1 A considerable number of years seems to have elapsed between the events recounted in 2 Sam 20 and those recorded here, for David's health has deteriorated drastically enough to trigger various plots to ensure the continued operation of the government. 1.3 The zeal of David's servants to find a beautiful maiden leads them as far as Shunem (modern Solem), a site slightly to the north of the town of Jezreel, at the western end of the Jezreel Valley. 1.5–6 With the death of Amnon (2 Sam

13.28–29) and Absalom (2 Sam 18.14–15) and the apparent death of Chileab (2 Sam 3.2–5), Adonijah is David's oldest son and therefore a logical choice to be the ailing king's successor. However, the principle of primogeniture was not yet established in Israel, and the narrative hints that Adonijah's actions are treasonous, describing them in the same language used earlier to describe Absalom's failed attempt to seize the throne from his father (2 Sam 14.25; 15.1). 1.7–8 Joab, the veteran commander of David's regular army, and Abiathar, one of David's high priests, support Adonijah, but Zadok, the other high priest, Benaiah, the commander of David's private mercenary forces, and Nathan, the prophet, along with two otherwise unknown officials, are excluded from Adonijah's plans and ultimately support the accession of Solomon. 1.9 En-rogel is a spring a short distance south of Jerusalem, where the stone Zohelath (Serpent's Stone) marked a sacred spot. 1.11–27 Nathan's plan to obtain the throne for Solomon involves reminding David of an oath not otherwise mentioned in Samuel or Kings. The prophet's reasons for pressing Solomon's case are never stated, but the narrative is careful to exclude Solomon himself from the plots that lead to God, saying: Your son Solomon shall succeed me as king, and he shall sit on my throne. ¹⁸But now suddenly Adonijah has become king, though you, my lord the king, do not know it. ¹⁹He has sacrificed oxen, fatted cattle, and sheep in abundance, and has invited all the children of the king, the priest Abiathar, and Joab the commander of the army; but your servant Solomon he has not invited. ²⁰But you, my lord the king—the eyes of all Israel are on you to tell them who shall sit on the throne of my lord the king after him. ²¹Otherwise it will come to pass, when my lord the king sleeps with his ancestors, that my son Solomon and I will be counted offenders.”

²² While she was still speaking with the king, the prophet Nathan came in. ²³The king was told, “Here is the prophet Nathan.” When he came in before the king, he did obeisance to the king, with his face to the ground. ²⁴Nathan said, “My lord the king, have you said, ‘Adonijah shall succeed me as king, and he shall sit on my throne?’ ²⁵For today he has gone down and has sacrificed oxen, fatted cattle, and sheep in abundance, and has invited all the king’s children, Joab the commander^a of the army, and the priest Abiathar, who are now eating and drinking before him, and saying, ‘Long live King Adonijah!’ ²⁶But he did not invite me, your servant, and the priest Zadok, and Benaiah son of Jehoiada, and your servant Solomon. ²⁷Has this thing been brought about by my lord the king and you have not let your servants know who should sit on the throne of my lord the king after him?”

²⁸ King David answered, “Summon Bathsheba to me.” So she came into the king’s presence, and stood before the king. ²⁹The king swore, saying, “As the LORD lives, who has saved my life from every adversity, ³⁰as I swore to you by the LORD, the God of Israel, ‘Your son Solomon shall succeed me as king, and he shall sit on my throne in my place,’ so will I do this day.” ³¹Then Bathsheba bowed with her face to the ground, and did obeisance to the king, and said, “May my lord King David live forever!”

³² King David said, “Summon to me the priest Zadok, the prophet Nathan, and Benaiah son of Jehoiada.” When they came before the king, ³³the king said to them, “Take with you the servants of your lord, and have my son Solomon ride on my own mule, and bring him down to Gihon. ³⁴There let the priest Zadok and the prophet Nathan anoint him king over Israel; then blow the trumpet, and say, ‘Long live King Solomon!’ ³⁵You shall go up following him. Let him enter and sit on my throne; he shall be king in my place; for I have appointed him to be ruler over Israel and over Judah.” ³⁶Benaiah son of Jehoiada answered the king, “Amen! May the LORD, the God of my lord the king, so ordain. ³⁷As the LORD has been with my lord the king, so may he be with Solomon, and make his throne greater than the throne of my lord King David.”

³⁸ So the priest Zadok, the prophet Nathan, and Benaiah son of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites and the Pelethites, went down and had Solomon ride on King David’s mule, and led him to Gihon. ³⁹There the priest Zadok took the horn of oil from the tent and anointed Solomon. Then they blew the trumpet, and all the people said, “Long live King Solomon!” ⁴⁰And all the people went up following him, playing on pipes and rejoicing with great joy, so that the earth quaked at their noise.

his enthronement. 1.28 In the dialogues with David the narrator assumes that only one person at a time has an audience with the king. 1.33 In Davidic Israel horses were not yet used for riding, and the mule was a mode of transportation reserved for royalty (2 Sam 13.29; 18.9; Zech 9.9). The Gihon spring is located south of Jerusalem on the western side of the Kidron Valley and slightly to the north of En-rogel, well within the hearing of Adonijah and his party. 1.34–35 Solomon is appointed both David’s successor and his coregent. The practice of having a king anointed by a prophet recalls the earlier consecration of Saul (1 Sam 10.1) and David (1 Sam 16.1–13) and probably represents God’s direct choice of the king (cf. 1 Kings 19.15–16; 2 Kings 9.1–10). Solomon is called both king and ruler in v. 35, the latter title being one also given to Saul (1 Sam 9.16; 10.1) and David (1 Sam 25.30). 1.38 The Cherethites and Pelethites were units in David’s private the trumpet, he said, "Why is the city in an uproar?" ⁴²While he was still speaking, Jonathan son of the priest Abiathar arrived. Adonijah said, "Come in, for you are a worthy man and surely you bring good news." ⁴³Jonathan answered Adonijah, "No, for our lord King David has made Solomon king; ⁴⁴the king has sent with him the priest Zadok, the prophet Nathan, and Benaiah son of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites and the Pelethites; and they had him ride on the king's mule; ⁴⁵the priest Zadok and the prophet Nathan have anointed him king at Gihon; and they have gone up from there rejoicing, so that the city is in an uproar. This is the noise that you heard. ⁴⁶Solomon now sits on the royal throne. ⁴⁷Moreover the king's servants came to congratulate our lord King David, saying, 'May God make the name of Solomon more famous than yours, and make his throne greater than your throne.' The king bowed in worship on the bed ⁴⁸and went on to pray thus, 'Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, who today has granted one of my offspring^b to sit on my throne and permitted me to witness it.'

⁴⁹ Then all the guests of Adonijah got up trembling and went their own ways. ⁵⁰Adonijah, fearing Solomon, got up and went to grasp the horns of the altar. ⁵¹Solomon was informed, "Adonijah is afraid of King Solomon; see, he has laid hold of the horns of the altar, saying, 'Let King Solomon swear to me first that he will not kill his servant with the sword.'"

⁵²So Solomon responded, "If he proves to be a worthy man, not one of his hairs shall fall to the ground; but if wickedness is found in him, he shall die." ⁵³Then King Solomon sent to have him brought down from the altar. He came to do obeisance to King Solomon; and Solomon said to him, "Go home."

David's Instruction to Solomon

2 When David's time to die drew near, he charged his son Solomon, saying: ²"I am about to go the way of all the earth. Be strong, be courageous, ³and keep the charge of the LORD your God, walking in his ways and keeping his statutes, his commandments, his ordinances, and his testimonies, as it is written in the law of Moses, so that you may prosper in all that you do and wherever you turn. ⁴Then the LORD will establish his word that he spoke concerning me: 'If your heirs take heed to their way, to walk before me in faithfulness with all their heart and with all their soul, there shall not fail you a successor on the throne of Israel.'

⁵ "Moreover you know also what Joab son of Zeruiah did to me, how he dealt with the two commanders of the armies of Israel, Abner son of Ner, and Amasa son of Jether, whom he murdered, retaliating in time of peace for blood that had been shed in war, and putting the blood of war on the belt around his waist, and on the sandals on his feet. ⁶Act therefore accord-mercenary army (2 Sam 8.18; 20.23). 1.48 David here recalls Nathan's earlier oracle promising the king an eternal dynasty (2 Sam 7.12). 1.49–53 The horns of the altar were projections attached to each of the altar's four corners (Ex 29.12; 30.10; Lev 4.7). Because of the sanctity of the altar, a person who had inadvertently committed a crime could touch the altar and claim sanctuary, but this right was not given to willful criminals (Ex 21.14; 1 Kings 2.28–35).

2.1–9 The dying David's advice to Solomon is an example of a common literary genre, the farewell speech. In the or such speeches often serve to mark important turning points in Israel's history and to provide a theological interpretive framework for subsequent events (Gen 47.29–50.14; Josh 23–24; Deut 33–34; 1 Macc 2.49–70). 2.2–4 David's opening exhortation contains strong echoes of the book of Deuteronomy (Deut 4.29, 40; 6.5; 8.6; 10.12; 11.1, 22; cf.

Josh 23.14). Solomon is urged to emulate the ideal Deuteronomic king by keeping the Mosaic law (Deut 17.14–20). Only if he is obedient will God fulfill the promise made to David that his dynasty will be eternal (2 Sam 7.12–16). This stress on the conditional character of God's promise is a hallmark of Deuteronomistic theology. 2.5–6 Abner, the former commander of Saul's army, killed Joab's brother Asahel during the turbulent years of fighting between Israel and Judah that followed Saul's death and was subsequently slain by Joab (2 Sam 3.22–30). Amasa replaced Joab as commander of the army during Absalom's revolt against David and then remained in that position after the king returned to power. Amasa's delay in quelling a later rebellion provoked Joab to kill him (2 Sam 17.25; 19.11–15; 20.4–10). Both killings could have been considered justifiable under the circumstances.

ing to your wisdom, but do not let his gray head go down to Sheol in peace. ⁷Deal loyally, however, with the sons of Barzillai the Gileadite, and let them be among those who eat at your table; for with such loyalty they met me when I fled from your brother Absalom. ⁸There is also with you Shimei son of Gera, the Benjaminite from Bahurim, who cursed me with a terrible curse on the day when I went to Mahanaim; but when he came down to meet me at the Jordan, I swore to him by the LORD, 'I will not put you to death with the sword.' ⁹Therefore do not hold him guiltless, for you are a wise man; you will know what you ought to do to him, and you must bring his gray head down with blood to Sheol."

Death of David

10 Then David slept with his ancestors, and was buried in the city of David. ¹¹The time that David reigned over Israel was forty years; he reigned seven years in Hebron, and thirty-three years in Jerusalem. ¹²So Solomon sat on the throne of his father David; and his kingdom was firmly established.

Solomon Consolidates His Reign

13 Then Adonijah son of Haggith came to Bathsheba, Solomon's mother. She asked, "Do you come peaceably?" He said, "Peaceably." ¹⁴Then he said, "May I have a word with you?" She said, "Go on." ¹⁵He said, "You know that the kingdom was mine, and that all Israel expected me to reign; however, the kingdom has turned about and become my brother's, for it was his from the LORD. ¹⁶And now I have one request to make of you; do not refuse me." She said to him, "Go on." ¹⁷He said, "Please ask King Solomon—he will not refuse you—to give me Abishag the Shunammite as my wife." ¹⁸Bathsheba said, "Very well; I will speak to the king on your behalf."

¹⁹ So Bathsheba went to King Solomon, to speak to him on behalf of Adonijah. The king rose to meet her, and bowed down to her; then he sat on his throne, and had a throne brought for the king's mother, and she sat on his right. ²⁰Then she said, "I have one small request to make of you; do not refuse me." And the king said to her, "Make your request, my mother; for I will not refuse you." ²¹She said, "Let Abishag the Shunammite be given to your brother Adonijah as his wife." ²²King Solomon answered his mother, "And why do you ask Abishag the Shunammite for Adonijah? Ask for him the kingdom as well! For he is my elder brother; ask not only for him but also for the priest Abiathar and for Joab son of Zeruiah!" ²³Then King Solomon swore by the LORD, "So may God do to me, and more also, for Adonijah has devised this scheme at the risk of his life! ²⁴Now therefore as the LORD lives, who has established me and placed me on the throne of my father David, and who has made me a house as he promised, today Adonijah shall be put to death." ²⁵So King Solomon sent Benaiah son of Jehoiada; he struck him down, and he died.

2.7 Barzillai provided food for David and his supporters during Absalom's revolt (2 Sam 17.27-29; 19.31-40). Being invited to eat at the king's table was considered a mark of royal favor (2 Sam 9.7; 19.28; 1 Kings 18.19; 2 Kings 25.29; Neh 5.17). 2.8 When David fled from Jerusalem in the wake of Absalom's revolt, Shimei cursed the king for killing members of Saul's family in order to remove rivals to the throne (2 Sam 16.5-13). Although David later swore not to kill Shimei (2 Sam 19.16-23), Solomon would not have been bound by that oath.

2.10-12 In David's time Jerusalem was considered the king's personal property (2 Sam 5.9). David in fact ruled over all Israel, Judah and Israel together, for thirty-three years. In Hebron he ruled Judah alone for seven years and six months (2 Sam 5.4-5).

2.13-46 The narrator may feel that Solomon's throne was firmly established immediately after David's death (v. 12), but Solomon himself feels it necessary to secure his kingdom by eliminating anyone who might be a threat to his power. 2.13-25 Abishag's status in the court was ambiguous because of her unusual relationship with David (cf. 1.1-4), but Solomon clearly considers her to be a concubine. In this period royal concubines normally became the property of the new king (2 Sam 3.6-7; 12.8; 16.21-22), so Solomon interprets Adonijah's request as a threat and uses it as a pretext to have him killed (vv. 22-25). The text is silent on the question of whether or not Bathsheba anticipated this result. However, the extraordinary deference shown to her by Solomon (vv. 19-20) is an indication of the power and status the queen mother enjoyed in the 26 The king said to the priest Abiathar, "Go to Anathoth, to your estate; for you deserve death. But I will not at this time put you to death, because you carried the ark of the Lord God before my father David, and because you shared in all the hardships my father endured." 27 So Solomon banished Abiathar from being priest to the LORD, thus fulfilling the word of the LORD that he had spoken concerning the house of Eli in Shiloh.

28 When the news came to Joab—for Joab had supported Adonijah though he had not supported Absalom—Joab fled to the tent of the LORD and grasped the horns of the altar. 29 When it was told King Solomon, "Joab has fled to the tent of the LORD and now is beside the altar," Solomon sent Benaiah son of Jehoiada, saying, "Go, strike him down." 30 So Benaiah came to the tent of the LORD and said to him, "The king commands, 'Come out.'" But he said, "No, I will die here." Then Benaiah brought the king word again, saying, "Thus said Joab, and thus he answered me." 31 The king replied to him, "Do as he has said, strike him down and bury him; and thus take away from me and from my father's house the guilt for the blood that Joab shed without cause. 32 The LORD will bring back his bloody deeds on his own head, because, without the knowledge of my father David, he attacked and killed with the sword two men more righteous and better than himself, Abner son of Ner, commander of the army of Israel, and Amasa son of Jether, commander of the army of Judah. 33 So shall their blood come back on the head of Joab and on the head of his descendants forever; but to David, and to his descendants, and to his house, and to his throne, there shall be peace from the LORD forevermore." 34 Then Benaiah son of Jehoiada went up and struck him down and killed him; and he was buried at his own house near the wilderness. 35 The king put Benaiah son of Jehoiada over the army in his place, and the king put the priest Zadok in the place of Abiathar.

36 Then the king sent and summoned Shimei, and said to him, "Build yourself a house in Jerusalem, and live there, and do not go out from there to any place whatever. 37 For on the day you go out, and cross the Wadi Kidron, know for certain that you shall die; your blood shall be on your own head." 38 And Shimei said to the king, "The sentence is fair; as my lord the king has said, so will your servant do." So Shimei lived in Jerusalem many days.

39 But it happened at the end of three years that two of Shimei's slaves ran away to King Achish son of Maacah of Gath. When it was told Shimei, "Your slaves are in Gath," 40 Shimei arose and saddled a donkey, and went to Achish in Gath, to search for his slaves; Shimei went and brought his slaves from Gath. 41 When Solomon was told that Shimei had gone from Jerusalem to Gath and returned, 42 the king sent and summoned Shimei, and said to him, "Did I not make you swear by the LORD, and solemnly adjure you, saying, 'Know for certain that on the day you go out and go to any place whatever, you shall die'? And you said to me, 'The sentence is fair; I accept.' 43 Why then have you not kept your oath to the LORD and the commandment with which I charged you?" 44 The king also said to Shimei, "You know in your own heart all the evil that you did to my father David; so the LORD will bring back your evil on Judean royal court. 2.26–27 Abiathar supported Adonijah in the struggle over the succession (see 1.7). Anathoth is located about three miles northeast of Jerusalem. Abiathar's descendants, some of whom were still in Anathoth at the beginning of the exile (Jer 1.1), saw his loss of priestly status in Jerusalem as a final judgment against the priestly house of Eli for their corrupt management of the old shrine at Shiloh (1 Sam 2.27–36). 2.28–35 Joab rightly suspects that Solomon is conducting a purge of Adonijah's supporters and therefore seeks sanctuary at the altar associated with the tent shrine that David had set up to house the ark of God (2 Sam 6.17). However, Solomon chooses not to consider Joab eligible to claim the protection of the altar (see note on 1 Kings 1.49–53). After Joab's death, Benaiah, who had been commander of David's private army and an early supporter of Solomon (1.8), becomes commander of the regular army as well. 2.36–46 Even though David counseled Solomon to kill Shimei (see 2.8–9), the king instead places him under house arrest in Jerusalem. 2.37 The Wadi Kidron is the valley to the east of Jerusalem between the Temple Mount and the Mount of Olives, so Shimei was in effect confined to the city. 2.39 Shimei's ill-considered trip to Gath on the coastal plain is a blatant violation of his agreement with Solomon.

your own head. ⁴⁵But King Solomon shall be blessed, and the throne of David shall be established before the LORD forever.” ⁴⁶Then the king commanded Benaiah son of Jehoiada; and he went out and struck him down, and he died.

So the kingdom was established in the hand of Solomon.

Solomon's Prayer for Wisdom

3 Solomon made a marriage alliance with Pharaoh king of Egypt; he took Pharaoh's daughter and brought her into the city of David, until he had finished building his own house and the house of the LORD and the wall around Jerusalem. ²The people were sacrificing at the high places, however, because no house had yet been built for the name of the LORD.

³Solomon loved the LORD, walking in the statutes of his father David; only, he sacrificed and offered incense at the high places. ⁴The king went to Gibeon to sacrifice there, for that was the principal high place; Solomon used to offer a thousand burnt offerings on that altar. ⁵At Gibeon the LORD appeared to Solomon in a dream by night; and God said, “Ask what I should give you.” ⁶And Solomon said, “You have shown great and steadfast love to your servant my father David, because he walked before you in faithfulness, in righteousness, and in uprightness of heart toward you; and you have kept for him this great and steadfast love, and have given him a son to sit on his throne today. ⁷And now, O LORD my God, you have made your servant king in place of my father David, although I am only a little child; I do not know how to go out or come in. ⁸And your servant is in the midst of the people whom you have chosen, a great people, so numerous they cannot be numbered or counted. ⁹Give your servant therefore an understanding mind to govern your people, able to discern between good and evil; for who can govern this your great people?”

¹⁰It pleased the Lord that Solomon

3.1–15 Solomon's dream at Gibeon not only provides divine legitimation for his reign but also indicates the degree to which his kingship at its best will conform to Deuteronomic theological ideals (Deut 17.14–20). 3.1–2 At the beginning of the account the narrator makes two introductory remarks that indicate both Solomon's growing power and the seeds of his eventual downfall. His political alliance with an unnamed king of Egypt indicates that Solomon is now powerful enough to be part of the world of international politics. He is also to become one of Israel's most famous builders, expanding David's original city, fortifying the walls, and building an elaborate royal palace and a splendid temple so that worship could take place appropriately at one site. However, Solomon also follows the common imperial practice of cementing political alliances with marriages (2 Sam 3.2–5; 5.13), and he participates in or at least tolerates the worship of his wives' native gods in Jerusalem, a situation that ultimately leads to his downfall (ch. 11). 3.2 The high places at which Israelites worshiped before the building of the temple were open-air platforms or shrines where sacrifices and other cultic activities took place. The Lord was sometimes worshiped at the high places, but other deities were worshiped there as well. The Deuteronomic narrator considered them illegitimate after the building of the temple. 3.3 The statutes of . . . David that Solomon obeyed were the Mosaic laws David himself followed rather than laws David promulgated. 3.4 Gibeon (modern el-Jib) lies about five and a half miles northwest of Jerusalem and was a Hivite enclave well into monarchical times (Josh 9.3–10.15; 2 Sam 21.1–9). The city was an important worship center by Solomon's day, but its early connections with Israelite worship are uncertain (1 Chr 16.39; 21.29; 2 Chr 1.3, 13). 3.5 Many Israelites considered the dream to be a normal means of divine revelation (but see Jer 23.23–32 for a dissenting view). Revelatory dreams took various forms and sometimes contained dialogues of the sort described here (Gen 20.3–7; 26.24; 28.12–16; 1 Sam 3.1–15; 28.6). 3.6 The steadfast love God has shown to David refers to God's faithfulness to the demands of the covenant between God and Israel (as expressed in the Mosaic law) and between God and David (as expressed in 2 Sam 7). By invoking the covenant in this context, Solomon indicates his desire to enter into the same relationship with God that his father, David, had accepted. 3.7 Solomon's reference to himself as a little child (who does) not know how to go out or come in is not to be taken literally (see 11.42; 14.21) but is an expression of humility designed to indicate the king's willingness to be God's servant (vv. 6, 7, 8, 9) and to accept divine instruction concerning the duties of kingship. 3.9 Understanding mind, lit. “listening heart.” The Israelite considered the heart to be both the seat of the intellect and an organ of perception, so a listening heart is one open to divine direction. Only such a heart is capable of governing God's people and distinguishing good from evil.

had asked this. ¹¹God said to him, "Because you have asked this, and have not asked for yourself long life or riches, or for the life of your enemies, but have asked for yourself understanding to discern what is right, ¹²I now do according to your word. Indeed I give you a wise and discerning mind; no one like you has been before you and no one like you shall arise after you. ¹³I give you also what you have not asked, both riches and honor all your life; no other king shall compare with you. ¹⁴If you will walk in my ways, keeping my statutes and my commandments, as your father David walked, then I will lengthen your life."

¹⁵ Then Solomon awoke; it had been a dream. He came to Jerusalem where he stood before the ark of the covenant of the LORD. He offered up burnt offerings and offerings of well-being, and provided a feast for all his servants.

Solomon's Wisdom in Judgment

¹⁶ Later, two women who were prostitutes came to the king and stood before him. ¹⁷The one woman said, "Please, my lord, this woman and I live in the same house; and I gave birth while she was in the house. ¹⁸Then on the third day after I gave birth, this woman also gave birth. We were together; there was no one else with us in the house, only the two of us were in the house. ¹⁹Then this woman's son died in the night, because she lay on him. ²⁰She got up in the middle of the night and took my son from beside me while your servant slept. She laid him at her breast, and laid her dead son at my breast. ²¹When I rose in the morning to nurse my son, I saw that he was dead; but when I looked at him closely in the morning, clearly it was not the son I had borne." ²²But the other woman said, "No, the living son is mine, and the dead son is yours." The first said, "No, the dead son is yours, and the living son is mine." So they argued before the king.

²³ Then the king said, "The one says, 'This is my son that is alive, and your son is dead'; while the other says, 'Not so! Your son is dead, and my son is the living one.'" ²⁴So the king said, "Bring me a sword," and they brought a sword before the king. ²⁵The king said, "Divide the living boy in two; then give half to the one, and half to the other." ²⁶But the woman whose son was alive said to the king—because compassion for her son burned within her—"Please, my lord, give her the living boy; certainly do not kill him!" The other said, "It shall be neither mine nor yours; divide it." ²⁷Then the king responded: "Give the first woman the living boy; do not kill him. She is his mother." ²⁸All Israel heard of the judgment that the king had rendered; and they stood in awe of the king, because they perceived that the wisdom of God was in him, to execute justice.

Solomon's Administrative Officers

4 King Solomon was king over all Israel, ²and these were his high officials: Azariah son of Zadok was the priest; ³Elihoreph and Ahijah sons of Shisha

3.16–28 The fruit of divine wisdom is immediately apparent in this story meant to illustrate Solomon's success as a judge. Stories of a similar sort are found in other cultures, and it is likely that this tale was part of an oral collection of Solomonic stories before it was incorporated into Kings.

4.1–19 These two lists of Solomon's administrative officers were probably taken from old archives or perhaps from the Book of the Acts of Solomon (11.41). Both lists show signs of being slightly garbled during the process of transmission. They are intended to illustrate the effectiveness of Solomon's administrative skills, but they also illustrate the degree to which his kingdom has expanded and become a typical imperial state. His tendencies in this direction run counter to Deuteronomic norms concerning kingship (Deut

17.14–20) and illustrate the dangers of which Samuel warned the Israelites when they asked for a king (1 Sam 8.11–18). 4.2–6 Some of Solomon's officials (Zadok, Benaiah, Adoniram, and Jehoshaphat) are holdovers from David's regime (2 Sam 8.16–18; 20.23–26; 1 Chr 18.15–17) while others (Azariah son of Zadok, Azariah son of Nathan, and Zabud son of Nathan) represent the beginning of a hereditary bureaucracy. The inclusion of Abiathar in the list suggests that it comes from the beginning of Solomon's reign, before the priest's banishment (2.26–27). 4.3 The secretaries were scribes who kept official records, but they also had major administrative responsibilities. Scholars have suggested that the recorder was the keeper of the royal archives or perhaps the royal herald, but in either case he functioned were secretaries; Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was recorder; ⁴Benaiah son of Jehoiada was in command of the army; Zadok and Abiathar were priests; ⁵Azariah son of Nathan was over the officials; Zabud son of Nathan was priest and king's friend; ⁶Ahishar was in charge of the palace; and Adoniram son of Abda was in charge of the forced labor.

⁷ Solomon had twelve officials over all Israel, who provided food for the king and his household; each one had to make provision for one month in the year. ⁸These were their names: Ben-hur, in the hill country of Ephraim; ⁹Ben-deker, in Makaz, Shaalbim, Beth-shemesh, and Elon-beth-hanan; ¹⁰Ben-hesed, in Arubboth (to him belonged Socoh and all the land of Hephher); ¹¹Ben-abinadab, in all Naphath-dor (he had Taphath, Solomon's daughter, as his wife); ¹²Baana son of Ahilud, in Taanach, Megiddo, and all Beth-shean, which is beside Zarethan below Jezreel, and from Beth-shean to Abel-meholah, as far as the other side of Jokmeam; ¹³Ben-geber, in Ramoth-gilead (he had the villages of Jair son of Manasseh, which are in Gilead, and he had the region of Argob, which is in Bashan, sixty great cities with walls and bronze bars); ¹⁴Ahinadab son of Iddo, in Mahanaim; ¹⁵Ahimaaz, in Naphtali (he had taken Basemath, Solomon's daughter, as his wife); ¹⁶Baana son of Hushai, in Asher and Bealoth; ¹⁷Jehoshaphat son of Paruah, in Issachar; ¹⁸Shimei son of Ela, in Benjamin; ¹⁹Geber son of Uri, in the land of Gilead, the country of King Sihon of the Amorites and of King Og of Bashan. And there was one official in the land of Judah.

Magnificence of Solomon's Rule

²⁰ Judah and Israel were as numerous as the sand by the sea; they ate and drank and were happy. ²¹^cSolomon was sovereign over all the kingdoms from the Euphrates to the land of the Philistines, even to the border of Egypt; they brought tribute and served Solomon all the days of his life.

at the highest levels of the government. 4.5 The one who was over the officials supervised the district administrators listed in vv. 7–19. The king's friend was the king's chief counselor. 4.6 The official in charge of the palace was probably the overseer of all royal estates and buildings. The officer in charge of the forced labor was the chief tax collector, who supervised the money, goods, and labor that were owed yearly to the crown (see also 12.18). 4.7–19 The list of Solomon's administrative districts does not seem to conform to Israel's traditional tribal divisions and is probably an indication that the king deliberately tried to break up the older governmental system. If vv. 13 and 19 do not refer to the same district, then Judah lies outside the list of twelve administrative units and may not have been taxed in the same way they were.

4.20–28 The description of Solomon's empire and court underlines the magnificence of his reign. 4.20–21 The growth of Israel's population and the expansion of its territory are the fulfillment of the promises of land and progeny that God gave to Israel's ancestors (Gen 12.2; 13.14–17; 15.18–19; 22.17; 32.12; Deut 1.7–8). 4.22–28 The inventory of Solomon's daily provisions shows the extraordinary size of his court, particularly since the catalog does not include perishable food that would not have been kept in royal storerooms and livestock pens. Solomon's extensive empire and the general contentment with his rule did not last to the end of his reign (see ch. 11). 4.22 As a dry measure a cor contains about 14 bushels. 4.23 The fat oxen were probably expensive grain-fed animals, in contrast to the more common pasture-fed cattle.

Fame of Solomon's Wisdom

29 God gave Solomon very great wisdom, discernment, and breadth of understanding as vast as the sand on the seashore,³⁰ so that Solomon's wisdom surpassed the wisdom of all the people of the east, and all the wisdom of Egypt.³¹ He was wiser than anyone else, wiser than Ethan the Ezrahite, and Heman, Calcol, and Darda, children of Mahol; his fame spread throughout all the surrounding nations.³² He composed three thousand proverbs, and his songs numbered a thousand and five.³³ He would speak of trees, from the cedar that is in the Lebanon to the hyssop that grows in the wall; he would speak of animals, and birds, and reptiles, and fish.³⁴ People came from all the nations to hear the wisdom of Solomon; they came from all the kings of the earth who had heard of his wisdom.

Preparations and Materials for the Temple

5^d Now King Hiram of Tyre sent his servants to Solomon, when he heard that they had anointed him king in place of his father; for Hiram had always been a friend to David.² Solomon sent word to Hiram, saying, ³"You know that my father David could not build a house for the name of the LORD his God because of the warfare with which his enemies surrounded him, until the LORD put them under the soles of his feet."^{e 4} But now the LORD my God has given me rest on every side; there is neither adversary nor misfortune.⁵ So I intend to build a house for the name of the LORD my God, as the LORD said to my father David, 'Your son, whom I will set on your throne in your place, shall build the house for my name.'⁶ Therefore command that cedars from the Lebanon be cut for me. My servants will join your servants, and I will give you whatever wages you set for your servants; for you know that there is no one among us who knows how to cut timber like the Sidonians."

⁷ When Hiram heard the words of Solomon, he rejoiced greatly, and said, "Blessed be the LORD today, who has given to David a wise son to be over this great people."⁸ Hiram sent word to Solomon, "I have heard the message that you have sent to me; I will fulfill all your needs in the matter of cedar and cypress

4.29–34 This description of Solomon's wisdom suggests why he is credited with producing much of the OT's wisdom literature (Prov 1.1; 25.1; Eccl 1.1; Song 1.1). 4.31 Ethan and Heman are said to have written psalms (Pss 88; 89). Calcol and Darda were perhaps musicians. 4.33 For examples of nature wisdom see Judg 9.8–15; 2 Kings 14.9; Prov 6.6; 30.15–19, 24–31.

5.1–19 Just as David had built a royal palace and had proposed to build a temple after God had given the king "rest from all his enemies around him" (2 Sam 7.1), so now Solomon turns his attention to building houses for himself and for the Lord. Throughout the ancient Near East the establishment of a new king was typically followed by palace and temple construction so that the new ruler and his god could be properly enthroned. 5.1 Tyre was a Phoenician city just off the coast of southern Lebanon and, along with Sidon, another Phoenician city twenty-two miles to the north, it dominated coastal trade around the Mediterranean throughout much of the first millennium B.C.E. Hiram is more than a friend to David; the Hebrew text suggests that the two were treaty partners (see also 2 Sam 5.11). Hiram's interest in continuing this treaty relationship may have prompted him to send goodwill ambassadors to Solomon (see v. 12). 5.3–5 In spite of the fact that 2 Sam 7 gives no explanation for God's forbidding David to build a temple, Solomon here suggests that David could not build a divine house because his kingdom had not been firmly established. He was still engaged in warfare with his enemies. This retrospective explanation defends David's failure to build a temple, but it contradicts 2 Sam 7.1. The phrase until the LORD put them under the soles of his feet may be based on 2 Sam 7.11, which seems to imply that God will give David rest from his enemies sometime in the future. The alternate reading my feet would suggest that only in Solomon's day was the kingdom established firmly enough to permit temple building, and this reading would provide a better transition to v. 4. Solomon clearly sees the building of the temple as a fulfillment of Nathan's prophecy (2 Sam 7.13). 5.6 Lebanon was famous in the ancient world as a source for cedar, a wood whose durability made it highly desirable as a building material. Cedar trees in Lebanon grew particularly tall and straight, characteristics that made them useful in the construction of monumental buildings. Solomon proposes to send workers to aid the Phoenicians (here called simply Sidonians) in cutting the timber and offers to pay the wages of the men timber. ⁹My servants shall bring it down to the sea from the Lebanon; I will make it into rafts to go by sea to the place you indicate. I will have them broken up there for you to take away. And you shall meet my needs by providing food for my household.” ¹⁰So Hiram supplied Solomon’s every need for timber of cedar and cypress. ¹¹Solomon in turn gave Hiram twenty thousand cors of wheat as food for his household, and twenty cors of fine oil. Solomon gave this to Hiram year by year. ¹²So the LORD gave Solomon wisdom, as he promised him. There was peace between Hiram and Solomon; and the two of them made a treaty.

¹³ King Solomon conscripted forced labor out of all Israel; the levy numbered thirty thousand men. ¹⁴He sent them to the Lebanon, ten thousand a month in shifts; they would be a month in the Lebanon and two months at home; Adoniram was in charge of the forced labor. ¹⁵Solomon also had seventy thousand laborers and eighty thousand stonecutters in the hill country, ¹⁶besides Solomon’s three thousand three hundred supervisors who were over the work, having charge of the people who did the work. ¹⁷At the king’s command, they quarried out great, costly stones in order to lay the foundation of the house with dressed stones. ¹⁸So Solomon’s builders and Hiram’s builders and the Gebalites did the stonecutting and prepared the timber and the stone to build the house.

Solomon Builds the Temple

6 In the four hundred eightieth year after the Israelites came out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year of Solomon’s reign over Israel, in the month of Ziv, which is the second month, he began to build the house of the LORD. ²The house that King Solomon built for the LORD was sixty cubits long, twenty cubits wide, and thirty cubits high. ³The vestibule in front of the nave of the house was twenty cubits wide, across the width of the house. Its depth was ten cubits in front of the house. ⁴For the house he made windows with recessed frames.^f ⁵He also built a structure against the wall of the house, running around the walls of the house, both the nave and the inner sanctuary; and he made side chambers all around. ⁶The lowest story^g was five cubits wide, the middle one was six cubits involved. 5.9 Hiram’s counteroffer leaves all of the timber cutting and logging in the hands of the Phoenicians. In return, Solomon will provide food not just for the Phoenician loggers but for Hiram’s entire royal court. 5.11 As a dry measure a cor is about 14 bushels; as a wet measure, it is estimated to be between 35 and 60 gallons. Fine oil, lit. “beaten oil,” was olive oil produced by allowing the oil to drip naturally out of a basket of crushed olives. 5.13–17 Work on the temple added to the tax burden already imposed to support Solomon’s court. 5.14 On Adoniram, see 2 Sam 20.24; notes on 4.2–6; 4.6. 5.17 The dressed stones for the foundation were ashlar, huge squared, finished blocks whose size made them very difficult to quarry and transport. 5.18 Gebalites were inhabitants of the Phoenician coastal city Gebal, later called Byblos by the Greeks.

6.1–22 This detailed description of the building of the temple is designed to impress readers with the building’s magnificence and the splendor of Solomon’s reign. The account is sometimes confusing because it uses a large number of rare and probably archaic architectural terms, which even the ancient Greek translators no longer understood. Most of the information in ch. 6 is taken from archival sources or from the Book of the Acts of Solomon (11.41). 6.1 Scholars estimate the fourth year of Solomon’s reign to lie somewhere between 966 and 956 B.C.E. This chronology would place the exodus about the middle of the fifteenth century B.C.E., a date that most modern scholars would consider too early. The month of Ziv is the second month in the Canaanite calendar (April–May). The temple was built to the north of David’s city on a threshing floor David acquired from Araunah the Jebusite (2 Sam 24.18–25). 6.2 A cubit is about 18 inches. Solomon’s temple seems to have been built on Phoenician-Syrian models and was essentially a rectangular building having an overall interior length of 90 feet, a width of 30 feet, and a height of 45 feet. 6.3 To this central structure was added an unroofed vestibule or entrance area 15 feet long and 30 feet wide. A worshiper entering the temple passed through the vestibule and then came to the 60-foot-long nave (v. 17). 6.5 The nave in turn led to an inner sanctuary or Holy of Holies, which was a perfect 30-foot cube (v. 20). Around the outside of the nave and the inner sanctuary was a three-story structure, which helped to support the walls and also provided storage space. Latticed windows high in the walls let in light and provided wide, and the third was seven cubits wide; for around the outside of the house he made offsets on the wall in order that the supporting beams should not be inserted into the walls of the house.

7 The house was built with stone finished at the quarry, so that neither hammer nor ax nor any tool of iron was heard in the temple while it was being built.

8 The entrance for the middle story was on the south side of the house: one went up by winding stairs to the middle story, and from the middle story to the third.⁹ So he built the house, and finished it; he roofed the house with beams and planks of cedar.¹⁰ He built the structure against the whole house, each story^h five cubits high, and it was joined to the house with timbers of cedar.

11 Now the word of the LORD came to Solomon,¹² "Concerning this house that you are building, if you will walk in my statutes, obey my ordinances, and keep all my commandments by walking in them, then I will establish my promise with you, which I made to your father David. ¹³I will dwell among the children of Israel, and will not forsake my people Israel."

14 So Solomon built the house, and finished it.¹⁵ He lined the walls of the house on the inside with boards of cedar; from the floor of the house to the rafters of the ceiling, he covered them on the inside with wood; and he covered the floor of the house with boards of cypress.¹⁶ He built twenty cubits of the rear of the house with boards of cedar from the floor to the rafters, and he built this within as an inner sanctuary, as the most holy place.¹⁷ The house, that is, the nave in front of the inner sanctuary, was forty cubits long.¹⁸ The cedar within the house had carvings of gourds and open flowers; all was cedar, no stone was seen.¹⁹ The inner sanctuary he prepared in the innermost part of the house, to set there the ark of the covenant of the LORD.²⁰ The interior of the inner sanctuary was twenty cubits long, twenty cubits wide, and twenty cubits high; he overlaid it with pure gold. He also overlaid the altar with cedar.ⁱ²¹ Solomon overlaid the inside of the house with pure gold, then he drew chains of gold across, in front of the inner sanctuary, and overlaid it with gold.²² Next he overlaid the whole house with gold, in order that the whole house might be perfect; even the whole altar that belonged to the inner sanctuary he overlaid with gold.

The Furnishings of the Temple

23 In the inner sanctuary he made two cherubim of olivewood, each ten cubits high.²⁴ Five cubits was the length of one wing of the cherub, and five cubits the length of the other wing of the cherub; it was ten cubits from the tip of one wing to the tip of the other.²⁵ The other cherub also measured ten cubits; both cherubim had the same measure and the same form.²⁶ The height of one cherub was ten cubits, and so was that of the other cherub.²⁷ He put the cherubim in the innermost part of the house; the wings of the cherubim were spread out so that a wing of one was touching the one wall, and a wing of the other cherub was touching the other wall; their other wings toward the center of the house were touching wing to wing.²⁸ He also overlaid the cherubim with gold.

29 He carved the walls of the house all around about with carved engravings of cherubim, palm trees, and open flowers, an exit for sacrificial smoke. 6.11-13 Just as Kings understands God's dynastic promise to David to be conditional on obedience (2.4) and sees the divine promise of longevity to Solomon in a similar way (3.14), so here Kings reminds Solomon that God's willingness to dwell in the temple is also conditional. This typically Deuteronomistic perspective runs counter to the widely held belief that God had promised to dwell eternally in Jerusalem (Pss 68.16; 135.21; Jer 7.1-15). 6.18 The elaborate decorations in the temple probably had religious significance. 6.19 The ark of the covenant was an old religious object associated with the Lord, which David had moved to Jerusalem and installed in a tent shrine (2 Sam 6). Solomon later installs the ark in the inner sanctuary of the temple, where it is considered the throne of God (2 Kings 19.15; Pss 80.1; 99.1; Isa 37.16). Other Israelite traditions saw it simply as the container for the Mosaic law (Ex 25.16; 1 Kings 8.9).

6.23-38 The furnishings of the temple were as elaborate and impressive as the building itself. 6.23-28 The cherubim (singular, cherub) were fantastic composite creatures on which God was sometimes thought to ride (2 Sam 22.11; Ps 18.10; Ezek 1; 10). In the temple they served in the inner and outer rooms. ³⁰The floor of the house he overlaid with gold, in the inner and outer rooms.

³¹ For the entrance to the inner sanctuary he made doors of olivewood; the lintel and the doorposts were five-sided.^j ³²He covered the two doors of olivewood with carvings of cherubim, palm trees, and open flowers; he overlaid them with gold, and spread gold on the cherubim and on the palm trees.

³³ So also he made for the entrance to the nave doorposts of olivewood, four-sided each, ³⁴and two doors of cypress wood; the two leaves of the one door were folding, and the two leaves of the other door were folding. ³⁵He carved cherubim, palm trees, and open flowers, overlaying them with gold evenly applied upon the carved work. ³⁶He built the inner court with three courses of dressed stone to one course of cedar beams.

³⁷ In the fourth year the foundation of the house of the LORD was laid, in the month of Ziv. ³⁸In the eleventh year, in the month of Bul, which is the eighth month, the house was finished in all its parts, and according to all its specifications. He was seven years in building it.

Solomon's Palace and Other Buildings

7 Solomon was building his own house thirteen years, and he finished his entire house.

2 He built the House of the Forest of the Lebanon one hundred cubits long, fifty cubits wide, and thirty cubits high, built on four rows of cedar pillars, with as guardians of the divine presence. 6.38 The month of Bul was the eighth month in the Canaanite calendar (October–November).

7.1–12 Like the description of the temple and its furnishings (6.1–38; 7.13–51), the account of Solomon's other building activities is probably drawn from old archives or from the Book of the Acts of Solomon (11.41). The king required considerably more time to build the palace than he did the temple (see 6.38). As in ch. 6, the descriptions of the buildings are sometimes unclear because of the archaic technical terms employed. 7.2–6 The house (v. 1) Solomon built was in fact a complex of interrelated buildings just to the south of the new temple. A cubit is about 18 inches. The House of the Forest of Lebanon took its name either from the cedar from which it was constructed or from its distinctive rows of cedar pillars, which may have given it the look of a forest. Of the five buildings in the complex, three of them were for public use, while two (the king's house and the house of his Egyptian queen) were

1 Kings 5–8 describes the building and dedication of the temple during Solomon's reign and under his direction, a rectangular structure with an overall interior length of 90 feet, a width of 30 feet, and a height of 45 feet, fronted by an unroofed vestibule ("porch") 15 feet long and 30 feet wide.

cedar beams on the pillars. ³It was roofed with cedar on the forty-five rafters, fifteen in each row, which were on the pillars. ⁴There were window frames in the three rows, facing each other in the three rows. ⁵All the doorways and doorposts had four-sided frames, opposite, facing each other in the three rows.

6 He made the Hall of Pillars fifty cubits long and thirty cubits wide. There was a porch in front with pillars, and a canopy in front of them.

7 He made the Hall of the Throne where he was to pronounce judgment, the Hall of Justice, covered with cedar from floor to floor.

8 His own house where he would reside, in the other court back of the hall, was of the same construction. Solomon also made a house like this hall for Pharaoh's daughter, whom he had taken in marriage.

9 All these were made of costly stones,

cut according to measure, sawed with saws, back and front, from the foundation to the coping, and from outside to the great court. ¹⁰The foundation was of costly stones, huge stones, stones of eight and ten cubits. ¹¹There were costly stones above, cut to measure, and cedarwood. ¹²The great court had three courses of dressed stone to one layer of cedar beams all around; so had the inner court of the house of the LORD, and the vestibule of the house.

Products of Hiram the Bronzeworker

13 Now King Solomon invited and received Hiram from Tyre. ¹⁴He was the son of a widow of the tribe of Naphtali, whose father, a man of Tyre, had been an artisan in bronze; he was full of skill, intelligence, and knowledge in working bronze. He came to King Solomon, and did all his work.

15 He cast two pillars of bronze. Eigh-

Solomon's private domain. 7.9 Sawed stone has a smoother surface than stone finished with a hammer and chisel.

7.13-51 This archival account of the furnishings of the temple underscores the high quality of craftsmanship involved in Solomon's building projects. Like the temple itself, the furnishings were likely to have been inspired by Phoenician religious practices. 7.13-14 Hiram from Tyre is not the king who supplied Solomon with building materials (ch. 5) but an artisan skilled in working bronze. The text's reference to his Israelite mother is designed to combat the notion that work on the temple was done by a foreigner. 7.15-22 The two pillars of bronze flanked the entrance to the temple, where they do not seem to have had any obvious structural function.

A depiction of the temple by T. A. Busink, an authority on ancient architecture. Although the temple's interior decorations are described in detail in 1 Kings 6, little information is given about its external appearance, which may have been stark and formidable.

teen cubits was the height of the one, and a cord of twelve cubits would encircle it; the second pillar was the same.^k 16 He also made two capitals of molten bronze, to set on the tops of the pillars; the height of the one capital was five cubits, and the height of the other capital was five cubits. 17 There were nets of checker work with wreaths of chain work for the capitals on the tops of the pillars; seven^l for the one capital, and seven^l for the other capital. 18 He made the columns with two rows around each latticework to cover the capitals that were above the pomegranates; he did the same with the other capital. 19 Now the capitals that were on the tops of the pillars in the vestibule were of lily-work, four cubits high. 20 The capitals were on the two pillars and also above the rounded projection that was beside the latticework; there were two hundred pomegranates in rows all around; and so with the other capital. 21 He set up the pillars at the vestibule of the temple; he set up the pillar on the south and called it Jachin; and he set up the pillar on the north and called it Boaz. 22 On the tops of the pillars was lily-work. Thus the work of the pillars was finished.

23 Then he made the molten sea; it was round, ten cubits from brim to brim, and five cubits high. A line of thirty cubits would encircle it completely. 24 Under its brim were panels all around it, each of ten cubits, surrounding the sea; there were two rows of panels, cast when it was cast. 25 It stood on twelve oxen, three facing north, three facing west, three facing south, and three facing east; the sea was set on them. The hindquarters of each were toward the inside. 26 Its thickness was a handbreadth; its brim was made like the brim of a cup, like the flower of a lily; it held two thousand baths.^m

27 He also made the ten stands of bronze; each stand was four cubits long, four cubits wide, and three cubits high.

28 This was the construction of the stands: they had borders; the borders were within the frames; 29 on the borders that were set in the frames were lions, oxen, and cherubim. On the frames, both above and below the lions and oxen, there were wreaths of beveled work. 30 Each stand had four bronze wheels and axles of bronze; at the four corners were supports for a basin. The supports were cast with wreaths at the side of each. 31 Its opening was within the crown whose height was one cubit; its opening was round, as a pedestal is made; it was a cubit and a half wide. At its opening there were carvings; its borders were four-sided, not round. 32 The four wheels were underneath the borders; the axles of the wheels were in the stands; and the height of a wheel was a cubit and a half. 33 The wheels were made like a chariot wheel; their axles, their rims, their spokes, and their hubs were all cast. 34 There were four supports at the four corners of each stand; the supports were of one piece with the stands. 35 On the top of the stand there was a round band half a cubit high; on the top of the stand, its stays and its borders were of one piece with it. 36 On the surfaces of its stays and on its borders he carved cherubim, lions, and palm trees, where each had space, with wreaths all around. 37 In this way he made the ten stands; all of them were cast alike, with the same size and the same form.

38 He made ten basins of bronze; each basin held forty baths,^m each basin measured four cubits; there was a basin for each of the ten stands. 39 He set five of the stands on the south side of the house, and five on the north side of the house; he set the sea on the southeast corner of the house.

40 Hiram also made the pots, the

7.21 The names Jachin and Boaz are probably significant, but only the meaning of Jachin (Hebrew, "he establishes") is certain. As an architectural feature, these impressive objects may have served as symbolic markers of the sacredness of the temple enclosure. 7.23–26 The molten sea was a cast bronze vessel of enormous size (a bath is roughly the equivalent of 5.5 gallons), supported by a pedestal of twelve oxen or bulls, which are traditional

Canaanite symbols of fertility. The precise function of this object is uncertain. 2 Chr 4.6 suggests that it was for the priests to wash in, but this seems questionable given the object's height off the ground. The sea may have represented the cosmic sea or had some other religious association. 7.27–39 The ten stands consisted of bronze wagons that served as supports for basins. 7.40–47 The pots, the shovels, and the basins were shovels, and the basins. So Hiram finished all the work that he did for King Solomon on the house of the LORD: ⁴¹the two pillars, the two bowls of the capitals that were on the tops of the pillars, the two latticeworks to cover the two bowls of the capitals that were on the tops of the pillars; ⁴²the four hundred pomegranates for the two latticeworks, two rows of pomegranates for each latticework, to cover the two bowls of the capitals that were on the pillars; ⁴³the ten stands, the ten basins on the stands; ⁴⁴the one sea, and the twelve oxen underneath the sea.

⁴⁸ So Solomon made all the vessels that were in the house of the LORD: the golden altar, the golden table for the bread of the Presence, ⁴⁹the lampstands of pure gold, five on the south side and five on the north, in front of the inner sanctuary; the flowers, the lamps, and the tongs, of gold; ⁵⁰the cups, snuffers, basins, dishes for incense, and firepans, of pure gold; the sockets for the doors of the innermost part of the house, the most holy place, and for the doors of the nave of the temple, of gold.

⁵¹ Thus all the work that King Solomon did on the house of the LORD was finished. Solomon brought in the things that his father David had dedicated, the silver, the gold, and the vessels, and stored them in the treasuries of the house of the LORD.

Dedication of the Temple

8 Then Solomon assembled the elders of Israel and all the heads of the tribes, the leaders of the ancestral houses of the Israelites, before King Solomon in Jerusalem, to bring up the ark of the covenant of the LORD out of the city of David, which is Zion. ²All the people of Israel assembled to King Solomon at the festival in the month Ethanim, which is the seventh month. ³And all the elders of Israel came, and the priests carried the ark. ⁴So they brought up the ark of the LORD, the tent of meeting, and all the holy vessels that were in the tent; the priests and the Levites brought them up. ⁵King Solomon and all the congregation of Israel, who had assembled before him, were with him before the ark, sacrificing so many sheep and oxen that they could not be counted or numbered. ⁶Then the priests brought the ark of the covenant of the LORD to its place, in the inner sanctuary of the house, in the most holy place, underneath the wings of the cherubim. ⁷For the cherubim spread out their wings over the place of the ark, so that the cherubim made a cov-

used during sacrificial rituals. These objects closely resemble those created earlier for use in the tabernacle (Ex 27.3). Hiram cast all of the utensils by pouring bronze into clay molds. 7.46 Succoth and Zarethan are on the plain of the Jordan River near the Jabbok. 7.48–50 This passage too echoes earlier descriptions of the tabernacle (Ex 25.23–40; 30.1–10). On the bread of the Presence, see Lev 24.5–9; Ex 25.23–30; 40.23; Num 4.7. Apparently the lampstands each supported only one lamp and are therefore not identical with the seven-branched lampstands mentioned elsewhere (Ex 25.31–40; 37.17–24; Lev 24.1–4). 7.51 For the objects David had dedicated to the Lord, see 2 Sam 8.9–12; 1 Chr 29.1–5.

8.1–13 Solomon's installation of the ark marks the religious climax of the new temple's construction and signifies the beginning of God's permanent residence in the building. 8.1–2

The leaders Solomon assembles are the heads of Israel's traditional kinship groups or lineages, and they join with all the people of Israel for the ceremony. The installation takes place in Ethanim, the seventh month of the old Canaanite calendar (September–October), so for unknown reasons Solomon delayed the event for almost a year after the completion of the temple itself (6.38). The festival associated with the gathering was probably Sukkoth (the Festival of Booths or Tabernacles), a seven-day fall harvest festival, which in Deuteronomic tradition was the occasion for the ritual reading of the Mosaic law every seven years (Ex 23.16; 34.22; Deut 16.13–17; 31.9–13; cf. 1 Kings 8.65–66). 8.3–4 The priests and the Levites, the traditional custodians of the ark (Deut 31.9; 2 Sam 15.24), carried it from the tent in Zion, the older part of Jerusalem which David had occupied (2 Sam 6.1–23), and moved it north to the new temple. 8.6 Ark. See note on

ering above the ark and its poles. ⁸The poles were so long that the ends of the poles were seen from the holy place in front of the inner sanctuary; but they could not be seen from outside; they are there to this day. ⁹There was nothing in the ark except the two tablets of stone that Moses had placed there at Horeb, where the LORD made a covenant with the Israelites, when they came out of the land of Egypt. ¹⁰And when the priests came out of the holy place, a cloud filled the house of the LORD, ¹¹so that the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud; for the glory of the LORD filled the house of the LORD.

12 Then Solomon said,

"The LORD has said that he would dwell in thick darkness.

13 I have built you an exalted house,
a place for you to dwell in
forever."

Solomon's Speech

14 Then the king turned around and blessed all the assembly of Israel, while all the assembly of Israel stood. ¹⁵He said, "Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, who with his hand has fulfilled what he promised with his mouth to my father David, saying, ¹⁶'Since the day that I brought my people Israel out of Egypt, I have not chosen a city from any of the tribes of Israel in which to build a house, that my name might be there; but I chose David to be over my people Israel.' ¹⁷My father David had it in mind to build a house for the name of the LORD, the God of Israel. ¹⁸But the LORD said to my father David, 'You did well to consider building a house for my name; ¹⁹nevertheless you shall not build the house, but your son who shall be born to you shall build the house for my name.' ²⁰Now the LORD has upheld the promise that he made; for I have risen in the place of my father David; I sit on the throne of Israel, as the LORD promised, and have built the house for the name of the LORD, the God of Israel. ²¹There I have provided a place for the ark, in which is the covenant of the LORD that he made with our ancestors when he brought them out of the land of Egypt."

Solomon's Prayer of Dedication

22 Then Solomon stood before the altar of the LORD in the presence of all the assembly of Israel, and spread out his hands to heaven. ²³He said, "O LORD, God of Israel, there is no God like you in heaven above or on earth beneath, keeping covenant and steadfast love for your servants who walk before you with all their heart, ²⁴the covenant that you kept for your servant my father David as you declared to him; you promised with your mouth and have this day fulfilled with your hand. ²⁵Therefore, O LORD, God of Israel, keep for your servant my father David that which you promised him, saying, 'There shall never fail you a successor before me to sit on the throne of Israel, if only your children look to their way, to walk before me as you have walked before me.' ²⁶Therefore, O God of Israel, let your word be confirmed, which you promised to your servant my father David.

6.19. Cherubim. See note on 6.23–28. 8.8 The ark's carrying poles extended through the veil that blocked the inner sanctuary from public view (2 Chr 3.14) and reminded visitors to the nave of the ark's presence. The remark that the poles are there to this day indicates that the account was written sometime after the events being narrated but before the destruction of the temple. 8.10–11 Once the ark is in its proper place, the temple is filled with a cloud, a traditional symbol of God's presence (Ex 13.21; 19.16), and with the glory of the LORD, the visible aura or radiance surrounding the deity (Ex 40.34–35; Ezek 1.1–28; 10.18–19; 11.22–23; 43.1–5). 8.12–13 The thick darkness in which God dwells is the dark cloud that conceals the deity.

8.22–53 Solomon's prayer of petition to the Lord is an archetypal statement of Deuteronomistic theology and is directed to the people and to readers as much as it is to the deity. After introductory references to God's faithfulness to the covenant with David (vv. 22–30; 2 Sam 7.1–17), the king makes seven petitions (vv. 31–32, 33–34, 35–36, 37–40, 41–43, 44–45, 46–51), each of which asks God to hear the prayers of those who are righteous and truly repent of their sins. The last case deals with exile and captivity and holds out hope for the exilic audience reading the book.

27 “But will God indeed dwell on the earth? Even heaven and the highest heaven cannot contain you, much less this house that I have built! 28 Regard your servant’s prayer and his plea, O LORD my God, heeding the cry and the prayer that your servant prays to you today; 29 that your eyes may be open night and day toward this house, the place of which you said, ‘My name shall be there,’ that you may heed the prayer that your servant prays toward this place. 30 Hear the plea of your servant and of your people Israel when they pray toward this place; O hear in heaven your dwelling place; heed and forgive.

31 “If someone sins against a neighbor and is given an oath to swear, and comes and swears before your altar in this house, 32 then hear in heaven, and act, and judge your servants, condemning the guilty by bringing their conduct on their own head, and vindicating the righteous by rewarding them according to their righteousness.

33 “When your people Israel, having sinned against you, are defeated before an enemy but turn again to you, confess your name, pray and plead with you in this house, 34 then hear in heaven, forgive the sin of your people Israel, and bring them again to the land that you gave to their ancestors.

35 “When heaven is shut up and there is no rain because they have sinned against you, and then they pray toward this place, confess your name, and turn from their sin, because you punishⁿ them, 36 then hear in heaven, and forgive the sin of your servants, your people Israel, when you teach them the good way in which they should walk; and grant rain on your land, which you have given to your people as an inheritance.

37 “If there is famine in the land, if there is plague, blight, mildew, locust, or caterpillar; if their enemy besieges them in any^o of their cities; whatever plague, whatever sickness there is; 38 whatever prayer, whatever plea there is from any individual or from all your people Israel, all knowing the afflictions of their own hearts so that they stretch out their hands toward this house; 39 then hear in heaven your dwelling place, forgive, act, and render to all whose hearts you know—according to all their ways, for only you know what is in every human heart— 40 so that they may fear you all the days that they live in the land that you gave to our ancestors.

41 “Likewise when a foreigner, who is not of your people Israel, comes from a distant land because of your name 42—for they shall hear of your great name, your mighty hand, and your outstretched arm—when a foreigner comes and prays toward this house, 43 then hear in heaven your dwelling place, and do according to all that the foreigner calls to you, so that all the peoples of the earth may know your name and fear you, as do your people Israel, and so that they may know that your name has been invoked on this house that I have built.

44 “If your people go out to battle against their enemy, by whatever way you shall send them, and they pray to the LORD toward the city that you have chosen and the house that I have built for your name, 45 then hear in heaven their prayer and their plea, and maintain their cause.

46 “If they sin against you—for there is no one who does not sin—and you are angry with them and give them to an enemy, so that they are carried away captive to the land of the enemy, far off or near; 47 yet if they come to their senses in the land to which they have been taken captive, and repent, and plead with you in the land of their captors, saying, ‘We have sinned, and have done wrong; we have acted wickedly’; 48 if they repent with all their heart and soul in the land of their enemies, who took them captive, and pray to you toward their land, which you gave to their ancestors, the city that you have chosen, and the house that I have built for your name; 49 then hear in heaven your dwelling place their prayer and their plea, maintain their cause 50 and forgive your people who have sinned against you, and all their transgressions that they have committed against you; and grant them compassion in the sight of their captors, so that they may have compassion on them 51 (for they are your people and heritage, which you brought out of Egypt, from the midst of the iron-smelter). 52 Let your eyes be open to the plea of your servant, and to the plea of your people Israel, listening to them whenever they call to you. 53 For you have separated them from among all the peoples of the earth, to be your heritage, just as you promised through Moses, your servant, when you brought our ancestors out of Egypt, O Lord God."

Solomon Blesses the Assembly

54 Now when Solomon finished offering all this prayer and this plea to the LORD, he arose from facing the altar of the LORD, where he had knelt with hands outstretched toward heaven; 55 he stood and blessed all the assembly of Israel with a loud voice:

56 "Blessed be the LORD, who has given rest to his people Israel according to all that he promised; not one word has failed of all his good promise, which he spoke through his servant Moses. 57 The LORD our God be with us, as he was with our ancestors; may he not leave us or abandon us, 58 but incline our hearts to him, to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commandments, his statutes, and his ordinances, which he commanded our ancestors. 59 Let these words of mine, with which I pleaded before the LORD, be near to the LORD our God day and night, and may he maintain the cause of his servant and the cause of his people Israel, as each day requires; 60 so that all the peoples of the earth may know that the LORD is God; there is no other. 61 Therefore devote yourselves completely to the LORD our God, walking in his statutes and keeping his commandments, as at this day."

Solomon Offers Sacrifices

62 Then the king, and all Israel with him, offered sacrifice before the LORD. 63 Solomon offered as sacrifices of well-being to the LORD twenty-two thousand oxen and one hundred twenty thousand sheep. So the king and all the people of Israel dedicated the house of the LORD. 64 The same day the king consecrated the middle of the court that was in front of the house of the LORD; for there he offered the burnt offerings and the grain offerings and the fat pieces of the sacrifices of well-being, because the bronze altar that was before the LORD was too small to receive the burnt offerings and the grain offerings and the fat pieces of the sacrifices of well-being.

65 So Solomon held the festival at that time, and all Israel with him—a great assembly, people from Lebhamath to the Wadi of Egypt—before the LORD our God, seven days.^p 66 On the eighth day he sent the people away; and they blessed the king, and went to their tents, joyful and in good spirits because of all the goodness that the LORD had shown to his servant David and to his people Israel.

God Appears Again to Solomon

8.54–61 This section resumes the narrative that frames Solomon's lengthy prayer (cf. vv. 14–22). It consists chiefly of Deuteronomistic exhortation to covenant faithfulness. 8.54 Arose ... where he had knelt. This contrasts with v. 22 where Solomon is said to have been praying while standing. 8.55 Blessed all the assembly of Israel, normally a priestly function (cf. Num 6.22–27) is here done by the king (as in v. 14). 8.56 Who has given rest. The author saw in this reference a fulfillment of the promise given in Deut 12.10–11.

tional northern boundary of the land promised to Israel (Num 34.7–9; Josh 13.5; Ezek 47.15). Its exact location is uncertain, but it has been identified with modern Lebweh, to the south of the city of Hamath (modern Hama) on the Orontes River in Syria. The Wadi of Egypt or Wadi of the Arabah (Am 6.14) was the traditional southern boundary and is usually identified with the Wadi el-Arish in Egypt's Sinai Peninsula.

9.1–9 The location of Solomon's second vision is not specified, but the divine revelation presumably comes in a dream, as it did at Gibeon. See notes on 3.1–15. God's address to Solomon is in good Deuteronomistic style and articulates the theological views that underlie the rest of Kings. The address thus provides a necessary framework for understanding both the narrative of the rest of Solomon's reign (9.10–11.43) and the account of the history of Israel and Judah to the exile.

a second time, as he had appeared to him at Gibeon. ³The LORD said to him, "I have heard your prayer and your plea, which you made before me; I have consecrated this house that you have built, and put my name there forever; my eyes and my heart will be there for all time. ⁴As for you, if you will walk before me, as David your father walked, with integrity of heart and uprightness, doing according to all that I have commanded you, and keeping my statutes and my ordinances, ⁵then I will establish your royal throne over Israel forever, as I promised your father David, saying, 'There shall not fail you a successor on the throne of Israel.'

⁶ "If you turn aside from following me, you or your children, and do not keep my commandments and my statutes that I have set before you, but go and serve other gods and worship them, ⁷then I will cut Israel off from the land that I have given them; and the house that I have consecrated for my name I will cast out of my sight; and Israel will become a proverb and a taunt among all peoples. ⁸This house will become a heap of ruins; ⁹everyone passing by it will be astonished, and will hiss; and they will say, 'Why has the LORD done such a thing to this land and to this house?' ⁹Then they will say, 'Because they have forsaken the LORD their God, who brought their ancestors out of the land of Egypt, and embraced other gods, worshiping them and serving them; therefore the LORD has brought this disaster upon them.'

Solomon's Further Dealings with Hiram

¹⁰ At the end of twenty years, in which Solomon had built the two houses, the house of the LORD and the king's house, ¹¹King Hiram of Tyre having supplied Solomon with cedar and cypress timber and gold, as much as he desired, King Solomon gave to Hiram twenty cities in the land of Galilee. ¹²But when Hiram came from Tyre to see the cities that Solomon had given him, they did not please him. ¹³Therefore he said, "What kind of cities are these that you have given me, my brother?" So they are called the land of Cabul^r to this day. ¹⁴But Hiram had sent to the king one hundred twenty talents of gold.

Other Acts of Solomon

¹⁵ This is the account of the forced labor that King Solomon conscripted to build the house of the LORD and his own house, the Millo and the wall of Jerusalem, Hazor, Megiddo, Gezer ¹⁶(Pharaoh king of Egypt had gone up and captured Gezer and burned it down, had killed the Canaanites who lived in the city, and had given it as dowry to his daughter, Solomon's wife; ¹⁷so Solomon rebuilt Gezer), Lower Beth-horon, ¹⁸Baalath, Tamar in

9.3 God's initial statement concerning the sanctification of the temple verbalizes what readers have already seen in 8.10–11. The temple is now holy because God has caused the divine name to dwell there forever. The promise to keep the temple always in view is a positive answer to Solomon's prayer (8.29, 52). 9.4–5 Addressing Solomon directly, God again makes the continuation of Davidic rule contingent on Solomon's obedience to the commandments associated with the covenant (cf. 2.4). 9.6–9 In these verses the you of the address switches from singular to plural, and God warns Solomon's descendants that they too must obey if the divine presence is to remain in the temple. If they do not obey the law, here summarized by the command to worship only the Lord (Deut 6.4), then king and people together will be punished (cf. 6.11–13). This threat is later recalled in the Deuteronomistic explanation for the destruction of the Northern Kingdom

9.10–14 Hiram had already been paid for the building materials (see 5.9–11), so Solomon probably sells the cities in order to replenish his depleted treasury. 9.11 Galilee is in northern Israel between the Jezreel Valley and the Leontes River. The upper part of the region lies just to the east of Tyre. 9.13 The meaning of Cabul is uncertain. 9.14 Even though Hiram was displeased with the cities when he saw them, he had apparently already paid for them and was unable to cancel the sale. A talent weighs about 75 pounds.

9.15–25 This account of Solomon's other activities probably comes from official archives. 9.15 The Millo was an artificial platform or terrace of earth constructed to provide a suitable building surface. Its exact location in Jerusalem is the wilderness, within the land, ¹⁹as well as all of Solomon's storage cities, the cities for his chariots, the cities for his cavalry, and whatever Solomon desired to build, in Jerusalem, in Lebanon, and in all the land of his dominion. ²⁰All the people who were left of the Amorites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, who were not of the people of Israel— ²¹their descendants who were still left in the land, whom the Israelites were unable to destroy completely—these Solomon conscripted for slave labor, and so they are to this day. ²²But of the Israelites Solomon made no slaves; they were the soldiers, they were his officials, his commanders, his captains, and the commanders of his chariotry and cavalry.

²⁴ But Pharaoh's daughter went up from the city of David to her own house that Solomon had built for her; then he built the Millo.

²⁵ Three times a year Solomon used to offer up burnt offerings and sacrifices of well-being on the altar that he built for the LORD, offering incense^s before the LORD. So he completed the house.

Solomon's Commercial Activity

²⁶ King Solomon built a fleet of ships at Ezion-geber, which is near Elath on the shore of the Red Sea,^t in the land of Edom. ²⁷Hiram sent his servants with the fleet, sailors who were familiar with the sea, together with the servants of Solomon. ²⁸They went to Ophir, and imported from there four hundred twenty talents of gold, which they delivered to King Solomon.

Visit of the Queen of Sheba

10 When the queen of Sheba heard of the fame of Solomon (fame due to^u the name of the LORD), she came to test him with hard questions. ²She came to Jerusalem with a very great retinue, with camels bearing spices, and very much gold, and precious stones; and when she came to Solomon, she told him all that was on her mind. ³Solomon answered all her questions; there was nothing hidden from the king that he could not explain to her. ⁴When the queen of Sheba had observed all the wisdom of Solomon, the house that he had built, ⁵the food of his table, the seating of his offi-

unknown. 9.20–22 In addition to the Israelites who were forced to provide labor for Solomon's building activities (5.13–18), he also employed slave labor drawn from the pre-Israelite inhabitants of Canaan, the same people marked for extermination by the book of Deuteronomy (Deut 7.1–6; 20.16–18). The claim that Solomon used Israelites only as overseers does not agree with 5.13–18 or 12.4.

9.26–28 Because Israel was not known for trading by sea, the fleet represents an attempt to expand Solomon's economic base. 9.26 Ezion-geber is on the Gulf of Aqaba, so Solomon intends to use the Red Sea for access to ports in eastern Africa and southern Arabia. 9.28 Ophir was renowned as a source for gold (Job 22.24; 28.16; Ps 45.9; Isa 13.12). Its exact location is uncertain. A talent weighs about 75 pounds.

10.1–29 While the building and dedication of the temple mark the religious high point of Solomon's reign, the story of the queen of Sheba's visit shows him at the height of his secular power. The narrator has taken an old legend of the foreign ruler's visit and used it as an occasion to dramatize Solomon's enormous wisdom and the material rewards that wisdom can bring. References to gold and precious objects abound, and the sheer richness of the description is designed to leave readers as awestruck as the queen herself. In the context of the overall narrative, the chapter sharpens the contrast between the brilliance of the Solomonic court (chs. 3–10) and the dark side of his reign, the sins that ultimately bring judgment on the Davidic dynasty and on the nation as a whole (ch. 11). 10.1 The exact location of Sheba is unknown, but many scholars identify it with Saba, the home of the Sabeans, who occupied the southwestern part of the Arabian Peninsula (modern Yemen). This is precisely the area with which Solomon was anxious to establish trading relationships (9.26–28). Ancient Israelite geographers recognized their own kinship with the inhabitants of Sheba (Gen 10.28) but also associated them with Africa (Gen 10.7). This perception of the Sabeans probably reflects their crucial role in transporting spices, gold, and precious stones from Africa, India, and Arabia (Ps 72.10; Isa 60.6; Jer 6.20; Ezek 27.22–23). The queen's hard questions are not described in detail, but they were riddles of the sort that were the basis of Samson's contest with the Philistines (Judg 14.12–18). The ability to solve riddles was the mark of a wise per-cials, and the attendance of his servants, their clothing, his valets, and his burnt offerings that he offered at the house of the LORD, there was no more spirit in her.

6 So she said to the king, "The report was true that I heard in my own land of your accomplishments and of your wisdom, 7 but I did not believe the reports until I came and my own eyes had seen it. Not even half had been told me; your wisdom and prosperity far surpass the report that I had heard. 8 Happy are your wives! Happy are these your servants, who continually attend you and hear your wisdom! 9 Blessed be the LORD your God, who has delighted in you and set you on the throne of Israel! Because the LORD loved Israel forever, he has made you king to execute justice and righteousness." 10 Then she gave the king one hundred twenty talents of gold, a great quantity of spices, and precious stones; never again did spices come in such quantity as that which the queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon.

11 Moreover, the fleet of Hiram, which carried gold from Ophir, brought from Ophir a great quantity of almug wood and precious stones. 12 From the almug wood the king made supports for the house of the LORD, and for the king's house, lyres also and harps for the singers; no such almug wood has come or been seen to this day.

13 Meanwhile King Solomon gave to the queen of Sheba every desire that she expressed, as well as what he gave her out of Solomon's royal bounty. Then she returned to her own land, with her servants.

14 The weight of gold that came to Solomon in one year was six hundred sixty-six talents of gold, 15 besides that which came from the traders and from the business of the merchants, and from all the kings of Arabia and the governors of the land. 16 King Solomon made two hundred large shields of beaten gold; six hundred shekels of gold went into each large shield. 17 He made three hundred shields of beaten gold; three minas of gold went into each shield; and the king put them in the House of the Forest of Lebanon. 18 The king also made a great ivory throne, and overlaid it with the finest gold. 19 The throne had six steps. The top of the throne was rounded in the back, and on each side of the seat were arm rests and two lions standing beside the arm rests, 20 while twelve lions were standing, one on each end of a step on the six steps. Nothing like it was ever made in any kingdom. 21 All King Solomon's drinking vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of the House of the Forest of Lebanon were of pure gold; none were of silver—it was not considered as anything in the days of Solomon. 22 For the king had a fleet of ships of Tarshish at sea with the fleet of Hiram. Once every three years the fleet of ships of Tarshish used to come bringing gold, silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks.^w

23 Thus King Solomon excelled all the kings of the earth in riches and in wisdom. 24 The whole earth sought the presence of Solomon to hear his wisdom, which God had put into his mind. 25 Every one of them brought a present, objects of silver and gold, garments, weaponry, spices, horses, and mules, so much year by year.

26 Solomon gathered together chariots and horses; he had fourteen hundred chariots and twelve thousand horses, which he stationed in the chariot cities and with the king in Jerusalem. 27 The king made silver as common in Jerusalem as stones, and he made cedars as numer-

An exchange of gifts was customary at meetings between monarchs (cf. v. 13). 10.11 On Solomon's trading ventures with Hiram, see 9.26–28. Here Israelite participation in the voyages is not mentioned. Ophir. See note on 9.28. Almug wood is perhaps red sandalwood. 10.16 The large shields were probably rectangular and designed to protect the entire body. The ones mentioned here and in v. 17 are decorative rather than functional. The weight of a shekel varied greatly in ancient Israel, but it averaged about .4 ounce. 10.17 The shields referred to here were likely to have been small circular shields. A mina is the equivalent of fifty shekels. 10.22 The location of Tarshish is uncertain. Some scholars have placed it in the Mediterranean (see Gen 10.4), while others prefer a site in India, Africa, or

ous as the sycamores of the Shephelah. ²⁸Solomon's import of horses was from Egypt and Kue, and the king's traders received them from Kue at a price. ²⁹A chariot could be imported from Egypt for six hundred shekels of silver, and a horse for one hundred fifty; so through the king's traders they were exported to all the kings of the Hittites and the kings of Aram.

Solomon's Errors

11 King Solomon loved many foreign women along with the daughter of Pharaoh: Moabite, Ammonite, Edomite, Sidonian, and Hittite women, ²from the nations concerning which the LORD had said to the Israelites, "You shall not enter into marriage with them, neither shall they with you; for they will surely incline your heart to follow their gods"; Solomon clung to these in love. ³Among his wives were seven hundred princesses and three hundred concubines; and his wives turned away his heart. ⁴For when Solomon was old, his wives turned away his heart after other gods; and his heart was not true to the LORD his God, as was the heart of his father David. ⁵For Solomon followed Ashtarte the goddess of the Sidonians, and Milcom the abomination of the Ammonites. ⁶So Solomon did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, and did not completely follow the LORD, as his father David had done. ⁷Then Solomon built a high place for Chemosh the abomination of Moab, and for Molech the abomination of the Ammonites, on the mountain east of Jerusalem. ⁸He did the same for all his foreign wives, who offered incense and sacrificed to their gods.

⁹ Then the LORD was angry with Solomon, because his heart had turned away from the LORD, the God of Israel, who had appeared to him twice, ¹⁰and had commanded him concerning this matter, that he should not follow other gods; but he did not observe what the LORD commanded. ¹¹Therefore the LORD said to Solomon, "Since this has been your mind and you have not kept my covenant and my statutes that I have commanded you, I will surely tear the kingdom from you and give it to your servant. ¹²Yet for the sake of your father David I will not do it in your lifetime; I will tear it out of the hand of your son. ¹³I will not, however, tear

Arabia. The context suggests that the ships were capable of making long voyages. 10.28 Kue is located in southeastern Turkey. 10.29 The kings of the Hittites ruled over parts of northern Syria. Solomon's importation of war horses and chariots from Egypt is a direct violation of the prohibition in Deut 17.16.

11.1–13 These verses provide a sharp contrast with the rosy picture of Solomon's achievements in chs. 3–10. In characteristic Deuteronomistic style, the narrator provides a theological evaluation of the king's reign and concludes that in the end Solomon violated the conditions attached to God's promise of an eternal Davidic dynasty (2.4; 9.4–5). 11.1–2 Deuteronomy's prohibition against intermarriage with the original inhabitants of Canaan (Deut 7.1–6) is here expanded to include Phoenician trading partners such as Sidon and vassals such as Moab, Ammon, and Edom. The latter three nations, Israel's immediate neighbors to the east and south, had been subjugated by David and were vassals during much of Solomon's reign (2 Sam 8.2, 9–14; 12.26–31). 11.4 The reference to Solomon's old age may be an oblique attempt to blame his sins on senility. In reality the difficulties started early in his reign with his marriage to an Egyptian princess (3.1). 11.5 The note that Solomon followed these deities seems to imply that he actually worshiped them and did not simply tolerate their worship. Ashtarte (or Ashtoreth) was a Canaanite goddess corresponding to the Mesopotamian goddess Ishtar and later identified with Aphrodite and Venus. In extrabiblical texts, as well as in the OT, she is usually portrayed as the consort of Baal, the Canaanite storm god representing fertility. She was particularly popular among the Phoenicians and was the leading female deity in both Tyre and Sidon. The name of the Ammonite deity Milcom is derived from a Semitic root meaning "king" or "ruler." He is usually identified with Baal. 11.7 High place. See note on 3.2. Chemosh was the chief deity of Moab, but little is known about his characteristics. Molech, usually known only as a deity worshiped outside of Jerusalem in the Valley of Hinnom (Lev 18.21; 20.2–5; 2 Kings 23.10; Jer 32.35), is not otherwise associated with Ammon, and it is likely that Milcom is intended here (see v. 5). 11.9 For God's appearances to Solomon, see 3.5–14; 9.1–9. 11.13 Because of God's fidelity to the covenant with David, the Davidic line will not be terminated, even though such termination would have been justified. This gracious divine action fulfills one of the promises in Nathan's oracle to David (2 Sam 7.14–15).

away the entire kingdom; I will give one tribe to your son, for the sake of my servant David and for the sake of Jerusalem, which I have chosen."

Adversaries of Solomon

14 Then the LORD raised up an adversary against Solomon, Hadad the Edomite; he was of the royal house in Edom. 15 For when David was in Edom, and Joab the commander of the army went up to bury the dead, he killed every male in Edom 16 (for Joab and all Israel remained there six months, until he had eliminated every male in Edom); 17 but Hadad fled to Egypt with some Edomites who were servants of his father. He was a young boy at that time. 18 They set out from Midian and came to Paran; they took people with them from Paran and came to Egypt, to Pharaoh king of Egypt, who gave him a house, assigned him an allowance of food, and gave him land. 19 Hadad found great favor in the sight of Pharaoh, so that he gave him his sister-in-law for a wife, the sister of Queen Tahpenes. 20 The sister of Tahpenes gave birth by him to his son Genubath, whom Tahpenes weaned in Pharaoh's house; Genubath was in Pharaoh's house among the children of Pharaoh. 21 When Hadad heard in Egypt that David slept with his ancestors and that Joab the commander of the army was dead, Hadad said to Pharaoh, "Let me depart, that I may go to my own country." 22 But Pharaoh said to him, "What do you lack with me that you now seek to go to your own country?" And he said, "No, do let me go."

23 God raised up another adversary against Solomon,^x Rezon son of Eliada, who had fled from his master, King Hadadezer of Zobah. 24 He gathered followers around him and became leader of a marauding band, after the slaughter by David; they went to Damascus, settled there, and made him king in Damascus. 25 He was an adversary of Israel all the days of Solomon, making trouble as Hadad did; he despised Israel and reigned over Aram.

Jeroboam's Rebellion

26 Jeroboam son of Nebat, an Ephraimite of Zeredah, a servant of Solomon, whose mother's name was Zeruah, a widow, rebelled against the king. 27 The following was the reason he rebelled against the king. Solomon built the Millo, and closed up the gap in the wall^y of the city of his father David. 28 The man Jeroboam was very able, and when Solomon saw that the young man was industrious he gave him charge over all the forced labor of the house of Joseph. 29 About that time, when Jeroboam was leaving Jerusalem, the prophet Ahijah the Shilonite found him on the road. Ahijah had clothed himself with a new garment. The two of them were alone in the open country 30 when Ahijah laid hold of the new garment he was wearing and tore it into twelve pieces. 31 He then said to Jeroboam: Take for yourself ten pieces; for thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, "See, I am about to tear the kingdom from the hand of Solomon, and will give you ten tribes. 32 One tribe will remain his, for the sake of my servant David and for the sake of Jerusalem, the city that I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel. 33 This is because he has^z forsaken me, worshiped Astarte the goddess of the Sidonians, Chemosh the god of Moab, and Milcom the god of the Ammonites, and has^z not walked in my ways, doing what 11.14-25 Although Solomon is allowed to die before witnessing the judgment against his house, he does see the beginning of the loss of his empire. 11.15-16 For David's campaigns against Edom, see 2 Sam 8.11-14. The claim that David killed every male in Edom is doubtless exaggerated. 11.19 The Egyptian Queen Tahpenes is otherwise unknown. 11.23 On David's battles with Hadadezer of Zobah, see 2 Sam 8.3-8; 10.15-19.

11.26-40 The story of Jeroboam's rise to power is basically favorable toward the future

king, although some early Greek translations give a more negative picture. 11.29 Ahijah is identified with the old Israelite shrine at Shiloh and represents a theological viewpoint similar to that of the Deuteronomistic author. For similar prophetic involvement in a change of dynasty, see 1 Sam 15.27-28. 11.31 In contrast to v. 13, this verse seems to imply that two tribes are left to the house of David. The two are presumably Judah and Benjamin (see 12.21). The early absorption of Benjamin into the much larger Judah may is right in my sight and keeping my statutes and my ordinances, as his father David did. ³⁴Nevertheless I will not take the whole kingdom away from him but will make him ruler all the days of his life, for the sake of my servant David whom I chose and who did keep my commandments and my statutes; ³⁵but I will take the kingdom away from his son and give it to you—that is, the ten tribes. ³⁶Yet to his son I will give one tribe, so that my servant David may always have a lamp before me in Jerusalem, the city where I have chosen to put my name. ³⁷I will take you, and you shall reign over all that your soul desires; you shall be king over Israel. ³⁸If you will listen to all that I command you, walk in my ways, and do what is right in my sight by keeping my statutes and my commandments, as David my servant did, I will be with you, and will build you an enduring house, as I built for David, and I will give Israel to you. ³⁹For this reason I will punish the descendants of David, but not forever.” ⁴⁰Solomon sought therefore to kill Jeroboam; but Jeroboam promptly fled to Egypt, to King Shishak of Egypt, and remained in Egypt until the death of Solomon.

Death of Solomon

41 Now the rest of the acts of Solomon, all that he did as well as his wisdom, are they not written in the Book of the Acts of Solomon? ⁴²The time that Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel was forty years. ⁴³Solomon slept with his ancestors and was buried in the city of his father David; and his son Rehoboam succeeded him.

The Northern Tribes Secede

12 Rehoboam went to Shechem, for all Israel had come to Shechem to make him king. ²When Jeroboam son of Nebat heard of it (for he was still in Egypt, where he had fled from King Solomon), then Jeroboam returned from^a Egypt. ³And they sent and called him; and Jeroboam and all the assembly of Israel came and said to Rehoboam, ⁴“Your father made our yoke heavy. Now therefore lighten the hard service of your father and his heavy yoke that he placed on us, and we will serve you.” ⁵He said to them, “Go away for three days, then come again to me.” So the people went away.

⁶ Then King Rehoboam took counsel with the older men who had attended his father Solomon while he was still alive, saying, “How do you advise me to answer this people?” ⁷They answered him, “If you will be a servant to this people today and serve them, and speak good words to them when you answer them, then they will be your servants forever.” ⁸But he disregarded the advice that the older men gave him, and consulted with the young men who had grown up with him and now attended him. ⁹He said to them, “What do you advise that we answer this people who have said to me, ‘Lighten the yoke that your father put on us?’” ¹⁰The

have led the author of v. 13 to consider them a single tribe. 11.36 The meaning of the word translated lamp is uncertain. If the translation is retained, the statement would seem to mean that David will always have a presence or representative before God in Jerusalem. Some scholars have suggested that the word should be translated “fief” or “dominion.” 11.40 Shishak is the Hebrew rendering of the name of Pharaoh Shoshenq I (ca. 931–910 B.C.E.). He later invaded Palestine during the reign of Rehoboam (14.25–26).

11.41–43 This summary marks the end of Solomon’s reign. 11.41 The Book of the Acts of Solomon is otherwise unknown but is probably the source of much of the archival data in this part of Kings.

12.1–19 As in the case of David’s elevation to kingship (1 Sam 16.1–13; 2 Sam 5.1–5), divine legitimation through a prophet here precedes popular election. 12.1 Shechem was located about forty-one miles north of Jerusalem, between Mount Gerizim and Mount Ebal. It had been an important religious center for the northern tribes (Josh 24; Deut 27), and Rehoboam’s journey may have been intended to placate northern religious and political interests. 12.2–3 The Hebrew text of v. 2 (see text note ^a) seems to imply that Jeroboam remained in political exile in Egypt until the Northern tribes summoned him to lead their negotiations with Rehoboam (v. 3). In the Greek text Jeroboam returns before he is summoned. 12.4 The Israelites are referring here to the taxes and forced labor required by Solomon’s large court and numerous building projects (see 4.6–19; 5.13–18). 12.6–7 Throughout the ancient Near East it was customary for new monarchs to grant concessions young men who had grown up with him said to him, "Thus you should say to this people who spoke to you, 'Your father made our yoke heavy, but you must lighten it for us'; thus you should say to them, 'My little finger is thicker than my father's loins. ¹¹Now, whereas my father laid on you a heavy yoke, I will add to your yoke. My father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions.'"

¹² So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the third day, as the king had said, "Come to me again the third day." ¹³ The king answered the people harshly. He disregarded the advice that the older men had given him ¹⁴ and spoke to them according to the advice of the young men, "My father made your yoke heavy, but I will add to your yoke; my father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions." ¹⁵ So the king did not listen to the people, because it was a turn of affairs brought about by the LORD that he might fulfill his word, which the LORD had spoken by Ahijah the Shilonite to Jeroboam son of Nebat.

¹⁶ When all Israel saw that the king would not listen to them, the people answered the king,

"What share do we have in David?

We have no inheritance in the son of Jesse.

To your tents, O Israel!

Look now to your own house, O David."

So Israel went away to their tents. ¹⁷ But Rehoboam reigned over the Israelites who were living in the towns of Judah. ¹⁸ When King Rehoboam sent Adoram, who was taskmaster over the forced labor, all Israel stoned him to death. King Rehoboam then hurriedly mounted his chariot to flee to Jerusalem. ¹⁹ So Israel has been in rebellion against the house of David to this day.

First Dynasty: Jeroboam Reigns over Israel

²⁰ When all Israel heard that Jeroboam had returned, they sent and called him to the assembly and made him king over all Israel. There was no one who followed the house of David, except the tribe of Judah alone.

²¹ When Rehoboam came to Jerusalem, he assembled all the house of Judah and the tribe of Benjamin, one hundred eighty thousand chosen troops to fight against the house of Israel, to restore the kingdom to Rehoboam son of Solomon. ²² But the word of God came to Shemaiah the man of God: ²³ Say to King Rehoboam of Judah, son of Solomon, and to all the house of Judah and Benjamin, and to the rest of the people, ²⁴ "Thus says the LORD, You shall not go up or fight against your kindred the people of Israel. Let everyone go home, for this thing is from me." So they heeded the word of the LORD and went home again, according to the word of the LORD.

Jeroboam's Golden Calves

²⁵ Then Jeroboam built Shechem in the hill country of Ephraim, and resided there; he went out from there and built Penuel. ²⁶ Then Jeroboam said to himself, "Now the kingdom may well revert to the house of David. ²⁷ If this people continues to go up to offer sacrifices in the house of the LORD at Jerusalem, the heart of this people will turn again to their master, King Rehoboam of Judah; they will kill me and return to King Rehoboam of Judah." ²⁸ So the king took counsel, and at the beginning of their reigns. 12.11 If the reference to scorpions is not simply metaphorical, it may signify a particularly painful kind of whip. 12.15 For Ahijah's oracle, see 11.29–39. 12.16 Israel's call to revolt is reminiscent of the words used by Northerners during the revolts of the Davidic period (2 Sam 20.1). The reference to tents evokes Israel's premonarchical past as well as the possibility of military activity. 12.18 In spite of the threats of revolt, Rehoboam apparently tries to enforce his harsher policies in the North.

divine legitimization of Jeroboam's rise to power. 12.20–21 On the problem of the number of tribes that remained faithful to the Davidic house, see note on 11.31.

12.25–33 From the standpoint of the narrator, the new king's reign is problematic from the beginning, for his first royal acts violate most of the Deuteronomistic guidelines for proper worship. 12.25 On the significance of Jeroboam's choice of Shechem as the first capital, see note on 12.1. Penuel was east of the Jordan at a ford of the Jabbok River, where Jacob wrestled with God (cf. Gen 32.30–31). 12.28 The two calves may have made two calves of gold. He said to the people,^b “You have gone up to Jerusalem long enough. Here are your gods, O Israel, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt.”²⁹ He set one in Bethel, and the other he put in Dan.³⁰ And this thing became a sin, for the people went to worship before the one at Bethel and before the other as far as Dan.^c ³¹ He also made houses^d on high places, and appointed priests from among all the people, who were not Levites. ³² Jeroboam appointed a festival on the fifteenth day of the eighth month like the festival that was in Judah, and he offered sacrifices on the altar; so he did in Bethel, sacrificing to the calves that he had made. And he placed in Bethel the priests of the high places that he had made. ³³ He went up to the altar that he had made in Bethel on the fifteenth day in the eighth month, in the month that he alone had devised; he appointed a festival for the people of Israel, and he went up to the altar to offer incense.

A Man of God from Judah

13 While Jeroboam was standing by the altar to offer incense, a man of God came out of Judah by the word of the LORD to Bethel² and proclaimed against the altar by the word of the LORD, and said, “O altar, altar, thus says the LORD: ‘A son shall be born to the house of David, Josiah by name; and he shall sacrifice on you the priests of the high places who offer incense on you, and human bones shall be burned on you.’”³ He gave a sign the same day, saying, “This is the sign that the LORD has spoken: ‘The altar shall be torn down, and the ashes that are on it shall be poured out.’”⁴ When the

been bull images, traditional ancient Near Eastern symbols of power and fertility. In Canaan they were associated both with the god El, the head of the pantheon, and with the storm god Baal. The worship of the bull or calf in Israel had ancient roots (see, e.g., Ex 32), and Jeroboam may have thought that he was reconstituting an older and more authentic form of the worship of the Lord. In any case, his actions violate Israel's traditional prohibition against making images of the deity (Ex 20.4–6; Deut 4.15–19; 5.8–10), while the manufacture of two of these objects violates the Deuteronomic ban against worshipping more than one God (Deut 5.7; 6.4). 12.29 Bethel lies just north of Jerusalem and therefore on the southern boundary of the newly created Northern Kingdom. It had old associations with the worship of the Lord (Gen 28.10–22; Judg 20.18–28). Dan is the traditional marker of Israel's northern border. 12.31 High places. See note on 3.2. The houses were for the cultic activities that took place at the high places. Deuteronomy requires that all priests be Levites (Deut 18.1–8). 12.32 The festival referred to here is the Festival of Tabernacles, a harvest festival usually held on the fifteenth day of the seventh month (Num 29.12–39). 12.33 Jeroboam's priestly activities are not part of a king's proper duties according to Deuteronomy (Deut 17.14–20).

13.1–34 This chapter continues the narrative begun in 12.33 and makes explicit the condemnation of Jeroboam's religious policies implied in the descriptions of 12.26–32. The bulk of ch. 13 is composed of two interrelated prophetic legends, that is, stories that focus on prophets and their activities. Both stories may have once circulated orally in prophetic circles. The first story (vv. 1–10) continues the theme of the prophetic condemnation of sinful rulers, a theme that will dominate the remainder of 1 Kings and extend as far as 2 Kings 13. The second story (vv. 11–32) deals with the problem of true and false prophecy and may have originally been intended as a warning to prophets about the conduct of their office. Both stories illustrate an important theological motif of this portion of Kings, the inevitable fulfillment of the word of a genuine prophet (cf. Deut 18.15–22). 13.1 The unnamed Judean is given the title man of God, a designation used particularly in the Elijah-Elisha stories (1 Kings 17–2 Kings 10). The title may have originally been used to identify individuals able to use divine power in miraculous ways. On the significance of Jeroboam's cultic installation at Bethel, see notes on 12.28; 12.29. 13.2 The judgment oracle is directed against the altar itself and not against the king or the dynasty. Josiah finally desecrated the altar at Bethel about 620 B.C.E., roughly three hundred years after the prophecy was originally delivered (2 Kings 23.15–18). Sacrificing the priests and burning their bones on the altar would have defiled it, making it unfit for religious purposes. 13.3 Because the fulfillment of a prophecy might be delayed for many years, prophets sometimes gave signs to guarantee the truth of their oracles (Isa 7.11–17). The sign became a visible proof that the prophecy was true. Here the sign, the destruction of the altar, occurs immediately (v. 5). 13.4 The withering of the king's hand demonstrates the power of the prophet and king heard what the man of God cried out against the altar at Bethel, Jeroboam stretched out his hand from the altar, saying, "Seize him!" But the hand that he stretched out against him withered so that he could not draw it back to himself. ⁵The altar also was torn down, and the ashes poured out from the altar, according to the sign that the man of God had given by the word of the LORD. ⁶The king said to the man of God, "Entreat now the favor of the LORD your God, and pray for me, so that my hand may be restored to me." So the man of God entreated the LORD; and the king's hand was restored to him, and became as it was before. ⁷Then the king said to the man of God, "Come home with me and dine, and I will give you a gift." ⁸But the man of God said to the king, "If you give me half your kingdom, I will not go in with you; nor will I eat food or drink water in this place. ⁹For thus I was commanded by the word of the LORD: You shall not eat food, or drink water, or return by the way that you came." ¹⁰So he went another way, and did not return by the way that he had come to Bethel.

¹¹ Now there lived an old prophet in Bethel. One of his sons came and told him all that the man of God had done that day in Bethel; the words also that he had spoken to the king, they told to their father. ¹²Their father said to them, "Which way did he go?" And his sons showed him the way that the man of God who came from Judah had gone. ¹³Then he said to his sons, "Saddle a donkey for me." So they saddled a donkey for him, and he mounted it. ¹⁴He went after the man of God, and found him sitting under an oak tree. He said to him, "Are you the man of God who came from Judah?" He answered, "I am." ¹⁵Then he said to him, "Come home with me and eat some food."

¹⁶But he said, "I cannot return with you, or go in with you; nor will I eat food or drink water with you in this place; ¹⁷for it was said to me by the word of the LORD: You shall not eat food or drink water there, or return by the way that you came." ¹⁸Then the other^e said to him, "I also am a prophet as you are, and an angel spoke to me by the word of the LORD: Bring him back with you into your house so that he may eat food and drink water." But he was deceiving him. ¹⁹Then the man of God^e went back with him, and ate food and drank water in his house.

²⁰ As they were sitting at the table, the word of the LORD came to the prophet who had brought him back; ²¹and he proclaimed to the man of God who came from Judah, "Thus says the LORD: Because you have disobeyed the word of the LORD, and have not kept the commandment that the LORD your God commanded you, ²²but have come back and have eaten food and drunk water in the place of which he said to you, 'Eat no food, and drink no water,' your body shall not come to your ancestral tomb." ²³After the man of God^e had eaten food and had drunk, they saddled for him a donkey belonging to the prophet who had brought him back. ²⁴Then as he went away, a lion met him on the road and killed him. His body was thrown in the road, and the donkey stood beside it; the lion also stood beside the body. ²⁵People passed by and saw the body thrown in the road, with the lion standing by the body. And they came and told it in the town where the old prophet lived.

²⁶ When the prophet who had brought him back from the way heard of it, he said, "It is the man of God who disobeyed the word of the LORD; therefore the divine protection given to him. 13.6 Prophets were often thought to be particularly effective in interceding with God (see, e.g., Gen 20.7; 1 Sam 7.5; 12.19). In this case the healing becomes another sign to demonstrate the truth of the prophet's words. 13.9 To eat or drink at Bethel would have suggested the prophet's willingness to participate in the illegitimate cultic activities taking place there. 13.11 Rather than indicating actual kinship, the word son may indicate membership in a prophetic guild. The father would then have been the head of the guild.

13.18 The use of the word angel may be an attempt to imply that the old prophet did not receive the oracle directly from God, a situation that should have warned the man of God of the possibility that the oracle was false. Subtlety aside, readers are simply told that the old prophet lied. 13.19 Even a genuine prophet cannot determine whether another prophet's oracle is true or false. 13.24 The lion's peculiar behavior, killing the prophet but not the donkey and standing beside the body rather than eating it (cf. v. 28), is intended to dramatize the supernatural nature of the LORD has given him to the lion, which has torn him and killed him according to the word that the LORD spoke to him.”²⁷ Then he said to his sons, “Saddle a donkey for me.” So they saddled one,²⁸ and he went and found the body thrown in the road, with the donkey and the lion standing beside the body. The lion had not eaten the body or attacked the donkey.²⁹ The prophet took up the body of the man of God, laid it on the donkey, and brought it back to the city,^f to mourn and to bury him.³⁰ He laid the body in his own grave; and they mourned over him, saying, “Alas, my brother!”³¹ After he had buried him, he said to his sons, “When I die, bury me in the grave in which the man of God is buried; lay my bones beside his bones.”³² For the saying that he proclaimed by the word of the LORD against the altar in Bethel, and against all the houses of the high places that are in the cities of Samaria, shall surely come to pass.”

³³ Even after this event Jeroboam did not turn from his evil way, but made priests for the high places again from among all the people; any who wanted to be priests he consecrated for the high places.³⁴ This matter became sin to the house of Jeroboam, so as to cut it off and to destroy it from the face of the earth.

Judgment on the House of Jeroboam

14 At that time Abijah son of Jeroboam fell sick.² Jeroboam said to his wife, “Go, disguise yourself, so that it will not be known that you are the wife of Jeroboam, and go to Shiloh; for the prophet Ahijah is there, who said of me that I should be king over this people.³ Take with you ten loaves, some cakes, and a jar of honey, and go to him; he will tell you what shall happen to the child.”

⁴ Jeroboam's wife did so; she set out and went to Shiloh, and came to the house of Ahijah. Now Ahijah could not see, for his eyes were dim because of his age.⁵ But the LORD said to Ahijah, “The wife of Jeroboam is coming to inquire of you concerning her son; for he is sick. Thus and thus you shall say to her.”

When she came, she pretended to be another woman.⁶ But when Ahijah heard the sound of her feet, as she came in at the door, he said, “Come in, wife of Jeroboam; why do you pretend to be another? For I am charged with heavy tidings for you.⁷ Go, tell Jeroboam, ‘Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Because I exalted you from among the people, made you leader over my people Israel,⁸ and tore the kingdom away from the house of David to give it to you; yet you have not been like my servant David, who kept my commandments and followed me with all his heart, doing only that which was right in my sight,⁹ but you have done evil above all those who were before you and have gone and made for yourself other gods, and cast images, provoking me to anger, and have thrust me behind your back;¹⁰ therefore, I will bring evil upon the house of Jeroboam. I will cut off from the event. 13.30 The burial of the man of God in the old prophet's grave fulfills the judgment oracle in v. 22. 13.31–32 The incident demonstrates to the old prophet the truth of the words of the man of God, and the old prophet symbolically identifies himself with his colleague's message by requesting burial in the same grave. 13.33 On Jeroboam's non-Levitical priests, see note on 12.31.

14.1–18 This old legend, originally told to demonstrate the prophet's extraordinary powers, is used by the narrator as the occasion for a judgment oracle against the house of Jeroboam. 14.2 The use of a disguise may indicate that Jeroboam wanted to avoid a confrontation with Ahijah over the question of the king's religious activities. On Ahijah's earlier contacts with Jeroboam, see 11.29–39. 14.3 The food was probably intended as a fee for the prophet's services. For examples of similar situations, see 1 Sam 9.1–21; 2 Kings 8.7–15. 14.4 The prophet's weak eyes are mentioned to demonstrate that his knowledge of his visitor's identity could only have come through divine revelation. 14.7–8 The beginning of the oracle implies that Jeroboam's kingship had been divinely instituted and that his dynasty could have been eternal if he had been obedient as David had been (see 11.29–39). 14.9 The comparison must be with Solomon, who also did what was evil in the sight of the Lord (11.6). For a description of Jeroboam's religious practices, see 12.26–32. 14.10–11 Parts of this graphic and somewhat crude judgment oracle are later reapplied to some of Jeroboam's successors

Jeroboam every male, both bond and free in Israel, and will consume the house of Jeroboam, just as one burns up dung until it is all gone. ¹¹Anyone belonging to Jeroboam who dies in the city, the dogs shall eat; and anyone who dies in the open country, the birds of the air shall eat; for the LORD has spoken.' ¹²Therefore set out, go to your house. When your feet enter the city, the child shall die. ¹³All Israel shall mourn for him and bury him; for he alone of Jeroboam's family shall come to the grave, because in him there is found something pleasing to the LORD, the God of Israel, in the house of Jeroboam. ¹⁴Moreover the LORD will raise up for himself a king over Israel, who shall cut off the house of Jeroboam today, even right now!^g

¹⁵ "The LORD will strike Israel, as a reed is shaken in the water; he will root up Israel out of this good land that he gave to their ancestors, and scatter them beyond the Euphrates, because they have made their sacred poles,^h provoking the LORD to anger. ¹⁶He will give Israel up because of the sins of Jeroboam, which he sinned and which he caused Israel to commit."

¹⁷ Then Jeroboam's wife got up and went away, and she came to Tirzah. As she came to the threshold of the house, the child died. ¹⁸All Israel buried him and mourned for him, according to the word of the LORD, which he spoke by his servant the prophet Ahijah.

Death of Jeroboam

¹⁹ Now the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, how he warred and how he reigned, are written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel. ²⁰The time that Jeroboam reigned was twenty-two years; then he slept with his ancestors, and his son Nadab succeeded him.

Rehoboam Reigns over Judah

²¹ Now Rehoboam son of Solomon reigned in Judah. Rehoboam was forty-one years old when he began to reign, and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city that the LORD had chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, to put his name there. His mother's name was Naamah the Ammonite. ²²Judah did what was evil in the sight of the LORD; they provoked him to jealousy with their sins that they committed, more than all that their ancestors had done. ²³For they also built for themselves high places, pillars, and sacred poles^h on every high hill and under every green tree; ²⁴there were also male temple prostitutes in the land. They committed all the abominations of the nations that the LORD drove out before the people of Israel.

²⁵ In the fifth year of King Rehoboam, King Shishak of Egypt came up against Jerusalem; ²⁶he took away the treasures of the house of the LORD and the treasures of the king's house; he took (16.2–4; 21.21–24). 14.15 This part of the oracle already envisions the exile and destruction of the whole Northern Kingdom (2 Kings 17.1–23), not just the end of Jeroboam's dynasty. The Asherim (here translated sacred poles) were wooden cult objects associated with the worship of the Canaanite goddess Asherah. They are usually thought to be poles or perhaps representations of trees (cf. Deut 16.21). In second-millennium Syro-Palestine the goddess was portrayed as the consort of the god El, the head of the pantheon. However, by the OT period she was considered the consort of the storm god Baal. In some circles in Israel she may have been part of the worship of the Lord. 14.16 By setting up illegitimate places of worship, Jeroboam provided an opportunity for Israel to sin. 14.17 Jeroboam had apparently moved his capital to Tirzah (cf. 12.25), located about seven miles northeast of Shechem.

Israel has not survived, but it was probably the source of some of the chronological data included in Kings. Jeroboam reigned from ca. 922 to 901 B.C.E.

14.21–31 Although Rehoboam has already appeared in the narrative (ch. 12), this is a more systematic account of his reign. 14.21 Rehoboam's dates are uncertain, but he probably ruled from ca. 922 to 915 B.C.E. 14.23 High places. They had some sort of official role in fertility rites. 14.25 Shishak is the Hebrew name of Pharaoh Shoshenq I (ca. 931–910 B.C.E.), who invaded a number of towns in both Israel and Judah. everything. He also took away all the shields of gold that Solomon had made; ²⁷so King Rehoboam made shields of bronze instead, and committed them to the hands of the officers of the guard, who kept the door of the king's house. ²⁸As often as the king went into the house of the LORD, the guard carried them and brought them back to the guardroom.

²⁹ Now the rest of the acts of Rehoboam, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ³⁰There was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam continually. ³¹Rehoboam slept with his ancestors and was buried with his ancestors in the city of David. His mother's name was Naamah the Ammonite. His son Abijam succeeded him.

Abijam Reigns over Judah: Idolatry and War

15 Now in the eighteenth year of King Jeroboam son of Nebat, Abijam began to reign over Judah. ²He reigned for three years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Maacah daughter of Abishalom. ³He committed all the sins that his father did before him; his heart was not true to the LORD his God, like the heart of his father David. ⁴Nevertheless for David's sake the LORD his God gave him a lamp in Jerusalem, setting up his son after him, and establishing Jerusalem; ⁵because David did what was right in the sight of the LORD, and did not turn aside from anything that he commanded him all the days of his life, except in the matter of Uriah the Hittite. ⁶The war begun between Rehoboam and Jeroboam continued all the days of his life. ⁷The rest of the acts of Abijam, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? There was war between Abijam and Jeroboam. ⁸Abijam slept with his ancestors, and they buried him in the city of David. Then his son Asa succeeded him.

Asa Reigns over Judah

on 10.16; 10.17. 14.29 The Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah no longer exists, but it probably provided chronological information on the Judean kings (see Introduction to 1 Kings).

15.1–8 Abijam's brief reign receives a negative evaluation from the Deuteronomistic narrator, although no details of the king's crimes are mentioned. 15.1 Abijam reigned ca. 915–913 B.C.E. 15.4 On the meaning of the lamp, see note on 11.36. Because of God's fidelity to the promise to David (2 Sam 7.1–17), the Davidic dynasty is allowed to survive even though individual kings do evil. 15.5 The story of David and Uriah the Hittite is told in 2 Sam 11–12.

15.9–15 In contrast to his predecessor's, Asa's relatively long reign receives a positive evaluation from the Deuteronomistic narrator because of the king's religious reforms. 15.9 Asa reigned ca. 913–873 B.C.E. 15.10 According to this verse Asa and Abijam both had the same mother (cf. v. 2). This would make them brothers rather than father and son (v. 8). Alternatively, it may be that Maacah held the important post of queen mother but was not necessarily Asa's biological mother. ² Chr 13.2 gives a different name for Abijam's mother, thus resolving the problem, but it is not clear which version of the genealogy is correct. 15.12 Temple prostitutes. See note on 14.24. 15.13 The nature of the abominable image is not indicated. On the goddess Asherah, see note on 14.15. Wadi Kidron. See note on 2.37. 15.14 High places. See note on 3.2.

15.16–24 The war over the secession of the Northern tribes and the subsequent struggles over borders began in the days of Jeroboam and Rehoboam (14.30) and continued during the reigns of their successors (15.6). 15.16 Because of his interactions with Asa, Baasha of Israel is ¹⁷King Baasha of Israel went up against Judah, and built Ramah, to prevent anyone from going out or coming in to King Asa of Judah. ¹⁸Then Asa took all the silver and the gold that were left in the treasures of the house of the LORD and the treasures of the king's house, and gave them into the hands of his servants. King Asa sent them to King Ben-hadad son of Tabrimmon son of Hezion of Aram, who resided in Damascus, saying, ¹⁹"Let there be an alliance between me and you, like that between my father and your father: I am sending you a present of silver and gold; go, break your alliance with King Baasha of Israel, so that he may withdraw from me." ²⁰Ben-hadad listened to King Asa, and sent the commanders of his armies against the cities of Israel. He conquered Ijon, Dan, Abel-beth-maacah, and all Chinneroth, with all the land of Naphtali. ²¹When Baasha heard of it, he stopped building Ramah and lived in Tirzah. ²²Then King Asa made a proclamation to all Judah, none was exempt: they carried away the stones of Ramah and its timber, with which Baasha had been building; with them King Asa built Geba of Benjamin and Mizpah. ²³Now the rest of all the acts of Asa, all his power, all that he did, and the cities that he built, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? But in his old age he was diseased in his feet. ²⁴Then Asa slept with his ancestors, and was buried with his ancestors in the city of his father David; his son Jehoshaphat succeeded him.

Nadab Reigns over Israel

²⁵ Nadab son of Jeroboam began to reign over Israel in the second year of King Asa of Judah; he reigned over Israel two years. ²⁶He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, walking in the way of his ancestor and in the sin that he caused Israel to commit.

²⁷ Baasha son of Ahijah, of the house of Issachar, conspired against him; and Baasha struck him down at Gibbethon, which belonged to the Philistines; for Nadab and all Israel were laying siege to Gibbethon. ²⁸So Baasha killed Nadabⁱ in the third year of King Asa of Judah, and succeeded him. ²⁹As soon as he was king, he killed all the house of Jeroboam; he left to the house of Jeroboam not one that breathed, until he had destroyed it, according to the word of the LORD that he spoke by his servant Ahijah the Shilonite — ³⁰because of the sins of Jeroboam that he committed and that he caused Israel to commit, and because of the anger to which he provoked the LORD, the God of Israel.

introduced into the narrative at this point, even though the official account of his reign does not appear until 15.33–16.7. 15.17 Baasha was able to extend his southern border to Ramah in the tribe of Benjamin. Ramah lay about five miles north of Jerusalem and was an ideal site for a fortress. 15.18 Aram was a state or confederation of states to the west of the Northern Kingdom in what is now Syria. Throughout much of the monarchical period Aram was engaged in a power struggle with Israel and Judah. Several Aramean kings bore the name Ben-hadad. This individual had a treaty relationship with Baasha of Israel (v. 19). 15.19 Asa is probably referring to relations between David and Solomon and the Arameans, which were certainly not peaceful (2 Sam 8.5–12; 1 Kings 11.23–25; 2 Chr 8.3–4). 15.20 These towns and the territories around them all lie on Israel's eastern border, and the Aramean encroachment represents a significant loss of territory for the Northern Kingdom. 15.21 The combined pressure from Judah and Aram forces Baasha to abandon his border outpost and withdraw to the capital (see note on 14.17).

15.25–32 The narrator has little to say about Nadab's reign except to repeat the formulaic remark that he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord and walked in the ways of Jeroboam. 15.25 Nadab ruled from ca. 901 to 900 B.C.E. 15.27 Gibbethon lay slightly beyond the southwestern border of Israel, so Nadab was apparently attempting to extend his kingdom in that direction. 15.29–30 The narrator quotes part of Ahijah's judgment oracle against Jeroboam and his descendants (14.10–11) and interprets Nadab's assassination as the fulfillment of the prophetic word.

Second Dynasty: Baasha Reigns over Israel

33 In the third year of King Asa of Judah, Baasha son of Ahijah began to reign over all Israel at Tirzah; he reigned twenty-four years. ³⁴He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, walking in the way of Jeroboam and in the sin that he caused Israel to commit.

16 The word of the LORD came to Jehu son of Hanani against Baasha, saying, ²"Since I exalted you out of the dust and made you leader over my people Israel, and you have walked in the way of Jeroboam, and have caused my people Israel to sin, provoking me to anger with their sins, ³therefore, I will consume Baasha and his house, and I will make your house like the house of Jeroboam son of Nebat. ⁴Anyone belonging to Baasha who dies in the city the dogs shall eat; and anyone of his who dies in the field the birds of the air shall eat."

⁵ Now the rest of the acts of Baasha, what he did, and his power, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel? ⁶Baasha slept with his ancestors, and was buried at Tirzah; and his son Elah succeeded him. ⁷Moreover the word of the LORD came by the prophet Jehu son of Hanani against Baasha and his house, both because of all the evil that he did in the sight of the LORD, provoking him to anger with the work of his hands, in being like the house of Jeroboam, and also because he destroyed it.

Elah Reigns over Israel

¹¹ When he began to reign, as soon as he had seated himself on his throne, he killed all the house of Baasha; he did not leave him a single male of his kindred or his friends. ¹²Thus Zimri destroyed all the house of Baasha, according to the word of the LORD, which he spoke against Baasha by the prophet Jehu — ¹³because of all the sins of Baasha and the sins of his son Elah that they committed, and that they caused Israel to commit, provoking the LORD God of Israel to anger with their idols. ¹⁴Now the rest of the acts of Elah, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel?

Third Dynasty: Zimri Reigns over Israel

¹⁵ In the twenty-seventh year of King Asa of Judah, Zimri reigned seven days in Tirzah. Now the troops were encamped

15.33–16.7 The formal account of Baasha's twenty-four-year reign contains no further information on his achievements. From the theological standpoint of the narrator, Baasha is simply another example of a Northern king who did evil by walking in the ways of Jeroboam. 15.33 Baasha reigned from ca. 900 to 877 B.C.E. 16.1 Jehu son of Hanani is identified by Chronicles as a prophet active in Jerusalem during this period. He is also said to have delivered an oracle to king Jehoshaphat (2 Chr 19.2–3) and is credited with having written a history of Jehoshaphat's reign (2 Chr 20.34). Jehu's father, Hanani, was also a prophet and may have been the same individual who prophesied against Baasha's Southern contemporary, Asa (2 Chr 16.7–10). 16.4 Jehu's oracle is in part virtually identical with Ahijah's prophecy against Jeroboam (14.11). 16.7 This verse, which repeats the substance of vv. 2–4, seems out of place, coming as it does after Baasha's death has already been reported (v. 6). The narrator here condemns Baasha for destroying the house of Jeroboam, even though Baasha's action carried out God's decree of judgment.

16.8–14 The introduction to Elah's reign omits the customary negative evaluation, although an oblique reference is later made to his sins, along with those of his father (v. 13). The bulk of the account concentrates on the circumstances of Elah's death, which is characteristically interpreted as a judgment on the house of Baasha. As in the case of Jeroboam (14.10–11; 15.27–30), the prophetic judgment oracle is not fulfilled against the king to whom it is delivered but against his son. 16.8 Elah reigned from ca. 877 to 876 B.C.E. 16.12 This is another example of the narrator's interest in noting the fulfillment of prophecies (see vv. 2–4).

against Gibbethon, which belonged to the Philistines, ¹⁶and the troops who were encamped heard it said, "Zimri has conspired, and he has killed the king"; therefore all Israel made Omri, the commander of the army, king over Israel that day in the camp. ¹⁷So Omri went up from Gibbethon, and all Israel with him, and they besieged Tirzah. ¹⁸When Zimri saw that the city was taken, he went into the citadel of the king's house; he burned down the king's house over himself with fire, and died — ¹⁹because of the sins that he committed, doing evil in the sight of the LORD, walking in the way of Jeroboam, and for the sin that he committed, causing Israel to sin. ²⁰Now the rest of the acts of Zimri, and the conspiracy that he made, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel?

Fourth Dynasty: Omri Reigns over Israel

²¹ Then the people of Israel were divided into two parts; half of the people followed Tibni son of Ginath, to make him king, and half followed Omri. ²²But the people who followed Omri overcame the people who followed Tibni son of Ginath; so Tibni died, and Omri became king. ²³In the thirty-first year of King Asa of Judah, Omri began to reign over Israel; he reigned for twelve years, six of them in Tirzah.

Samaria the New Capital

²⁵ Omri did what was evil in the sight of the LORD; he did more evil than all who were before him. ²⁶For he walked in all the way of Jeroboam son of Nebat, and in the sins that he caused Israel to commit, provoking the LORD, the God of Israel, to anger by their idols. ²⁷Now the rest of the acts of Omri that he did, and the power that he showed, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel? ²⁸Omri slept with his ancestors, and was buried in Samaria; his son Ahab succeeded him.

Ahab Reigns over Israel

²⁹ In the thirty-eighth year of King Asa of Judah, Ahab son of Omri began to reign over Israel; Ahab son of Omri reigned over Israel in Samaria twenty-two years. ³⁰Ahab son of Omri did evil in the sight of the LORD more than all who were before him.

Ahab Marries Jezebel and Worships Baal

³¹ And as if it had been a light thing for him to walk in the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, he took as his wife Jezebel daughter of King Ethbaal of the Sidonians, and went and served Baal, and worshiped him. ³²He erected an altar for Baal in the house of Baal, which he built in Samaria. ³³Ahab also made a sacred pole.^j Ahab did more to provoke the anger of the LORD, the God of Israel, than had all the kings of Israel who were before him. ³⁴In his days Hiel of Bethel built Jericho; he laid its foundation at the cost of Abiram his firstborn, and set up its

16.19 The Deuteronomistic narrator formulaically attributes Zimri's death to his sins, although it is difficult to know what he could have done in seven days.

16.21–23 Omri was one of Israel's most powerful rulers and one of the few whose name has been preserved in extrabiblical sources. The Moabite Stone credits him with capturing Moabite territory, and Assyrian sources continue to call Israel "the Land of Omri" long after his death. 16.23 Omri reigned from ca. 876 to 869 B.C.E.

16.24–28 The only one of Omri's achievements mentioned by the narrator is the king's construction of a new capital at Samaria.

16.29–30 The narrator considers Ahab to be even more sinful than his predecessors, probably because of his introduction of the worship of Baal into Israel. 16.29 Ahab reigned from ca. 869 to 850 B.C.E.

16.31–34 Just as Solomon was led to sin because of his foreign marriages (ch. 11), so also Ahab's marriage to a Phoenician princess increases the already fatal sins of the Northern Kingdom. 16.31 Baal was the Canaanite storm god, who provided the rain necessary for the fertility of the land. His worship was widespread in Canaan and had probably infiltrated Israel long before the time of Ahab. However, Ahab gave the Baal cult official status in the capital. 16.33 On the sacred pole or Asherah (plural, Asherim), see note on 14.15. 16.34 This verse notes the working out of Joshua's curse when the Israelites gates at the cost of his youngest son Se-gub, according to the word of the LORD, which he spoke by Joshua son of Nun.

Elijah Predicts a Drought

17 Now Elijah the Tishbite, of Tishbe^k in Gilead, said to Ahab, "As the LORD the God of Israel lives, before whom I stand, there shall be neither dew nor rain these years, except by my word." ²The word of the LORD came to him, saying, ³"Go from here and turn eastward, and hide yourself by the Wadi Cherith, which is east of the Jordan." ⁴You shall drink from the wadi, and I have commanded the ravens to feed you there." ⁵So he went and did according to the word of the LORD; he went and lived by the Wadi Cherith, which is east of the Jordan. ⁶The ravens brought him bread and meat in the morning, and bread and meat in the evening; and he drank from the wadi. ⁷But after a while the wadi dried up, because there was no rain in the land.

The Widow of Zarephath

⁸ Then the word of the LORD came to him, saying, ⁹"Go now to Zarephath, which belongs to Sidon, and live there; for I have commanded a widow there to feed you." ¹⁰So he set out and went to Zarephath. When he came to the gate of the town, a widow was there gathering sticks; he called to her and said, "Bring me a little water in a vessel, so that I may drink." ¹¹As she was going to bring it, he called to her and said, "Bring me a morsel of bread in your hand." ¹²But she said, "As the LORD your God lives, I have nothing baked, only a handful of meal in a jar, and a little oil in a jug; I am now gathering a couple of sticks, so that I may go home and prepare it for myself and my son, that we may eat it, and die." ¹³Elijah destroyed Jericho (Josh 6.26). The narrator apparently sees in the event an analogy to the fulfillment of prophecy.

17.1–7 This is the first of a series of stories concerning prophetic opposition to the Omride dynasty and to the worship of the Phoenician Baal, which King Ahab had introduced into Israel (1 Kings 17–2 Kings 10). Before being incorporated into the book of Kings, many of the stories probably circulated orally in Northern prophetic circles, and the Elijah and Elisha stories may have already been gathered into collections before being written down. Many of the stories focus on the miraculous deeds of the prophets and glorify both the prophets themselves and the God they represent. The writer of Kings has modified some of the stories slightly in order to dramatize a central theme of the book: the inevitable destruction of the evil Northern kings. 17.1 The opening of the first Elijah story seems abrupt, but it must be seen against the background of Ahab's introduction of Baal worship (16.31–33). According to the mythology of the Baal cult, the storm god was responsible for bringing life-giving rains at certain times of the year and thus restoring fertility to the land. After the yearly rainy season, the ground got progressively drier, and eventually all vegetation died. During this period Baal was thought to be in the power of the god of death and sterility. In this verse Elijah announces that the yearly alternation between life and death is an illusion and that Baal has nothing to do with bringing rain and fertility. In reality the Lord controls both rain and drought, fertility and sterility, and life and death. To illustrate the point, the prophet announces that God has decreed a three-year drought. The meaning of Tishbe is uncertain. The Greek translators understood it as the name of the otherwise unknown town from which Elijah came. The Hebrew seems to require the translation "of the settlers." Gilead is a mountainous region of Transjordan (modern Jordan) between Bashan and Moab (see note on 2 Kings 15.25) near the eastern boundary of the Northern Kingdom. 17.3 The exact location of the Wadi Cherith is unknown, but the journey east of the Jordan probably removes Elijah from Ahab's jurisdiction. 17.4 Although God denies rain to apostate Israel, the faithful prophet is provided with both water and food. 17.7 A wadi is a stream bed that contains water only in the rainy season.

17.8–16 This prophetic legend originally focused on the prophet's ability to perform miracles. However, in its present context it provides another example of God's care for Elijah and for all faithful Israelites who support him. Cf. the similar tale involving Elisha in 2 Kings 4.1–7. 17.9 The journey to Zarephath on the Phoenician coast south of Sidon takes the prophet into the heartland of the Baal cult (cf. 16.31). Even here God's power over sterility and fertility is evident. 17.10 Widows often had no means of economic support, and if they were not sustained by the king or by the religious community (cf. Deut 14.28–29), they were quickly reduced to poverty and forced to become scavengers and beggars.

said to her, "Do not be afraid; go and do as you have said; but first make me a little cake of it and bring it to me, and afterwards make something for yourself and your son. ¹⁴For thus says the LORD the God of Israel: The jar of meal will not be emptied and the jug of oil will not fail until the day that the LORD sends rain on the earth." ¹⁵She went and did as Elijah said, so that she as well as he and her household ate for many days. ¹⁶The jar of meal was not emptied, neither did the jug of oil fail, according to the word of the LORD that he spoke by Elijah.

Elijah Revives the Widow's Son

¹⁷ After this the son of the woman, the mistress of the house, became ill; his illness was so severe that there was no breath left in him. ¹⁸She then said to Elijah, "What have you against me, O man of God? You have come to me to bring my sin to remembrance, and to cause the death of my son!" ¹⁹But he said to her, "Give me your son." He took him from her bosom, carried him up into the upper chamber where he was lodging, and laid him on his own bed. ²⁰He cried out to the LORD, "O LORD my God, have you brought calamity even upon the widow with whom I am staying, by killing her son?" ²¹Then he stretched himself upon the child three times, and cried out to the LORD, "O LORD my God, let this child's life come into him again." ²²The LORD listened to the voice of Elijah; the life of the child came into him again, and he revived. ²³Elijah took the child, brought him down from the upper chamber into the house, and gave him to his mother; then Elijah said, "See, your son is alive." ²⁴So the woman said to Elijah, "Now I know that you are a man of God, and that the word of the LORD in your mouth is truth."

Elijah's Message to Ahab

18 After many days the word of the LORD came to Elijah, in the third year of the drought,¹ saying, "Go, present yourself to Ahab; I will send rain on the earth." ²So Elijah went to present himself to Ahab. The famine was severe in Samaria. ³Ahab summoned Obadiah, who was in charge of the palace. (Now Obadiah revered the LORD greatly; ⁴when Jezebel was killing off the prophets of the LORD, Obadiah took a hundred prophets, hid them fifty to a cave, and provided them with bread and water.) ⁵Then Ahab said to Obadiah, "Go through the land to all the springs of water and to all the wadis; perhaps we may find grass to keep the horses and mules alive, and not lose some of the animals." ⁶So they divided the land between them to pass through it; Ahab went in one direction by himself, and Obadiah went in another direction by himself.

⁷ As Obadiah was on the way, Elijah met him; Obadiah recognized him, fell on his face, and said, "Is it you, my lord Elijah?" ⁸He answered him, "It is I. Go, tell your lord that Elijah is here." ⁹And he said, "How have I sinned, that you would hand your servant over to Ahab, to kill me? ¹⁰As the LORD your God lives, there is no nation or kingdom to which my lord has not sent to seek you; and when they would say, 'He is not here,' he would require an oath of the kingdom or nation, that they had not found you. ¹¹But now you say, 'Go, tell your lord that Elijah is here.' ¹²As soon as I have gone from you, the spirit of the LORD will carry you. I know not where; so, when I come and tell Ahab and he cannot find you, he will kill me, although I your servant have revered the LORD from my youth. ¹³Has it not been told my lord what I did when Jezebel killed the prophets of the LORD, how I hid 17.17–24 Although this story of the resurrection of the widow's son serves to demonstrate Elijah's ability to mediate divine power, the account also provides a third dramatic example of God's control over life and death. A similar story is told about Elisha (2 Kings 4.18–37). 17.21 The number three often figures prominently in rituals.

18.1–19 This account of Ahab's efforts to cope with the drought provides an introduction to one of the most famous of the Elijah stories, the contest with the prophets of Baal on Mount Carmel (vv. 20–40). 18.1 This verse has its counterpart in 17.1. Just as God, not Baal, controls drought (17.1), so also God, not Baal, provides rain. According to the terms of the oath in 17.1, only Elijah's word can end the drought, and he must at last confront Ahab. 18.12 For a dramatic example of the Lord carrying Elijah away, a hundred of the LORD's prophets fifty to a cave, and provided them with bread and water? ¹⁴Yet now you say, 'Go, tell your lord that Elijah is here'; he will surely kill me." ¹⁵Elijah said, "As the LORD of hosts lives, before whom I stand, I will surely show myself to him today." ¹⁶So Obadiah went to meet Ahab, and told him; and Ahab went to meet Elijah.

¹⁷ When Ahab saw Elijah, Ahab said to him, "Is it you, you troubler of Israel?" ¹⁸He answered, "I have not troubled Israel; but you have, and your father's house, because you have forsaken the commandments of the LORD and followed the Baals. ¹⁹Now therefore have all Israel assemble for me at Mount Carmel, with the four hundred fifty prophets of Baal and the four hundred prophets of Asherah, who eat at Jezebel's table."

Elijah's Triumph over the Priests of Baal

²⁰ So Ahab sent to all the Israelites, and assembled the prophets at Mount Carmel. ²¹Elijah then came near to all the people, and said, "How long will you go limping with two different opinions? If the LORD is God, follow him; but if Baal, then follow him." The people did not answer him a word. ²²Then Elijah said to the people, "I, even I only, am left a prophet of the LORD; but Baal's prophets number four hundred fifty. ²³Let two bulls be given to us; let them choose one bull for themselves, cut it in pieces, and lay it on the wood, but put no fire to it; I will prepare the other bull and lay it on the wood, but put no fire to it. ²⁴Then you call on the name of your god and I will call on the name of the LORD; the god who answers by fire is indeed God." All the people answered, "Well spoken!" ²⁵Then Elijah said to the prophets of Baal, "Choose for yourselves one bull and prepare it first, for you are many; then call on the name of your god, but put no fire to it." ²⁶So they took the bull that was given them, prepared it, and called on the name of Baal from morning until noon, crying, "O Baal, answer us!" But there was no voice, and no answer. They limped about the altar that they had made. ²⁷At noon Elijah mocked them, saying, "Cry aloud! Surely he is a god; either he is meditating, or he has wandered away, or he is on a journey, or perhaps he is asleep and must be awakened." ²⁸Then they cried aloud and, as was their custom, they cut themselves with swords and lances until the blood gushed out over them. ²⁹As midday passed, they raved on until the time of the offering of the oblation, but there was no voice, no answer, and no response.

³⁰ Then Elijah said to all the people, "Come closer to me"; and all the people came closer to him. First he repaired the altar of the LORD that had been thrown down; ³¹Elijah took twelve stones, according to the number of the tribes of the sons see 2 Kings 2.11. 18.17 Ahab greets Elijah as troubler of Israel because he decreed the three-year drought (17.1). 18.18 The prophet's rejoinder locates the problem with Ahab's institution of Baal worship in Israel. Elijah's use of the plural, Baals, is due to the fact that local manifestations of the Canaanite god were sometimes considered independent deities in their own right. 18.19 Mount Carmel lies in western Israel at the entrance of the Jezreel Valley. The four hundred prophets of Asherah do not appear again in the story. For a discussion of Asherah, see note on 14.15. Both groups of prophets were part of the royal court.

18.20–40 The contest with the prophets of Baal demonstrates conclusively that there is only one true God in Israel and that that God, not Baal, is responsible for the fertility of the land. 18.21 The precise meaning of the word translated limping is uncertain, but there is no doubt about the sense of Elijah's question. 18.22 Elijah's claim to be the only remaining prophet of the Lord is an exaggeration for rhetorical effect (see 18.13). 18.24 As a storm god, Baal should have been able to supply fire in the form of lightning. Fire is also often associated with the Lord (see, e.g., Gen 15.17; Ex 14.24; 19.18; Deut 4.11; 5.22–24; Isa 30.27). 18.26 The word translated limped probably refers to some sort of ritual dance (see also v. 21). 18.27 Elijah's taunts mock various aspects of the Baal cult. The suggestion that Baal is meditating may simply mean that he has other things on his mind. Wandering away may be a euphemism for taking care of bodily functions. The reference to a journey may reflect the possibility that during the dry season Baal travels to the underworld. Part of the worship of Baal may have involved rituals to waken the god when he was asleep and in the power of death. 18.28 Mourners often cut themselves during funeral rites, and Baal worshipers may have done the same in an attempt to release the god from the power of death (Lev 19.28; Deut 14.1; Jer 16.6; 41.5; 47.5; Hos 7.14). 18.29 The oblation was an offering of Jacob, to whom the word of the LORD came, saying, "Israel shall be your name";³² with the stones he built an altar in the name of the LORD. Then he made a trench around the altar, large enough to contain two measures of seed.³³ Next he put the wood in order, cut the bull in pieces, and laid it on the wood. He said, "Fill four jars with water and pour it on the burnt offering and on the wood."³⁴ Then he said, "Do it a second time"; and they did it a second time. Again he said, "Do it a third time"; and they did it a third time,³⁵ so that the water ran all around the altar, and filled the trench also with water.

³⁶ At the time of the offering of the oblation, the prophet Elijah came near and said, "O LORD, God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, let it be known this day that you are God in Israel, that I am your servant, and that I have done all these things at your bidding.³⁷ Answer me, O LORD, answer me, so that this people may know that you, O LORD, are God, and that you have turned their hearts back."³⁸ Then the fire of the LORD fell and consumed the burnt offering, the wood, the stones, and the dust, and even licked up the water that was in the trench.³⁹ When all the people saw it, they fell on their faces and said, "The LORD indeed is God; the LORD indeed is God."⁴⁰ Elijah said to them, "Seize the prophets of Baal; do not let one of them escape." Then they seized them; and Elijah brought them down to the Wadi Kishon, and killed them there.

The Drought Ends

⁴¹ Elijah said to Ahab, "Go up, eat and drink; for there is a sound of rushing rain."⁴² So Ahab went up to eat and to drink. Elijah went up to the top of Carmel; there he bowed himself down upon the earth and put his face between his knees.⁴³ He said to his servant, "Go up now, look toward the sea." He went up and looked, and said, "There is nothing." Then he said, "Go again seven times."⁴⁴ At the seventh time he said, "Look, a little cloud no bigger than a person's hand is rising out of the sea." Then he said, "Go say to Ahab, 'Harness your chariot and go down before the rain stops you.'"⁴⁵ In a little while the heavens grew black with clouds and wind; there was a heavy rain. Ahab rode off and went to Jezreel.⁴⁶ But the hand of the LORD was on Elijah; he girded up his loins and ran in front of Ahab to the entrance of Jezreel.

Elijah Flees to Mount Horeb

19 Ahab told Jezebel all that Elijah had done, and how he had killed all the prophets with the sword.² Then Jezebel sent a messenger to Elijah, saying, "So may the gods do to me, and more also, if I do not make your life like the life of one of them by this time tomorrow."³ Then he was afraid; he got up and fled for his life, and came to Beer-sheba, which belongs to Judah; he left his servant there.

⁴ But he himself went a day's journey made around sunset (Ex 29.39). 18.32 The significance of the two measures of seed is unclear. 18.34 Note again the number three in ritual contexts (cf. 17.21). The water probably serves both to symbolize the rain that is coming and to underscore the decisiveness of God's response. 18.40 Elijah executes the prophets in accordance with the Deuteronomist law prescribing death as the penalty for prophets who advocate the worship of other gods (Deut 13.1-5). The Wadi Kishon runs between Mount Carmel and the Galilean hills.

18.41-46 Now that the people have acknowledged that there is only one God in Israel (v. 39), Elijah speaks the word to end the drought (cf. 17.1). 18.41 Although there is still no sign of rain, Elijah knows that it is coming (18.1), and he instructs Ahab to begin celebrating the end of the drought. 18.42-44 The purpose of Elijah's ritual is unclear. 18.45 In addition to a palace in the capital (Samaria), Ahab also had a royal residence in the town of Jezreel at the foot of Mount Gilboa (21.1). 18.46 Possessed by God's spirit, Elijah runs about seventeen miles to Jezreel in front of Ahab's chariot.

19.1-18 Elijah's efforts to flee from Jezebel's wrath inadvertently lead him to reverse Israel's journey through the wilderness until he arrives at Mount Horeb (Sinai), the sacred spot where Israel's covenant with God was first made (Ex 19-34). Throughout the narrative there are a number of allusions to Moses, and it is clear that for the Deuteronomistic narrator Elijah is to be considered a prophet "like Moses" (Deut 18.9-22). 19.3 Beer-sheba, a city in the northern Negev desert, marks the traditional southern boundary of Judah, so Elijah is well beyond Jezebel's reach. 19.4 Like Moses before him, Elijah into the wilderness, and came and sat down under a solitary broom tree. He asked that he might die: "It is enough; now, O LORD, take away my life, for I am no better than my ancestors." ⁵Then he lay down under the broom tree and fell asleep. Suddenly an angel touched him and said to him, "Get up and eat." ⁶He looked, and there at his head was a cake baked on hot stones, and a jar of water. He ate and drank, and lay down again. ⁷The angel of the LORD came a second time, touched him, and said, "Get up and eat, otherwise the journey will be too much for you." ⁸He got up, and ate and drank; then he went in the strength of that food forty days and forty nights to Horeb the mount of God. ⁹At that place he came to a cave, and spent the night there.

Then the word of the LORD came to him, saying, "What are you doing here, Elijah?" ¹⁰He answered, "I have been very zealous for the LORD, the God of hosts; for the Israelites have forsaken your covenant, thrown down your altars, and killed your prophets with the sword. I alone am left, and they are seeking my life, to take it away."

¹¹ He said, "Go out and stand on the mountain before the LORD, for the LORD is about to pass by." Now there was a great wind, so strong that it was splitting mountains and breaking rocks in pieces before the LORD, but the LORD was not in the wind; and after the wind an earthquake, but the LORD was not in the earthquake; ¹²and after the earthquake a fire, but the LORD was not in the fire; and after the fire a sound of sheer silence. ¹³When Elijah heard it, he wrapped his face in his mantle and went out and stood at the entrance of the cave. Then there came a voice to him that said, "What are you doing here, Elijah?" ¹⁴He answered, "I have been very zealous for the LORD, the God of hosts; for the Israelites have forsaken your covenant, thrown down your altars, and killed your prophets with the sword. I alone am left, and they are seeking my life, to take it away." ¹⁵Then the LORD said to him, "Go, return on your way to the wilderness of Damascus; when you arrive, you shall anoint Hazael as king over Aram. ¹⁶Also you shall anoint Jehu son of Nimshi as king over Israel; and you shall anoint Elisha son of Shaphat of Abel-meholah as prophet in your place. ¹⁷Whoever escapes from the sword of Hazael, Jehu shall kill; and whoever escapes from the sword of Jehu, Elisha shall kill. ¹⁸Yet I will leave seven thousand in Israel, all the knees that have not bowed to Baal, and every mouth that has not kissed him."

felt that he was not up to the task of providing religious leadership for Israel (cf. Num 11.11–15). 19.8 Elijah's journey of forty days and forty nights recalls Israel's forty-year sojourn in the wilderness and also the forty days and nights that Moses spent at Sinai, where he did not eat or drink until he had written down the words of God's covenant (Ex 34.27–28). 19.9 The narrator may understand the cave to be the cleft in the rock where Moses was shielded from God's glory (Ex 33.17–23). 19.10 Elijah's state of depression causes him to exaggerate the problem. There are certainly faithful worshipers of the Lord left in Israel, and Elijah is not the only remaining prophet (17.24; 18.3–4). 19.11–12 Wind, earthquake, and fire were traditionally associated with God (Ex 19.16; 20.18; Deut 4.11; 5.22–24; Judg 5.4–5; Isa 30.27; Nah 1.3–5; Ps 18.11–15; 68.7–8), but for the Deuteronomistic narrator, God is not to be identified with these natural phenomena. The translation sound of sheer silence is uncertain. If the translation is retained, the comment would suggest that no new revelation followed the appearance of the wind, earthquake, and fire, for the text does not indicate that God was in the silence either. Other scholars have rendered the phrase "a gentle little breeze," "the sound of a light whisper," or the traditional "still small voice." The latter two translations would suggest that some sort of verbal revelation did take place. 19.13a This verse implies that Elijah does not leave the safety of the cave until after the storm, which he heard but did not see. 19.14 Whatever the import of the storm and the silence, the events apparently made no impression on the prophet, who simply repeats his earlier answer (v. 10). 19.15 This time God's response is to issue a new prophetic commission. The wilderness of Damascus is the Syrian desert. Elijah's successor, Elisha, actually legitimizes Hazael as ruler of Aram (Syria; 2 Kings 8.7–15). The command to anoint a foreign ruler indicates God's control over political affairs outside Israel. 19.16 Elisha also anoints Jehu, who finally overthrows the dynasty of Omri and wipes out Baal worship in Israel (2 Kings 9–10). 19.18 Kissing the image or symbol of Baal was apparently a common act of worship (Hos 13.2).

Elisha Becomes Elijah's Disciple

19 So he set out from there, and found Elisha son of Shaphat, who was plowing. There were twelve yoke of oxen ahead of him, and he was with the twelfth. Elijah passed by him and threw his mantle over him. ²⁰He left the oxen, ran after Elijah, and said, "Let me kiss my father and my mother, and then I will follow you." Then Elijah^m said to him, "Go back again; for what have I done to you?" ²¹He returned from following him, took the yoke of oxen, and slaughtered them; using the equipment from the oxen, he boiled their flesh, and gave it to the people, and they ate. Then he set out and followed Elijah, and became his servant.

Ahab's Wars with the Arameans

20 King Ben-hadad of Aram gathered all his army together; thirty-two kings were with him, along with horses and chariots. He marched against Samaria, laid siege to it, and attacked it. ²Then he sent messengers into the city to King Ahab of Israel, and said to him: "Thus says Ben-hadad: ³Your silver and gold are mine; your fairest wives and children also are mine." ⁴The king of Israel answered, "As you say, my lord, O king, I am yours, and all that I have." ⁵The messengers came again and said: "Thus says Ben-hadad: I sent to you, saying, 'Deliver to me your silver and gold, your wives and children'; ⁶nevertheless I will send my servants to you tomorrow about this time, and they shall search your house and the houses of your servants, and lay hands on whatever pleases them," and take it away."

⁷ Then the king of Israel called all the elders of the land, and said, "Look now! See how this man is seeking trouble; for he sent to me for my wives, my children, my silver, and my gold; and I did not refuse him." ⁸Then all the elders and all the people said to him, "Do not listen or consent." ⁹So he said to the messengers of Ben-hadad, "Tell my lord the king: All that you first demanded of your servant I will do; but this thing I cannot do." The messengers left and brought him word again. ¹⁰Ben-hadad sent to him and said, "The gods do so to me, and more also, if the dust of Samaria will provide a handful for each of the people who follow me." ¹¹The king of Israel answered, "Tell him: One who puts on armor should not brag like one who takes it off." ¹²When Ben-hadad heard this message—now he had been drinking with the kings in the booths—he said to his men, "Take your positions!" And they took their positions against the city.

Prophetic Support for Ahab

¹³ Then a certain prophet came up to King Ahab of Israel and said, "Thus says the LORD, Have you seen all this great multitude? Look, I will give it into your hand today; and you shall know that I am the LORD." ¹⁴Ahab said, "By whom?" He said, "Thus says the LORD, By the young men who serve the district governors." Then he said, "Who shall begin the battle?" He answered, "You." ¹⁵Then he mustered the young men who served the district governors, two hundred thirty-two; after them he mustered all the people of Israel, seven thousand.

19.19–21 Almost immediately Elijah fulfills the third of God's commands (v. 16). 19.19 Elijah does not actually anoint Elisha, but the meaning of his symbolic act is clear. 19.20 Elisha's request indicates that he does not yet have the determination to be Elijah's successor. Elijah's response suggests that he wants nothing to do with disciples who are not completely focused on the task at hand. 19.21 The slaughter of the animals is an irrevocable act indicating that Elisha is willing to make a decisive break with his past life.

20.1–12 These verses contain the first of several stories set against the background of Israel's wars with Aram (modern Syria). After being subdued by David (2 Sam 8.5–12), the Arameans began to harass Israel during Solomon's reign (11.23–25) and continued to do so intermittently thereafter. 20.1 On Ben-hadad's earlier interactions with Israel, see 15.18–21. 20.6 Ben-hadad's second demand would have allowed the Arameans to take anything they wanted from the royal palace. 20.11 Ahab's reply quotes a proverb warning Ben-hadad not to be too confident about the outcome of the battle. 20.12 The booths were temporary shelters in which the army lived in the field.

20.13–22 This part of the narrative is unusual in that it indicates prophetic support for Ahab rather than the opposition that characterizes most of the stories about his reign.

16 They went out at noon, while Ben-hadad was drinking himself drunk in the booths, he and the thirty-two kings allied with him. 17 The young men who served the district governors went out first. Ben-hadad had sent out scouts,^o and they reported to him, "Men have come out from Samaria." 18 He said, "If they have come out for peace, take them alive; if they have come out for war, take them alive."

19 But these had already come out of the city: the young men who served the district governors, and the army that followed them. 20 Each killed his man; the Arameans fled and Israel pursued them, but King Ben-hadad of Aram escaped on a horse with the cavalry. 21 The king of Israel went out, attacked the horses and chariots, and defeated the Arameans with a great slaughter.

22 Then the prophet approached the king of Israel and said to him, "Come, strengthen yourself, and consider well what you have to do; for in the spring the king of Aram will come up against you."

The Arameans Are Defeated

23 The servants of the king of Aram said to him, "Their gods are gods of the hills, and so they were stronger than we; but let us fight against them in the plain, and surely we shall be stronger than they. 24 Also do this: remove the kings, each from his post, and put commanders in place of them; 25 and muster an army like the army that you have lost, horse for horse, and chariot for chariot; then we will fight against them in the plain, and surely we shall be stronger than they." He heeded their voice, and did so.

26 In the spring Ben-hadad mustered the Arameans and went up to Aphek to fight against Israel. 27 After the Israelites had been mustered and provisioned, they went out to engage them; the people of Israel encamped opposite them like two little flocks of goats, while the Arameans filled the country. 28 A man of God approached and said to the king of Israel, "Thus says the LORD: Because the Arameans have said, 'The LORD is a god of the hills but he is not a god of the valleys,' therefore I will give all this great multitude into your hand, and you shall know that I am the LORD." 29 They encamped opposite one another seven days. Then on the seventh day the battle began; the Israelites killed one hundred thousand Aramean foot soldiers in one day. 30 The rest fled into the city of Aphek; and the wall fell on twenty-seven thousand men that were left.

Ben-hadad also fled, and entered the city to hide. 31 His servants said to him, "Look, we have heard that the kings of the house of Israel are merciful kings; let us put sackcloth around our waists and ropes on our heads, and go out to the king of Israel; perhaps he will spare your life." 32 So they tied sackcloth around their waists, put ropes on their heads, went to the king of Israel, and said, "Your servant Ben-hadad says, 'Please let me live.'" And he said, "Is he still alive? He is my brother." 33 Now the men were watch-

20.16 The kings with Ben-hadad were rulers of individual cities. 20.20–21 Israel's decisive victory against superior forces indicates that God supplied divine aid. 20.22 Spring was the traditional time for beginning a military campaign (2 Sam 11.1).

20.23–34 The second engagement between Israel and Aram is treated as an example of a religious war, which should have been conducted according to the regulations laid down in Deut 20. From the perspective of the narrator, the spoil should have been devoted to the deity, and the enemy should have been killed. 20.23 The Aramean civil servants assume that because Israel's God is often associated with mountains (Sinai), the Lord's power is restricted to mountain areas. Readers already know that God's power extends beyond Israel's national boundaries (19.15).

20.24 The commanders are probably Ben-hadad's own officials and are thus thought to be more professional and strongly motivated than the kings, who as semi-independent rulers are looking out for their own interests. 20.26 Several towns bear the name Aphek, but the one mentioned here probably lies about three miles east of the Sea of Galilee. 20.28 On the prophetic title man of God, see note on 13.1. 20.31 Sackcloth was a dark-colored cloth of goat's hair or camel's hair originally used to make grain sacks. Made into a garment, it was worn in times of mourning or national distress (Gen 37.34; 2 Sam 3.31; Lam 2.10). It was also worn by captives as a sign of submission. 20.32 Brother, a term used in treaties to indicate that the parties involved are of equal status.

ing for an omen; they quickly took it up from him and said, "Yes, Ben-hadad is your brother." Then he said, "Go and bring him." So Ben-hadad came out to him; and he had him come up into the chariot. ³⁴Ben-hadad^p said to him, "I will restore the towns that my father took from your father; and you may establish bazaars for yourself in Damascus, as my father did in Samaria." The king of Israel responded,^q "I will let you go on those terms." So he made a treaty with him and let him go.

A Prophet Condemns Ahab

³⁵ At the command of the LORD a certain member of a company of prophets^r said to another, "Strike me!" But the man refused to strike him. ³⁶Then he said to him, "Because you have not obeyed the voice of the LORD, as soon as you have left me, a lion will kill you." And when he had left him, a lion met him and killed him. ³⁷Then he found another man and said, "Strike me!" So the man hit him, striking and wounding him. ³⁸Then the prophet departed, and waited for the king along the road, disguising himself with a bandage over his eyes. ³⁹As the king passed by, he cried to the king and said, "Your servant went out into the thick of the battle; then a soldier turned and brought a man to me, and said, 'Guard this man; if he is missing, your life shall be given for his life, or else you shall pay a talent of silver.' ⁴⁰While your servant was busy here and there, he was gone." The king of Israel said to him, "So shall your judgment be; you yourself have decided it." ⁴¹Then he quickly took the bandage away from his eyes. The king of Israel recognized him as one of the prophets. ⁴²Then he said to him, "Thus says the LORD, 'Because you have let the man go whom I had devoted to destruction, therefore your life shall be for his life, and your people for his people.'" ⁴³The king of Israel set out toward home, resentful and sullen, and came to Samaria.

Naboth's Vineyard

21 Later the following events took place: Naboth the Jezreelite had a vineyard in Jezreel, beside the palace of King Ahab of Samaria. ²And Ahab said to Naboth, "Give me your vineyard, so that I may have it for a vegetable garden, because it is near my house; I will give you a better vineyard for it; or, if it seems good to you, I will give you its value in money." ³But Naboth said to Ahab, "The LORD forbid that I should give you my ancestral inheritance." ⁴Ahab went home resentful and sullen because of what Naboth the Jezreelite had said to him; for he had said, "I will not give you my ancestral inheritance." He lay down on his bed, turned away his face, and would not eat.

20.35–43 While Ahab may see his victory as an opportunity to regain lost territory and establish peace, the prophet in this story sees the outcome as a violation of the terms of the religious war (Deut 20). For a similar story involving Saul and Samuel, see 1 Sam 15. 20.35 The member of a company of prophets belonged to one of the prophetic guilds that were active in Israel during this period. The striking was apparently intended to make the prophet look as if he had been in a battle. 20.38 The bandage is sometimes thought to have covered a distinctive mark on the forehead of prophetic guild members. 20.39–40 This "juridical parable" is designed to trap the hearer into announcing the punishment for his own crime (see also 2 Sam 12.1–12). A talent weighs about 75 pounds.

Unlike the other stories about Elijah and Ahab, where the underlying issue is religious apostasy, this story focuses on the king's willingness to violate individual rights. Elsewhere in the ancient Near East, monarchs had, or sought to have, absolute control over their subjects. However, as this story illustrates, such control was never an ideal in Israel, where the king was never above the law and was always subject to divine judgment. 21.1 Jeroboam had built a second palace in the town of Jezreel, where he lived when he was not in the capital in Samaria (see 18.45–46). 21.3 Israelites normally tried to prevent inherited property from passing out of the family, although there were no legal barriers against land sales. However, according to some legal traditions, land could not be sold in perpetuity but had to revert eventually to its original owner (Lev 25.8–17, 23–25; 27.16–25). 21.4 Ahab is resentful and sullen not just because he does not get his way but

5 His wife Jezebel came to him and said, "Why are you so depressed that you will not eat?" 6 He said to her, "Because I spoke to Naboth the Jezreelite and said to him, 'Give me your vineyard for money; or else, if you prefer, I will give you another vineyard for it'; but he answered, 'I will not give you my vineyard.'" 7 His wife Jezebel said to him, "Do you now govern Israel? Get up, eat some food, and be cheerful; I will give you the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite."

8 So she wrote letters in Ahab's name and sealed them with his seal; she sent the letters to the elders and the nobles who lived with Naboth in his city. 9 She wrote in the letters, "Proclaim a fast, and seat Naboth at the head of the assembly; 10 seat two scoundrels opposite him, and have them bring a charge against him, saying, 'You have cursed God and the king.' Then take him out, and stone him to death." 11 The men of his city, the elders and the nobles who lived in his city, did as Jezebel had sent word to them. Just as it was written in the letters that she had sent to them, 12 they proclaimed a fast and seated Naboth at the head of the assembly. 13 The two scoundrels came in and sat opposite him; and the scoundrels brought a charge against Naboth, in the presence of the people, saying, "Naboth cursed God and the king." So they took him outside the city, and stoned him to death. 14 Then they sent to Jezebel, saying, "Naboth has been stoned; he is dead."

15 As soon as Jezebel heard that Naboth had been stoned and was dead, Jezebel said to Ahab, "Go, take possession of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, which he refused to give you for money; for Naboth is not alive, but dead." 16 As soon as Ahab heard that Naboth was dead, Ahab set out to go down to the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, to take possession of it.

Elijah Pronounces God's Sentence

17 Then the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite, saying: 18 Go down to meet King Ahab of Israel, who rules^s in Samaria; he is now in the vineyard of Naboth, where he has gone to take possession. 19 You shall say to him, "Thus says the LORD: Have you killed, and also taken possession?" You shall say to him, "Thus says the LORD: In the place where dogs licked up the blood of Naboth, dogs will also lick up your blood."

20 Ahab said to Elijah, "Have you found me, O my enemy?" He answered, "I have found you. Because you have sold yourself to do what is evil in the sight of the LORD, 21 I will bring disaster on you; I will consume you, and will cut off from Ahab every male, bond or free, in Israel; 22 and I will make your house like the house of Jeroboam son of Nebat, and like the house of Baasha son of Ahijah, because you have provoked me to anger and have caused Israel to sin. 23 Also concerning Jezebel the LORD said, 'The dogs shall eat Jezebel within the bounds of Jezreel.' 24 Anyone belonging to Ahab who dies in the city the dogs shall eat; and anyone of because Naboth's oath (v. 3) precludes the possibility of further negotiations. 21.8 This verse seems to imply that Ahab has returned to Samaria. 21.9 Naboth is to be seated with the leaders of the people, but he is not by himself their head. 21.10 In Deuteronomic law two witnesses were required for conviction (Deut 17.6–7; 19.15; cf. Num 35.30), and there were severe penalties for giving false testimony (Ex 20.16; Deut 5.20; 19.16–21). For the prohibitions against cursing God or the king, see Ex 22.28; Lev 24.14–16. 21.15 The property of executed criminals may have been forfeited to the crown, or Naboth may have had no relatives to prevent the king from taking the land.

21.17–29 Jezebel may be able to conceal her crime from Ahab and from the people, but she cannot conceal it from God. For his involvement in the murder and for his theft of Naboth's land, both the king and his house are condemned. Ironically it is not his apostasy but his willingness to exceed the limits on royal power that brings an end to his rule. 21.19 The first announcement of judgment applies to Ahab personally and not to his house. 21.21–24 The second announcement of judgment is virtually identical with the one made to Jeroboam (14.10–11) and is also similar to the one made to Baasha (16.3–4). 21.22 Ahab's crime of causing Israel to sin probably refers to his encouragement of illegitimate worship (16.32–33) rather than to his involvement in the Naboth incident. 21.23 The oracle against Ahab and his house is expanded to include Jezebel, who in the eyes of the narrator was responsible for introducing Baal worship into Israel and was directly involved in Naboth's his who dies in the open country the birds of the air shall eat.”

25 (Indeed, there was no one like Ahab, who sold himself to do what was evil in the sight of the LORD, urged on by his wife Jezebel. 26 He acted most abominably in going after idols, as the Amorites had done, whom the LORD drove out before the Israelites.)

27 When Ahab heard those words, he tore his clothes and put sackcloth over his bare flesh; he fasted, lay in the sackcloth, and went about dejectedly. 28 Then the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite: 29 “Have you seen how Ahab has humbled himself before me? Because he has humbled himself before me, I will not bring the disaster in his days; but in his son’s days I will bring the disaster on his house.”

Joint Campaign with Judah Against Aram

22 For three years Aram and Israel continued without war. 2 But in the third year King Jehoshaphat of Judah came down to the king of Israel. 3 The king of Israel said to his servants, “Do you know that Ramoth-gilead belongs to us, yet we are doing nothing to take it out of the hand of the king of Aram?” 4 He said to Jehoshaphat, “Will you go with me to battle at Ramoth-gilead?” Jehoshaphat replied to the king of Israel, “I am as you are; my people are your people, my horses are your horses.”

5 But Jehoshaphat also said to the king of Israel, “Inquire first for the word of the LORD.” 6 Then the king of Israel gathered the prophets together, about four hundred of them, and said to them, “Shall I go to battle against Ramoth-gilead, or shall I refrain?” They said, “Go up; for the LORD will give it into the hand of the king.” 7 But Jehoshaphat said, “Is there no other prophet of the LORD here of whom we may inquire?” 8 The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “There is still one other by whom we may inquire of the LORD, Micaiah son of Imlah; but I hate him, for he never prophesies anything favorable about me, but only disaster.” Jehoshaphat said, “Let the king not say such a thing.” 9 Then the king of Israel summoned an officer and said, “Bring quickly Micaiah son of Imlah.” 10 Now the king of Israel and King Jehoshaphat of Judah were sitting on their thrones, arrayed in their robes, at the threshing floor at the entrance of the gate of Samaria; and all the prophets were prophesying before them. 11 Zedekiah son of Chenaanah made for himself horns of iron, and he said, “Thus says the LORD: With these you shall gore the Arameans until they are destroyed.” 12 All the prophets were prophesying the same and saying, “Go up to Ramoth-gilead and triumph; the LORD will give it into the hand of the king.”

Micaiah Predicts Failure

13 The messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, “Look, the murder. 21.27 In this case, sackcloth is a sign of mourning and penitence (see note on 20.31). 21.29 For the motif of penitence leading to a postponement or modification of judgment, see 2 Sam 12.13–14; 2 Kings 22.11–20. The oracle against Ahab’s house is finally fulfilled in 2 Kings 10.17, while Jezebel’s death is recorded in 2 Kings 9.30–37. The judgment against Ahab personally occurs more quickly (ch. 22).

22.1–12 After the interlude of Naboth’s vineyard, the narrator returns to the subject of Israel’s wars with Aram (see ch. 20). 22.1 The treaty Ahab made with Ben-hadad of Aram apparently maintained the peace (20.34). 22.2 During this period the Judean king Jehoshaphat was one of Ahab’s vassals (v. 44), a relationship Ahab sealed by marrying his daughter, Athaliah, to Jehoshaphat’s son, Jehoram (2 Kings 8.18, 26). 22.3 Ramoth-gilead was a Levitical city east of the Jordan and had been one of Solomon’s administrative centers (4.13). Its precise location is unknown. 22.4 As a vassal of Ahab’s, Jehoshaphat is bound to fight against Israel’s enemies. 22.5 Throughout the ancient Near East, it was customary before battle to seek a divine oracle or omen to determine whether or not there would be a favorable outcome (see, e.g., 1 Sam 28.3–19; Ezek 21.21–23). 22.6–7 The four hundred prophets were part of the royal court, but the Judean king apparently doubted that they were prophets of the Lord. 22.11 Zedekiah’s prophetic act with the horns was not thought to be an illustration of his prophecy but was believed to have the power to actualize his words.

22.13–28 Micaiah not only supplies a true oracle for Ahab but also provides a rare glimpse into the inner world of the prophet. The story also furnishes a clear example of the conflicts that could arise when one prophet’s words disagreed with those of another. 22.13 The messenger words of the prophets with one accord are favorable to the king; let your word be like the word of one of them, and speak favorably." ¹⁴But Micaiah said, "As the LORD lives, whatever the LORD says to me, that I will speak."

¹⁵ When he had come to the king, the king said to him, "Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall we refrain?" He answered him, "Go up and triumph; the LORD will give it into the hand of the king." ¹⁶But the king said to him, "How many times must I make you swear to tell me nothing but the truth in the name of the LORD?" ¹⁷Then Micaiah said, "I saw all Israel scattered on the mountains, like sheep that have no shepherd; and the LORD said, 'These have no master; let each one go home in peace.'" ¹⁸The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, "Did I not tell you that he would not prophesy anything favorable about me, but only disaster?"

¹⁹ Then Micaiah said, "Therefore hear the word of the LORD: I saw the LORD sitting on his throne, with all the host of heaven standing beside him to the right and to the left of him. ²⁰And the LORD said, 'Who will entice Ahab, so that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-gilead?' Then one said one thing, and another said another, ²¹until a spirit came forward and stood before the LORD, saying, 'I will entice him.' ²²'How?' the LORD asked him. He replied, 'I will go out and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.' Then the LORD said, 'You are to entice him, and you shall succeed; go out and do it.' ²³So you see, the LORD has put a lying spirit in the mouth of all these your prophets; the LORD has decreed disaster for you."

came up to Micaiah, slapped him on the cheek, and said, "Which way did the spirit of the LORD pass from me to speak to you?" ²⁵Micaiah replied, "You will find out on that day when you go in to hide in an inner chamber." ²⁶The king of Israel then ordered, "Take Micaiah, and return him to Amon the governor of the city and to Joash the king's son, ²⁷and say, 'Thus says the king: Put this fellow in prison, and feed him on reduced rations of bread and water until I come in peace.'" ²⁸Micaiah said, "If you return in peace, the LORD has not spoken by me." And he said, "Hear, you peoples, all of you!"

Defeat and Death of Ahab

²⁹ So the king of Israel and King Jehoshaphat of Judah went up to Ramoth-gilead. ³⁰The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, "I will disguise myself and go into battle, but you wear your robes." So the king of Israel disguised himself and went into battle. ³¹Now the king of Aram had commanded the thirty-two captains of his chariots, "Fight with no one small or great, but only with the king of Israel." ³²When the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, they said, "It is surely the king of Israel." So they turned to fight against him; and Jehoshaphat cried out. ³³When the captains of the chariots saw that it was not the king of Israel, they turned back from pursuing him. ³⁴But a certain man drew his bow and unknowingly struck the king of Israel between the scale armor and the breastplate; so he said to the driver of his chariot, "Turn around, and carry me out of the battle, for I am wounded." ³⁵The battle grew hot that day, and the king was apparently wants to avoid the confusion that would result if Micaiah were to go against the prophetic consensus. 22.15-16 Micaiah's decision to follow the majority is not credible because his oracle departs from his customary message. 22.19-23 Micaiah attempts to give more authority to his oracle by describing the circumstances in which he received it. He became an observer of the heavenly court and overheard God discussing events with supernatural advisers (cf. Isa 6.1-13). 22.22 The spirit is not described as a being who is inherently evil or as a tempter or adversary (cf. Job 1-2; Zech 3.1-2). Rather, the spirit plans to become a lying spirit temporarily in order to deceive Ahab. 22.24-25 The confrontation between the two prophets indicates that neither prophet was willing to admit that the other might be right.

22.29-40 In spite of Ahab's efforts to nullify the prophetic oracles, the words of Elijah (21.19) and Micaiah (22.17) are inevitably fulfilled. 22.30 Ahab disguises himself so that the enemy will think that the royally attired Jehoshaphat is the king of Israel. 22.32 Jehoshaphat's cry may have been a distinctive battle cry that allowed the Arameans to identify him. 22.35 The Israelites try to prevent the enemy from discovering that

³⁷ So the king died, and was brought to Samaria; they buried the king in Samaria. ³⁸They washed the chariot by the pool of Samaria; the dogs licked up his blood, and the prostitutes washed themselves in it,^u according to the word of the LORD that he had spoken. ³⁹Now the rest of the acts of Ahab, and all that he did, and the ivory house that he built, and all the cities that he built, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel? ⁴⁰So Ahab slept with his ancestors; and his son Ahaziah succeeded him.

Jehoshaphat Reigns over Judah

⁴¹ Jehoshaphat son of Asa began to reign over Judah in the fourth year of King Ahab of Israel. ⁴²Jehoshaphat was thirty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty-five years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Azubah daughter of Shilhi. ⁴³He walked in all the way of his father Asa; he did not turn aside from it, doing what was right in the sight of the LORD; yet the high places were not taken away, and the people still sacrificed and offered incense on the high places. ⁴⁴Jehoshaphat also made peace with the king of Israel.

⁴⁷ There was no king in Edom; a deputy was king. ⁴⁸Jehoshaphat made ships of the Tarshish type to go to Ophir for gold; but they did not go, for the ships were wrecked at Ezion-geber. ⁴⁹Then Ahaziah son of Ahab said to Jehoshaphat, "Let my servants go with your servants in the ships," but Jehoshaphat was not willing. ⁵⁰Jehoshaphat slept with his ancestors and was buried with his ancestors in the city of his father David; his son Jehoram succeeded him.

Ahaziah Reigns over Israel

⁵¹ Ahaziah son of Ahab began to reign over Israel in Samaria in the seventeenth year of King Jehoshaphat of Judah; he reigned two years over Israel. ⁵²He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, and walked in the way of his father and mother, and in the way of Jeroboam son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin. ⁵³He served Baal and worshiped him; he provoked the LORD, the God of Israel, to anger, just as his father had done.

the king had been wounded. 22.36 The end of the battle fulfills Micaiah's vision of a scattered Israel (v. 17). 22.38 This verse partially fulfills Elijah's prophecy (21.19), although his original oracle called for Ahab's blood to be spilled in Jezreel. The reference to the prostitutes is a bizarre addition to the prophecy.

22.41–50 The formal account of Jehoshaphat's reign portrays him as a good king, although he too fails to remove the high places. 22.41–42 Jehoshaphat reigned from ca. 873 to

2 KINGS

THE TWO BOOKS OF KINGS were once a single work, so 2 Kings simply continues the account of Israel's history that was begun in 1 Kings. The narratives of 2 Kings cover the history of Israel from the reign of Ahaziah (ca. 850–849 B.C.E.) to the Assyrian destruction of Samaria, the capital of the Northern Kingdom (721 B.C.E.). Interwoven with that history is the story of Judah from the reign of Jehoshaphat to the years immediately following the destruction of the Southern Kingdom, the fall of Jerusalem, and the Babylonian exile (586 B.C.E.). For a full introduction to 2 Kings, see the Introduction to 1 Kings. Robert R. Wilson

Elijah Denounces Ahaziah

1 After the death of Ahab, Moab rebelled against Israel.

2 Ahaziah had fallen through the lattice in his upper chamber in Samaria, and lay injured; so he sent messengers, telling them, "Go, inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron, whether I shall recover from this injury." 3 But the angel of the LORD said to Elijah the Tishbite, "Get up, go to meet the messengers of the king of Samaria, and say to them, 'Is it because there is no God in Israel that you are going to inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron?' 4 Now therefore thus says the LORD, 'You shall not leave the bed to which you have gone, but you shall surely die.'" So Elijah went.

5 The messengers returned to the king, who said to them, "Why have you returned?" 6 They answered him, "There came a man to meet us, who said to us, 'Go back to the king who sent you, and say to him: Thus says the LORD: Is it because there is no God in Israel that you are sending to inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron? Therefore you shall not leave the bed to which you have gone, but shall surely die.'" 7 He said to them, "What sort of man was he who came to meet you and told you these things?" 8 They answered him, "A hairy man, with a leather belt around his waist." He said, "It is Elijah the Tishbite."

9 Then the king sent to him a captain of fifty with his fifty men. He went up to Elijah, who was sitting on the top of a hill, and said to him, "O man of God, the king says, 'Come down.'" 10 But Elijah answered the captain of fifty, "If I am a man of God, let fire come down from heaven and consume you and your fifty." Then fire came down from heaven, and consumed him and his fifty.

11 Again the king sent to him another captain of fifty with his fifty. He went up^a and said to him, "O man of God, this is the king's order: Come down quickly!" 12 But Elijah answered them, "If I am a man of God, let fire come down from heaven and consume you and your fifty." Then the fire of God came down from heaven and consumed him and his fifty.

13 Again the king sent the captain of a third fifty with his fifty. So the third captain of fifty went up, and came and fell on his knees before Elijah, and entreated him, "O man of God, please let my life, and the life of these fifty servants of yours, be precious in your sight. 14 Look, fire came down from heaven and consumed the two former captains of fifty men with their fifties; but now let my life be precious in your sight." 15 Then the angel of the LORD said to Elijah, "Go down with him; do not be afraid of him." So he set out and went down with him to the king, 16 and said to him, "Thus says the

1.1–18 The story of Ahaziah's illness is used by the narrator as another illustration of the inevitable fulfillment of a prophetic judgment oracle against a corrupt Northern king. The basic narrative has been elaborated by the incorporation of legendary material illustrating the prophet's ability to wield divine power. 1.1 This note on Moab's revolt seems to be out of place, since Moab plays no role in the narrative until 3.5. On the other hand, it is possible that the narrator understands the revolt as a judgment on the evil dynasty of Ahab (see 1 Kings 22.51–53; cf. 1 Kings 11.1–26). 1.2 The word lattice implies a woven structure of some sort (1 Kings 7.17; Job 18.8), which probably covered a window. On the practice of consulting a deity through a prophet in times of sickness, cf. 2 Kings 8.7–15; 1 Kings 14.1–18, which is strikingly similar to the story being told here. The name Baal-zebub means "Baal of the Flies" or "Lord of the Flies" and is probably an intentional Israelite corruption of Baal-zebul, "Baal the Prince." The deity would have been a local manifestation of the Canaanite storm god, Baal, whose worship had been introduced into Israel by Ahaziah's father, Ahab (see note on 1 Kings 16.31). The NT preserves the name in the form Beelzebul (Mt 10.25; 12.24; Mk 3.22; Lk 11.15) and reflects the later development of the figure into the prince of demons. Ekron was a Philistine city that lay about twenty-two miles west of Jerusalem. Part of the tribe of Judah in David's time (1 Sam 7.14), Ekron may have been back in Philistine hands by the time this story takes place. 1.3 The message Elijah is to deliver reflects the ongoing struggle between the Lord and Baal over the issue of who is the true God in Israel. For an earlier stage of the contest, see 1 Kings 18.17–40. 1.9–16 The threefold account of attempts to summon Elijah illustrates the divine protection afforded the prophet and also his ability to control God's power. For a similar story, see 1 Sam 19.18–24. 1.9 Man of God. See note on 1 Kings 13.1. 1.10 Fire is a traditional symbol of God's active presence. See notes on 17 So he died according to the word of the LORD that Elijah had spoken. His brother,^b Jehoram succeeded him as king in the second year of King Jehoram son of Jehoshaphat of Judah, because Ahaziah had no son. ¹⁸Now the rest of the acts of Ahaziah that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel?

Elijah Ascends to Heaven

2 Now when the LORD was about to take Elijah up to heaven by a whirlwind, Elijah and Elisha were on their way from Gilgal. ²Elijah said to Elisha, “Stay here; for the LORD has sent me as far as Bethel.” But Elisha said, “As the LORD lives, and as you yourself live, I will not leave you.” So they went down to Bethel. ³The company of prophets^c who were in Bethel came out to Elisha, and said to him, “Do you know that today the LORD will take your master away from you?” And he said, “Yes, I know; keep silent.”

4 Elijah said to him, “Elisha, stay here; for the LORD has sent me to Jericho.” But he said, “As the LORD lives, and as you yourself live, I will not leave you.” So they came to Jericho. ⁵The company of prophets^c who were at Jericho drew near to Elisha, and said to him, “Do you know that today the LORD will take your master away from you?” And he answered, “Yes, I know; be silent.”

6 Then Elijah said to him, “Stay here; for the LORD has sent me to the Jordan.” But he said, “As the LORD lives, and as you yourself live, I will not leave you.” So the two of them went on. ⁷Fifty men of the company of prophets^c also went, and stood at some distance from them, as they both were standing by the Jordan. ⁸Then Elijah took his mantle and rolled it up, and struck the water; the water was parted to the one side and to the other, until the two of them crossed on dry ground.

9 When they had crossed, Elijah said to Elisha, “Tell me what I may do for you, before I am taken from you.” Elisha said, “Please let me inherit a double share of your spirit.” ¹⁰He responded, “You have asked a hard thing; yet, if you see me as I am being taken from you, it will be granted you; if not, it will not.” ¹¹As they continued walking and talking, a chariot

See note on 1 Kings 14.19–20.

2.1–18 The dramatic story of Elijah's ascension to heaven in a storm constitutes the climax of the narratives about this mysterious figure. Of all of the acts of power associated with him, this is the one that has most intrigued readers and fueled speculation about the prophet's character and eventual return. By the end of the or period he had already been connected with the coming of the “day of the LORD” (Mal 4.5), while later Jewish and Christian traditions associated him with the Messiah (Mt 11.13–14; 16.13–14; 17.10–13; Mk 6.14–15; 8.27–28; 9.11–13; Lk 1.17; 9.7–8, 18–19). 2.1 The whirlwind is elsewhere connected with God's presence (Job 38.1; 40.6; Ps

83.15; Jer 23.19; Zech 9.14). Gilgal is probably not the site on the Jordan where the Israelites first entered the land of Canaan (Josh 4.19) but a town about seven miles north of Bethel. 2.2 Bethel. See note on 1 Kings 12.29. 2.3 The company of prophets was a prophetic guild. 2.4 Jericho lies in the Jordan Valley about six miles north of the Dead Sea. 2.8 The mantle is a symbol of the prophet's power (cf. 1 Kings 19.19). Elijah's parting of the Jordan's waters recalls both the entry of Israel into Canaan (Josh 4.7–17) and Moses' parting of the sea during the exodus (Ex 14.21–22). For other attempts to portray Elijah as a prophet like Moses, see notes on 1 Kings 19.1–18. 2.9 Elisha's request for a double share of your spirit refers to the legal provision that a firstborn son must receive a double portion of the inheritance (Deut 21.15–17). Elisha thus asks to have the status of Elijah's firstborn and to inherit more of his spirit than any other prophetic heirs. Elisha is not requesting more of the spirit than Elijah had but only a fraction of it. 2.10 Although Elijah already knows that Elisha is to be his successor (1 Kings 19.16), the older prophet leaves the final decision to the Lord. 2.11 The Lord is often of fire and horses of fire separated the two of them, and Elijah ascended in a whirlwind into heaven. ¹²Elisha kept watching and crying out, "Father, father! The chariots of Israel and its horsemen!" But when he could no longer see him, he grasped his own clothes and tore them in two pieces.

¹³ He picked up the mantle of Elijah that had fallen from him, and went back and stood on the bank of the Jordan. ¹⁴He took the mantle of Elijah that had fallen from him, and struck the water, saying, "Where is the LORD, the God of Elijah?" When he had struck the water, the water was parted to the one side and to the other, and Elisha went over.

¹⁵ When the company of prophets^d who were at Jericho saw him at a distance, they declared, "The spirit of Elijah rests on Elisha." They came to meet him and bowed to the ground before him. ¹⁶They said to him, "See now, we have fifty strong men among your servants; please let them go and seek your master; it may be that the spirit of the LORD has caught him up and thrown him down on some mountain or into some valley." He responded, "No, do not send them." ¹⁷But when they urged him until he was ashamed, he said, "Send them." So they sent fifty men who searched for three days but did not find him. ¹⁸When they came back to him (he had remained at Jericho), he said to them, "Did I not say to you, Do not go?"

Elisha Performs Miracles

¹⁹ Now the people of the city said to Elisha, "The location of this city is good, as my lord sees; but the water is bad, and the land is unfruitful." ²⁰He said, "Bring me a new bowl, and put salt in it." So they brought it to him. ²¹Then he went to the spring of water and threw the salt into it, and said, "Thus says the LORD, I have made this water wholesome; from now on neither death nor miscarriage shall come from it." ²²So the water has been wholesome to this day, according to the word that Elisha spoke.

²³ He went up from there to Bethel; and while he was going up on the way, some small boys came out of the city and jeered at him, saying, "Go away, bald-head! Go away, baldhead!" ²⁴When he turned around and saw them, he cursed them in the name of the LORD. Then two she-bears came out of the woods and mauled forty-two of the boys. ²⁵From there he went on to Mount Carmel, and then returned to Samaria.

Jehoram Reigns over Israel

3 In the eighteenth year of King Jehoshaphat of Judah, Jehoram son of Ahab became king over Israel in Samaria; he reigned twelve years. ²He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, though not like his father and mother, for he re-associated with fire. See note on 1.10. 2.12 Elisha addresses Elijah as father, a traditional title for the head of a prophetic guild and one often used by a disciple speaking to a master. The phrase the chariots of Israel and its horsemen may simply describe the heavenly army that Elisha is seeing (v. 11), or the phrase may apply to Elijah and imply that he is more powerful and more valuable to Israel than all of its army. Elisha tears his clothes as a sign of mourning (Gen 37.34; 2 Sam 13.31; Job 1.20). 2.13–14 Elisha's ability to use the mantle to repeat the earlier miracle demonstrates that he has indeed become Elijah's successor. 2.16 The company of prophets did not see what happened to Elijah, and they assume that God's spirit has simply transported him to another location (see 1 Kings 18.7–16). Elisha knows that this is not the case and is reluctant to let them search.

2.19–25 Just as the Elijah narratives begin with stories designed to demonstrate the prophet's power and authority (1 Kings 17), so also the Elisha narratives include a number of prophetic legends dealing with his miraculous deeds. 2.19–22 The tale of Elisha caring for his followers by purifying the water is reminiscent of Moses sweetening the waters of Marah (Ex 15.23–25). 2.23 The small boys apparently do not want the prophet to visit the shrine at Bethel, perhaps because they know that he would disapprove of it (see 1 Kings 12.28–30; 13.1–10).

3.1–3 The formal report on Jehoram's reign indicates that he continued in the tradition of Israel's evil kings, although he did try to discourage the worship of Baal. Because for the narrator the real problem in Israel is heterodox worship generally (see 1 Kings 12.25–32), this minor reform makes little difference in the overall evaluation. 3.1 Jehoram ruled from about 849 to 843/2 B.C.E. On the chronological problems involved in his dates, see note on 1.17. 3.2 Pillar. See note on 1 Kings 14.23.

moved the pillar of Baal that his father had made. ³Nevertheless he clung to the sin of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to commit; he did not depart from it.

War with Moab

4 Now King Mesha of Moab was a sheep breeder, who used to deliver to the king of Israel one hundred thousand lambs, and the wool of one hundred thousand rams. ⁵But when Ahab died, the king of Moab rebelled against the king of Israel. ⁶So King Jehoram marched out of Samaria at that time and mustered all Israel. ⁷As he went he sent word to King Jehoshaphat of Judah, "The king of Moab has rebelled against me; will you go with me to battle against Moab?" He answered, "I will; I am with you, my people are your people, my horses are your horses." ⁸Then he asked, "By which way shall we march?" Jehoram answered, "By the way of the wilderness of Edom."

9 So the king of Israel, the king of Judah, and the king of Edom set out; and when they had made a roundabout march of seven days, there was no water for the army or for the animals that were with them. ¹⁰Then the king of Israel said, "Alas! The LORD has summoned us, three kings, only to be handed over to Moab." ¹¹But Jehoshaphat said, "Is there no prophet of the LORD here, through whom we may inquire of the LORD?" Then one of the servants of the king of Israel answered, "Elisha son of Shaphat, who used to pour water on the hands of Elijah, is here." ¹²Jehoshaphat said, "The word of the LORD is with him." So the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat and the king of Edom went down to him.

13 Elisha said to the king of Israel, "What have I to do with you? Go to your father's prophets or to your mother's." But the king of Israel said to him, "No; it is the LORD who has summoned us, three kings, only to be handed over to Moab." ¹⁴Elisha said, "As the LORD of hosts lives, whom I serve, were it not that I have regard for King Jehoshaphat of Judah, I would give you neither a look nor a glance. ¹⁵But get me a musician." And then, while the musician was playing, the power of the LORD came on him. ¹⁶And he said, "Thus says the LORD, 'I will make this wadi full of pools.' ¹⁷For thus says the LORD, 'You shall see neither wind nor rain, but the wadi shall be filled with water, so that you shall drink, you, your cattle, and your animals.' ¹⁸This is only a trifle in the sight of the LORD, for he will also hand Moab over to you. ¹⁹You shall conquer every fortified city and every choice city; every good tree you shall fell, all springs of water you shall stop up, and every good piece of land you shall ruin with stones." ²⁰The next day, about the

3.4–27 This report of Israel's war with Moab is unusual in that it portrays Elisha as actively involved in working toward a victory for Israel and its allies (see also 6.8–23; 6.24–7.2; 1 Kings 20.13–22). In this sense the account is in sharp contrast with the otherwise very similar battle report in 1 Kings 22.1–40. 3.7 Jehoshaphat of Judah is a vassal of the Northern king, as was also the case during Ahab's reign. The Judeans are therefore obligated to join Israel in quelling the Moabite rebellion (cf. 1 Kings 22.4). 3.8 Jehoram proposes to march south through Judah and then east across the northern part of Edom and through the northeastern desert, the wilderness of Edom. This route would require the cooperation of the Edomites, who at the time were vassals of Judah (8.20). The three armies then plan to march north into Moab, approaching their target from the southeast. 3.9 The king of Edom was in fact an official who was probably appointed by Jehoshaphat (1 Kings 22.47). 3.11 As in 1 Kings 22.7, it is Jehoshaphat who proposes to seek divine guidance through a prophet of the Lord. Elisha's reputation as Elijah's successor is already well established. The reference to pouring water indicates that Elisha acted as Elijah's servant. 3.13 Elisha's reference is to the prophets of Baal and the prophets of Asherah, who were part of Ahab's court (1 Kings 18.19; cf. 1 Kings 22.6, 10–12). Jehoram's reply suggests that the Lord has directed Israel to fight the Moabites. 3.14 Elisha here reflects the point of view of the narrator, who sees all of the Northern kings as illegitimate and apostate but who believes in the eternal divine election of Jerusalem and the Davidic house. 3.15 Prophets sometimes used music to induce trance or possession by God's spirit (1 Sam 10.5–6). 3.16–17 The wadi would normally have contained water only during the rainy season. 3.19 The extreme destruction of Moab is a violation of the laws governing religious war (Deut 20.19–20). 3.20 The or does not specify the precise time of the morning offering (Ex 29.38–42), but later Jewish sources require that it time of the morning offering, suddenly water began to flow from the direction of Edom, until the country was filled with water.

21 When all the Moabites heard that the kings had come up to fight against them, all who were able to put on armor, from the youngest to the oldest, were called out and were drawn up at the frontier. 22 When they rose early in the morning, and the sun shone upon the water, the Moabites saw the water opposite them as red as blood. 23 They said, "This is blood; the kings must have fought together, and killed one another. Now then, Moab, to the spoil!" 24 But when they came to the camp of Israel, the Israelites rose up and attacked the Moabites, who fled before them; as they entered Moab they continued the attack.^e 25 The cities they overturned, and on every good piece of land everyone threw a stone, until it was covered; every spring of water they stopped up, and every good tree they felled. Only at Kir-hareseth did the stone walls remain, until the slingers surrounded and attacked it. 26 When the king of Moab saw that the battle was going against him, he took with him seven hundred swordsmen to break through, opposite the king of Edom; but they could not. 27 Then he took his firstborn son who was to succeed him, and offered him as a burnt offering on the wall. And great wrath came upon Israel, so they withdrew from him and returned to their own land.

Elisha and the Widow's Oil

4 Now the wife of a member of the company of prophets^f cried to Elisha, "Your servant my husband is dead; and you know that your servant feared the LORD, but a creditor has come to take my two children as slaves." 2 Elisha said to her, "What shall I do for you? Tell me, what do you have in the house?" She answered, "Your servant has nothing in the house, except a jar of oil." 3 He said, "Go outside, borrow vessels from all your neighbors, empty vessels and not just a few. 4 Then go in, and shut the door behind you and your children, and start pouring into all these vessels; when each is full, set it aside." 5 So she left him and shut the door behind her and her children; they kept bringing vessels to her, and she kept pouring. 6 When the vessels were full, she said to her son, "Bring me another vessel." But he said to her, "There are no more." Then the oil stopped flowing. 7 She came and told the man of God, and he said, "Go sell the oil and pay your debts, and you and your children can live on the rest."

Elisha Raises the Shunammite's Son

8 One day Elisha was passing through Shunem, where a wealthy woman lived, who urged him to have a meal. So when-

be made at dawn. 3.22 The water red as blood is probably intended to be a miraculous occurrence, although some scholars have suggested that the Edomites saw water colored by the rising morning sun or by the country's red sandstone. 3.25 Kir-hareseth was located about eleven miles east of the Dead Sea and seventeen miles south of the Arnon River. 3.27 Extrabiblical sources indicate that human sacrifices were sometimes offered in times of siege, although there are no other OT references to the practice (but cf. 16.3; 21.6). The word translated wrath is often associated with the wrath of a deity, and the text may be implying that the anger of Moab's god caused the Israelites to withdraw.

4.1–7 This is the first of four prophetic legends in ch. 4 and is designed to enhance the prophet's authority by demonstrating his miraculous powers. All of the stories probably circulated orally before being incorporated in Kings. For a similar story told about Elijah, see 1 Kings 17.8–16. 4.1 In the remaining Elisha stories he is portrayed as the leader of a company of prophets, a prophetic guild. The widow has no means of support and cannot repay the debt. The selling of people into slavery in such circumstances was apparently common (Ex 21.7; Am 2.6; 8.6; Mic 2.9). See note on 1 Kings 17.10. 4.2 Elisha's question implies that he is powerless to intervene with the creditor on her behalf. His actual response will be much more dramatic.

4.8–37 This story of the miraculous birth, death, and resurrection of a child is a gem of Hebrew narrative art and reflects careful shaping and polishing over a long period of time. For a parallel story about Elijah, see 1 Kings ever he passed that way, he would stop there for a meal. ⁹She said to her husband, "Look, I am sure that this man who regularly passes our way is a holy man of God. ¹⁰Let us make a small roof chamber with walls, and put there for him a bed, a table, a chair, and a lamp, so that he can stay there whenever he comes to us."

¹¹ One day when he came there, he went up to the chamber and lay down there. ¹²He said to his servant Gehazi, "Call the Shunammite woman." When he had called her, she stood before him. ¹³He said to him, "Say to her, Since you have taken all this trouble for us, what may be done for you? Would you have a word spoken on your behalf to the king or to the commander of the army?" She answered, "I live among my own people." ¹⁴He said, "What then may be done for her?" Gehazi answered, "Well, she has no son, and her husband is old." ¹⁵He said, "Call her." When he had called her, she stood at the door. ¹⁶He said, "At this season, in due time, you shall embrace a son." She replied, "No, my lord, O man of God; do not deceive your servant."

¹⁷ The woman conceived and bore a son at that season, in due time, as Elisha had declared to her.

¹⁸ When the child was older, he went out one day to his father among the reapers. ¹⁹He complained to his father, "Oh, my head, my head!" The father said to his servant, "Carry him to his mother." ²⁰He carried him and brought him to his mother; the child sat on her lap until noon, and he died. ²¹She went up and laid him on the bed of the man of God, closed the door on him, and left. ²²Then she called to her husband, and said, "Send me one of the servants and one of the donkeys, so that I may quickly go to the man of God and come back again." ²³He said, "Why go to him today? It is neither new moon nor sabbath." She said, "It will be all right." ²⁴Then she saddled the donkey and said to her servant, "Urge the animal on; do not hold back for me unless I tell you." ²⁵So she set out, and came to the man of God at Mount Carmel.

When the man of God saw her coming, he said to Gehazi his servant, "Look, there is the Shunammite woman; ²⁶run at once to meet her, and say to her, Are you all right? Is your husband all right? Is the child all right?" She answered, "It is all right." ²⁷When she came to the man of God at the mountain, she caught hold of his feet. Gehazi approached to push her away. But the man of God said, "Let her alone, for she is in bitter distress; the LORD has hidden it from me and has not told me." ²⁸Then she said, "Did I ask my lord for a son? Did I not say, Do not mislead me?" ²⁹He said to Gehazi, "Gird up your loins, and take my staff in your hand, and go. If you meet anyone, give no greeting, and if anyone greets you, do not answer; and lay my staff on the face of the child." ³⁰Then the mother of the child said, "As the LORD lives, and as you yourself live, I will not leave without you." So he rose up and followed her. ³¹Gehazi went on ahead and laid the staff on the face of the child, but there was no sound or sign of life. He came back to meet him and told him, "The child has not awakened."

³² When Elisha came into the house, he saw the child lying dead on his bed.

17.17-24. 4.8 Shunem. See note on 1 Kings 1.3. 4.10 Because little is known about the second floor of Israelite houses, the precise nature of the structure she proposes to build is unclear. 4.13 The Shunammite's kindness is rewarded by Elisha, whose offer of aid indicates his ability to influence the highest levels of government. Her reply indicates that all of her physical needs can be met by her own family. 4.16-17 The OT has preserved several stories about the miraculous birth of a child to a barren woman, e.g., Gen 18.1-15; 30.1-24; Judg 13.2-25; 1 Sam 1.1-28. The phrase translated in due time probably means "next year" (Gen 18.10, 14). 4.16 The unusual phrase Elisha uses to promise the birth of the child, you shall embrace a son, is ironically reflected in v. 20. 4.19 The child probably suffered sunstroke. 4.22-23 The husband does not know that the child has died, so he is puzzled by his wife's desire to visit Elijah. 4.23 New moons and sabbaths were times for special rituals, so these were apparently appropriate times to visit religious figures (Ex 20.8-11; Num 28.11-15; Isa 1.14; 66.23; Hos 2.11; Am 8.5). 4.26 Because of the importance of her errand, the Shunammite wishes to speak to the prophet directly and offers only a courteous reply to Gehazi. 4.29 Without being told directly, the prophet now knows the nature of the problem. 4.30 The woman's persistence convinces Elisha to accompany her.

³³So he went in and closed the door on the two of them, and prayed to the LORD. ³⁴Then he got up on the bed^g and lay upon the child, putting his mouth upon his mouth, his eyes upon his eyes, and his hands upon his hands; and while he lay bent over him, the flesh of the child became warm. ³⁵He got down, walked once to and fro in the room, then got up again and bent over him; the child sneezed seven times, and the child opened his eyes. ³⁶Elisha^h summoned Gehazi and said, "Call the Shunammite woman." So he called her. When she came to him, he said, "Take your son." ³⁷She came and fell at his feet, bowing to the ground; then she took her son and left.

Elisha Purifies the Pot of Stew

³⁸ When Elisha returned to Gilgal, there was a famine in the land. As the company of prophets wasⁱ sitting before him, he said to his servant, "Put the large pot on, and make some stew for the company of prophets."^j ³⁹One of them went out into the field to gather herbs; he found a wild vine and gathered from it a lapful of wild gourds, and came and cut them up into the pot of stew, not knowing what they were. ⁴⁰They served some for the men to eat. But while they were eating the stew, they cried out, "O man of God, there is death in the pot!" They could not eat it. ⁴¹He said, "Then bring some flour." He threw it into the pot, and said, "Serve the people and let them eat." And there was nothing harmful in the pot.

Elisha Feeds One Hundred Men

⁴² A man came from Baal-shalishah, bringing food from the first fruits to the man of God: twenty loaves of barley and fresh ears of grain in his sack. Elisha said, "Give it to the people and let them eat." ⁴³But his servant said, "How can I set this before a hundred people?" So he repeated, "Give it to the people and let them eat, for thus says the LORD, 'They shall eat and have some left.'" ⁴⁴He set it before them, they ate, and had some left, according to the word of the LORD.

The Healing of Naaman

5 Naaman, commander of the army of the king of Aram, was a great man and in high favor with his master, because by him the LORD had given victory to Aram. The man, though a mighty warrior, suffered from leprosy.^k ²Now the Arameans on one of their raids had taken a young girl captive from the land of Israel, and she served Naaman's wife. ³She said to her mistress, "If only my lord were with the prophet who is in Samaria! He would cure him of his leprosy."^k ⁴So Naaman^h went in and told his lord just what the girl from the land of Israel had said. ⁵And the king of Aram said, "Go then, and I will send along a letter to the king of Israel."

He went, taking with him ten talents of 4.35 Apparently the effort exhausted the prophet so that he has to rest a bit before making a second attempt. The sneezing indicates that the child's breath has returned. The number seven often appears in rituals.

4.38–41 This prophetic legend illustrates the prophet's ability to care for his disciples in times of hardship. 4.38 Gilgal. See note on 2.1. The company of prophets, the prophetic guild, was probably gathered around Elisha for instruction. 4.39 The identification of the herbs and the wild gourds is uncertain.

4.42–44 This miraculous feeding of the prophetic guild is reminiscent of the accounts of Jesus feeding large crowds (Mt 14.13–21; 15.32–38; Mk 8.1–10). 4.42 Baal-shalishah is southwest of Shechem.

5.1–19a This account of the healing of Naaman may have once been simply a legend that focused on Elisha's miraculous healing powers. However, the story in its final form has been shaped to emphasize Naaman's conversion and his acknowledgment of the power of the one true God. The theme of the conversion of foreign officials was particularly meaningful to Israel during and after the Babylonian exile. See, e.g., Dan 2.46–47; 3.28; 4.34–37; 6.25–27. 5.1 For an account of Israel's earlier battles with Aram (Syria), see 1 Kings 20.1–34; 22.1–40 and notes there. The notion that the LORD had given victory to Aram reflects 1 Kings 22.19–23. The word translated leprosy is applied to a number of skin diseases, none of which is identical with modern leprosy (Hansen's disease). 5.3 Elisha already has a reputation as a healer, presumably on the basis of stories like 4.8–37. 5.5 A talent weighs about 75 pounds. The weight of a shekel varied greatly in ancient Israel, but it averaged silver, six thousand shekels of gold, and ten sets of garments. ⁶He brought the letter to the king of Israel, which read, "When this letter reaches you, know that I have sent to you my servant Naaman, that you may cure him of his leprosy."⁷ When the king of Israel read the letter, he tore his clothes and said, "Am I God, to give death or life, that this man sends word to me to cure a man of his leprosy?⁷ Just look and see how he is trying to pick a quarrel with me."

⁸ But when Elisha the man of God heard that the king of Israel had torn his clothes, he sent a message to the king, "Why have you torn your clothes? Let him come to me, that he may learn that there is a prophet in Israel."⁹ So Naaman came with his horses and chariots, and halted at the entrance of Elisha's house. ¹⁰Elisha sent a messenger to him, saying, "Go, wash in the Jordan seven times, and your flesh shall be restored and you shall be clean."¹¹ But Naaman became angry and went away, saying, "I thought that for me he would surely come out, and stand and call on the name of the LORD his God, and would wave his hand over the spot, and cure the leprosy!"¹² Are not Abana^m and Pharpar, the rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? Could I not wash in them, and be clean?" He turned and went away in a rage. ¹³But his servants approached and said to him, "Father, if the prophet had commanded you to do something difficult, would you not have done it? How much more, when all he said to you was, 'Wash, and be clean'?" ¹⁴So he went down and immersed himself seven times in the Jordan, according to the word of the man of God; his flesh was restored like the flesh of a young boy, and he was clean.

¹⁵ Then he returned to the man of God, he and all his company; he came and stood before him and said, "Now I know that there is no God in all the earth except in Israel; please accept a present from your servant."¹⁶ But he said, "As the LORD lives, whom I serve, I will accept nothing!" He urged him to accept, but he refused. ¹⁷Then Naaman said, "If not, please let two mule-loads of earth be given to your servant; for your servant will no longer offer burnt offering or sacrifice to any god except the LORD. ¹⁸But may the LORD pardon your servant on one count: when my master goes into the house of Rimmon to worship there, leaning on my arm, and I bow down in the house of Rimmon, when I do bow down in the house of Rimmon, may the LORD pardon your servant on this one count."¹⁹ He said to him, "Go in peace."

Gehazi's Greed

But when Naaman had gone from him a short distance, ²⁰Gehazi, the servant of Elisha the man of God, thought, "My master has let that Aramean Naaman off too lightly by not accepting from him what he offered. As the LORD lives, I will run after him and get something out of him."²¹ So Gehazi went after Naaman. When Naaman saw someone running after him, he jumped down from the chariot to meet him and said, "Is everything all right?"

Tearing clothing was a sign of mourning or distress (see, e.g., Josh 7.6; Esth 4.1-3; Job 1.20). 5.10 The number seven often appears in rituals. 5.11 Naaman expects Elisha to perform a ritual similar to the ones used by other healers. The Aramean does not realize that Elisha's power is so great that ritual is unnecessary. 5.12 The Abana (or Amana) River flows just north of Damascus, the capital of Aram. The Pharpar River lies to the south of the city. 5.13 The title father is usually used by a disciple addressing a master. It is not usually employed by servants. 5.17 Naaman assumes that Israel's God can only be worshiped in the land of Israel, so the dirt is necessary to create a "miniature Israel" in Syria. The question of how God could be worshiped in a foreign land became a serious one for Israel during the exile (cf. Ps 137.4). 5.18 Rimmon (probably meaning "thunderer") is an epithet of the Syrian storm god Hadad, a deity usually identified with the Canaanite god Baal (see note on 1 Kings 16.31).

5.19b-27 This epilogue to the story of Naaman's healing serves to contrast Gehazi's greed with the unselfishness of Elisha, who will not use his great powers for his own benefit (v. 16).

22 He replied, "Yes, but my master has sent me to say, 'Two members of a company of prophetsⁿ have just come to me from the hill country of Ephraim; please give them a talent of silver and two changes of clothing.'" 23 Naaman said, "Please accept two talents." He urged him, and tied up two talents of silver in two bags, with two changes of clothing, and gave them to two of his servants, who carried them in front of Gehazi.^o 24 When he came to the citadel, he took the bags^p from them, and stored them inside; he dismissed the men, and they left.

25 He went in and stood before his master; and Elisha said to him, "Where have you been, Gehazi?" He answered, "Your servant has not gone anywhere at all." 26 But he said to him, "Did I not go with you in spirit when someone left his chariot to meet you? Is this a time to accept money and to accept clothing, olive orchards and vineyards, sheep and oxen, and male and female slaves? 27 Therefore the leprosy^q of Naaman shall cling to you, and to your descendants forever." So he left his presence leprous,^q as white as snow.

The Miracle of the Ax Head

6 Now the company of prophetsⁿ said to Elisha, "As you see, the place where we live under your charge is too small for us. 2 Let us go to the Jordan, and let us collect logs there, one for each of us, and build a place there for us to live." He answered, "Do so." 3 Then one of them said, "Please come with your servants." And he answered, "I will." 4 So he went with them. When they came to the Jordan, they cut down trees. 5 But as one was felling a log, his ax head fell into the water; he cried out, "Alas, master! It was borrowed." 6 Then the man of God said, "Where did it fall?" When he showed him the place, he cut off a stick, and threw it in there, and made the iron float. 7 He said, "Pick it up." So he reached out his hand and took it.

The Aramean Attack Is Thwarted

8 Once when the king of Aram was at war with Israel, he took counsel with his officers. He said, "At such and such a place shall be my camp." 9 But the man of God sent word to the king of Israel, "Take care not to pass this place, because the Arameans are going down there." 10 The king of Israel sent word to the place of which the man of God spoke. More than once or twice he warned such a place^r so that it was on the alert.

11 The mind of the king of Aram was greatly perturbed because of this; he called his officers and said to them, "Now tell me who among us sides with the king of Israel?" 12 Then one of his officers said, "No one, my lord king. It is Elisha, the prophet in Israel, who tells the king of Israel the words that you speak in your bed-chamber." 13 He said, "Go and find where he is; I will send and seize him." He was told, "He is in Dothan." 14 So he sent horses and chariots there and a great army; they came by night, and surrounded the city.

5.22 Company of prophets. See notes on 4.1; 4.38. A talent weighs about 75 pounds. 5.26 Apparently Elisha has extrasensory perception and is able to travel in spirit even though his body does not move. See also 6.8–9. Elisha's question elaborates on Gehazi's greed.

6.1–7 The legend of the floating ax head is another illustration of the prophet's extraordinary powers. 6.1 The company of prophets or prophetic guild has probably outgrown its meeting space. The other stories about this group suggest that its members do not all live together but do gather periodically, probably for instruction from Elisha (see, e.g., 4.1–2, 38; 5.22). 6.6 Elisha's use of a new ax handle rather than the old one may imply that the miracle requires the use of new objects. Note, e.g., the new bowl in 2.20, and cf. the use of a new garment in Ahijah's prophetic act (1 Kings 11.29).

6.8–23 This story from the time of the Aramean wars again shows Elisha using his miraculous powers on behalf of Israel against the Syrians. For other stories in which Elisha acts for rather than against Israel, see 3.1–27; 6.24–7.2, and cf. the story of the unnamed prophet in 1 Kings 20.13–22. 6.8 For earlier episodes in the war between Israel and Aram, see 1 Kings 20.1–34; 22.1–40 and notes. 6.9 Elijah apparently got the information through extrasensory perception (cf. 5.26). 6.13 Dothan is about ten out, an army with horses and chariots was all around the city. His servant said, "Alas, master! What shall we do?" ¹⁶He replied, "Do not be afraid, for there are more with us than there are with them." ¹⁷Then Elisha prayed: "O LORD, please open his eyes that he may see." So the LORD opened the eyes of the servant, and he saw; the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire all around Elisha. ¹⁸When the Arameans^s came down against him, Elisha prayed to the LORD, and said, "Strike this people, please, with blindness." So he struck them with blindness as Elisha had asked. ¹⁹Elisha said to them, "This is not the way, and this is not the city; follow me, and I will bring you to the man whom you seek." And he led them to Samaria.

²⁰ As soon as they entered Samaria, Elisha said, "O LORD, open the eyes of these men so that they may see." The LORD opened their eyes, and they saw that they were inside Samaria. ²¹When the king of Israel saw them he said to Elisha, "Father, shall I kill them? Shall I kill them?" ²²He answered, "No! Did you capture with your sword and your bow those whom you want to kill? Set food and water before them so that they may eat and drink; and let them go to their master." ²³So he prepared for them a great feast; after they ate and drank, he sent them on their way, and they went to their master. And the Arameans no longer came raiding into the land of Israel.

Ben-hadad's Siege of Samaria

miles north of Samaria. 6.16 The exhortation not to be afraid often introduces prophecies of salvation and deliverance (Isa 41.10; Jer 1.8). 6.17 The horses and chariots of fire are the heavenly army that fights for Israel in times of need (see also 2.11). On the motif of the supernatural protection of the prophet, cf. 1.9–15. Fire is often associated with the Lord (see note on 1 Kings 18.24). 6.21 The king of Israel here calls Elisha father, the traditional form of address used by a disciple speaking to a master. The use of the title here implies that the king acknowledges the authority of the prophet. 6.22 For a very different response in a similar situation, cf. 1 Kings 20.35–43. 6.23 This comment implies that the Syrians were so overwhelmed by the divine power being exercised by the prophet that they broke off hostilities.

6.24–7.20 The gripping account of the Aramean siege of Samaria is a subtle and polished piece of work. In a radical departure from the usual sparseness of Hebrew narrative style, the narrator uses extensive detail to create a vivid picture of life in the besieged city. In contrast to many of the Elisha stories, this one does not credit the prophet with being the agent of the city's salvation but focuses almost entirely on God's mysterious act of deliverance. 6.24 Several Aramean kings bore the name Ben-hadad. This individual is probably not to be identified with the Ben-hadad of 1 Kings 15.18 or 1 Kings 20.1. The chronological relationship of the siege to the incident described in 6.8–23 cannot be established. The events being described here clearly do not reflect the situation of 6.23. 6.25 The extreme scarcity of food during the siege is indicated by the high price being paid even for so unappetizing an item as a donkey's head. Shekel. See note on 5.5. A kab is a little over a quart. Dried dung was used for fuel in the ancient Near East, although in Israel it may have been considered impure, at least by priests (Ezek 4.12–15). This quantity of dove's dung would probably not make much of a fire. Some scholars have suggested that dove's dung was a slang term for some sort of inedible seed pods or husks. 6.27 The king realizes that there is little that he can do to help the woman, but he does ironically point to the solution to the problem. The Lord will eventually help the city (7.6). 6.28–29 Extrabiblical sources report cases of cannibalism in times of siege, and the OT alludes to such behavior during the Babylonian siege of Jerusalem (Lam 2.20; 4.10; Ezek 5.10). Deuteronomical law includes cannibalism as one of the curses to be visited on Israel if it breaks the covenant (Deut 28.53–57). The matter-of-fact way in which the woman presents her case adds to the will eat him today, and we will eat my son tomorrow.’²⁹ So we cooked my son and ate him. The next day I said to her, ‘Give up your son and we will eat him.’ But she has hidden her son.”³⁰ When the king heard the words of the woman he tore his clothes—now since he was walking on the city wall, the people could see that he had sackcloth on his body underneath—³¹ and he said, “So may God do to me, and more, if the head of Elisha son of Shaphat stays on his shoulders today.”³² So he dispatched a man from his presence.

Now Elisha was sitting in his house, and the elders were sitting with him. Before the messenger arrived, Elisha said to the elders, “Are you aware that this murderer has sent someone to take off my head? When the messenger comes, see that you shut the door and hold it closed against him. Is not the sound of his master’s feet behind him?”³³ While he was still speaking with them, the king^t came down to him and said, “This trouble is from the LORD! Why should I hope in the LORD any longer?”¹ But Elisha said, “Hear the word of the LORD: thus says the LORD, Tomorrow about this time a measure of choice meal shall be sold for a shekel, and two measures of barley for a shekel, at the gate of Samaria.”² Then the captain on whose hand the king leaned said to the man of God, “Even if the LORD were to make windows in the sky, could such a thing happen?” But he said, “You shall see it with your own eyes, but you shall not eat from it.”

³ Now there were four leprous^u men outside the city gate, who said to one another, “Why should we sit here until we die? ⁴If we say, ‘Let us enter the city,’ the famine is in the city, and we shall die there; but if we sit here, we shall also die. Therefore, let us desert to the Aramean camp; if they spare our lives, we shall live; and if they kill us, we shall but die.”⁵ So they arose at twilight to go to the Aramean camp; but when they came to the edge of the Aramean camp, there was no one there at all. ⁶For the Lord had caused the Aramean army to hear the sound of chariots, and of horses, the sound of a great army, so that they said to one another, “The king of Israel has hired the kings of the Hittites and the kings of Egypt to fight against us.”⁷ So they fled away in the twilight and abandoned their tents, their horses, and their donkeys leaving the camp just as it was, and fled for their lives. ⁸When these leprous^u men had come to the edge of the camp, they went into a tent, ate and drank, carried off silver, gold, and clothing, and went and hid them. Then they came back, entered another tent, carried off things from it, and went and hid them.

⁹ Then they said to one another, “What we are doing is wrong. This is a day of good news; if we are silent and wait until the morning light, we will be found guilty; therefore let us go and tell the king’s household.”¹⁰ So they came and horror of it. 6.30 The tearing of clothes and the wearing of sackcloth are both signs of mourning and distress. See notes on 5.7; 1 Kings 20.31. 6.31 There is nothing specific in the story to explain why the king blamed the situation on Elisha. However, the king views the siege as the work of the Lord (v. 33), so the king may assume that the Lord’s representative, the prophet, is involved as well. 6.32 The elders, the leaders of Israel’s traditional kinship groups, have come to Elisha for instruction, just as the company of prophets regularly did (4.38). Elisha is apparently willing to speak with the king personally but not with the messenger. He therefore orders the door to be closed against the messenger until the king arrives (v. 33). 6.33 The king does not see the siege as divine punishment for past sins, which probably was the perspective of the narrator, but as an arbitrary exercise in divine power that warrants rejecting God. 7.1 Elisha’s surprising reply indicates that God will soon reverse the city’s fortunes. Cf. the prices listed in 6.25. The gate was the city’s main market area. 7.2 The captain on whose hand the king leaned did not literally support the king but was his chief adviser. The precise meaning of the word translated captain is uncertain. The windows in the sky are the openings through which rain comes (Gen 7.11; Mal 3.10). The captain assumes that the food to which Elisha is referring could appear only as a result of new growth. 7.3 Leprous. See note on 5.1. People in this condition were forbidden to come within the gates of the city (Lev 13.11, 46; Num 12.14–16). 7.6 In this period the Hittites ruled a few city-states north of Syria, but they were hardly a major threat. The Egyptians would have represented a greater danger. 7.7 According to the narrator, the Arameans are so frightened that they even abandon their horses and donkeys, which would have has-called to the gatekeepers of the city, and told them, "We went to the Aramean camp, but there was no one to be seen or heard there, nothing but the horses tied, the donkeys tied, and the tents as they were." ¹¹ Then the gatekeepers called out and proclaimed it to the king's household. ¹² The king got up in the night, and said to his servants, "I will tell you what the Arameans have prepared against us. They know that we are starving; so they have left the camp to hide themselves in the open country, thinking, 'When they come out of the city, we shall take them alive and get into the city.'" ¹³ One of his servants said, "Let some men take five of the remaining horses, since those left here will suffer the fate of the whole multitude of Israel that have perished already; ^v let us send and find out." ¹⁴ So they took two mounted men, and the king sent them after the Aramean army, saying, "Go and find out." ¹⁵ So they went after them as far as the Jordan; the whole way was littered with garments and equipment that the Arameans had thrown away in their haste. So the messengers returned, and told the king.

¹⁶ Then the people went out, and plundered the camp of the Arameans. So a measure of choice meal was sold for a shekel, and two measures of barley for a shekel, according to the word of the Lord. ¹⁷ Now the king had appointed the captain on whose hand he leaned to have charge of the gate; the people trampled him to death in the gate, just as the man of God had said when the king came down to him. ¹⁸ For when the man of God had said to the king, "Two measures of barley shall be sold for a shekel, and a measure of choice meal for a shekel, about this time tomorrow in the gate of Samaria," ¹⁹ the captain had answered the man of God, "Even if the LORD were to make windows in the sky, could such a thing happen?" And he had answered, "You shall see it with your own eyes, but you shall not eat from it." ²⁰ It did indeed happen to him; the people trampled him to death in the gate.

The Shunammite Woman's Land Restored

8 Now Elisha had said to the woman whose son he had restored to life, "Get up and go with your household, and settle wherever you can; for the LORD has called for a famine, and it will come on the land for seven years." ² So the woman got up and did according to the word of the man of God; she went with her household and settled in the land of the Philistines seven years. ³ At the end of the seven years, when the woman returned from the land of the Philistines, she set out to appeal to the king for her house and her land. ⁴ Now the king was talking with Gehazi the servant of the man of God, saying, "Tell me all the great things that Elisha has done." ⁵ While he was telling the king how Elisha had restored a dead person to life, the woman whose son he had restored to life appealed to the king for her house and her land. Gehazi said, "My lord king, here is the woman, and here is her son whom Elisha restored to life." ⁶ When the king questioned the woman, she told him. So the king appointed an official for her, saying, "Restore all that was hers, together with all

tened their flight. 7.13 The servant suggests risking the loss of the horses to the Arameans because the animals would be likely to starve during the siege anyway. 7.17 To be sure readers do not miss the point, the narrator clarifies it in vv. 18-20 (cf. 7.1-3).

8.1-6 This brief story about the Shunammite woman's land claim is a sequel to the account in 4.8-37. The narrative demonstrates Elisha's willingness to use his powers to aid those who support him. 8.1 The story's connection with the preceding narrative is unclear. The seven-year famine does not seem to be related to the starvation caused by the siege but is a new threat of which the Lord has warned the prophet. Famines were common occurrences in ancient Israel (4.38;

1 Kings 17.1), but sometimes people could migrate in order to escape them (Gen 12.10; 26.1). 8.2 The woman's temporary residence with the Philistines, somewhere on the west coast of Palestine, indicates that the famine was not widespread. 8.3 Apparently the Shunammite's house and lands had been taken in her absence, although the circumstances of the loss are unclear. They might have become crown property for some reason, or perhaps her neighbors simply expanded their borders. 8.4 In contrast to the preceding narrative (6.31), the king here idolizes Elisha. 8.6 The Shunammite's involvement in Elisha's powerful deed is enough to persuade the king to act favorably on her case.

Death of Ben-hadad

7 Elisha went to Damascus while King Ben-hadad of Aram was ill. When it was told him, "The man of God has come here," ⁸the king said to Hazael, "Take a present with you and go to meet the man of God. Inquire of the LORD through him, whether I shall recover from this illness." ⁹So Hazael went to meet him, taking a present with him, all kinds of goods of Damascus, forty camel loads. When he entered and stood before him, he said, "Your son King Ben-hadad of Aram has sent me to you, saying, 'Shall I recover from this illness?'" ¹⁰Elisha said to him, "Go, say to him, 'You shall certainly recover'; but the LORD has shown me that he shall certainly die." ¹¹He fixed his gaze and stared at him, until he was ashamed. Then the man of God wept. ¹²Hazael asked, "Why does my lord weep?" He answered, "Because I know the evil that you will do to the people of Israel; you will set their fortresses on fire, you will kill their young men with the sword, dash in pieces their little ones, and rip up their pregnant women." ¹³Hazael said, "What is your servant, who is a mere dog, that he should do this great thing?" Elisha answered, "The LORD has shown me that you are to be king over Aram." ¹⁴Then he left Elisha, and went to his master Ben-hadad,^w who said to him, "What did Elisha say to you?" And he answered, "He told me that you would certainly recover." ¹⁵But the next day he took the bed-cover and dipped it in water and spread it over the king's face, until he died. And Hazael succeeded him.

Jehoram Reigns over Judah

16 In the fifth year of King Joram son of Ahab of Israel,^x Jehoram son of King Jehoshaphat of Judah began to reign. ¹⁷He was thirty-two years old when he became king, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. ¹⁸He walked in the way of the kings of Israel, as the house of Ahab had done, for the daughter of Ahab was his wife. He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD. ¹⁹Yet the LORD would not destroy Judah, for the sake of his servant David, since he had promised to give a lamp to him and to his descendants forever.

20 In his days Edom revolted against the rule of Judah, and set up a king of their own. ²¹Then Joram crossed over to Zair with all his chariots. He set out

^w Heb lacks Ben-hadad ^x Gk Syr: Heb adds Jehoshaphat being king of Judah.

8.7–15 The illness of the Aramean king Ben-hadad provides Elisha with an opportunity to carry out one of the divine commands to his predecessor, Elijah. However, rather than anointing Hazael as king over Aram (1 Kings 19.15), the prophet simply plants the seeds of rebellion in the mind of the future king. 8.7 Ben-hadad. See note on 6.24. Elisha is portrayed here as a welcome figure in the Aramean capital. 8.8 It was a common practice to seek a prophetic oracle in cases of illness (cf. 1.2–8; 1 Kings 14.1–16). 8.9 The present Hazael brings to Elisha is enormous and is intended to indicate the high regard in which the Arameans hold the prophet. The term son is used to designate a disciple, and its use here is a sign of subservience. 8.10 The translation correctly indicates that Elisha counseled Hazael to lie, although the Hebrew text and many later commentators tried to avoid that interpretation of events. 8.11 The phrase until he was ashamed may simply mean "for a long time." 8.12 Hazael's attacks on Israel are described less dramatically in 10.32; 13.7.

8.16–24 The reign of Jehoshaphat's son Jehoram (Joram) receives a strong negative evaluation because of his intermarriage with the family of the Northern king Ahab, who represents for the narrator the epitome of evil and apostasy (1 Kings 16.31–33). 8.16 Jehoram and Joram are variant forms of the same name and are used interchangeably in this narrative for both the Northern and Southern kings. Jehoram of Judah reigned from ca. 849 to 843 B.C.E. 8.17 A comparison of this verse with 3.1 reveals a chronological problem usually solved by positing a four-year coregency with Jehoshaphat. 8.18 The marriage between Jehoram and Ahab's daughter Athaliah had been arranged to cement the treaty that made Jehoshaphat Ahab's vassal (see note on 1 Kings 22.2). In the eyes of the narrator, the Israelite princess introduced evil into the Judean royal house in the same way that the Phoenician princess Jezebel introduced evil into the house of Ahab (1 Kings 16.31). 8.19 The lamp symbolizes an eternal Davidic presence or representative before the Lord in Jerusalem. See note on 1 Kings 11.36. 8.20 Edom had been a vassal of Judah's during Jehoshaphat's reign. See notes on 3.8; 3.9. 8.21 Zair is an unknown location in or near by night and attacked the Edomites and their chariot commanders who had surrounded him;^y but his army fled home. ²²So Edom has been in revolt against the rule of Judah to this day. Libnah also revolted at the same time. ²³Now the rest of the acts of Joram, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ²⁴So Joram slept with his ancestors, and was buried with them in the city of David; his son Ahaziah succeeded him.

Ahaziah Reigns over Judah

²⁵ In the twelfth year of King Joram son of Ahab of Israel, Ahaziah son of King Jehoram of Judah began to reign. ²⁶Ahaziah was twenty-two years old when he began to reign; he reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Athaliah, a granddaughter of King Omri of Israel. ²⁷He also walked in the way of the house of Ahab, doing what was evil in the sight of the LORD, as the house of Ahab had done, for he was son-in-law to the house of Ahab.

²⁸ He went with Joram son of Ahab to wage war against King Hazael of Aram at Ramoth-gilead, where the Arameans wounded Joram. ²⁹King Joram returned to be healed in Jezreel of the wounds that the Arameans had inflicted on him at Ramah, when he fought against King Hazael of Aram. King Ahaziah son of Jehoram of Judah went down to see Joram son of Ahab in Jezreel, because he was wounded.

Anointing of Jehu

9 Then the prophet Elisha called a member of the company of prophets^z and said to him, "Gird up your loins; take this flask of oil in your hand, and go to Ramoth-gilead. ²When you arrive, look there for Jehu son of Jehoshaphat, son of Nimshi; go in and get him to leave his companions, and take him into an inner chamber. ³Then take the flask of oil, pour it on his head, and say, 'Thus says the LORD: I anoint you king over Israel.' Then open the door and flee; do not linger."

⁴ So the young man, the young prophet, went to Ramoth-gilead. ⁵He arrived while the commanders of the army were in council, and he announced, "I have a message for you, commander." "For which one of us?" asked Jehu. "For you, commander." ⁶So Jehu^a got up and went inside; the young man poured the oil on his head, saying to him, "Thus says the LORD the God of Israel: I anoint you king over the people of the LORD, over Israel. ⁷You shall strike down the house of your master Ahab, so that I may avenge on Jezebel the blood of my servants the prophets, and the blood of all

Edom. 8.22 Libnah was in western Judah near Philistine territory. 8.23 The Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah. See note on 1 Kings 14.29.

8.25-29 The brief reign of Ahaziah of Judah was also tainted by his kinship with the house of Ahab and receives the expected negative evaluation from the narrator. 8.25 Ahaziah reigned in 843/2 B.C.E. 8.26 Athaliah was also the daughter of Ahab (v. 18). 8.27 Ahaziah was in fact a blood relative of the house of Ahab, since Ahab was Ahaziah's grandfather. 8.28 For an earlier dispute between Israel and Aram over Ramoth-gilead, see 1 Kings 22.1-40. The precise location of the town is unknown. 8.29 Ramah here is not the town in Benjamin (see 1 Kings 15.17) but a shortened form of the name Ramoth-gilead.

9.1-13 The story of the prophetic anointing of Jehu introduces a series of narratives that deal with his successful revolt against the Omride dynasty and with his religious reforms (9.1-10.36). In contrast to the other prophetic narratives about Northern kings, the Jehu stories are extraordinarily favorable toward the king, and it is possible that they were originally the climax of a collection of prophetic legends dealing with the eradication of Baal worship in Israel. 9.1-3 The anointing of Jehu fulfills the last of the commands that God gave to Elijah at Mount Horeb (1 Kings 19.15-16; cf. 1 Kings 19.19-21; 2 Kings 8.7-15). 9.1 The anointing is actually performed by a member of a prophetic guild, of which Elisha is the head. 9.2 An inner chamber would be a private room that could be closed off to the public. 9.3 On the practice of the prophetic anointment of kings, see 1 Sam 10.1; 16.3; 1 Kings 1.34. Prophets seem to have been involved particularly in anointing the first king of a new dynasty. 9.4 Ramoth-gilead. See note on 8.28. 9.7 Here the death of Ahab is not grounded only in the Naboth's vineyard incident (1 Kings 21.21-24) but is related to retribution against Jezebel for killing God's prophets (1 Kings

the servants of the LORD. ⁸For the whole house of Ahab shall perish; I will cut off from Ahab every male, bond or free, in Israel. ⁹I will make the house of Ahab like the house of Jeroboam son of Nebat, and like the house of Baasha son of Ahijah. ¹⁰The dogs shall eat Jezebel in the territory of Jezreel, and no one shall bury her." Then he opened the door and fled.

¹¹ When Jehu came back to his master's officers, they said to him, "Is everything all right? Why did that madman come to you?" He answered them, "You know the sort and how they babble." ¹²They said, "Liar! Come on, tell us!" So he said, "This is just what he said to me: 'Thus says the LORD, I anoint you king over Israel.'" ¹³Then hurriedly they all took their cloaks and spread them for him on the bare^b steps; and they blew the trumpet, and proclaimed, "Jehu is king."

Joram of Israel Killed

¹⁴ Thus Jehu son of Jehoshaphat son of Nimshi conspired against Joram. Joram with all Israel had been on guard at Ramoth-gilead against King Hazael of Aram; ¹⁵but King Joram had returned to be healed in Jezreel of the wounds that the Arameans had inflicted on him, when he fought against King Hazael of Aram. So Jehu said, "If this is your wish, then let no one slip out of the city to go and tell the news in Jezreel." ¹⁶Then Jehu mounted his chariot and went to Jezreel, where Joram was lying ill. King Ahaziah of Judah had come down to visit Joram.

¹⁷ In Jezreel, the sentinel standing on the tower spied the company of Jehu arriving, and said, "I see a company." Joram said, "Take a horseman; send him to meet them, and let him say, 'Is it peace?'" ¹⁸So

the horseman went to meet him; he said, "Thus says the king, 'Is it peace?'" Jehu responded, "What have you to do with peace? Fall in behind me." The sentinel reported, saying, "The messenger reached them, but he is not coming back." ¹⁹Then he sent out a second horseman, who came to them and said, "Thus says the king, 'Is it peace?'" Jehu answered, "What have you to do with peace? Fall in behind me." ²⁰Again the sentinel reported, "He reached them, but he is not coming back. It looks like the driving of Jehu son of Nimshi; for he drives like a maniac."

²¹ Joram said, "Get ready." And they got his chariot ready. Then King Joram of Israel and King Ahaziah of Judah set out, each in his chariot, and went to meet Jehu; they met him at the property of Naboth the Jezreelite. ²²When Joram saw Jehu, he said, "Is it peace, Jehu?" He answered, "What peace can there be, so long as the many whoredoms and sorceries of your mother Jezebel continue?" ²³Then Joram reined about and fled, saying to Ahaziah, "Treason, Ahaziah!" ²⁴Jehu drew his bow with all his strength, and shot Joram between the shoulders, so that the arrow pierced his heart; and he sank in his chariot. ²⁵Jehu said to his aide Bidkar, "Lift him out, and throw him on the plot of ground belonging to Naboth the Jezreelite; for remember, when you and I rode side by side behind his father Ahab how the LORD uttered this oracle against him: ²⁶'For the blood of Naboth and for the blood of his children that I saw yesterday, says the LORD, I swear I will repay you on this very plot of ground.' Now therefore lift him out and throw him on 18.4; 19.10, 14). 9.8-10 This portion of the oracle repeats in a slightly altered form the earlier prophecy of Elijah (1 Kings 21.21-24; cf. 1 Kings 14.11; 16.4). 9.11 The epithet madman was often applied to prophets with low credibility (Jer 29.26; Hos 9.7).

9.14-26 After the anointing (vv. 1-13), Elisha and the prophets play no further role in the narrative. Instead, Jehu himself is the center of attention, and the detailed narrative of the coup is intended to glorify him and his reign. 9.14-16 These verses repeat the essence of 8.28-29 to explain why the two kings, Joram and Ahaziah, were at the palace in Jezreel rather than at the site of the battle. 9.17 Joram's question is a general one. He probably suspects a reversal in the battle rather than a coup. 9.21 The location of the subsequent action at Naboth's property is influenced by the oracle in 1 Kings 21.19. 9.22 The reference to Jezebel's whoredoms is not to be taken literally. Rather the language of adultery and prostitution is often used to characterize the worship of other gods (Ex 34.16; Lev 17.7; Deut 31.16; Judg 2.17; 8.33; Jer 2.1-13; Hos 1-3). 9.26 Throwing Joram's body on Naboth's land represents a conflation of Elijah's prophecy against Ahab (1 Kings 21.19) and the prophecy against his dynasty (1 Kings 21.21-22).

Ahaziah of Judah Killed

27 When King Ahaziah of Judah saw this, he fled in the direction of Beth-haggan. Jehu pursued him, saying, "Shoot him also!" And they shot him^c in the chariot at the ascent to Gur, which is by Ibleam. Then he fled to Megiddo, and died there. 28 His officers carried him in a chariot to Jerusalem, and buried him in his tomb with his ancestors in the city of David.

29 In the eleventh year of Joram son of Ahab, Ahaziah began to reign over Judah.

Jezebel's Violent Death

30 When Jehu came to Jezreel, Jezebel heard of it; she painted her eyes, and adorned her head, and looked out of the window. 31 As Jehu entered the gate, she said, "Is it peace, Zimri, murderer of your master?" 32 He looked up to the window and said, "Who is on my side? Who?" Two or three eunuchs looked out at him. 33 He said, "Throw her down." So they threw her down; some of her blood spattered on the wall and on the horses, which trampled on her. 34 Then he went in and ate and drank; he said, "See to that cursed woman and bury her; for she is a king's daughter." 35 But when they went to bury her, they found no more of her than the skull and the feet and the palms of her hands. 36 When they came back and told him, he said, "This is the word of the LORD, which he spoke by his servant Elijah the Tishbite, 'In the territory of Jezreel the dogs shall eat the flesh of Jezebel; 37 the corpse of Jezebel shall be like dung on the field in the territory of Jezreel, so that no one can say, This is Jezebel.'"

Massacre of Ahab's Descendants

10 Now Ahab had seventy sons in Samaria. So Jehu wrote letters and sent them to Samaria, to the rulers of Jezreel,^d to the elders, and to the guardians of the sons of^e Ahab, saying, 2 "Since your master's sons are with you and you have at your disposal chariots and horses, a fortified city, and weapons, 3 select the son of your master who is the best qualified, set him on his father's throne, and fight for your master's house." 4 But they were utterly terrified and said, "Look, two kings could not withstand him; how then can we stand?" 5 So the steward of the palace, and the governor of the city, along with the elders and the guardians, sent word to Jehu: "We are your servants; we will do anything you say. We will not make anyone king; do whatever you think right." 6 Then he wrote them a second letter, saying, "If you are on my side, and if you are ready to obey me, take the heads of your master's sons and come to me at Jezreel tomorrow at this time." Now the king's sons, seventy persons, were with the leaders of the city, who were charged with their upbringing. 7 When the letter reached them, they took the king's sons and killed them, seventy persons; they put

9.27-29 The text does not explain why Jehu wanted to kill Ahaziah, although the latter was Joram's vassal and might have felt obligated to support one of Joram's sons as the next king of Israel. 9.27 Beth-haggan, probably to be identified with modern Jenin, lies on the main road southwest of Jezreel. The ascent to Gur, which is by Ibleam is located just south of Jenin. Megiddo lies west-northwest of Jezreel in the Plain of Esdraelon. 9.29 This verse repeats 8.25 but corrects the chronology to take into account the fact that Joram and Ahaziah died in the same year.

9.30-37 The death of Jezebel brings to an end the influence of the most powerful woman in the history of the Northern Kingdom. 9.30 Jezebel's formal dress and her appearance at the window give the occasion the air of a royal audience. 9.31 Jezebel's taunting greeting recalls Zimri's assassination of the Northern king Elah and the slaughter of all of Baasha's descendants (1 Kings 16.8-14). 9.36-37 Jehu's quotation elaborates Elijah's original oracle (1 Kings 21.23).

10.1-17 Jehu's slaughter of Ahab's descendants follows the familiar practice of usurpers who destroy all rivals (see 2 Sam 3-4; 1 Kings 15.28-30; 16.8-14). 10.1 The number seventy is probably not precise but refers to all of the possible claimants to the throne (see Judg 9.5; 12.14). 10.2-4 Jehu invites the guardians to fight to continue the royal line of Ahab, something they are afraid to do. 10.6 Jehu's letter is ambiguous, since in Hebrew, as in English, the word heads can refer to a part of the anatomy or to leaders of a group. The recipients of the letter will choose to their heads in baskets and sent them to him at Jezreel. ⁸When the messenger came and told him, "They have brought the heads of the king's sons," he said, "Lay them in two heaps at the entrance of the gate until the morning." ⁹Then in the morning when he went out, he stood and said to all the people, "You are innocent. It was I who conspired against my master and killed him; but who struck down all these?" ¹⁰Know then that there shall fall to the earth nothing of the word of the LORD, which the LORD spoke concerning the house of Ahab; for the LORD has done what he said through his servant Elijah." ¹¹So Jehu killed all who were left of the house of Ahab in Jezreel, all his leaders, close friends, and priests, until he left him no survivor.

¹² Then he set out and went to Samaria. On the way, when he was at Beth-eked of the Shepherds, ¹³Jehu met relatives of King Ahaziah of Judah and said, "Who are you?" They answered, "We are kin of Ahaziah; we have come down to visit the royal princes and the sons of the queen mother." ¹⁴He said, "Take them alive." They took them alive, and slaughtered them at the pit of Beth-eked, forty-two in all; he spared none of them.

¹⁵ When he left there, he met Jehonadab son of Rechab coming to meet him; he greeted him, and said to him, "Is your heart as true to mine as mine is to yours?" ^fJehonadab answered, "It is." Jehu said, ^g"If it is, give me your hand." So he gave him his hand. Jehu took him up with him into the chariot. ¹⁶He said, "Come with me, and see my zeal for the LORD." So he ^hhad him ride in his chariot. ¹⁷When he came to Samaria, he killed all who were left to Ahab in Samaria, until he had wiped them out, according to the word of the LORD that he spoke to Elijah.

¹⁸ Then Jehu assembled all the people and said to them, "Ahab offered Baal small service; but Jehu will offer much more. ¹⁹Now therefore summon to me all the prophets of Baal, all his worshipers, and all his priests; let none be missing, for I have a great sacrifice to offer to Baal; whoever is missing shall not live." But Jehu was acting with cunning in order to destroy the worshipers of Baal. ²⁰Jehu decreed, "Sanctify a solemn assembly for Baal." So they proclaimed it. ²¹Jehu sent word throughout all Israel; all the worshipers of Baal came, so that there was no one left who did not come. They entered the temple of Baal, until the temple of Baal was filled from wall to wall. ²²He said to the keeper of the wardrobe, "Bring out the vestments for all the worshipers of Baal." So he brought out the vestments for them. ²³Then Jehu entered the temple of Baal with Jehonadab son of Rechab; he said to the worshipers of Baal, "Search and see that there is no worshiper of the LORD here among you, but only worshipers of Baal." ²⁴Then they proceeded to offer sacrifices and burnt offerings.

understand the word literally. 10.8 This display is intended to discourage opposition to Jehu's plans. 10.9–11 Jehu implies that he did not intend the murder of Ahab's descendants, but he sees this turn of events as the fulfillment of Elijah's prophecy (1 Kings 21.21–22, 24). The narrator, however, is clear about Jehu's intentions. 10.12–14 By slaughtering the relatives of Ahaziah, Jehu may have thought that he was eliminating all of the remaining scions of the house of David, thus paving the way for a successful annexation of Judah. 10.12 Beth-eked of the Shepherds is on the road between Jezreel and Samaria, but its precise location is uncertain. 10.15 Jehonadab son of Rechab was associated with a group called the Rechabites, who developed a reputation as fanatical worshipers of the Lord. Like the Nazirites (Num 6.1–21), the Rechabites considered all aspects of Canaanite culture to be corrupting, and they therefore avoided cultivating land, planting vineyards, drinking wine, and building houses (Jer 35). Jehonadab presumably saw Jehu's revolt as an opportunity to restore the worship of the Lord in the Northern Kingdom. 10.17 In Samaria Jehu completes the slaughter of the house of Ahab that he began in Jezreel (see v. 11). The narrator then duly notes the fulfillment of Elijah's prophecy (1 Kings 21.21–22, 24).

10.18–31 After destroying all of the house of Ahab, Jehu removes all traces of the worship of Baal that Ahab and Jezebel had introduced into Israel (1 Kings 16.31–33). 10.19 Jehu's statement is again ambiguous (cf. v. 6), since the Hebrew word translated sacrifice also means outside, saying, "Whoever allows any of those to escape whom I deliver into your hands shall forfeit his life." ²⁵As soon as he had finished presenting the burnt offering, Jehu said to the guards and to the officers, "Come in and kill them; let no one escape." So they put them to the sword. The guards and the officers threw them out, and then went into the citadel of the temple of Baal. ²⁶They brought out the pillarⁱ that was in the temple of Baal, and burned it. ²⁷Then they demolished the pillar of Baal, and destroyed the temple of Baal, and made it a latrine to this day.

²⁸ Thus Jehu wiped out Baal from Israel. ²⁹But Jehu did not turn aside from the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to commit—the golden calves that were in Bethel and in Dan. ³⁰The LORD said to Jehu, "Because you have done well in carrying out what I consider right, and in accordance with all that was in my heart have dealt with the house of Ahab, your sons of the fourth generation shall sit on the throne of Israel." ³¹But Jehu was not careful to follow the law of the LORD the God of Israel with all his heart; he did not turn from the sins of Jeroboam, which he caused Israel to commit.

Death of Jehu

³² In those days the LORD began to trim off parts of Israel. Hazael defeated them throughout the territory of Israel: ³³from the Jordan eastward, all the land of Gilead, the Gadites, the Reubenites, and the Manassites, from Aroer, which is by the Wadi Arnon, that is, Gilead and Bashan. ³⁴Now the rest of the acts of Jehu, all that he did, and all his power, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel? ³⁵So Jehu slept with his ancestors, and they buried him in Samaria. His son Jehoahaz succeeded him. ³⁶The time that Jehu reigned over Israel in Samaria was twenty-eight years.

Athaliah Reigns over Judah

11 Now when Athaliah, Ahaziah's mother, saw that her son was dead, she set about to destroy all the royal family. ²But Jehosheba, King Joram's daughter, Ahaziah's sister, took Joash son of Ahaziah, and stole him away from among the king's children who were about to be killed; she put^j him and his nurse in a bedroom. Thus she^k hid him from Athaliah, so that he was not killed; ³he remained with her six years, hidden in the house of the LORD, while Athaliah reigned over the land.

"slaughter." 10.26–27 Pillars. See note on 1 Kings 14.23. Because the pillars were stone, the burning was probably part of the process of cracking the stone so that it could be demolished. 10.29 Because the narrator considers the real theological problem in the North to be the illegitimate worship of the Lord, which was introduced by Jeroboam (1 Kings 12.26–32), Jehu still receives the standard negative evaluation, in spite of his eradication of the worship of Baal.

10.32–36 The closing summary of Jehu's reign has been expanded to include further references to Hazael's successful attacks on Israelite territory. This activity was probably thought to be a fulfillment of Elisha's prophetic vision (8.12). 10.33 The land of Gilead and the areas occupied by the tribes of Gad, Reuben, and Manasseh all lay east of the Jordan and were traditionally Israelite territory. Aroer is on the Arnon River, which joins the Dead Sea at the midpoint of its eastern shore. The town marks the southern limit of Ara-

11.1–3 In the wake of the confusion caused by Jehu's murder of Ahaziah and his relatives (9.27–28; 10.12–14), Athaliah seizes the throne of Judah. Although she rules seven years (v. 4), the narrator does not consider her a legitimate ruler, both because as a daughter of Ahab of Israel she was not of Davidic descent and because her connections with Jezebel represent a rejection of the worship of the Lord (see notes on 8.18; 8.26). The narrator therefore omits the normal facts about her rule. 11.1 Athaliah reigned ca. 843–837 B.C.E. 11.2 The text does not indicate whether or not Jehosheba was also Athaliah's daughter. Joash would have been Athaliah's grandson, but his early isolation from her and his association with the priests in the house of the Lord (v. 3) seem to have left him untainted in the eyes of the narrator.

The Davidic Monarchy Is Restored

4 But in the seventh year Jehoiada summoned the captains of the Carites and of the guards and had them come to him in the house of the LORD. He made a covenant with them and put them under oath in the house of the LORD; then he showed them the king's son. ⁵He commanded them, "This is what you are to do: one-third of you, those who go off duty on the sabbath and guard the king's house ⁶(another third being at the gate Sur and a third at the gate behind the guards), shall guard the palace; ⁷and your two divisions that come on duty in force on the sabbath and guard the house of the LORD ⁸shall surround the king, each with weapons in hand; and whoever approaches the ranks is to be killed. Be with the king in his comings and goings."

9 The captains did according to all that the priest Jehoiada commanded; each brought his men who were to go off duty on the sabbath, with those who were to come on duty on the sabbath, and came to the priest Jehoiada. ¹⁰The priest delivered to the captains the spears and shields that had been King David's, which were in the house of the LORD; ¹¹the guards stood, every man with his weapons in his hand, from the south side of the house to the north side of the house, around the altar and the house, to guard the king on every side. ¹²Then he brought out the king's son, put the crown on him, and gave him the covenant;^m they proclaimed him king, and anointed him; they clapped their hands and shouted, "Long live the king!"

13 When Athaliah heard the noise of the guard and of the people, she went into the house of the LORD to the people; ¹⁴when she looked, there was the king standing by the pillar, according to custom, with the captains and the trumpeters beside the king, and all the people of the land rejoicing and blowing trumpets. Athaliah tore her clothes and cried, "Treason! Treason!" ¹⁵Then the priest Jehoiada commanded the captains who were set over the army, "Bring her out between the ranks, and kill with the sword anyone who follows her." For the priest said, "Let her not be killed in the house of the LORD." ¹⁶So they laid hands on her; she went through the horses' entrance to the king's house, and there she was put to death.

17 Jehoiada made a covenant between the LORD and the king and people, that they should be the LORD's people; also between the king and the people. ¹⁸Then all the people of the land went to the house

11.4–21 The account of the restoration of the Davidic line is the only major story thus far in 2 Kings to focus completely on the affairs of Judah. The extraordinary detail in the narrative suggests that it came from temple sources in Jerusalem. 11.4 Jehoiada was a priest in the house of the Lord (v. 9). In 2 Chr 22.11 he is also said to have been Jehosheba's husband. The Carites were mercenaries charged with guarding the palace and the temple. Their origins are unknown. On the basis of the Hebrew text of 2 Sam 20.23, some scholars have equated them with the Cherethites, a foreign mercenary unit in David's private army. 11.5–8 The translation here follows closely a rather confusing Hebrew text. Apparently the troops who guarded the king's house were divided into three groups, each serving a week ending on the sabbath. Jehoiada took the group about to go off duty (one-third of the total guard), divided it into three subgroups, and assigned one subgroup to each of three stations. The remaining two-thirds of the total guard were brought to the house of the Lord to guard the king (Joash). 11.6 The location of the gate Sur is unknown.

V. 19 implies that the gate behind the guards connected the temple with the palace. 11.10 The weapons may have been those that David captured from the Arameans (see 2 Sam 8.7). 11.12 The meaning of the word translated covenant is disputed. If the translation is retained, the reference may be to the book of the law that the king is supposed to copy and study (Deut 17.18–19). Some scholars have argued that the word refers to some sort of royal insignia, perhaps jewelry. 11.14 The pillar was probably one of the pair at the entrance to the temple (see note on 1 Kings 7.15–22; cf. 2 Kings 23.3). The people of the land were probably wealthy landowners. They seem to have been an important social group in Judah and enjoyed a great deal of political influence (21.23–24; 23.30; Jer 1.18; 34.19–20; 37.2). Tore her clothes. See note on 5.7. 11.17 The renewal of the covenant between the people and the Lord and between the Davidic house and the people is appropriate in the light of the disruption. Unlike the similar ceremony in 23.1–3, the terms of this covenant are not specified. 11.18 There are no earlier references to a of Baal, and tore it down; his altars and his images they broke in pieces, and they killed Mattan, the priest of Baal, before the altars. The priest posted guards over the house of the LORD. ¹⁹He took the captains, the Carites, the guards, and all the people of the land; then they brought the king down from the house of the LORD, marching through the gate of the guards to the king's house. He took his seat on the throne of the kings. ²⁰So all the people of the land rejoiced; and the city was quiet after Athaliah had been killed with the sword at the king's house.

^{21ⁿ} Jehoash^o was seven years old when he began to reign.

The Temple Repaired

12 In the seventh year of Jehu, Jehoash began to reign; he reigned forty years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Zibiah of Beer-sheba. ²Jehoash did what was right in the sight of the LORD all his days, because the priest Jehoiada instructed him. ³Nevertheless the high places were not taken away; the people continued to sacrifice and make offerings on the high places.

the house wherever any need of repairs is discovered." ⁶But by the twenty-third year of King Jehoash the priests had made no repairs on the house. ⁷Therefore King Jehoash summoned the priest Jehoiada with the other priests and said to them, "Why are you not repairing the house? Now therefore do not accept any more money from your donors but hand it over for the repair of the house." ⁸So the priests agreed that they would neither accept more money from the people nor repair the house.

⁹ Then the priest Jehoiada took a chest, made a hole in its lid, and set it beside the altar on the right side as one entered the house of the LORD; the priests who guarded the threshold put in it all the money that was brought into the house of the LORD. ¹⁰Whenever they saw that there was a great deal of money in the chest, the king's secretary and the high priest went up, counted the money that was found in the house of the LORD, and tied it up in bags. ¹¹They would give the money that was weighed out into the hands of the workers who had the oversight of the house of the LORD; then they paid it out to the carpenters and the builders who worked on the house of the LORD, ¹²to the masons and the stonecutters, as well as to buy timber and quarried stone for making repairs on the house of the LORD, as well as for any outlay for repairs of the house. ¹³But for the house of the LORD no basins of silver, snuffers, temple of Baal in Jerusalem. It may have been introduced by Athaliah. 11.21 In a formal statement of a Judean king's accession, the information in this verse would normally come immediately before the statement of the length of his reign (12.1b; cf. 14.1–2).

12.1–16 The account of Jehoash's reign concentrates primarily on his provisions for the maintenance of the temple and thus illustrates his fidelity to the worship of the Lord. A similar concern for the temple will be exhibited later by Josiah, one of Judah's great kings in the opinion of the narrator (22.3–10). 12.1 Jehoash and Joash are variants of the same name and are used interchangeably throughout the narrative. Jehoash ruled from ca. 837 to 800 B.C.E. (cf. 13.1, 10), so the forty-year reign assigned to him here is an approximation. 12.3 High places. See note on 1 Kings 3.2. 12.4 The money being referred to

here came from the census tax (the money for which each person is assessed [Ex 30.11–16]), from the valuation of an individual for the purpose of paying a vow (the assessment of persons [Lev 27.1–8]), and from voluntary offerings. 12.5 Under this arrangement, the priests were to receive all of the money but were also responsible for temple repairs when they were needed. 12.6 The priests were apparently reluctant to take money out of their own funds, so they did not repair the temple. 12.7–8 Under the new arrangement, the priests would no longer accept the money, but they would also no longer be responsible for paying for repairs. 12.10 Representatives of the crown and the temple would jointly take the money from the "bank" and turn it over to the workers. 12.13 The money had to be used to pay for repairs and could not be melted down to bowls, trumpets, or any vessels of gold, or of silver, were made from the money that was brought into the house of the LORD, ¹⁴for that was given to the workers who were repairing the house of the LORD with it. ¹⁵They did not ask an accounting from those into whose hand they delivered the money to pay out to the workers, for they dealt honestly. ¹⁶The money from the guilt offerings and the money from the sin offerings was not brought into the house of the LORD; it belonged to the priests.

Hazael Threatens Jerusalem

¹⁷ At that time King Hazael of Aram went up, fought against Gath, and took it. But when Hazael set his face to go up against Jerusalem, ¹⁸King Jehoash of Judah took all the votive gifts that Jehoshaphat, Jehoram, and Ahaziah, his ancestors, the kings of Judah, had dedicated, as well as his own votive gifts, all the gold that was found in the treasuries of the house of the LORD and of the king's house, and sent these to King Hazael of Aram. Then Hazael withdrew from Jerusalem.

Death of Joash

¹⁹ Now the rest of the acts of Joash, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ²⁰His servants arose, devised a conspiracy, and killed Joash in the house of Millo, on the way that goes down to Silla. ²¹It was Jozacar son of Shimeath and Jehozabad son of Shomer, his servants, who struck him down, so that he died. He was buried with his ancestors in the city of David; then his son Amaziah succeeded him.

Jehoahaz Reigns over Israel

13 In the twenty-third year of King Joash son of Ahaziah of Judah, Jehoahaz son of Jehu began to reign over Israel in Samaria; he reigned seventeen years. ²He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, and followed the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to sin; he did not depart from them. ³The anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel, so that he gave them repeatedly into the hand of King Hazael of Aram, then into the hand of Ben-hadad son of Hazael. ⁴But Jehoahaz entreated the LORD, and the LORD heeded him; for he saw the oppression of Israel, how the king of Aram oppressed them. ⁵Therefore the LORD gave Israel a savior, so that they escaped from the hand of the Arameans; and the people of Israel lived in their homes as formerly. ⁶Nevertheless they did not depart from the sins of the make ritual vessels. 12.16 The money from guilt offerings and sin offerings was distinct from the money mentioned in v. 4 and so was not subject to being banked but remained the property of the priests. On these two offerings, see Lev 4.1–6.7; Num 15.22–31.

12.17–18 Aramean raiding extends into Judah during Jehoash's reign, but the king is able to avoid the loss of territory. 12.17 On Hazael's earlier raids in Israel, see 8.28–29; 10.32–33. Gath was a Philistine city on the coastal plain in southern Palestine. It may have briefly been part of the old Davidic empire (2 Chr 26.6). 12.18 Votive gifts were donated to the temple as an act of royal piety (1 Kings 7.51; 15.15). This was not the first time they were reclaimed in order to bribe a would-be attacker (see 1 Kings 15.18), nor would it be the last (see 2 Kings 18.15).

12.19–21 Kings does not give any hint about the reason for Joash's murder, although 2 Chr 24.23–27 claims that the killing was in retribution for the king's murder of the son of the priest Jehoiada. 12.20 Millo. See note on 1 Kings 9.15.

13.1–9 In typical Deuteronomistic style, the narrator interprets Aramean military activity during Jehoahaz's reign as a divine judgment on the king's sins. 13.1 Jehoahaz reigned from ca. 815 to 802 B.C.E. 13.2 On the sins of Jeroboam, see 1 Kings 12.26–32. 13.3–5 The motif of God using foreign rulers to punish Israel and then sending a deliverer when Israel complains is a common one in Deuteronomistic literature, particularly in the accounts of Israel's early history (Judg 2.11–23 and the formulaic introductions to the stories of most of the judges; see also 1 Kings 11.14–26). 13.3 Ben-hadad continues the military activity against Israel that was begun by his father Hazael (see 8.28–29; 10.32–33). For earlier episodes in Israel's ongoing war with the Arameans, see 1 Kings 20.1–34; 22.1–40; 2 Kings 6.8–7.20. 13.5 The savior is not identified. The stories in Judges usually mention a specific individual at this point in the narrative. 13.6 After the excursus on foreign oppressors (vv. 3–5), the beginning of this verse alludes to v. 2 in order to return to the subject of Jehoahaz's sins. On the sacred pole or Asherah, see note on 1 Kings 14.15.

house of Jeroboam, which he caused Israel to sin, but walked^p in them; the sacred pole^q also remained in Samaria. ⁷So Jehoahaz was left with an army of not more than fifty horsemen, ten chariots and ten thousand footmen; for the king of Aram had destroyed them and made them like the dust at threshing. ⁸Now the rest of the acts of Jehoahaz and all that he did, including his might, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel? ⁹So Jehoahaz slept with his ancestors, and they buried him in Samaria; then his son Joash succeeded him.

Jehoash Reigns over Israel

¹⁰ In the thirty-seventh year of King Joash of Judah, Jehoash son of Jehoahaz began to reign over Israel in Samaria; he reigned sixteen years. ¹¹He also did what was evil in the sight of the LORD; he did not depart from all the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to sin, but he walked in them. ¹²Now the rest of the acts of Joash, and all that he did, as well as the might with which he fought against King Amaziah of Judah, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel? ¹³So Joash slept with his ancestors, and Jeroboam sat upon his throne; Joash was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel.

Death of Elisha

¹⁴ Now when Elisha had fallen sick with the illness of which he was to die, King Joash of Israel went down to him, and wept before him, crying, "My father, my father! The chariots of Israel and its horsemen!" ¹⁵Elisha said to him, "Take a bow and arrows"; so he took a bow and arrows. ¹⁶Then he said to the king of Israel, "Draw the bow"; and he drew it. Elisha laid his hands on the king's hands. ¹⁷Then he said, "Open the window eastward"; and he opened it. Elisha said, "Shoot"; and he shot. Then he said, "The LORD's arrow of victory, the arrow of victory over Aram! For you shall fight the Arameans in Aphek until you have made an end of them." ¹⁸He continued, "Take the arrows"; and he took them. He said to the king of Israel, "Strike the ground with them"; he struck three times, and stopped. ¹⁹Then the man of God was angry with him, and said, "You should have struck five or six times; then you would have struck down Aram until you had made an end of it, but now you will strike down Aram only three times."

²⁰ So Elisha died, and they buried him. Now bands of Moabites used to invade the land in the spring of the year. ²¹As a man was being buried, a marauding band was seen and the man was thrown into the grave of Elisha; as soon as the man touched the bones of Elisha, he came to life and stood on his feet.

Israel Recaptures Cities from Aram

²² Now King Hazael of Aram oppressed Israel all the days of Jehoahaz.

p Gk Syr Tg Vg: Heb he walked q Heb Asherah

13.10–13 The formal account of Jehoash's reign offers only the standard remarks about his sin, in spite of the fact that the king is treated sympathetically in the following story dealing with Elisha's death (vv. 14–21). 13.10 Jehoash and Joash are variants of the same name and are used interchangeably throughout the narrative. Jehoash/Joash of Israel should not be confused with his contemporary Jehoash/Joash of Judah. Jehoash of Israel reigned from ca. 802 to 786 B.C.E. 13.12–13 These verses are repeated in 14.15–16. Here they seem out of place, since other stories about Jehoash's reign follow in vv. 14–25. 13.12 Jehoash's war with Amaziah is described in 14.8–14.

13.14–21 Elisha first appeared in the narrative in 1 Kings 19.19–21, during the reign of Ahab, so his death marks the end of almost fifty years of prophetic activity. Even on his deathbed the prophet remains a supporter of the Jehu dynasty. 13.14 The king's words had earlier been used by Elisha himself when he witnessed Elijah's disappearance in a whirlwind (2.12). The epithet father would normally be used by a disciple addressing a master. The reference to chariots and horsemen may imply that the prophet's support is worth more to Israel than all of its army. 13.17 Aram (Syria) lay to the east of Israel. Aphek. See note on 1 Kings 20.26. 13.18–19 The number three often plays an important role in rituals, spells, and symbolic actions, but in this case it does not represent completeness. 13.21 For a similar resurrection brought about by the prophet's touch, see 4.32–35. Stories of this sort are often told about saints and wonder-workers.

13.22–25 The narrator clearly understands Jehoash's victories over Aram as a fulfillment of the blessings of Elisha. 13.22 On Hazael's

²³But the LORD was gracious to them and had compassion on them; he turned toward them, because of his covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and would not destroy them; nor has he banished them from his presence until now.

²⁴When King Hazael of Aram died, his son Ben-hadad succeeded him. ²⁵Then Jehoash son of Jehoahaz took again from Ben-hadad son of Hazael the towns that he had taken from his father Jehoahaz in war. Three times Joash defeated him and recovered the towns of Israel.

Amaziah Reigns over Judah

14 In the second year of King Joash son of Joahaz of Israel, King Amaziah son of Joash of Judah, began to reign. ²He was twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jehoaddin of Jerusalem. ³He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, yet not like his ancestor David; in all things he did as his father Joash had done. ⁴But the high places were not removed; the people still sacrificed and made offerings on the high places. ⁵As soon as the royal power was firmly in his hand he killed his servants who had murdered his father the king. ⁶But he did not put to death the children of the murderers; according to what is written in the book of the law of Moses, where the LORD commanded, "The parents shall not be put to death for the children, or the children be put to death for the parents; but all shall be put to death for their own sins."

⁷He killed ten thousand Edomites in the Valley of Salt and took Sela by storm; he called it Jokthe-el, which is its name to this day.

⁸Then Amaziah sent messengers to King Jehoash son of Jehoahaz, son of Jehu, of Israel, saying, "Come, let us look one another in the face." ⁹King Jehoash of Israel sent word to King Amaziah of Judah, "A thornbush on Lebanon sent to a cedar on Lebanon, saying, 'Give your daughter to my son for a wife'; but a wild animal of Lebanon passed by and trampled down the thornbush. ¹⁰You have indeed defeated Edom, and your heart has lifted you up. Be content with your glory, and stay at home; for why should you provoke trouble so that you fall, you and Judah with you?"

¹¹But Amaziah would not listen. So King Jehoash of Israel went up; he and King Amaziah of Judah faced one another in battle at Beth-shemesh, which belongs to Judah. ¹²Judah was defeated by Israel; everyone fled home. ¹³King Jehoash of Israel captured King Amaziah of military activities during Jehoahaz's reign, see vv. 3–5. 13.23 Here for the only time in Kings God's compassion for Israel is grounded in the covenant with Israel's ancestors (Gen 15.1–21; 26.23–25; 28.10–22). As a motive for compassion, this covenant functions in the same way that God's covenant with David serves to preserve Judah and the Davidic dynasty (2 Sam 7.1–17).

14.1–22 The narrator gives Amaziah's reign a relatively positive evaluation, but the main focus of the account is the king's military exploits. Although he was successful in fighting the Edomites, he was not able to free Judah from being Israel's vassal, a relationship that began at least as early as the reign of Ahab (1 Kings 22.4). 14.1–2 According to the synchronisms in v. 23 and 15.8, Amaziah could not have reigned as long as the twenty-nine years assigned to him here. Most scholars assume that he shared a coregency with his son Azariah, who was perhaps put on the throne after the disastrous Israelite invasion of Jerusalem. Amaziah's dates therefore remain uncertain; he may have reigned from ca. 800 to

783 B.C.E. 14.4 High places. See note on 1 Kings 3.2. 14.5 On the murder of Joash, see 12.19–21 and note. 14.6 The citation of the law is from Deut 24.16; cf. Jer 31.29–30; Ezek 18.2–4, 20. 14.7 The exact location of the Valley of Salt is unknown, although many scholars would locate it in Edom near the southern end of the Dead Sea. David had earlier defeated Edomites there (2 Sam 8.13). The location of Sela is also disputed. 14.8 Amaziah's intentions toward Jehoash are ambiguous, but the initiative of the Judean king, who was a vassal of Jehoash's, probably led the Northerner to interpret the message as a hostile act. 14.9–10 Fables of this sort were used in Israel in political and prophetic circles (Judg 9.7–15; Ezek 17.1–10). 14.9 The thornbush (Amaziah), an irritating and worthless plant, is seeking to become the equal of the majestic cedar (Jehoash), but the wild animal (also Jehoash) is capable of destroying the thornbush. 14.11 Beth-shemesh is about sixteen miles southwest of Jerusalem. 14.13 The Ephraim Gate was in Jerusalem's northern wall facing Ephraim. The Corner

Judah son of Jehoash, son of Ahaziah, at Beth-shemesh; he came to Jerusalem, and broke down the wall of Jerusalem from the Ephraim Gate to the Corner Gate, a distance of four hundred cubits. ¹⁴He seized all the gold and silver, and all the vessels that were found in the house of the LORD and in the treasuries of the king's house, as well as hostages; then he returned to Samaria.

¹⁷ King Amaziah son of Joash of Judah lived fifteen years after the death of King Jehoash son of Jehoahaz of Israel. ¹⁸ Now the rest of the deeds of Amaziah, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ¹⁹ They made a conspiracy against him in Jerusalem, and he fled to Lachish. But they sent after him to Lachish, and killed him there. ²⁰ They brought him on horses; he was buried in Jerusalem with his ancestors in the city of David. ²¹ All the people of Judah took Azariah, who was sixteen years old, and made him king to succeed his father Amaziah. ²² He rebuilt Elath and restored it to Judah, after King Amaziah^r slept with his ancestors.

Jeroboam II Reigns over Israel

²³ In the fifteenth year of King Amaziah son of Joash of Judah, King Jeroboam son of Joash of Israel began to reign in Samaria; he reigned forty-one years. ²⁴ He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD; he did not depart from all the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to sin. ²⁵ He restored the border of Israel from Lebo-hamath as far as the Sea of the Arabah, according to the word of the LORD, the God of Israel, which he spoke by his servant Jonah son of Amittai, the prophet, who was from Gath-hepher. ²⁶ For the LORD saw that the distress of Israel was very bitter; there was no one left, bond or free, and no one to help Israel. ²⁷ But the LORD had not said that he would blot out the name of Israel from under heaven, so he saved them by the hand of Jeroboam son of Joash.

Gate was in the northwest corner of the city. A cubit is about 18 inches, so Jehoash tore down about 600 feet of the wall. 14.14 The hostages may have been taken in exchange for the captured Judean king, who was allowed to remain on the throne. 14.15–16 These verses are a duplicate of 13.12–13. 14.19 Lachish is about thirty miles southwest of Jerusalem. 14.22 Elath lies on the northern coast of the Gulf of Aqaba and is closely associated with Ezion-geber, one of Solomon's seaports (1 Kings 9.26). The reference to rebuilding Elath implies that Azariah had regained control of Edom.

14.23–29 Although Jeroboam was in fact one of Israel's most powerful and successful kings, the narrator says little about the significance of his achievements and concentrates instead on the familiar theme of the king's sins. 14.23 Jeroboam reigned from ca. 786 to 746 B.C.E. 14.24 On the sins of Jeroboam, the first king of Israel, see 1 Kings 12.26–32. 14.25 Lebo-hamath marked the northern border of Solomon's empire. For a discussion of the location of this site, see note on 1 Kings 8.65. The Sea of the Arabah is identical with the Salt Sea or the Dead Sea (Josh 3.16; 12.3). Jeroboam thus reconstituted the northern part of the old Solomonic empire. The text implies that this expansion occurred to fulfill an oracle from Jonah the son of Amittai, who is otherwise known as the subject of the book of Jonah. Jonah's oracle, however, has not been preserved. Gath-hepher is about two miles east of Sepphoris. 14.26–27 On the motif of God sending deliverers to Israel in time of distress, see 13.3–5. This is an uncharacteristically positive view of God's relationship to the Northern Kingdom. 14.28 Damascus was the capital of Aram (Syria). Hamath lies on the Orontes River in Syria between Damascus and Aleppo. This recovery of Aramean territory was possible largely because the Assyrians had broken the power of Aram.

Azariah Reigns over Judah

15 In the twenty-seventh year of King Jeroboam of Israel King Azariah son of Amaziah of Judah began to reign. ²He was sixteen years old when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty-two years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jecoliah of Jerusalem. ³He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, just as his father Amaziah had done. ⁴Nevertheless the high places were not taken away; the people still sacrificed and made offerings on the high places. ⁵The LORD struck the king, so that he was leprous^s to the day of his death, and lived in a separate house. Jotham the king's son was in charge of the palace, governing the people of the land. ⁶Now the rest of the acts of Azariah, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ⁷Azariah slept with his ancestors; they buried him with his ancestors in the city of David; his son Jotham succeeded him.

Zechariah Reigns over Israel

8 In the thirty-eighth year of King Azariah of Judah, Zechariah son of Jeroboam reigned over Israel in Samaria six months. ⁹He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, as his ancestors had done. He did not depart from the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to sin. ¹⁰Shallum son of Jabesh conspired against him, and struck him down in public and killed him, and reigned in place of him. ¹¹Now the rest of the deeds of Zechariah are written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel. ¹²This was the promise of the LORD that he gave to Jehu, "Your sons shall sit on the throne of Israel to the fourth generation." And so it happened.

Shallum Reigns over Israel

13 Shallum son of Jabesh began to reign in the thirty-ninth year of King Uzziah of Judah; he reigned one month in Samaria. ¹⁴Then Menahem son of Gadi came up from Tirzah and came to Samaria; he struck down Shallum son of Jabesh in Samaria and killed him; he reigned in place of him. ¹⁵Now the rest of the deeds of Shallum, including the conspiracy that he made, are written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel. ¹⁶At that time Menahem sacked Tiphshah, all who were in it and its territory from Tirzah on; because they did not open it to him, he sacked it. He ripped open all the pregnant women in it.

Menahem Reigns over Israel

17 In the thirty-ninth year of King Azariah of Judah, Menahem son of Gadi began to reign over Israel; he reigned ten years in Samaria. ¹⁸He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD; he did not depart all his days from any of the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to sin. ¹⁹King Pul of Assyria came

15.1–7 In spite of Azariah's long reign, the narrator gives no details of his activities and records only the fact of his leprosy. No explanation is given here for his disease, although 2 Chr 26.16–20 interprets the affliction as punishment for violating ritual regulations. 15.1 Azariah is also called Uzziah (vv. 13, 30, 32, 34; 2 Chr 26–27; Isa 1.1; 6.1). He reigned from ca. 783 to 742 B.C.E. 15.4 High places. See note on 1 Kings 3.2. 15.5 Leprous. See note on 5.1. Azariah's son Jotham served as overseer of all royal estates and buildings and was probably coregent during the latter part of his father's reign.

15.8–12 Zechariah's brief reign receives a typically negative evaluation from the narrator. The king's assassination marks the end of the Jehu dynasty and the beginning of a period of internal political upheaval, complicated by Assyria's increasing involvement in Israel's political affairs. 15.8 Zechariah ruled Israel from ca. 746 to 745 B.C.E. 15.12 For God's dynastic promise to Jehu, see 10.30.

15.13–16 Shallum's reign is so brief that the narrator does not even mention his sins. 15.13 Shallum ruled in 745 B.C.E. 15.14 Tirzah. See note on 1 Kings 14.17. 15.16 The location of Tiphshah is uncertain. Ripping open pregnant women was considered a barbarous practice and is elsewhere associated only with foreign armies (8.12; Hos 13.16; Am 1.13).

15.17–22 Menahem's reign is marked by a resurgence in Assyrian military activity that eventually leads to the fall of the Northern Kingdom. 15.17 Menahem reigned from ca. 745 to 737 B.C.E. 15.19 King Pul is Tiglath-pileser III, who was king of Assyria from 745 to 727 B.C.E. Menahem in effect becomes an Assyrian vassal. 15.19–20 Talent, shekel. See note on 5.5.

against the land; Menahem gave Pul a thousand talents of silver, so that he might help him confirm his hold on the royal power. ²⁰Menahem exacted the money from Israel, that is, from all the wealthy, fifty shekels of silver from each one, to give to the king of Assyria. So the king of Assyria turned back, and did not stay there in the land. ²¹Now the rest of the deeds of Menahem, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel? ²²Menahem slept with his ancestors, and his son Pekahiah succeeded him.

Pekahiah Reigns over Israel

²³ In the fiftieth year of King Azariah of Judah, Pekahiah son of Menahem began to reign over Israel in Samaria; he reigned two years. ²⁴He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD; he did not turn away from the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to sin. ²⁵Pekah son of Remaliah, his captain, conspired against him with fifty of the Gileadites, and attacked him in Samaria, in the citadel of the palace along with Argob and Arieah; he killed him, and reigned in place of him. ²⁶Now the rest of the deeds of Pekahiah, and all that he did, are written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel.

Pekah Reigns over Israel

²⁷ In the fifty-second year of King Azariah of Judah, Pekah son of Remaliah

15.23-26 The reign of Pekahiah receives the usual negative evaluation from the narrator, who mentions only the assassination that ended the king's rule. 15.23 Pekahiah ruled from ca. 737 to 736 B.C.E. 15.25 Gileadites. For Gilead, see note on 1 Kings 17.1. The interpretation of Argob and Arieah is disputed. The names are variously interpreted as warriors, as cities, and even as features of palace architecture.

15.27-31 The official account of Pekah's

began to reign over Israel in Samaria; he reigned twenty years. ²⁸He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD; he did not depart from the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to sin.

²⁹In the days of King Pekah of Israel, King Tiglath-pileser of Assyria came and captured Ijon, Abel-beth-maacah, Janoah, Kedesh, Hazor, Gilead, and Galilee, all the land of Naphtali; and he carried the people captive to Assyria. ³⁰Then Hoshea son of Elah made a conspiracy against Pekah son of Remaliah, attacked him, and killed him; he reigned in place of him, in the twentieth year of Jotham son of Uzziah. ³¹Now the rest of the acts of Pekah, and all that he did, are written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel.

Jotham Reigns over Judah

³²In the second year of King Pekah son of Remaliah of Israel, King Jotham son of Uzziah of Judah began to reign. ³³He was twenty-five years old when he began to reign and reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jerusha daughter of Zadok. ³⁴He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, just as his father Uzziah had done. ³⁵Nevertheless the high places were not removed; the people still sacrificed and made offerings on the high places. He built the upper gate of the house of the LORD. ³⁶Now the rest of the acts of Jotham, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ³⁷In those days the LORD began to send King Rezin of Aram and Pekah son of Remaliah against Judah. ³⁸Jotham slept with his ancestors, and was buried with his ancestors in the city of David, his ancestor; his son Ahaz succeeded him.

Ahaz Reigns over Judah

16 In the seventeenth year of Pekah son of Remaliah, King Ahaz son of Jotham of Judah began to reign. ²Ahaz was twenty years old when he began to reign; he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. He did not do what was right in the sight of the LORD his God, as his ancestor David had done, ³but he walked in the way of the kings of Israel. He even made his son pass through fire, according to the abominable practices of the nations whom the LORD drove out before the people of Israel. ⁴He sacrificed and made offerings on the high places, on the hills, and under every green tree.

⁵Then King Rezin of Aram and King Pekah son of Remaliah of Israel came up to wage war on Jerusalem; they besieged Ahaz but could not conquer him. ⁶At that reign notes only the loss of Israelite territory to Assyria. His extensive involvement in Judean affairs is covered in ch. 16. 15.27 Scholars agree that Pekah could not have ruled for the twenty years assigned to him in this verse. He may have ruled from ca. 736 to 732 B.C.E. 15.29 These overlapping references to the towns of Ijon, Abel-beth-maacah, Janoah, Kedesh, and Hazor and to the regions of Gilead, Galilee, and Naphtali indicate that Tiglath-pileser took significant portions of northcentral Israel and parts of Transjordan. 15.30 Hoshea's coup may have had support from the Assyrians.

15.32–38 The narrator gives no details about Jotham's reign except to note the beginning of attempts to force Judah into an anti-Assyrian coalition. 15.32 Jotham ruled from ca. 742 to 735 B.C.E. 15.35 High places. See note on 1 Kings 3.2. The location of the upper gate of the temple is unknown. 15.37 The kings of Aram (Syria) and Israel were trying to force Judah into a coalition against Assyria (cf. ch. 16; Isa 7.1–8.10).

16.1–20 Ahaz is one of the few Judean kings to receive a negative evaluation from the historian. Part of the reason for this assessment may lie in the king's heterodox religious practices, but the narrator may have also been upset by Ahaz's willingness to make an alliance with Assyria, thus becoming an Assyrian vassal. 16.1 Ahaz ruled from ca. 735 to 715 B.C.E. 16.3 The remark that Ahaz made his son pass through fire probably refers to a rite carried out as part of the worship of the god Molech, whose cult was practiced just outside of Jerusalem in the Valley of Hinnom. As part of the ritual, children were sacrificed by fire to the god, who was probably an underworld deity. The cult, which may have been designed to ensure fertility, must have had royal patronage. The worship of Molech was banned by Deuteronomy, which associated it with the abominations of the Canaanites (Deut 18.9–14), and later biblical writers condemned it as well (Lev 18.21; 20.2–5; Jer 7.31; 19.5; 32.35). 16.4 Ahaz is the first Judean king since Solomon who is said to have personally worshiped at the high places. On the significance of these cultic installations, see note on 1 Kings 3.2. 16.5 The kings of Aram and Israel apparently wanted to overthrow Ahaz in order to force Judah into an anti-Assyrian coalition. For a different perspective on the same incident, see Isa time the king of Edom¹ recovered Elath for Edom," and drove the Judeans from Elath; and the Edomites came to Elath, where they live to this day. ⁷Ahaz sent messengers to King Tiglath-pileser of Assyria, saying, "I am your servant and your son. Come up, and rescue me from the hand of the king of Aram and from the hand of the king of Israel, who are attacking me." ⁸Ahaz also took the silver and gold found in the house of the LORD and in the treasures of the king's house, and sent a present to the king of Assyria. ⁹The king of Assyria listened to him; the king of Assyria marched up against Damascus, and took it, carrying its people captive to Kir; then he killed Rezin.

¹⁰ When King Ahaz went to Damascus to meet King Tiglath-pileser of Assyria, he saw the altar that was at Damascus. King Ahaz sent to the priest Uriah a model of the altar, and its pattern, exact in all its details. ¹¹The priest Uriah built the altar; in accordance with all that King Ahaz had sent from Damascus, just so did the priest Uriah build it, before King Ahaz arrived from Damascus. ¹²When the king came from Damascus, the king viewed the altar. Then the king drew near to the altar, went up on it, ¹³and offered his burnt offering and his grain offering, poured his drink offering, and dashed the blood of his offerings of well-being against the altar. ¹⁴The bronze altar that was before the LORD he removed from the front of the house, from the place between his altar and the house of the LORD, and put it on the north side of his altar. ¹⁵King Ahaz commanded the priest Uriah, saying, "Upon the great altar offer the morning burnt offering, and the evening grain offering, and the king's burnt offering, and his grain offering, with the burnt offering of all the people of the land, their grain offering, and their drink offering; then dash against it all the blood of the burnt offering, and all the blood of the sacrifice; but the bronze altar shall be for me to inquire by." ¹⁶The priest Uriah did everything that King Ahaz commanded.

¹⁷ Then King Ahaz cut off the frames of the stands, and removed the laver from them; he removed the sea from the bronze oxen that were under it, and put it on a pediment of stone. ¹⁸The covered portal for use on the sabbath that had been built inside the palace, and the outer entrance for the king he removed from^t the house of the LORD. He did this because of the king of Assyria. ¹⁹Now the rest of the acts of Ahaz that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ²⁰Ahaz slept with his ancestors, and was buried with his ancestors in the city of David; his son Hezekiah succeeded him.

Hoshea and the Exile of Israel

17 In the twelfth year of King Ahaz of Judah, Hoshea son of Elah began to reign in Samaria over Israel; he reigned nine years. ²He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, yet not like the

7.1-8.10. 16.6 On Judah's rebuilding of Elath, see 14.22 and note there. 16.7 Ignoring Isaiah's counsel to trust in the Lord and to avoid foreign entanglements (Isa 7.1-9), Ahaz buys protection from Assyria. 16.9 Kir is said to have been the original home of the Arameans (Am 9.7), so it is appropriate that Tiglath-pileser relocates them there. The precise location of Kir is unknown. 16.10 The text does not indicate why Ahaz was attracted to the altar he saw in Damascus. There is nothing to indicate that it was anything other than an Aramean cult object, although it might have been a particularly large or grand one (v. 15). Uriah the priest appears in Isa 8.2 as one of the prophet's supporters. 16.12-13 As did his predecessors Solomon and Jeroboam (1 Kings 8.63; 1 Kings 12.32), Ahaz dedicates the altar by offering his own sacrifices. 16.17-18 Ahaz apparently takes some of the temple furnishings and uses them as part of his bribe to the king of Assyria. 16.17 The making of the stands is described in 1 Kings 7.27-37. The sea and bronze oxen appear in 1 Kings 7.23-26. 16.18 The meaning of the phrase translated the covered portal for use on the sabbath continues to be the subject of scholarly debate.

17.1-6 Hoshea was the Israelite king upon whom the punishment for the sins of the Northern Kingdom finally fell. It is therefore odd that the narrator does not judge Hoshea as harshly as some of the other Northern kings and even omits the standard reference to walking in the ways of Jeroboam. 17.1 Here Hoshea's accession is synchronized with the reign of Ahaz of Judah, while in 15.30 the synchronization is with Jotham, a fact that may indicate a coregency in Judah. Hoshea kings of Israel who were before him. ³King Shalmaneser of Assyria came up against him; Hoshea became his vassal, and paid him tribute. ⁴But the king of Assyria found treachery in Hoshea; for he had sent messengers to King So of Egypt, and offered no tribute to the king of Assyria, as he had done year by year; therefore the king of Assyria confined him and imprisoned him.

⁵ Then the king of Assyria invaded all the land and came to Samaria; for three years he besieged it. ⁶In the ninth year of Hoshea the king of Assyria captured Samaria; he carried the Israelites away to Assyria. He placed them in Halah, on the Habor, the river of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes.

The Causes of Israel's Exile

⁷ This occurred because the people of Israel had sinned against the LORD their God, who had brought them up out of the land of Egypt from under the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt. They had worshiped other gods ⁸and walked in the customs of the nations whom the LORD drove out before the people of Israel, and in the customs that the kings of Israel had introduced.^w ⁹The people of Israel secretly did things that were not right against the LORD their God. They built for themselves high places at all their towns, from watchtower to fortified city; ¹⁰they set up for themselves pillars and sacred poles^x on every high hill and under every green tree; ¹¹there they made offerings on all the high places, as the nations did whom the LORD carried away before them. They did wicked things, provoking the LORD to anger; ¹²they served idols, of which the LORD had said to them, "You shall not do this." ¹³Yet the LORD warned Israel and Judah by every prophet and every seer, saying, "Turn from your evil ways and keep my commandments and my statutes, in accordance with all the law that I commanded your ancestors and that I sent to you by my servants the prophets." ¹⁴They would not listen but were stubborn, as their ancestors had been, who did not believe in the LORD their God. ¹⁵They despised his statutes, and his covenant that he made with their ancestors, and the warnings that he gave them. They went after false idols and became false; they followed the nations that were around them, concerning whom the LORD had commanded them that they should not do ruled in Samaria from ca. 732 to 724 B.C.E. 17.3 King Shalmaneser is Shalmaneser V, who ruled Assyria from 727 to 722 B.C.E. 17.4 The phrase translated to King So of Egypt is controversial because no Egyptian ruler by that name can be identified. Some scholars interpret the phrase to refer to the place at which the messengers met the king of Egypt. 17.6 After a siege lasting more than two years, Samaria finally fell in 722/1 B.C.E. to the new Assyrian king, Sargon II. The relocation of populations was a characteristic of Assyrian foreign policy during this period. Halah is a city northeast of Nineveh. The Habor River is the modern Habur, a tributary of the Euphrates. The river of Gozan may also refer to the Habur. The cities of the Medes lay to the east of Assyria.

17.7–23 These verses occupy a crucial position in the book of Kings. Coming as they do immediately after the account of the fall of the Northern Kingdom, they provide a theological framework for understanding Israel's history from the narrator's Deuteronomistic point of view. At the same time, they set up the history of the North as an object lesson for the kingdom of Judah and define the theological terms that will govern the continued existence of the Southern Kingdom and the Davidic dynasty. Although the narrative of Kings up to this point focuses almost entirely on the actions of Israel's kings, here the narrator's theological assessment concentrates instead on the sins of the people and the kings play only an incidental role in the Deuteronomistic explanation of the disaster. 17.7–8 The primary cause of the exile of Israel is the people's worship of other gods, an act that violates Deuteronomy's directive to worship only the Lord and to avoid the gods of Canaan (see Deut 6.4–15; 7.1–6). 17.9 The note that the people secretly did things that were not right may indicate the narrator's recognition that there have been relatively few illustrations of Israel's sins up to this point. High places. See note on 1 Kings 3.2. Their continued use violates the commands in Deut 12.2–4, which requires that the people worship only at the sanctuary of God's choosing. 17.10 On the pillars and sacred poles (Asherim), see notes on 1 Kings 14.15; 14.23. These objects too should have been removed (Deut 7.5; 12.2–4). 17.13 Although a number of prophets are mentioned earlier in Kings, none of them are described as calling the people to repent. For later examples, see Jer 7.3.

as they did. ¹⁶They rejected all the commandments of the LORD their God and made for themselves cast images of two calves; they made a sacred pole,^y worshiped all the host of heaven, and served Baal. ¹⁷They made their sons and their daughters pass through fire; they used divination and augury; and they sold themselves to do evil in the sight of the LORD, provoking him to anger. ¹⁸Therefore the LORD was very angry with Israel and removed them out of his sight; none was left but the tribe of Judah alone.

¹⁹ Judah also did not keep the commandments of the LORD their God but walked in the customs that Israel had introduced. ²⁰The LORD rejected all the descendants of Israel; he punished them and gave them into the hand of plunderers, until he had banished them from his presence.

²¹ When he had torn Israel from the house of David, they made Jeroboam son of Nebat king. Jeroboam drove Israel from following the LORD and made them commit great sin. ²²The people of Israel continued in all the sins that Jeroboam committed; they did not depart from them ²³until the LORD removed Israel out of his sight, as he had foretold through all his servants the prophets. So Israel was exiled from their own land to Assyria until this day.

Assyria Resettles Samaria

ple of Israel; they took possession of Samaria, and settled in its cities. ²⁵When they first settled there, they did not worship the LORD; therefore the LORD sent lions among them, which killed some of them. ²⁶So the king of Assyria was told, "The nations that you have carried away and placed in the cities of Samaria do not know the law of the god of the land; therefore he has sent lions among them; they are killing them, because they do not know the law of the god of the land." ²⁷Then the king of Assyria commanded, "Send there one of the priests whom you carried away from there; let him^z go and live there, and teach them the law of the god of the land." ²⁸So one of the priests whom they had carried away from Samaria came and lived in Bethel; he taught them how they should worship the LORD.

²⁹ But every nation still made gods of its own and put them in the shrines of the high places that the people of Samaria had made, every nation in the cities in which they lived; ³⁰the people of Babylon made Succoth-benoth, the people of Cuth made Nergal, the people of Hamath made Ashima; ³¹the Avvites made Nibhaz and Tartak; the Sepharvites burned their children in the fire to Adrammelech and Anammelech, the gods of Sepharvaim. ³²They also worshiped the LORD and appointed from among themselves all sorts of people as priests of the high places, who sacrificed for them in the shrines of the high places. ³³So they worshiped the LORD but also served their own gods, after the manner of the nations from among

5; 18.11; Ezek 33.11. 17.16 Two calves. See note on 1 Kings 12.28. The host of heaven are the sun, moon, and stars. Their worship is prohibited in Deut 4.19; 17.2–5. 17.17 Making sons and daughters pass through fire is banned, along with divination and augury, in Deut 18.9–14. On the sacrificing of children, see note on 16.3. 17.19–20 These verses are probably the work of an exilic writer who knew Judah's ultimate fate and sought to explain it the same way that the fall of Samaria was earlier explained. 17.21–23 Here the narrator finally returns to the theme of Jeroboam's sin, which has provided the literary and theological structure for Israel's history since the revolt of the Northern Kingdom (1 Kings 12.16–20).

why the worship of the Lord existed alongside of the worship of other gods in the territory that was once the home of the Israelites. 17.24 All of these cities were part of the Assyrian Empire, except for Babylon, on the Euphrates River, and Cuthah, in central Babylonia; their precise location is uncertain. In keeping with Assyrian practice, the name Samaria is now used to refer to the entire region and not just to the old capital city. 17.25 The lions are agents of divine judgment (see 1 Kings 13.24; 20.36). Apparently the Lord still lays claim to the land, even though the Israelites have been removed. 17.30–31 Nergal was a Babylonian underworld god associated with plague. Nibhaz and Tartak were Elamite gods. whom they had been carried away. ³⁴To this day they continue to practice their former customs.

They do not worship the LORD and they do not follow the statutes or the ordinances or the law or the commandment that the LORD commanded the children of Jacob, whom he named Israel. ³⁵The LORD had made a covenant with them and commanded them, "You shall not worship other gods or bow yourselves to them or serve them or sacrifice to them, ³⁶but you shall worship the LORD, who brought you out of the land of Egypt with great power and with an outstretched arm; you shall bow yourselves to him, and to him you shall sacrifice. ³⁷The statutes and the ordinances and the law and the commandment that he wrote for you, you shall always be careful to observe. You shall not worship other gods; ³⁸you shall not forget the covenant that I have made with you. You shall not worship other gods, ³⁹but you shall worship the LORD your God; he will deliver you out of the hand of all your enemies." ⁴⁰They would not listen, however, but they continued to practice their former custom.

⁴¹ So these nations worshiped the LORD, but also served their carved images; to this day their children and their children's children continue to do as their ancestors did.

Hezekiah's Reign over Judah

18 In the third year of King Hoshea son of Elah of Israel, Hezekiah son of King Ahaz of Judah began to reign. ²He was twenty-five years old when he began to reign; he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Abi daughter of Zechariah. ³He did what was right in the sight of the LORD

just as his ancestor David had done. ⁴He removed the high places, broke down the pillars, and cut down the sacred pole.^a He broke in pieces the bronze serpent that Moses had made, for until those days the people of Israel had made offerings to it; it was called Nehushtan. ⁵He trusted in the LORD the God of Israel; so that there was no one like him among all the kings of Judah after him, or among those who were before him. ⁶For he held fast to the LORD; he did not depart from following him but kept the commandments that the LORD commanded Moses. ⁷The LORD was with him; wherever he went, he prospered. He rebelled against the king of Assyria and would not serve him. ⁸He attacked the Philistines as far as Gaza and its territory, from watchtower to fortified city.

⁹ In the fourth year of King Hezekiah, which was the seventh year of King Hoshea son of Elah of Israel, King Sennacherib of Assyria came up against Samaria, besieged it, ¹⁰and at the end of three years, took it. In the sixth year of Hezekiah, which was the ninth year of King Hoshea of Israel, Samaria was taken. ¹¹The king of Assyria carried the Israelites away to Assyria, settled them in Halah, on the Habor, the river of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes, ¹²because they did not obey the voice of the LORD their God but transgressed his covenant—all that Moses the servant of the LORD had commanded; they neither listened nor obeyed.

Sennacherib Invades Judah

a Heb Asherah

18.1–12 From the standpoint of the narrator, the reign of Hezekiah marks a high point in Judah's history. He is the first king to walk completely in the ways of his ancestor David, and Hezekiah's religious reforms win high praise from the historian. In fact, the stories about his deeds are so favorable that some modern scholars have concluded that 2 Kings once ended with an account of his rule. 18.1 Hezekiah reigned from ca. 715 to 687/6 B.C.E. 18.4 Hezekiah was the first Judean king to remove the high places (see note on 1 Kings 3.2). Pillars, sacred pole (Asherah). See notes on 1 Kings 14.15; 14.23. The bronze serpent attributed to Moses was a cultic object used in rituals to prevent or treat snakebite (Num 21.4–9). Serpents also played a wide variety of roles in the religions of the ancient Near East. 18.8 Gaza was a Philistine city near the Mediterranean coast and marked the traditional southern border of Canaan. Hezekiah seems to have tried to push his borders westward to recapture parts of the old Davidic empire. 18.9–12 Much of the material in these verses summarizes 17.5–8. See notes on 17.6; 17.7–8.

Judah and captured them. ¹⁴King Hezekiah of Judah sent to the king of Assyria at Lachish, saying, "I have done wrong; withdraw from me; whatever you impose on me I will bear." The king of Assyria demanded of King Hezekiah of Judah three hundred talents of silver and thirty talents of gold. ¹⁵Hezekiah gave him all the silver that was found in the house of the LORD and in the treasuries of the king's house. ¹⁶At that time Hezekiah stripped the gold from the doors of the temple of the LORD, and from the doorposts that King Hezekiah of Judah had overlaid and gave it to the king of Assyria. ¹⁷The king of Assyria sent the Tartan, the Rabсарis, and the Rabshakeh with a great army from Lachish to King Hezekiah at Jerusalem. They went up and came to Jerusalem. When they arrived, they came and stood by the conduit of the upper pool, which is on the highway to the Fuller's Field. ¹⁸When they called for the king, there came out to them Eliakim son of Hilkiah, who was in charge of the palace, and Shebna the secretary, and Joah son of Asaph, the recorder.

¹⁹ The Rabshakeh said to them, "Say to Hezekiah: Thus says the great king, the king of Assyria: On what do you base this confidence of yours? ²⁰Do you think that mere words are strategy and power for war? On whom do you now rely, that you have rebelled against me? ²¹See, you are relying now on Egypt, that broken reed of a staff, which will pierce the hand of anyone who leans on it. Such is Pharaoh king of Egypt to all who rely on him. ²²But if you say to me, 'We rely on the LORD our God,' is it not he whose high places and altars Hezekiah has removed, saying to Judah and to Jerusalem, 'You shall worship before this altar in Jerusalem'? ²³Come now, make a wager with my master the king of Assyria: I will give you two thousand horses, if you are able on your part to set riders on them. ²⁴How then can you repulse a single captain among the least of my master's servants, when you rely on Egypt for chariots and for horsemen? ²⁵Moreover, is it without the LORD that I have come up against this place to destroy it? The LORD said to me, Go up against this land, and destroy it."

²⁶ Then Eliakim son of Hilkiah, and Shebna, and Joah said to the Rabshakeh, "Please speak to your servants in the Aramaic language, for we understand it; do not speak to us in the language of Judah within the hearing of the people who are on the wall." ²⁷But the Rabshakeh said to them, "Has my master sent me to speak these words to your master and to you, and not to the people sitting on the wall, who are doomed with you to eat their own dung and to drink their own urine?"

²⁸ Then the Rabshakeh stood and called out in a loud voice in the language of Judah, "Hear the word of the great

18.13–37 These verses begin an extended account of Sennacherib's invasion of Palestine in 701 B.C.E. The account continues through 19.37 and is at least partially paralleled in 2 Chr 32; Isa 36–37. The narrative includes much traditional material and shows signs of having gone through a long editorial history. 18.13 Sennacherib ruled Assyria from 705 to 681 B.C.E. His invasion was in retaliation for Hezekiah's rebellion (v. 7). 18.14 Lachish. See note on 14.19. A talent weighs about 75 pounds. 18.17 The Tartan ("Viceroy") was the second-ranking Assyrian officer after the king. The Rabсарis ("Chief Eunuch") was often involved in leading the Assyrian army. The Rabshakeh ("Chief Butler") was usually involved in running the royal court and the personal business of the king. Conduit . . . Field. The site where the two delegations met is mentioned again in Isa 7.3 and seems to have been an important part of Jerusalem's water supply. The precise location is uncertain. 18.18 Eliakim was the overseer of royal estates and buildings. Shebna kept the royal records but also had high administrative responsibilities. Joah was perhaps the royal herald. 18.21 Hezekiah had sought help from Egypt in his attempt to resist Assyria. This policy was firmly opposed by the prophet Isaiah (Isa 30.1–5). 18.22 In contrast to the view of the narrator, the Rabshakeh assumes that the altars and high places removed during Hezekiah's religious reforms were legitimate places for the worship of the Lord (v. 4). In fact, Hezekiah's centralization of worship in Jerusalem is in accordance with the demands of Deut 12. 18.25 The Rabshakeh here appeals to Deuteronomistic theology, which tends to explain disaster as the result of sin. 18.26 The Judeans request that the negotiations be carried out in Aramaic, a West Semitic dialect related to Hebrew. By this time Aramaic had become the language of international diplomacy and trade but was not well understood by the inhabitants of Jerusalem, king, the king of Assyria! ²⁹Thus says the king: 'Do not let Hezekiah deceive you, for he will not be able to deliver you out of my hand. ³⁰Do not let Hezekiah make you rely on the LORD by saying, The LORD will surely deliver us, and this city will not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria.' ³¹Do not listen to Hezekiah; for thus says the king of Assyria: 'Make your peace with me and come out to me; then every one of you will eat from your own vine and your own fig tree, and drink water from your own cistern, ³²until I come and take you away to a land like your own land, a land of grain and wine, a land of bread and vineyards, a land of olive oil and honey, that you may live and not die. Do not listen to Hezekiah when he misleads you by saying, The LORD will deliver us. ³³Has any of the gods of the nations ever delivered its land out of the hand of the king of Assyria? ³⁴Where are the gods of Hamath and Arpad? Where are the gods of Sepharvaim, Hena, and Ivvah? Have they delivered Samaria out of my hand? ³⁵Who among all the gods of the countries have delivered their countries out of my hand, that the LORD should deliver Jerusalem out of my hand?' "

³⁶ But the people were silent and answered him not a word, for the king's command was, "Do not answer him." ³⁷Then Eliakim son of Hilkiyah, who was in charge of the palace, and Shebna the secretary, and Joah son of Asaph, the recorder, came to Hezekiah with their clothes torn and told him the words of the Rabshakeh.

Hezekiah Consults Isaiah

19 When King Hezekiah heard it, he tore his clothes, covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of the LORD. ²And he sent Eliakim, who was in charge of the palace, and Shebna the secretary, and the senior priests, covered with sackcloth, to the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz. ³They said to him, "Thus says Hezekiah, This day is a day of distress, of rebuke, and of disgrace; children have come to the birth, and there is no strength to bring them forth. ⁴It may be that the LORD your God heard all the words of the Rabshakeh, whom his master the king of Assyria has sent to mock the living God, and will rebuke the words that the LORD your God has heard; therefore lift up your prayer for the remnant that is left." ⁵When the servants of King Hezekiah came to Isaiah, ⁶Isaiah said to them, "Say to your master, 'Thus says the LORD: Do not be afraid because of the words that you have heard, with which the servants of the king of Assyria have reviled me. ⁷I myself will put a spirit in him, so that he shall hear a rumor and return to his own land; I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land.' who spoke only the local dialect of Hebrew. 18.34 All of these cities had earlier been captured by the Assyrians. 18.37 On the significance of tearing clothing, see note on 5.7.

19.1–7 Hezekiah's consultation of Isaiah during the crisis reflects the common practice of seeking divine guidance before or during military activities. See, e.g., 3.9–12; 1 Kings 22.1–12. Here the consultation is intended to be interpreted as a sign of the king's piety. 19.1 On the meaning of tearing clothing and wearing sackcloth, see notes on 5.7; 1 Kings 20.31. 19.2 Eliakim, Shebna. See note on 18.18. 19.3 The distress Hezekiah feels is due to the Assyrian threat, and the rebuke and disgrace are the result of the Rabshakeh's taunts (18.19–35). The proverb (children . . . bring them forth) means that the critical moment for deliverance has arrived but that the participants themselves are not able to bring it into existence. 19.6 Isaiah's oracle of salvation opens in typical style with an exhortation not to fear (see, e.g., Isa 7.4). 19.7 The spirit will deceive Sennacherib, although the oracle does not specify the nature of the rumor that he will hear (cf. 1 Kings 22.20–23).

19.8–13 This report of Sennacherib's second message to Hezekiah is taken by some scholars to be simply a variant of the report in 18.19–35. Other scholars see here evidence of a second Assyrian campaign, while still others take these verses as the second phase of the negotiations. The narrator clearly intends the latter interpretation. 19.8 Libnah. See note on 8.22. 19.9 Tirhakah ruled Egypt (here called Ethiopia) from ca. 690 to 664 B.C.E., so he must have been commander of the army rather than king when this incident occurred. This word of an imminent Egyptian attack may have been the rumor men-concerning King Tirhakah of Ethiopia,^c "See, he has set out to fight against you," he sent messengers again to Hezekiah, saying, ¹⁰"Thus shall you speak to King Hezekiah of Judah: Do not let your God on whom you rely deceive you by promising that Jerusalem will not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria. ¹¹See, you have heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all lands, destroying them utterly. Shall you be delivered? ¹²Have the gods of the nations delivered them, the nations that my predecessors destroyed, Gozan, Haran, Rezeph, and the people of Eden who were in Telassar? ¹³Where is the king of Hamath, the king of Arpad, the king of the city of Sepharvaim, the king of Hena, or the king of Ivvah?"

Hezekiah's Prayer

¹⁴ Hezekiah received the letter from the hand of the messengers and read it; then Hezekiah went up to the house of the LORD and spread it before the LORD. ¹⁵And Hezekiah prayed before the LORD, and said: "O LORD the God of Israel, who are enthroned above the cherubim, you are God, you alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth; you have made heaven and earth. ¹⁶Incline your ear, O LORD, and hear; open your eyes, O LORD, and see; hear the words of Sennacherib, which he has sent to mock the living God. ¹⁷Truly, O LORD, the kings of Assyria have laid waste the nations and their lands, ¹⁸and have hurled their gods into the fire, though they were no gods but the work of human hands—wood and stone—and so they were destroyed. ¹⁹So now, O LORD our God, save us, I pray you, from his hand, so that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that you, O LORD, are God alone."

²⁰ Then Isaiah son of Amoz sent to Hezekiah, saying, "Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: I have heard your prayer to me about King Sennacherib of Assyria. ²¹This is the word that the LORD has spoken concerning him:

She despises you, she

tioned in v. 7. 19.10–13 The arguments advanced here summarize those in 18.19–35. 19.12–13 The cities mentioned were all places where populations had recently been displaced. Several of the cities were connected with the exile of the Northern Kingdom (cf. 17.6, 24).

19.14–34 In contrast to Hezekiah's response to the first Assyrian visit (vv. 1–7), this time Hezekiah himself goes to the temple and prays to the Lord. The answer to the prayer then comes in the form of a second oracle from Isaiah. 19.15 The phrase before the LORD implies that the king was before the ark within the Holy of Holies, an area where normally only priests were allowed to enter. Cherubim. See note on 1 Kings 6.23–28. 19.18 The gods were in fact the divine statues, usually made of wood, that represented the gods in many temples. 19.25–28 God here implies that the Assyrian victories are all part of a divine plan that has been in existence since the beginning of the world. Sennacherib is simply the tool God is using to punish the nations. However, because of the Assyrian king's arrogant assumption that he is in control of the situation, God will thwart his efforts and make him return to his land. These themes are also found elsewhere

I will turn you back on the way
by which you came.

29 “And this shall be the sign for you: This year you shall eat what grows of itself, and in the second year what springs from that; then in the third year sow, reap, plant vineyards, and eat their fruit. 30 The surviving remnant of the house of Judah shall again take root downward, and bear fruit upward; 31 for from Jerusalem a remnant shall go out, and from Mount Zion a band of survivors. The zeal of the LORD of hosts will do this.

32 “Therefore thus says the LORD concerning the king of Assyria: He shall not come into this city, shoot an arrow there, come before it with a shield, or cast up a siege ramp against it. 33 By the way that he came, by the same he shall return; he shall not come into this city, says the LORD. 34 For I will defend this city to save it, for my own sake and for the sake of my servant David.”

Sennacherib's Defeat and Death

35 That very night the angel of the LORD set out and struck down one hundred eighty-five thousand in the camp of the Assyrians; when morning dawned, they were all dead bodies. 36 Then King Sennacherib of Assyria left, went home, and lived at Nineveh. 37 As he was worshipping in the house of his god Nisroch, his sons Adrammelech and Sharezer killed him with the sword, and they escaped into the land of Ararat. His son Esar-haddon succeeded him.

Hezekiah's Illness

20 In those days Hezekiah became sick and was at the point of death. The prophet Isaiah son of Amoz came to him, and said to him, “Thus says the LORD: Set your house in order, for you shall die; you shall not recover.” 2 Then Hezekiah turned his face to the wall and prayed to the LORD: 3 “Remember now, O LORD, I implore you, how I have walked before you in faithfulness with a whole heart, and have done what is good in your sight.” Hezekiah wept bitterly.

in Isaiah's prophecies (see, e.g., Isa 10.12–19; 14.24–27). 19.28 The references to a hook in the nose and a bit in the mouth compare the king to an animal who will be led wherever its owner wants it to go. 19.29 Isaiah's sign does not indicate a rapid return to normal living conditions. It will take the land two years to recover from the ravages of the Assyrian invasion, and during that time the people will have to gather grain that grows naturally. Only in the third year will they be able to plant and reap a normal harvest.

19.35–37 In spite of many ingenious attempts from antiquity to the present day, there is no good way to rationalize the miraculous salvation of Jerusalem. The event is simply a dramatic fulfillment of Isaiah's oracle of deliverance. 19.37 The god Nisroch is otherwise unknown. The name is probably a corruption of the name of one of the Mesopotamian deities. The land of Ararat is Urartu, modern Armenia. After a struggle over the succession, Esar-haddon came to the Assyrian throne in 681 and ruled until 669 B.C.E.

20.1–11 The story of Hezekiah's illness also exists in an expanded version in Isa 38.1–22. The incident is not assigned a specific date, but v. 6 seems to point forward to the miraculous deliverance of Jerusalem in 701 B.C.E. It is likely, then, that the story is out of place chronologically and should have preceded the narratives of chs. 18–19. The story is probably in its present position because of its link in v. 12 with the story of the visit from the messengers of Merodach-baladan. Whatever the reasons for the displacement of 20.1–11, its present position causes the healing to appear as a special favor for the king whose piety and fidelity to the Lord had

4 Before Isaiah had gone out of the middle court, the word of the LORD came to him: 5 "Turn back, and say to Hezekiah prince of my people, Thus says the LORD, the God of your ancestor David: I have heard your prayer, I have seen your tears; indeed, I will heal you; on the third day you shall go up to the house of the LORD. 6 I will add fifteen years to your life. I will deliver you and this city out of the hand of the king of Assyria; I will defend this city for my own sake and for my servant David's sake." 7 Then Isaiah said, "Bring a lump of figs. Let them take it and apply it to the boil, so that he may recover."

8 Hezekiah said to Isaiah, "What shall be the sign that the LORD will heal me, and that I shall go up to the house of the LORD on the third day?" 9 Isaiah said, "This is the sign to you from the LORD, that the LORD will do the thing that he has promised: the shadow has now advanced ten intervals; shall it retreat ten intervals?" 10 Hezekiah answered, "It is normal for the shadow to lengthen ten intervals; rather let the shadow retreat ten intervals." 11 The prophet Isaiah cried to the LORD; and he brought the shadow back the ten intervals, by which the sun^e had declined on the dial of Ahaz.

Envoys from Babylon

12 At that time King Merodach-baladan son of Baladan of Babylon sent envoys with letters and a present to Hezekiah, for he had heard that Hezekiah had been sick. 13 Hezekiah welcomed them;^f he showed them all his treasure house, the silver, the gold, the spices, the precious oil, his armory, all that was found in his storehouses; there was nothing in his house or in all his realm that Hezekiah did not show them. 14 Then the prophet Isaiah came to King Hezekiah, and said to him, "What did these men say? From where did they come to you?" Hezekiah answered, "They have come from a far country, from Babylon." 15 He said, "What have they seen in your house?" Hezekiah answered, "They have seen all that is in my house; there is nothing in my storehouses that I did not show them."

16 Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, "Hear the word of the LORD: 17 Days are coming when all that is in your house, and that which your ancestors have stored up until this day, shall be carried to Babylon; nothing shall be left, says the LORD. 18 Some of your own sons who are born to you shall be taken away; they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon." 19 Then Hezekiah said to Isaiah, "The word of the LORD that you have spoken is good." For he thought, "Why not, if there will be peace and security in my days?"

saved Jerusalem during the Assyrian invasion. 20.4 The middle court must have been part of the royal palace. 20.5 The phrase on the third day indicates the end of a brief period of time (cf. Hos 6.1–2). 20.6 Here the king's recovery and the salvation of Jerusalem from the Assyrians are linked together in the same prophecy. 20.7 The translation follows the Greek text, which suggests that Isaiah's action set the healing process in motion but that the completion of the process still lay in the future. The Hebrew text reports that the healing took place immediately, thus rendering the following sign superfluous. In antiquity figs were thought to have healing properties. 20.8 The sign is intended to authenticate the prophecy and guarantee its fulfillment (cf. 1 Kings 13.3 and note). 20.9 For a similar sign involving the sun, see Josh 10.12–13. 20.11 The dial of Ahaz was a series of steps on which the movement of a shadow cast by the sun marked the hours.

20.12–19 The story of Hezekiah's encounter with the messengers of Merodach-baladan also appears to be out of place in the history of Hezekiah's reign. Merodach-baladan ruled Babylon between 722 and 710 B.C.E. and then again briefly from 704 to 703, before Sennacherib deposed him. The visit to Hezekiah must have taken place well before the Assyrian invasion of 701 B.C.E. and probably occurred during Merodach-baladan's first term on the throne. The purpose of the visit was perhaps to encourage trade between Babylon and the west and to secure allies who might be useful in the future. The prophet Isaiah, who was generally opposed to all foreign alliances, opposed any sort of contact with the Babylonians. The compiler of Kings may have placed this negative story about Hezekiah in its present position in order to detract somewhat from the king's reputation for piety. In this way Hezekiah would not overshadow the future achievements of Josiah, whom the narrator regarded as Judah's greatest king. 20.17 In Isaiah's oracle this interchange with the Babylonians becomes an explanation for the destruction of Jerusalem and the exile in 587/6 B.C.E.

Death of Hezekiah

20 The rest of the deeds of Hezekiah, all his power, how he made the pool and the conduit and brought water into the city, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ²¹Hezekiah slept with his ancestors; and his son Manasseh succeeded him.

Manasseh Reigns over Judah

21 Manasseh was twelve years old when he began to reign; he reigned fifty-five years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Hephzibah. ²He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, following the abominable practices of the nations that the LORD drove out before the people of Israel. ³For he rebuilt the high places that his father Hezekiah had destroyed; he erected altars for Baal, made a sacred pole,^g as King Ahab of Israel had done, worshiped all the host of heaven, and served them. ⁴He built altars in the house of the LORD, of which the LORD had said, "In Jerusalem I will put my name." ⁵He built altars for all the host of heaven in the two courts of the house of the LORD. ⁶He made his son pass through fire; he practiced soothsaying and augury, and dealt with mediums and with wizards. He did much evil in the sight of the LORD, provoking him to anger. ⁷The carved image of Asherah that he had made he set in the house of which the LORD said to David and to his son Solomon, "In this house, and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, I will put my name forever; ⁸I will not cause the feet of Israel to wander any more out of the land that I gave to their ancestors, if only they will be careful to do according to all that I have commanded them, and according to all the law that my servant Moses commanded them." ⁹But they did not listen; Manasseh misled them to do more evil than the nations had done that the LORD destroyed before the people of Israel.

¹⁰ The LORD said by his servants the prophets, ¹¹"Because King Manasseh of Judah has committed these abominations, has done things more wicked than all that the Amorites did, who were before him, and has caused Judah also to sin with his idols; ¹²therefore thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, I am bringing upon Jerusalem and Judah such evil that the ears of everyone who hears of it will tingle. ¹³I will stretch over Jerusalem the measuring

g Heb Asherah

20.20–21 The concluding summary of Hezekiah's reign finally mentions one of his most impressive achievements, the construction of the Siloam tunnel. To provide Jerusalem with a secure water supply during a siege, the king cut a passage through 1,749 feet of solid rock to lead water from the Gihon spring outside the city to the pool of Siloam safely inside the walls. A wall inscription originally carved in the tunnel still exists to testify to his achievement.

21.1–18 In the eyes of the Deuteronomistic narrator, the long reign of Manasseh was the epitome of evil. Perhaps reacting against the religious reforms of his father, Hezekiah (18.4–6), Manasseh restored the cultic practices of Ahaz (16.2–4) and elaborated on them, in the process violating many of the provisions for worship laid down in the book of Deuteronomy. More to the point, he committed many of the same sins that led to the devastation of the Northern Kingdom and to the exile of its inhabitants (17.7–18). It is not surprising, then, that the narrator blames Manasseh for the Babylonian destruction of Jerusalem and the exile. 21.1 Manasseh ruled from ca. 687/6 to 642 B.C.E. 21.2 Following the abominable practices of the nations is forbidden in Deut 12.29–31 (cf. 2 Kings 17.7). 21.3 High places. See note on

1 Kings 3.2. Sacred poles. See note on 1 Kings 14.15. The destruction of these installations is commanded in Deut 12.2–4 (cf. 2 Kings 17.9–10, 16). In the narrator's view, Ahab was the most sinful of all of the Northern Kings because of his official encouragement of the worship of Baal and Asherah (see the assessment in 1 Kings 16.31–33). Host of heaven. See note on 17.16. 21.5 It is not clear exactly where these altars were placed in the temple courts. 21.6 Made his son pass through fire. See note on 16.3. This practice and the various types of divination mentioned here are forbidden in Deut 18.9–14 (cf. 2 Kings 17.17). 21.7 Asherah. See note on 1 Kings 14.15. 21.7–8 For the Deuteronomistic narrator, the promise of an eternal Davidic line and the promise of the permanent dwelling of Israel in the land were both always contingent on obedience to the divine law; see, e.g., 1 Kings 9.3–9. 21.10 The prophets who delivered this judgment oracle are not identified. 21.11 The Amorites were among the original inhabitants of Canaan and therefore one of the peoples whose practices were to be avoided. 21.13 The same standards that were applied to Israel will also be applied to Judah. The parallels between the two are already evident. For the narrator's opinions on the house

line for Samaria, and the plummet for the house of Ahab; I will wipe Jerusalem as one wipes a dish, wiping it and turning it upside down. ¹⁴I will cast off the remnant of my heritage, and give them into the hand of their enemies; they shall become a prey and a spoil to all their enemies, ¹⁵because they have done what is evil in my sight and have provoked me to anger, since the day their ancestors came out of Egypt, even to this day."

¹⁶ Moreover Manasseh shed very much innocent blood, until he had filled Jerusalem from one end to another, besides the sin that he caused Judah to sin so that they did what was evil in the sight of the LORD.

¹⁷ Now the rest of the acts of Manasseh, all that he did, and the sin that he committed, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ¹⁸ Manasseh slept with his ancestors, and was buried in the garden of his house, in the garden of Uzza. His son Amon succeeded him.

Amon Reigns over Judah

¹⁹ Amon was twenty-two years old when he began to reign; he reigned two years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Meshullemeth daughter of Haruz of Jotbah. ²⁰ He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, as his father Manasseh had done. ²¹ He walked in all the way in which his father walked, served the idols that his father served, and worshiped them; ²² he abandoned the LORD, the God of his ancestors, and did not walk in the way of the LORD. ²³ The servants of Amon conspired against him, and killed the king in his house. ²⁴ But the people of the land killed all those who had conspired against King Amon, and the people of the land made his son Josiah king in place of him. ²⁵ Now the rest of the acts of Amon that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ²⁶ He was buried in his tomb in the garden of Uzza; then his son Josiah succeeded him.

Josiah Reigns over Judah

22 Josiah was eight years old when he began to reign; he reigned thirty-one years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jedidah daughter of Adaiah of Bozkath. ² He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, and walked in all the way of his father David; he did not turn aside to the right or to the left.

Hilkiah Finds the Book of the Law

³ In the eighteenth year of King Josiah, the king sent Shaphan son of

of Ahab, see note on 21.3. One wipes a dish and turns it upside down to be sure that all of its contents have been removed. 21.14 After the destruction of the Northern Kingdom, only Judah remained as the remnant of God's heritage. 21.18 The location of the garden of Uzza is unknown.

21.19–26 The reign of Amon saw the continuation of all of the evil policies of his father, Manasseh. 21.19 Amon ruled from ca. 642 to 640 B.C.E. 21.24 People of the land. See note on 11.14. 21.26 Garden of Uzza. See note on 21.18.

22.1–2 The narrator of Kings views Josiah as the Judean king who most closely conformed to the Davidic model. Even more than the highly praised Hezekiah, Josiah was obedient to God's law, a fact which the historian illustrates by describing in detail the king's religious reforms. 22.1 Josiah reigned from ca. 640 to 609 B.C.E.

22.3–20 Josiah's pious concern for repairing the temple leads to the discovery of a lawbook, which motivates the king to make a new covenant between the people and the Lord and to carry out a religious reform throughout the land. Most scholars identify this book as an early version of the present book of Deuteronomy, an identification that is based on several factors. Like Deuteronomy, the lawbook contains dire threats against people who reject the Lord and worship other gods (vv. 16–17; cf. Deut 27–28). Similarly, the book leads to the making of a covenant (23.2–3), a concept that plays an important role throughout Deuteronomy (see, e.g., Deut 29). Finally, the reforms carried out by Josiah generally conform to the sort of worship that Deuteronomy demands. In the eyes of the narrator, then, Josiah was the ideal king precisely because his rule was guided by the Deuteronomistic law (cf. Deut 17.18–20). 22.3 Josiah's eighteenth year was 622 B.C.E. According to 2 Chr 34.3–18, Josiah began his religious reforms in his twelfth year, even though the lawbook was not discovered in the temple until Josiah's eighteenth year. Many scholars believe the chronology of Chronicles to be correct, and if it is, then it is likely that the writer of Kings reordered events to emphasize the crucial role of the lawbook. Shaphan and his descendants seem to have been supporters of the Deuteronomistic theology advocated by the narrator of Kings, and they later aided the prophet Jeremiah in the final days

Azaliah, son of Meshullam, the secretary, to the house of the LORD, saying, ⁴“Go up to the high priest Hilkiah, and have him count the entire sum of the money that has been brought into the house of the LORD, which the keepers of the threshold have collected from the people; ⁵let it be given into the hand of the workers who have the oversight of the house of the LORD; let them give it to the workers who are at the house of the LORD, repairing the house, ⁶that is, to the carpenters, to the builders, to the masons; and let them use it to buy timber and quarried stone to repair the house. ⁷But no accounting shall be asked from them for the money that is delivered into their hand, for they deal honestly.”

⁸ The high priest Hilkiah said to Shaphan the secretary, “I have found the book of the law in the house of the LORD.” When Hilkiah gave the book to Shaphan, he read it. ⁹Then Shaphan the secretary came to the king, and reported to the king, “Your servants have emptied out the money that was found in the house, and have delivered it into the hand of the workers who have oversight of the house of the LORD.” ¹⁰Shaphan the secretary informed the king, “The priest Hilkiah has given me a book.” Shaphan then read it aloud to the king.

¹¹ When the king heard the words of the book of the law, he tore his clothes. ¹²Then the king commanded the priest Hilkiah, Ahikam son of Shaphan, Achbor son of Micaiah, Shaphan the secretary, and the king’s servant Asaiah, saying, ¹³“Go, inquire of the LORD for me, for the people, and for all Judah, concerning the words of this book that has been found; for great is the wrath of the LORD that is kindled against us, because our ancestors did not obey the words of this book, to do according to all that is written concerning us.”

¹⁴ So the priest Hilkiah, Ahikam, Achbor, Shaphan, and Asaiah went to the prophetess Huldah the wife of Shallum son of Tikvah, son of Harhas, keeper of the wardrobe; she resided in Jerusalem in the Second Quarter, where they consulted her. ¹⁵She declared to them, “Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Tell the man who sent you to me, ¹⁶Thus says the LORD, I will indeed bring disaster on this place and on its inhabitants—all the words of the book that the king of Judah has read. ¹⁷Because they have abandoned me and have made offerings to other gods, so that they have provoked me to anger with all the work of their hands, therefore my wrath will be kindled against this place, and it will not be quenched. ¹⁸But as to the king of Judah, who sent you to inquire of the LORD, thus shall you say to him, Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Regarding the words that you have heard, ¹⁹because your heart was penitent, and you humbled yourself before the LORD, when you heard how I spoke against this place, and against its inhabitants, that they should become a desolation and a curse, and because you have torn your clothes and wept before me, I also have heard you, says the LORD. ²⁰Therefore, I will gather you to your ancestors, and you shall be gathered to your grave in peace; your eyes shall not see all the disaster that I will bring on this place.” They took the message back to the king.

before the capture of Jerusalem (Jer 26.24; 29.3; 36.10–12). 22.4–7 On the arrangements for making repairs on the temple, see 12.4–16 and notes. 22.8 The book of the law was probably a scroll. The precise circumstances of its discovery are not related. Some scholars have speculated that the scroll had been stored in the temple or hidden away during the anti-Deuteronomic reforms of Manasseh (21.2–9). Others have suggested that the book was in fact written by Hilkiah and then conveniently “found.” 22.11 Tore his clothes. See note on 5.7. 22.13 People inquired of a deity through a prophet in times of personal or national distress (1.2; 8.7–15; 1 Kings 14.1–18; 22.5–12). 22.14 Huldah is not mentioned elsewhere, but she was clearly an important figure in Jerusalemite society. The Second Quarter was on the western hill of Jerusalem, an area enclosed by a city wall during the reign of Hezekiah. The expansion of the city at that time was perhaps to accommodate refugees from the Assyrian invasion of Israel. 22.16–17 Huldah’s judgment oracle is reminiscent of 21.12; Deut 27–28. 22.20 Huldah’s prophecy to Josiah implies that the king will have a nonviolent death. In this case, the prophecy was not fulfilled (23.29–30).

Josiah's Reformation

23 Then the king directed that all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem should be gathered to him. ²The king went up to the house of the LORD, and with him went all the people of Judah, all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the priests, the prophets, and all the people, both small and great; he read in their hearing all the words of the book of the covenant that had been found in the house of the LORD. ³The king stood by the pillar and made a covenant before the LORD, to follow the LORD, keeping his commandments, his decrees, and his statutes, with all his heart and all his soul, to perform the words of this covenant that were written in this book. All the people joined in the covenant.

⁴ The king commanded the high priest Hilkiah, the priests of the second order, and the guardians of the threshold, to bring out of the temple of the LORD all the vessels made for Baal, for Asherah, and for all the host of heaven; he burned them outside Jerusalem in the fields of the Kidron, and carried their ashes to

Bethel. ⁵He deposed the idolatrous priests whom the kings of Judah had ordained to make offerings in the high places at the cities of Judah and around Jerusalem; those also who made offerings to Baal, to the sun, the moon, the constellations, and all the host of the heavens. ⁶He brought out the image of ^hAsherah from the house of the LORD, outside Jerusalem, to the Wadi Kidron, burned it at the Wadi Kidron, beat it to dust and threw the dust of it upon the graves of the common people. ⁷He broke down the houses of the male temple prostitutes that were in the house of the LORD, where the women did weaving for Asherah. ⁸He brought all the priests out of the towns of Judah, and defiled the high places where the priests had made offerings, from Geba to Beer-sheba; he broke down the high places of the gates that were at the entrance of the gate of Joshua the governor of the city, which were on the left at the gate of the city. ⁹The priests of the high places, however, did not come up to the altar of the LORD in Jerusalem, but ate unleavened bread among their kindred.

23.1–27 Although Josiah's religious reforms were clearly inspired by Deuteronomic regulations concerning worship, some scholars have suggested that the cultic practices he curtailed were of Assyrian origin and that the reforms therefore constituted a revolt against Assyria. However, most of the practices involved seem to have been Canaanite rather than Assyrian, and many of them appear elsewhere in Kings associated with one or another of the native rulers. Yet the lack of connection with Assyrian religion does not necessarily mean that Josiah's reforms did not have political as well as religious motives. In addition to purifying worship of the Lord in Judah and Jerusalem, he also went into the North and destroyed shrines throughout Ephraim, concentrating particularly on Bethel, one of the royal sanctuaries of the old Northern Kingdom (vv. 15–20). At this time Ephraim was technically an Assyrian province, Samaria, and Josiah's activities there could certainly have been understood as hostile acts. Josiah's reforms in the North symbolically made the country fit for the worship of the Lord and may have been intended as a prelude to a political claim that would have reconstituted the old Davidic empire. 23.1–3 Strictly speaking, both the making of the covenant and the reformation of Israelite religion are an exercise in futility, since irrevocable judgment has already been decreed against the city and the people (22.16–17). In the context of the present narrative, Josiah's actions therefore can only be interpreted as a sign of his willingness to obey God's law even though obedience will not bring future benefit. 23.3 The covenant is an important Deuteronomic concept and it constitutes an oath of loyalty to the Lord. 23.4 On the worship of Baal, Asherah, and the host of heaven, which had been introduced (or reintroduced) into Judah by Manasseh, see notes on 1 Kings 14.15; 2 Kings 17.16. Kidron. See note on 1 Kings 2.37. Cf. 1 Kings 15.13. Carrying the ashes to Bethel shows Josiah's zeal to defile the old royal sanctuary of the Northern Kingdom. 23.7 On the cultic role of prostitutes, see note on 1 Kings 14.24. The women were probably weaving clothes for the statue of the goddess. 23.8 The priests mentioned here are priests of the Lord, in contrast to the idolatrous priests of v. 5. High places. See note on 1 Kings 3.2. The removal of the high places effectively centralizes worship in Jerusalem in accordance with Deut 12. Geba lies to the north of the Dead Sea and marks Judah's northern boundary. Beer-sheba is the traditional marker of the southern boundary. The location of the gate of Joshua is unknown. 23.9 The treatment of the priests of the high places contradicts ¹⁰He defiled Topheth, which is in the valley of Ben-hinnom, so that no one would make a son or a daughter pass through fire as an offering to Molech. ¹¹He removed the horses that the kings of Judah had dedicated to the sun, at the entrance to the house of the LORD, by the chamber of the eunuch Nathan-melech, which was in the precincts;ⁱ then he burned the chariots of the sun with fire. ¹²The altars on the roof of the upper chamber of Ahaz, which the kings of Judah had made, and the altars that Manasseh had made in the two courts of the house of the LORD, he pulled down from there and broke in pieces, and threw the rubble into the Wadi Kidron. ¹³The king defiled the high places that were east of Jerusalem, to the south of the Mount of Destruction, which King Solomon of Israel had built for Astarte the abomination of the Sidonians, for Chemosh the abomination of Moab, and for Milcom the abomination of the Ammonites. ¹⁴He broke the pillars in pieces, cut down the sacred poles,^j and covered the sites with human bones.

¹⁵Moreover, the altar at Bethel, the high place erected by Jeroboam son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin—he pulled down that altar along with the high place. He burned the high place, crushing it to dust; he also burned the sacred pole.^k ¹⁶As Josiah turned, he saw the tombs there on the mount; and he sent and took the bones out of the tombs, and burned them on the altar, and defiled it, according to the word of the LORD that the man of God proclaimed,^l when Jeroboam stood by the altar at the festival; he turned and looked up at the tomb of the man of God who had predicted these things. ¹⁷Then he said, “What is that monument that I see?” The people of the city told him, “It is the tomb of the man of God who came from Judah and predicted these things that you have done against the altar at Bethel.” ¹⁸He said, “Let him rest; let no one move his bones.” So they let his bones alone, with the bones of the prophet who came out of Samaria. ¹⁹Moreover, Josiah removed all the shrines of the high places that were in the towns of Samaria, which kings of Israel had made, provoking the LORD to anger; he did to them just as he had done at Bethel. ²⁰He slaughtered on the altars all the priests of the high places who were there, and burned human bones on them. Then he returned to Jerusalem.

²¹The king commanded all the people, “Keep the passover to the LORD your God as prescribed in this book of the covenant.” ²²No such passover had been kept since the days of the judges who judged Israel, even during all the days of the kings of Israel and of the kings of Judah; ²³but in the eighteenth year of King Josiah this passover was kept to the LORD in Jerusalem.

²⁴Moreover Josiah put away the mediums, wizards, teraphim,^m idols, and all the abominations that were seen in the land of Judah and in Jerusalem, so that he established the words of the law that were written in the book that the priest Hilkiah had found in the house of the LORD. ²⁵Before him there was no king like him, who turned to the LORD with all his heart, with all his soul, and with all his might, according to all the law of Moses; nor did any like him arise after him.

from Bethel rather than Samaria (1 Kings 13.11, 31). 23.19–20 The reforms outside of Bethel may have also been considered a fulfillment of prophecy (see 1 Kings 13.32). 23.21–23 Josiah's command resumes the narrative of vv. 1–3. According to Deuteronomic law (Deut 16.5–6), the Passover must be celebrated at the central sanctuary rather than in individual homes. The text claims that the last Passover celebrated in this way took place just after Israel entered Canaan (Josh 5.10–11). 23.24 Diviners are prohibited by Deut 18.9–14. Teraphim were images of household deities and may also have been used in divination. 23.25 The narrator makes the same

26 Still the LORD did not turn from the fierceness of his great wrath, by which his anger was kindled against Judah, because of all the provocations with which Manasseh had provoked him. 27 The LORD said, "I will remove Judah also out of my sight, as I have removed Israel; and I will reject this city that I have chosen, Jerusalem, and the house of which I said, My name shall be there."

Josiah Dies in Battle

28 Now the rest of the acts of Josiah, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? 29 In his days Pharaoh Neco king of Egypt went up to the king of Assyria to the river Euphrates. King Josiah went to meet him; but when Pharaoh Neco met him at Megiddo, he killed him. 30 His servants carried him dead in a chariot from Megiddo, brought him to Jerusalem, and buried him in his own tomb. The people of the land took Jehoahaz son of Josiah, anointed him, and made him king in place of his father.

Reign and Captivity of Jehoahaz

31 Jehoahaz was twenty-three years old when he began to reign; he reigned three months in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Hamutal daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah. 32 He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, just as his ancestors had done. 33 Pharaoh Neco confined him at Riblah in the land of Hamath, so that he might not reign in Jerusalem, and imposed tribute on the land of one hundred talents of silver and a talent of gold. 34 Pharaoh Neco made Eliakim son of Josiah king in place of his father Josiah, and changed his name to Jehoiakim. But he took Jehoahaz away; he came to Egypt, and died there. 35 Jehoiakim gave the silver and the gold to Pharaoh, but he taxed the land in order to meet Pharaoh's demand for money. He exacted the silver and the gold from the people of the land, from all according to their assessment, to give it to Pharaoh Neco.

Jehoiakim Reigns over Judah

36 Jehoiakim was twenty-five years old when he began to reign; he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Zebidah daughter of Pedaiah of Rumai. 37 He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, just as all his ancestors had done.

Judah Overrun by Enemies

24 In his days King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon came up; Jehoiakim became his servant for three years; then he turned and rebelled against him. 2 The LORD sent against him bands of the Chal-

statement about Hezekiah in 18.5. 23.26–27 These verses allude to the substance of the prophetic oracle against Manasseh in 21.10–15.

23.28–30 Josiah's sudden death comes as a shock and seems to be an anticlimax after the praise the narrator lavishes on the king's reign. 23.29 Pharaoh Neco, who had just come to the throne in 610 B.C.E., was apparently on his way to join the Assyrians in an attempt to curb the growing power of the Babylonians. He met Josiah in 609 B.C.E. at Megiddo, which was strategically located in the Plain of Esdraelon in northwestern Palestine on the standard trade route between Egypt and Mesopotamia. It is usually assumed that Josiah attempted to block the Egyptian advance, but the text does not actually mention a battle. It may be that Neco simply murdered Josiah. 23.30 People of the land. See note on 11.14.

23.31–35 Jehoahaz's brief reign ends when Neco interferes directly in Judean affairs and places a puppet king on the throne. The text gives no details about the evil Jehoahaz is said to have done. 23.31 Jehoahaz ruled in 609 B.C.E.

23.33 Riblah lay about seven miles south of Kadesh on the Orontes River on the trade route connecting Egypt, northern Syria, and Mesopotamia. A talent weighs about 75 pounds.

23.36–37 Jehoiakim was the king upon whom God's judgment finally fell. Like all of the other Judean kings after Josiah, he is evaluated negatively by the narrator. 23.36 Jehoiakim ruled ca. 609–598 B.C.E.

24.1–7 Because in the mind of the narrator the fate of Judah has already been sealed, little time is spent in describing the achievements of Jehoiakim, and the text concentrates completely on his relationship with the Babylonians. 24.1 At the battle of Carchemish (605 B.C.E.), Nebuchadnezzar had won a decisive victory over the Egyptians, and he followed this triumph with a campaign in Syria and Palestine. It was during this time that Jehoiakim thought it prudent to conclude a treaty with Nebuchadnezzar, and Judah was a Babylonian vassal from 604 to 602 B.C.E. However, in 601/600 B.C.E. the Babylonians deans, bands of the Arameans, bands of the Moabites, and bands of the Ammonites; he sent them against Judah to destroy it, according to the word of the LORD that he spoke by his servants the prophets. ³Surely this came upon Judah at the command of the LORD, to remove them out of his sight, for the sins of Manasseh, for all that he had committed, ⁴and also for the innocent blood that he had shed; for he filled Jerusalem with innocent blood, and the LORD was not willing to pardon. ⁵Now the rest of the deeds of Jehoiakim, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ⁶So Jehoiakim slept with his ancestors; then his son Jehoiachin succeeded him. ⁷The king of Egypt did not come again out of his land, for the king of Babylon had taken over all that belonged to the king of Egypt from the Wadi of Egypt to the River Euphrates.

Jehoiachin and the Siege of Jerusalem

⁸ Jehoiachin was eighteen years old when he began to reign; he reigned three months in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Nehushta daughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. ⁹He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, just as his father had done.

¹³ He carried off all the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king's house; he cut in pieces all the vessels of gold in the temple of the LORD, which King Solomon of Israel had made, all this as the LORD had foretold. ¹⁴He carried away all Jerusalem, all the officials, all the warriors, ten thousand captives, all the artisans and the smiths; no one remained, except the poorest people of the land. ¹⁵He carried away Jehoiachin to Babylon; the king's mother, the king's wives, his officials, and the elite of the land, he took into captivity from Jerusalem to Babylon. ¹⁶The king of Babylon brought captive to Babylon all the men of valor, seven thousand, the artisans and the smiths, one thousand, all of them strong and fit for war. ¹⁷The king of Babylon made Mattaniah, Jehoiachin's uncle, king in his place, and changed his name to Zedekiah.

¹⁸ Zedekiah was twenty-one years old when he began to reign; he reigned

were driven back to their homeland by the Egyptians. Jehoiakim concluded that the political tide had turned, and so he rebelled. 24.2 The rebellion was badly timed, for after resupplying his army Nebuchadnezzar again moved west and began to punish the rebels. This invasion is interpreted by the narrator as the promised punishment against Judah and Jerusalem. The or frequently uses the name Chaldeans to refer to the inhabitants of Babylonia during this period. The Arameans (Syrians), Moabites, and Ammonites were Judah's neighbors to the east and had periodically been at war with Israel and Judah during the monarchical period. 24.3–4 On the sins of Manasseh, see 21.1–16. 24.7 The battle of Carchemish put an end to Egyptian power, at least temporarily (see v. 1).

24.8–17 Jehoiakim apparently died during Nebuchadnezzar's invasion of Judah, so the brunt of the Babylonian attack fell on the new king, Jehoiachin. The narrator naturally focuses the account on the Babylonian sack of Jerusalem and on the exile of the king and the royal court.

24.8 Jehoiachin ruled briefly in 598/7, before the Babylonians deported him. 24.12 The eighth year refers to the year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign in which the deportations actually began. The city was captured in March, 597 B.C.E., the seventh year of Nebuchadnezzar's kingship. 24.13 The prediction of the deportation was made by the prophet Isaiah during the reign of Hezekiah (20.12–21). 24.14 In this verse the number of exiles is set at ten thousand, while v. 16 sets the figure at eight thousand.

24.18–25.21 Although Zedekiah ruled for eleven years, the narrator concentrates on the last significant events of the king's reign: the fall of Jerusalem and the exile. A condensed version of this account is found in 2 Chr 36.11–21, and the whole account, with small variations, has been appended to the book of Jeremiah (Jer 52). A shortened version of 25.1–21 is also found in Jer 39.1–14. The unusually large number of accounts of the fall indicates the extraordinary political and religious significance of this traumatic event. 24.18 Zedekiah reigned between 597 and 587/6

eleven years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Hamutal daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah. ¹⁹He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, just as Jehoiakim had done. ²⁰Indeed, Jerusalem and Judah so angered the LORD that he expelled them from his presence.

Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon. ¹And in the ninth year 25 of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon came with all his army against Jerusalem, and laid siege to it; they built siegeworks against it all around. ²So the city was besieged until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah. ³On the ninth day of the fourth month the famine became so severe in the city that there was no food for the people of the land. ⁴Then a breach was made in the city wall;ⁿ the king with all the soldiers fled^o by night by the way of the gate between the two walls, by the king's garden, though the Chaldeans were all around the city. They went in the direction of the Arabah. ⁵But the army of the Chaldeans pursued the king, and overtook him in the plains of Jericho; all his army was scattered, deserting him. ⁶Then they captured the king and brought him up to the king of Babylon at Riblah, who passed sentence on him. ⁷They slaughtered the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes, then put out the eyes of Zedekiah; they bound him in fetters and took him to Babylon.

every great house he burned down. ¹⁰All the army of the Chaldeans who were with the captain of the guard broke down the walls around Jerusalem. ¹¹Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard carried into exile the rest of the people who were left in the city and the deserters who had defected to the king of Babylon—all the rest of the population. ¹²But the captain of the guard left some of the poorest people of the land to be vinedressers and tillers of the soil.

¹³ The bronze pillars that were in the house of the LORD, as well as the stands and the bronze sea that were in the house of the LORD, the Chaldeans broke in pieces, and carried the bronze to Babylon. ¹⁴They took away the pots, the shovels, the snuffers, the dishes for incense, and all the bronze vessels used in the temple service, ¹⁵as well as the firepans and the basins. What was made of gold the captain of the guard took away for the gold, and what was made of silver, for the silver. ¹⁶As for the two pillars, the one sea, and the stands, which Solomon had made for the house of the LORD, the bronze of all these vessels was beyond weighing. ¹⁷The height of the one pillar was eighteen cubits, and on it was a bronze capital; the height of the capital was three cubits; latticework and pomegranates, all of bronze, were on the capital all around. The second pillar had the same, with the latticework.

¹⁸ The captain of the guard took the chief priest Seraiah, the second priest Zephaniah, and the three guardians of the threshold; ¹⁹from the city he took an officer who had been in command of the

B.C.E. 24.20 Zedekiah's reign was marked by political indecision as the king struggled unsuccessfully to chart a safe course through troubled Near Eastern waters. Although Egyptian power had been broken in 605 B.C.E. (see note on 24.1), Pharaoh Psammetichus II began to extend his influence into Palestine in 592 B.C.E., and thereafter Zedekiah was torn between maintaining his status as a Babylonian vassal and seeking a new alliance with Egypt. He finally decided on the latter course, with disastrous results. 25.1–2 The siege of Jerusalem finally began in January of 587 B.C.E. and lasted for eighteen months. 25.4 The city wall was finally breached in July of 586 B.C.E.

In their unsuccessful attempt to escape, the king and his court fled through a gate in the southeast wall of Jerusalem, where Hezekiah had built a second wall to protect the pool of Siloam (see note on 20.20–21). The Arabah refers to land in the Jordan Valley rift between the Sea of Galilee and the Dead Sea. 25.5 Jericho. See note on 2.4. 25.6 Riblah. soldiers, and five men of the king's council who were found in the city; the secretary who was the commander of the army who mustered the people of the land; and sixty men of the people of the land who were found in the city. ²⁰Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard took them, and brought them to the king of Babylon at Riblah. ²¹The king of Babylon struck them down and put them to death at Riblah in the land of Hamath. So Judah went into exile out of its land.

Gedaliah Made Governor of Judah

the land, serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you." ²⁵But in the seventh month, Ishmael son of Nethaniah son of Elishama, of the royal family, came with ten men; they struck down Gedaliah so that he died, along with the Judeans and Chaldeans who were with him at Mizpah. ²⁶Then all the people, high and low,^p and the captains of the forces set out and went to Egypt; for they were afraid of the Chaldeans.

Jehoiachin Released from Prison

²⁷ In the thirty-seventh year of the exile of King Jehoiachin of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-seventh day of the month, King Evil-merodach of Babylon, in the year that he began to reign, released King Jehoiachin of Judah from prison; ²⁸he spoke kindly to him, and gave him a seat above the other seats of the kings who were with him in Babylon. ²⁹So Jehoiachin put aside his prison clothes. Every day of his life he dined regularly in the king's presence. ³⁰For his allowance, a regular allowance was given him by the king, a portion every day, as long as he lived.

25.22–26 In an attempt to maintain political stability, Nebuchadnezzar appoints an administrator from an important Judean family. A more detailed account of Gedaliah's activities is found in Jer 40.7–41.18 25.22 Gedaliah's grandfather, Shaphan, had been the scribe during the reign of Josiah (22.3). Gedaliah's father, Ahikam, was part of the delegation sent to Huldah (22.12) and was later a supporter of Jeremiah (Jer 26.24). 25.23 Several Israelite towns bore the name Mizpah. The one mentioned here probably lay on the border between Israel and Judah, about eight miles north of Jerusalem. Mizpah may have been one of the few sites left standing after the Babylonian invasion. 25.24 Gedaliah's pro-Babylonian stance was also shared by Jeremiah, who received special treatment from the Babylonians after the fall of Jerusalem (Jer 27.1–22; 39.13–14; 40.1–6). 25.26 This verse seems to imply that the remaining inhabitants fled to Egypt (cf. v. 21).

25.27–30 This brief epilogue recounting Jehoiachin's release from prison introduces a note of hope that the Davidic monarchy might not be finally destroyed. A parallel account is found in Jer 52.31–34. 25.27 Evil-merodach ruled Babylon from ca. 562 to 560 B.C.E.

1 CHRONICLES

IN THE HEBREW BIBLE 1 and 2 Chronicles are called “The Events of the Days.” The title Chronicles can be traced back to Jerome in the fifth century C.E. The books of 1 and 2 Chronicles were written after the exile and in Jerusalem, probably in the fourth century B.C.E. The author is conventionally called the Chronicler. While these books share many themes with the nearly contemporaneous books of Ezra and Nehemiah, a growing number of scholars believe they are separate compositions. Note, however, that the first verses of Ezra (1.1–3a) are identical to the last verses of Chronicles (2 Chr 36.22–23).

Structure and Sources

The books of Chronicles consist of four sections: genealogies and lists that trace the story from Adam to the community after the exile (1 Chr 1–9); the reign of David (1 Chr 10–29); the reign of Solomon (2 Chr 1–9); and the history of the Davidic monarchy until the Babylonian captivity (2 Chr 10–36).

The books are largely parallel to the books of Samuel and Kings, which are part of the Deuteronomistic History, a portion of the Hebrew Bible running from Deuteronomy to 2 Kings, and they reached their final form in the mid-sixth century B.C.E. (2 Sam 9–20 is passed over, and the material on the Northern Kingdom is virtually ignored). In fact, Samuel and Kings served as the major source for the Chronicler, though his copy of these books differed in significant ways from the text as we now have it in the Hebrew Bible. Especially useful in establishing the earlier text of Samuel and Kings are the Greek translation of the Bible (the Septuagint) and the Dead Sea Scrolls. The genealogical notices of 1 Chr 1–8 show strong ties to Genesis, Exodus, Numbers, Joshua, Samuel, and Ruth. Pss 96; 105; 106 are cited in 1 Chr 16. The Chronicler also used the books of Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Zechariah. The Chronicler refers readers to additional sources at the end of every king’s history, though most of these references are taken over or revised from the Deuteronomistic History. The genealogies in 1 Chr 1–9 came to the Chronicler from a variety of sources, as did a number of other lists of names (1 Chr 12; 23–27). Material that appears to come from other sources includes the description of the fortifications of Rehoboam (2 Chr 11.5–10), the descriptions of armies (2 Chr 14.8; 17.14–19; 25.5; 26.11–15), and the reference to Hezekiah's tunnel (2 Chr 32.30). Because of their importance, parallels in Samuel and Kings are cited at the beginning of notes wherever appropriate.

Theology

Whereas past scholarship often debated the historical value of the Chronicler's additional material, there is a greater interest today in the theological point the author was making. At the same time archaeological and form-critical judgments are reaching new levels of sophistication. Occasionally there is no hard data that justify a historical judgment. The Chronicler's magnification of an account, often for theological reasons, can be seen in his use of large numbers. Abijah, for example, accompanied by an army of 400,000, attacked the army of Jeroboam, which was 800,000 strong, and inflicted 500,000 casualties (2 Chr 13).

The author frequently expresses his own views in royal speeches and prayers that often base their appeal on an authoritative scriptural text. These compositions play a significant role in the structuring of Chronicles. The speeches (1 Chr 22; 28; 29) and a prayer of David (1 Chr 29.10–19) link David closely with Solomon and place great emphasis on the temple. The period of the Divided Monarchy is enclosed with speeches calling for repentance by Abijah (2 Chr 13.4–12) and by Hezekiah (2 Chr 30.6–9). Both speeches indicate the Chronicler's openness to the Northern Kingdom's participation in the ritual life of the Jerusalem temple. Frequent references to prophets are found in material taken from the parallel accounts in Samuel and Kings, in material added by the Chronicler, and in source references that mention prophets in connection with certain kings (2 Chr 9.29).

Other Matters of Worldview

The Chronicler shows special loyalty to the Levites and includes in their number singers, gatekeepers, and even bakers (1 Chr 9.31–32). Among the many tasks of the Levites was teaching (2 Chr 17.7–9). They were also in charge of holy objects, prepared the rows of "show" bread (1 Chr 9.28–32; 23.29–31; 2 Chr 29.18), and served as judges and scribes. In addition, they led in singing and praise (1 Chr 15.16–24; 16.4–42).

The author devotes extraordinary attention to David and Solomon and treats them as equals, often omitting negative information contained in his sources. In his presentation of events, the work of David and Solomon centered on the building of the temple and the installation of its personnel. The Chronicler calls on all Israel of his day, including especially the Northern Kingdom, to join in recognizing the Second Temple and its ritual life in Jerusalem.

The Chronicler interprets divine punishments or blessings as retribution for a king's behavior. Such retribution is immediate, with the consequences befalling the evil or righteous king during his own lifetime. Faithful royal behavior is accompanied by many children, building projects, a well-equipped army, victory in war, cultic reforms, or tribute from the nations. A wicked king experienced God's wrath, war, defeat in battle, disease, or conspiracy.

Interpreters now find a far more open attitude to the Northern Kingdom in Chronicles than was previously recognized. Those willing to return to the Lord and come to his sanctuary were to be welcomed (2 Chr 30.7–8). Hezekiah's Passover celebration was unique in its inclusion of the North, and both he and Josiah conducted reforming activities in the North. The Chronicler seems to be inviting Northerners to acknowledge the claims of the temple in Jerusalem and to participate in its ritual life. Ralph W. Klein

43 These are the kings who reigned in the land of Edom before any king reigned over the Israelites: Bela son of Beor, whose city was called Dinhabah. ⁴⁴When Bela died, Jobab son of Zerah of Bozrah succeeded him. ⁴⁵When Jobab died, Husham of the land of the Temanites succeeded him. ⁴⁶When Husham died, Hadad son of Bedad, who defeated Midian in the country of Moab, succeeded him; and the name of his city was Avith. ⁴⁷When Hadad died, Samlah of Masrekah succeeded him. ⁴⁸When Samlah died, Shaul^g of Rehoboth on the Euphrates succeeded him. ⁴⁹When Shaul^g died, Baal-hanan son of Achbor succeeded him. ⁵⁰When Baal-hanan died, Hadad succeeded him; the name of his city was Pai, and his wife's name Mehetabel daughter of Matred, daughter of Me-zahab. ⁵¹And Hadad died.

The clans^h of Edom were: clans^h Timna, Aliah,ⁱ Jetheth, ⁵²Oholibamah, Elah, Pinon, ⁵³Kenaz, Teman, Mibzar, ⁵⁴Magdiel, and Iram; these are the clans^h of Edom.

als in vv. 17-23. 1.25 Eber. Cf. Gen 10.24-25; 11.14-17. The root of the name plays on the name "Hebrews" to portray Eber as the eponymous ancestor, the namesake, of the Hebrew people. 1.27 Abram. His name is changed to Abraham in Gen 17.5.

1.28-54 Cf. Gen 25.1-4, 13-16, 19-26; 36.1-5, 10-13, 20-28, 31-43. Abraham's descendants through three separate women, with the subsidiary, nonelect lines reported first. 1.29-31 Ishmael, the son of Abraham and his Egyptian slave-girl Hagar (Gen 16; 21). 1.32-33 Perhaps a later addition to the Chronicler's account; note the summary in v. 28. Keturah, a concubine Abraham took after the death of Sarah. 1.34 Israel, the standard name for Jacob in Chronicles (except for 1 Chr 16.13, 17, both quotations from Ps 105). 1.35-54 Esau/Edom, the brother of Israel, is given lengthy attention. 1.36 Timna, in Gen 36.12 a concubine of Eliphaz and mother of Amalek. 1.38-42 The sons of Seir inhabited the same territory as Edom (cf. Gen 36.8). 1.43-51a List of Edomite kings. 1.43 This verse presupposes the existence of the monarchy in Israel, so that this genealogy must be considerably later than Moses. 1.51 Hadad's death is not recorded in Genesis. Clans. Chiefs (see text note h) is preferable.

2.1-55 Chronicles has an inclusive view of Israel and so lists all twelve tribes. For the order of the tribes in these verses, with the exception of Dan, see Gen 35.23-26. The rest of chs. 2-8 provide details of the Israelite genealogy though no details are provided for Zebulun and, perhaps, Dan (but see 7.12). The genealogy of Judah, the most important tribe in the postexilic community, extends from 2.3 to 4.23. 2.3-4 Based on Gen 38. Judah sires twins by his daughter-in-law Tamar. 2.3 Bath-shua, the daughter of Shua

Er, Onan, and Shelah; these three the Canaanite woman Bath-shua bore to him. Now Er, Judah's firstborn, was wicked in the sight of the LORD, and he put him to death. ⁴His daughter-in-law Tamar also bore him Perez and Zerah. Judah had five sons in all.

⁹ The sons of Hezron, who were born to him: Jerahmeel, Ram, and Chelubai. ¹⁰Ram became the father of Amminadab, and Amminadab became the father of Nahshon, prince of the sons of Judah. ¹¹Nahshon became the father of Salma, Salma of Boaz, ¹²Boaz of Obed, Obed of Jesse. ¹³Jesse became the father of Eliab his firstborn, Abinadab the second, Shimea the third, ¹⁴Nethanel the fourth, Raddai the fifth, ¹⁵Ozem the sixth, David the seventh; ¹⁶and their sisters were Zeruah and Abigail. The sons of Zeruiah: Abishai, Joab, and Asahel, three. ¹⁷Abigail bore Amasa, and the father of Amasa was Jether the Ishmaelite.

²¹ Afterward Hezron went in to the daughter of Machir father of Gilead, whom he married when he was sixty years old; and she bore him Segub; ²²and Segub became the father of Jair, who had twenty-three towns in the land of Gilead. ²³But Geshur and Aram took from them Havvoth-jair, Kenath and its villages, sixty towns. All these were descendants of Machir, father of Gilead. ²⁴After the death of Hezron, in Caleb-ephrahah, Abijah wife of Hezron bore him Ashhur, father of Tekoa.

²⁵ The sons of Jerahmeel, the firstborn of Hezron: Ram his firstborn, Bunah, Oren, Ozem, and Ahijah. ²⁶Jerahmeel also had another wife, whose name was Atarah; she was the mother of Onam. ²⁷The sons of Ram, the firstborn of Jerahmeel: Maaz, Jamin, and Eker. ²⁸The sons of Onam: Shammai and Jada. The sons of Shammai: Nadab and Abishur. ²⁹The name of Abishur's wife was Abihail, and she bore him Ahban and Molid. ³⁰The sons of Nadab: Seled and Appaim; and Seled died childless. ³¹The son^k of Appaim: Ishi. The son^k of Ishi: Sheshan. The son^k of Sheshan: Ahlai. ³²The sons of Jada, Shammai's brother: Jether and Jonathan; and Jether died childless. ³³The sons of Jonathan: Peleth and Zaza. These were the descendants of Jerahmeel. ³⁴Now Sheshan had no sons, only daughters; but Sheshan had an Egyptian slave, whose name was Jarha. ³⁵So Sheshan gave his daughter in marriage to his slave Jarha; and she bore him Attai. ³⁶Attai became the father of Nathan, and Nathan of Zabad. ³⁷Zabad became the father of Ephlal, and Ephlal of Obed. ³⁸Obed became the father of Jehu, his trusted military leaders. 2.17 Ishmaelite. The Hebrew of 2 Sam 17.25 reads "Israelite." 2.18-24 Descendants of Caleb/Chelubai, the third son of Hezron. 2.18 The verse should begin, "Caleb . . . had Jerioth by his wife Azubah." Hence Jerioth is the mother of the following three men. 2.20 Bezalel, a craftsman who worked on the tabernacle (Ex 31.2; 35.30). 2.24 In . . . Ashhur, better "Caleb went in to Ephrahah (and Hezron's wife was Abijah) and she bore him Ashhur." The parenthesis supplies the name of the daughter of Machir in v. 21. 2.25-33, 34-41 Two lists of descendants of Jerahmeel, the oldest son of Hezron. At the time of David the Jerahmeelites lived in the Negeb of Judah (1 Sam 27.10; 30.29). According to v. 31 Ahlai is the son of Sheshan, but according to v. 34 Sheshan had no sons.

(Gen 38.2). 2.4 Perez, a twin, who makes a "breach" and comes out of the womb before his brother Zerah (Gen 38.27-30). 2.5 Hezron and Hamul, grandsons of Judah (Gen 46.12; Num 26.21). 2.6-8 Descendants of Zerah, the younger brother of Perez. 2.7 Achar (cf. Achan in Josh 7.1, 18; Achor in Josh 7.24, 26) violated the provisions of the holy war by taking booty from Jericho. 2.9 Chelubai, Caleb. The descendants of Hezron, grandson of Judah, are divided into the descendants of Ram (2.10-17; 3.1-24 [descendants of David]), Caleb (2.18-24, 42-55), and Jerahmeel (2.25-33; 2.34-41). 2.10-17 Ram, Hezron's second son, was the ancestor of David. 2.15 According to 1 Sam 16.10-11; 17.12-14, David is the eighth son. 2.16-17 Abishai, Joab, Asahel, and Amasa, nephews of David and

and Jehu of Azariah. ³⁹Azariah became the father of Helez, and Helez of Eleasah. ⁴⁰Eleasah became the father of Sismai, and Sismai of Shallum. ⁴¹Shallum became the father of Jekamiah, and Jekamiah of Elishama.

⁴²The sons of Caleb brother of Jerahmeel: Mesha^l his firstborn, who was father of Ziph. The sons of Mareshah father of Hebron. ⁴³The sons of Hebron: Korah, Tappuah, Rekem, and Shema. ⁴⁴Shema became father of Raham, father of Jorkeam; and Rekem became the father of Shammai. ⁴⁵The son of Shammai: Maon; and Maon was the father of Bethzur. ⁴⁶Ephah also, Caleb's concubine, bore Haran, Moza, and Gazez; and Haran became the father of Gazez. ⁴⁷The sons of Jahdai: Regem, Jotham, Geshan, Pelet, Ephah, and Shaaph. ⁴⁸Maacah, Caleb's concubine, bore Sheber and Tirhanah. ⁴⁹She also bore Shaaph father of Madmannah, Sheva father of Machbenah and father of Gibeaz; and the daughter of Caleb was Achsah. ⁵⁰These were the descendants of Caleb.

The sons^m of Hur the firstborn of Ephrathah: Shobal father of Kiriath-jearim, ⁵¹Salma father of Bethlehem, and Haraph father of Beth-gader. ⁵²Shobal father of Kiriath-jearim had other sons: Haroeh, half of the Menuhoth. ⁵³And the families of Kiriath-jearim: the Ithrites, the Puthites, the Shumathites, and the Mishraites; from these came the Zorathites and the Eshtaolites. ⁵⁴The sons of Salma: Bethlehem, the Netophathites, Atroth-beth-joab, and half of the Manahathites, the Zorites. ⁵⁵The families also of the scribes that lived at Jabez: the Tirathites, the Shimeathites, and the Sucathites. These are the Kenites who came from Hammath, father of the house of Rechab.

Descendants of David and Solomon

3 These are the sons of David who were born to him in Hebron: the firstborn Amnon, by Ahinoam the Jezreelite; the second Daniel, by Abigail the Carmelite; ²the third Absalom, son of Maacah, daughter of King Talmai of Geshur; the fourth Adonijah, son of Haggith; ³the fifth Shephatiah, by Abital; the sixth Ithream, by his wife Eglah; ⁴six were born to him in Hebron, where he reigned for seven years and six months. And he reigned thirty-three years in Jerusalem. ⁵These were born to him in Jerusalem: Shimea, Shobab, Nathan, and Solomon, four by Bath-shua, daughter of Ammiel; ⁶then Ibhar, Elishama, Eliphelet, ⁷Nogah, Nepheg, Japhia, ⁸Elishama, Eliada, and Eliphelet, nine. ⁹All these were David's sons, besides the sons of the concubines; and Tamar was their sister.

¹⁰The descendants of Solomon: Rehoboam, Abijah his son, Asa his son, Jehoshaphat his son, ¹¹Joram his son, Ahaziah his son, Joash his son, ¹²Amaziah his son, Azariah his son, Jotham his son, ¹³Ahaz his son, Hezekiah his son, Manasseh his son, ¹⁴Amon his son, Josiah his son. ¹⁵The sons of Josiah: Johanan the firstborn, the second Jehoiakim, the third Zedekiah, the fourth Shallum. ¹⁶The descendants of Jehoiakim: Jeconiah his son, Zedekiah his son; ¹⁷and the sons of Jeco-

3.1–24 Cf. 2 Sam 3.2–5; 5.5, 13–16. 3.1–4 Sons born to David in Hebron. Daniel, Chileab (2 Sam 3.3). Abigail, widow of Nabal (1 Sam 25). 3.4 2 Sam 5.5 specifies that David's reign in Hebron was "over Judah," while his reign in Jerusalem was "over all Israel and Judah." 3.5–9 Sons born to David in Jerusalem. Cf. 1 Chr 14.3–7. 3.5 Only Solomon is identified as a son of Bath-shua elsewhere. 3.6–7 Eliphelet, Nogah. Cf. 1 Chr 14.5–6; lacking in 2 Sam 5.15.

3.9 This verse is an addition by the Chronicler. Cf. 2 Sam 13.1. 3.10–16 Kings in Jerusalem. 3.11 Athaliah is not included in the list because she was not a descendant of David. 3.12 Azariah (2 Kings 15.1), Uzziah in 2 Chr 26. 3.15 Johanan, otherwise unknown. Shallum, Jehoahaz (2 Chr 36.1; Jer 22.11). 3.16 Jeconiah, Jehoiachin (2 Chr 36.9); Coniah (Jer 22.24). Zedekiah his son. Zedekiah was the successor (son) to Jeconiah. and Jeconiah the successor (son) to Jehoiakim: Zedekiah's father was Josiah, as v. 15 attests. 2 Chr 36.10 makes Zedekiah the brother of Jehoiachin. 3.17–24 The descendants of Jeconiah, who was taken captive in 597 B.C.E. and released from Babylonian prison some thirty-seven years later (2 Kings 25.27–30). The following approximate birth dates have been proposed: Jeconiah, niah, the captive: Shealtiel his son, ¹⁸Malchiram, Pedaiah, Shenazzar, Jekamiah, Hoshama, and Nedabiah; ¹⁹The sons of Pedaiah: Zerubbabel and Shimei; and the sons of Zerubbabel: Meshullam and Hananiah, and Shelomith was their sister; ²⁰and Hashubah, Ohel, Berechiah, Hasadiah, and Jushab-hesed, five. ²¹The sons of Hananiah: Pelatiah and Jeshaiah, his sonⁿ Rephaiah, his sonⁿ Arnan, his sonⁿ Obadiah, his sonⁿ Shecaniah. ²²The son^o of Shecaniah: Shemaiah. Descendants of Judah

4 The sons of Judah: Perez, Hezron, Carmi, Hur, and Shobal. ²Reaiah son of Shobal became the father of Jahath, and Jahath became the father of Ahumai and Lahad. These were the families of the Zorathites. ³These were the sons^p of Etam: Jezreel, Ishma, and Idbash; and the name of their sister was Hazzeleponi, ⁴and Penuel was the father of Gedor, and Ezer the father of Hushah. Helah and Naarah; ⁶Naarah bore him Ahuzzam, Hephher, Temeni, and Haahashtari.^q These were the sons of Naarah. ⁷The sons of Helah: Zereth, Izhar,^r and Ethnan. ⁸Koz became the father of Anub, Zobebah, and the families of Aharhel son of Harum. ⁹Jabez was honored more than his brothers; and his mother named him Jabez, saying, "Because I bore him in pain." ¹⁰Jabez called on the God of Israel, saying, "Oh that you would bless me and enlarge my border, and that your hand might be with me, and that you would keep me from hurt and harm!" And God granted what he asked. ¹¹Cheleb the brother of Shuhah became the father of Mehir, who was the father of Eshton. ¹²Eshton became the father of Beth-rapha, Paseah, and Tehinnah the father of Ir-nahash. If these proposals are correct, the present form of this list would date to about 400 B.C.E. If this list is part of the original edition of Chronicles, a date prior to 400 B.C.E. would be impossible. 3.17–18 The Babylonian Chronicle, a cuneiform historiographical source of the eighth century B.C.E., mentions five sons of the king of Judah instead of the seven named here. 3.18 Shenazzar, to be distinguished from Sheshbazzar (Ezra 1.8). 3.19 Zerubbabel and Joshua were leaders of the postexilic community at the time of Haggai. Elsewhere he is called the son of Shealtiel (Ezra 3.2). Perhaps Shealtiel died childless and Pedaiah engendered Zerubbabel in a levirate marriage (Deut 25.5–10). 3.20 The last five children of Zerubbabel may have been born after their parents' return to Palestine. The etymologies of these names express Israel's hope; e.g., Hashubah in Hebrew means "Yahweh has considered," Berechiah, "Yahweh has blessed." 3.21 Rephaiah . . . Shecaniah, brothers of Pelatiah and Jeshaiah. On the basis of the Septuagint, some understand them as four additional generations, as translated here. 3.22 Six. Only five names are given. 3.24 Anani is mentioned in an Aramaic letter of 407 B.C.E.

4.1–23 A miscellaneous collection of genealogies related to Judah. 4.1 Sons, descendants. Hezron was a grandson of Judah (2.5), Hur a great-great-grandson (2.19), etc. 4.2 Zorathites. The Kenizzites were a southern tribe that joined with Judah. Caleb is a Kenizite in Num 32.12; Josh 14.6, 14. 4.14 Ge-harashim, some thirty miles northwest of Jerusalem; cf. These are the sons of Bithiah, daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered married;^u and she conceived and bore^v Miriam, Shammai, and Ishbah father of Eshtemoa. 18 And his Judean wife bore Jered father of Gedor, Heber father of Socoh, and Jekuthiel father of Zanoah. 19 The sons of the wife of Hodiah, the sister of Naham, were the fathers of Keilah the Garmite and Eshtemoa the Maacathite. 20 The sons of Shimon: Amnon, Rinnah, Ben-hanan, and Tilon. The sons of Ishi: Zoheth and Ben-zoheth. 21 The sons of Shelah son of Judah: Er father of Lecah, Laadah father of Mareshah, and the families of the guild of linen workers at Beth-ashbea; 22 and Jokim, and the men of Cozeba, and Joash, and Saraph, who married into Moab but returned to Lehem^w (now the records^x are ancient). 23 These were the potters and inhabitants of Netaim and Gederah; they lived there with the king in his service.

Descendants of Simeon

24 The sons of Simeon: Nemuel, Jamin, Jarib, Zerah, Shaul;^y 25 Shallum was his son, Mibsam his son, Mishma his son. 26 The sons of Mishma: Hammuel his son, Zaccur his son, Shimei his son. 27 Shimei had sixteen sons and six daughters; but his brothers did not have many children, nor did all their family multiply like the Judeans. 28 They lived in Beer-sheba, Moladah, Hazar-shual, 29 Bilhah, Ezem, Tolad, 30 Bethuel, Hormah, Ziklag, 31 Beth-marcaboth, Hazar-susim, Beth-biri, and Shaaraim. These were their towns until David became king. 32 And their villages were Etam, Ain, Rimmon, Tochen, and Ashan, five towns, 33 along with all their villages that were around these towns as far as Baal. These were their settlements. And they kept a genealogical record.

34 Meshobab, Jamlech, Joshah son of Amaziah, 35 Joel, Jehu son of Joshibiah son of Seraiah son of Asiel, 36 Eliezer, Jakobah, Jeshohaiah, Asaiah, Adiel, Jesimiel, Benaiah, 37 Ziza son of Shiphah son of Allon son of Jedaiiah son of Shimri son of Shemaiah— 38 these mentioned by name were leaders in their families, and their clans increased greatly. 39 They journeyed to the entrance of Gedor, to the east side of the valley, to seek pasture for their flocks, 40 where they found rich, good pasture, and the land was very broad, quiet, and peaceful; for the former inhabitants there belonged to Ham. 41 These, registered by name, came in the days of King Hezekiah of Judah, and attacked their tents and the Meunim who were found there, and exterminated them to this day, and settled in their place, because there was pasture there for their flocks. 42 And some of them, five hundred men of the Simeonites, went to Mount Seir, having as their leaders Pelatiah, Neariah, Rephaiah, and Uzziel, sons of Ishi; 43 they destroyed the remnant of the Amalekites that had escaped, and they have lived there to this day.

Descendants of Reuben

4.24-43 This genealogy is made up of descendants of Simeon, especially through Shaul (vv. 24-27; cf. Gen 46.10; Ex 6.15; Num 26.12-14), settlements of the Simeonites near Beer-sheba (vv. 28-33; cf. Josh 15.21-32; 19.2-8), and leaders and conquests (vv. 34-43). 4.39 Gedor. The Septuagint reads "Gerar," a town in the Negeb, within Simeonite territory. Attacks at the time of Hezekiah were against the Philistines in the southwest and against Edom in the southeast (vv. 39-43).

5.1-10 Ch. 5 deals with the two and a half tribes living east of the Jordan. 5.1 Reuben had sexual relations with Bilhah, his father's concubine (Gen 35.22; 49.4). The Chronicler uses this incident to explain why Judah, the fourth oldest son, is listed first. 5.2 Ruler, David and his dynasty. The transfer of the birthright to Joseph is unknown elsewhere. Both the Northern tribes his brothers and a ruler came from him, yet the birthright belonged to Joseph.)³ The sons of Reuben, the firstborn of Israel: Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi.⁴ The sons of Joel: Shemaiah his son, Gog his son, Shimei his son,⁵ Micah his son, Reaiah his son, Baal his son,⁶ Beerah his son, whom King Tilgath-pilneser of Assyria carried away into exile; he was a chieftain of the Reubenites.⁷ And his kindred by their families, when the genealogy of their generations was reckoned: the chief, Jeiel, and Zechariah,⁸ and Bela son of Azaz, son of Shema, son of Joel, who lived in Aroer, as far as Nebo and Baal-meon.⁹ He also lived to the east as far as the beginning of the desert this side of the Euphrates, because their cattle had multiplied in the land of Gilead.¹⁰ And in the days of Saul they made war on the Hagrites, who fell by their hand; and they lived in their tents throughout all the region east of Gilead.

Descendants of Gad

¹¹ The sons of Gad lived beside them in the land of Bashan as far as Salecah:¹² Joel the chief, Shapham the second, Janai, and Shaphat in Bashan.¹³ And their kindred according to their clans: Michael, Meshullam, Sheba, Jorai, Jacan, Zia, and Eber, seven.¹⁴ These were the sons of Abihail son of Huri, son of Jaroah, son of Gilead, son of Michael, son of Jeshishai, son of Jahdo, son of Buz;¹⁵ Ahi son of Abdiel, son of Guni, was chief in their clan;¹⁶ and they lived in Gilead, in Bashan and in its towns, and in all the pasture lands of Sharon to their limits.¹⁷ All of these were enrolled by genealogies in the days of King Jotham of Judah, and in the days of King Jeroboam of Israel.

¹⁸ The Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh had valiant warriors, who carried shield and sword, and drew the bow, expert in war, forty-four thousand seven hundred sixty, ready for service.¹⁹ They made war on the Hagrites, Jetur, Naphish, and Nodab;²⁰ and when they received help against them, the Hagrites and all who were with them were given into their hands, for they cried to God in the battle, and he granted their entreaty because they trusted in him.²¹ They captured their livestock: fifty thousand of their camels, two hundred fifty thousand sheep, two thousand donkeys, and one hundred thousand captives.²² Many fell slain, because the war was of God. And they lived in their territory until the exile.

The Half-Tribe of Manasseh

²³ The members of the half-tribe of Manasseh lived in the land; they were very numerous from Bashan to Baalhermon, Senir, and Mount Hermon.²⁴ These were the heads of their clans: Ephraim,^z Ishi, Eliel, Azriel, Jeremiah, Hodaviah, and Jahdiel, mighty warriors, famous men, heads of their clans.²⁵ But they transgressed against the God of their ancestors, and prostituted themselves to the gods of the peoples of the land, whom God had destroyed before them.²⁶ So the God of Israel stirred up the spirit of King Pul of Assyria, the spirit of King Tilgath-

The Assyrian king Tiglath-pileser III conquered Gilead in 733 B.C.E. 5.8 Aroer . . . Nebo and Baal-meon. Since these cities were lost to Moab in the late ninth century B.C.E., according to the Mesha Inscription, the materials in these verses must antedate this time. 5.10 Saul fought with the Hagrites (cf. vv. 19–20), an enemy from Transjordan (cf. 11.38; 27.30; Ps 83.6), at the end of the eleventh century B.C.E.

5.11–22 Gad was north of Reuben in Transjordan. 5.16 The Mesha Inscription mentions a people of Sharon. 5.17 This enrollment, from about 750 B.C.E., presupposes that Jotham and Jeroboam II were contemporaries. 5.18–22 The war against the Hagrites and others is described in terms of holy war (cf. esp. vv. 20, 22). 5.21 The enormous number of animals and captives demonstrates the size of the God-given victory.

5.23–26 The half-tribe of Manasseh lived in the northernmost part of Transjordan. 5.23 Senir. Cf. Deut 3.8–9. Mount Hermon (9,230 feet) marked the northernmost limit of Joshua's conquest (Josh 11.3). 5.25–26 A summary of the fate of the two and a half tribes, based in part on 2 Kings 17. 5.26 Pul, the Babylonian throne name of Tiglath-pileser. Cf. 6.50–53; 9.11; Ezra 7.1–5; Neh 11.10–11. 6.8 Zadok is made a descendant of Aaron by identifying his father as Ahitub (the grandfather of Abiathar, another high priest at the time of David; 1 Sam 20–23; 1 Kings 2.27; cf. 2 Sam 8.17). Ahimaaz. of Gershom through Libni, his oldest son. 6.18, 22–28 This genealogy of Kohath proceeds to Shaul (v. 24), but then adds a second line (vv. 25–28), beginning with Elkanah (v. 23), that makes Samuel a Levite. 1 Sam 1.1 classifies him as an Ephraimite whose father was named Elkanah. 6.19, 29–30 The genealogy of Merari through Mahli, his oldest son. 6.28 Joel, Abijah. Settlements of the Levites

⁵⁴ These are their dwelling places according to their settlements within their borders: to the sons of Aaron of the families of Kohathites—for the lot fell to them first—⁵⁵to them they gave Hebron in the land of Judah and its surrounding pasture lands, ⁵⁶but the fields of the city and its villages they gave to Caleb son of Jephunneh. ⁵⁷To the sons of Aaron they gave the cities of refuge: Hebron, Libnah with its pasture lands, Jattir, Eshtemoa with its pasture lands, ⁵⁸Hilen^f with its pasture lands, Debir with its pasture lands, ⁵⁹Ashan with its pasture lands, and Beth-shemesh with its pasture lands. ⁶⁰From the tribe of Benjamin, Geba with its pasture lands, Alemeth with its pasture lands, and Anathoth with its pasture lands. All their towns throughout their families were thirteen.

⁶¹ To the rest of the Kohathites were given by lot out of the family of the tribe, out of the half-tribe, the half of Manasseh, ten towns. ⁶²To the Gershomites according to their families were allotted thirteen towns out of the tribes of Issachar, Asher, Naphtali, and Manasseh in Bashan. ⁶³To the Merarites according to their families were allotted twelve towns out of the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and Zebulun. ⁶⁴So the people of Israel gave the Levites the towns with their pasture lands. ⁶⁵They also gave them by lot out of the tribes of Judah, Simeon, and Benjamin these towns that are mentioned by name.

the United Monarchy can be established for this list of Levitical dwelling places. They served as administrative centers for the management of the royal holdings and collected taxes. 6.55–59 Cities from the territories of Simeon and Judah. 6.60 Cities from Benjamin. 6.66–81 Cities from Ephraim, Manasseh, Issachar, Asher, Naphtali, Zebulun, Reuben, and Gad. 6.69 The beginning of the verse should read: “And out of the tribe of Dan: Elteke with its pasture lands, Gibe-thon with its pasture lands.” Cf. Josh 21.23.

And the sons of Izrahiah: Michael, Obadiah, Joel, and Isshiah, five, all of them chiefs; ⁴and along with them, by their generations, according to their ancestral houses, were units of the fighting force, thirty-six thousand, for they had many wives and sons. ⁵Their kindred belonging to all the families of Issachar were in all eighty-seven thousand mighty warriors, enrolled by genealogy.

⁶ The sons of Benjamin: Bela, Becher, and Jediael, three. ⁷The sons of Bela: Ezbon, Uzzi, Uzziel, Jerimoth, and Iri, five, heads of ancestral houses, mighty warriors; and their enrollment by genealogies was twenty-two thousand thirty-four. ⁸The sons of Becher: Zemirah, Joash, Eliezer, Elioenai, Omri, Jeremoth, Abijah, Anathoth, and Alemeth. All these were the sons of Becher; ⁹and their enrollment by genealogies, according to their generations, as heads of their ancestral houses, mighty warriors, was twenty thousand two hundred. ¹⁰The sons of Jediael: Bilhan. And the sons of Bilhan: Jeush, Benjamin, Ehud, Chenaanah, Zethan, Tarshish, and Ahishahar. ¹¹All these were the sons of Jediael according to the heads of their ancestral houses, mighty warriors, seventeen thousand two hundred, ready for service in war. ¹²And Shupim and Hupim were the sons of Ir, Hushim the sonⁱ of Aher.

Descendants of Ephraim

²⁰ The sons of Ephraim: Shuthelah, and Bered his son, Tahath his son, Eleadah his son, Tahath his son, ²¹Zabad his son, Shuthelah his son, and Ezer and Elead. Now the people of Gath, who were born in the land, killed them, because they came down to raid their cattle. ²²And their father Ephraim mourned many days, and his brothers came to comfort him. ²³Ephraim^k went in to his wife, and she conceived and bore a son; and he named him Beriah, because disaster^l had befallen his house. ²⁴His daughter was Sheerah, who built both Lower and Upper Beth-horon, and Uzzensheerah. ²⁵Rephah was his son, Resheph his son, Telah his son, Tahan his son, ²⁶Ladan his son, Ammihud his son, Elishama his son, ²⁷Nun^m his son, Joshua his son. ²⁸Their possessions and settlements were Bethel and its towns, and eastward Naaran, and westward Gezer and its towns, Shechem and its towns, as far as Ayyah and its towns; ²⁹also along the borders of the Manassites, Beth-shean and its towns, Taanach and its towns, Megiddo and its towns, Dor and its towns. In these lived the sons of Joseph son of Israel.

Descendants of Asher

³⁰ The sons of Asher: Imnah, Ishvah, Ishvi, Beriah, and their sister Serah. ³¹The sons of Beriah: Heber and Mal-

chiel, who was the father of Birzaith. ³²Heber became the father of Japhlet, Shomer, Hotham, and their sister Shua. ³³The sons of Japhlet: Pasach, Bimhal, and Ashvath. These are the sons of Japhlet. ³⁴The sons of Shemer: Ahi, Rohgah, Hubbah, and Aram. ³⁵The sons of Helemⁿ his brother: Zophah, Imna, Shelesh, and Amal. ³⁶The sons of Zophah: Suah, Harnepher, Shual, Beri, Imrah, ³⁷Bezer, Hod, Shamma, Shilshah, Ithran, and Bera. ³⁸The sons of Jether: Jephunneh, Pispah, and Ara. ³⁹The sons of Ulla: Arah, Hanniel, and Rizia. ⁴⁰All of these were men of Asher, heads of ancestral houses, select mighty warriors, chief of the princes. Their number enrolled by genealogies, for service in war, was twenty-six thousand men.

Descendants of Benjamin

8 Benjamin became the father of Bela his firstborn, Ashbel the second, Aharah the third, ²Nohah the fourth, and Rapha the fifth. ³And Bela had sons: Ad-dar, Gera, Abihud,^o ⁴Abishua, Naaman, Ahoah, ⁵Gera, Shephuphan, and Huram. ⁶These are the sons of Ehud (they were heads of ancestral houses of the inhabitants of Geba, and they were carried into exile to Manahath): ⁷Naaman,^p Ahijah, and Gera, that is, Heglam,^q who became the father of Uzza and Ahihud. ⁸And Shaharaim had sons in the country of Moab after he had sent away his wives Hushim and Baara. ⁹He had sons by his wife Hodesh: Jobab, Zibia, Mesha, Mal-

After defeat in an attack upon Gath, Ephraim sires a child, Beriah, the etymology of whose name points to the “disaster” that had befallen his house. The family settles farther east near Lower and Upper Beth-horon (twin cities in Ephraim near Benjamin that guarded a pass from the coast to Jerusalem). 7.22 Brothers. The only brother known in the Bible is Manasseh. 7.28–29 A list of towns representing the southern and northern

8.1–40 An extensive and obscure genealogy of Benjamin concludes the Chronicler’s depiction of all Israel and demonstrates the great interest he had in this tribe. 8.1–7 Descendants of Benjamin and Ehud. 8.3 Abihud. Read “the father of Ehud” (Judg 3.15). In v. 6 Ehud’s descendants are said to dwell in Geba, a town northwest of the Dead Sea. 8.8–12 Moab. David met with the king of Moab (1 Sam 22.3–4; cf. Ruth 1); perhaps cam, ¹⁰Jeuz, Sachia, and Mirmah. These were his sons, heads of ancestral houses. ¹¹He also had sons by Hushim: Abitub and Elpaal. ¹²The sons of Elpaal: Eber, Misham, and Shemed, who built Ono and Lod with its towns, ¹³and Beriah and Shema (they were heads of ancestral houses of the inhabitants of Aijalon, who put to flight the inhabitants of Gath); ¹⁴and Ahio, Shashak, and Jeremoth. ¹⁵Zebadiah, Arad, Eder, ¹⁶Michael, Ishpah, and Joha were sons of Beriah. ¹⁷Zebadiah, Meshullam, Hizki, Heber, ¹⁸Ishmerai, Izliah, and Jobab were the sons of Elpaal. ¹⁹Jakim, Zichri, Zabdi, ²⁰Elienai, Zillethai, Eliel, ²¹Adaiah, Beraiah, and Shimrath were the sons of Shimei. ²²Ishpan, Eber, Eliel, ²³Abdon, Zichri, Hanan, ²⁴Hananiah, Elam, Anthothijah, ²⁵Iphdeiah, and Penuel were the sons of Shashak. ²⁶Shamsherai, Shehariah, Athaliah, ²⁷Jareshiah, Elijah, and Zichri were the sons of Jeroham. ²⁸These were the heads of ancestral houses, according to their generations, chiefs. These lived in Jerusalem.

²⁹ Jeiel^r the father of Gibeon lived in Gibeon, and the name of his wife was Maacah. ³⁰His firstborn son: Abdon, then Zur, Kish, Baal,^s Nadab, ³¹Gedor, Ahio, Zecher, ³²and Mikloth, who became the father of Shimeah. Now these also lived opposite their kindred in Jerusalem, with their kindred. ³³Ner became the father of Kish, Kish of Saul,^t Saul^r of Jonathan, Malchishua, Abinadab, and Esh-baal; ³⁴and the son of Jonathan was Merib-baal; and Merib-baal became the father of Micah. ³⁵The sons of Micah: Pithon, Melech, Tarea, and Ahaz. ³⁶Ahaz became the father of Jehoaddah; and Jehoaddah became the father of Alemeth, Azmaveth, and Zimri; Zimri became the father of Moza. ³⁷Moza became the father of Binea; Raphah was his son, Eleasah his son, Azel his son. ³⁸Azel had six sons, and these are their names: Azrikam, Bocheru, Ishmael, Sheariah, Obadiah, and Hanan; all these were the sons of Azel. ³⁹The sons of his brother Eshek: Ulam his firstborn, Jeush the second, and Eliphelet the third. ⁴⁰The sons of Ulam were mighty warriors, archers, having many children and grandchildren, one hundred fifty. All these were Benjaminites.

9 So all Israel was enrolled by genealogies; and these are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel. And Judah was taken into exile in Babylon because of their unfaithfulness. ²Now the first to live again in their possessions in their towns were Israelites, priests, Levites, and temple servants.

The genealogy has its geographical focus at Gibeon, a Benjaminitic city, five and a half miles northwest of Jerusalem. 8.30 Ner should be inserted before Nadab, as in Greek manuscript tradition (cf. v. 33). 8.32 Part of the family moved to Jerusalem. 8.33 Esh-baal. The form of this name (with the northwest Semitic divine name “Baal,” familiar from the Canaanite deity of this name, cf. vv. 30, 34) indicates the antiquity of this genealogy. 9.1–34 Cf. Neh 11.3–24. The author uses Neh 11, a list of those living in Jerusalem when Nehemiah rebuilt the walls. The nature of the Chronicler’s genealogical sources is not clarified by the reference to the Book of the Kings of Israel (v. 1). This verse forms a conclusion to the preexilic genealogies in chs. 1–8. Vv. 2–3 anticipate the repopulation of the land and are followed by lists of Judahites (vv. 4–6), Benjaminites (vv. 7–9), priests (vv. 10–13), Levites (vv. 14–16), and gatekeepers (vv. 17–27). Israel and Judah once more live in Jerusalem, the city of the temple, where the clergy functions in accord with the Lord’s ordinances. The Chronicler links the community of his day with the Israel described in chs. 1–9. 9.2 In their towns. Cf. Neh 11.1. 1 Chr 9, however, deals only with those living in Jerusalem. Temple servants are mentioned only here in Chronicles son of Asa, son of Elkanah, who lived in the villages of the Netophathites.

Gatekeepers

17 The gatekeepers were: Shallum, Akkub, Talmon, Ahiman; and their kindred Shallum was the chief, ¹⁸stationed previously in the king's gate on the east side. These were the gatekeepers of the camp of the Levites. ¹⁹Shallum son of Kore, son of Ebiasaph, son of Korah, and his kindred of his ancestral house, the Korahites, were in charge of the work of the service, guardians of the thresholds of the tent, as their ancestors had been in charge of the camp of the LORD, guardians of the entrance. ²⁰And Phinehas son of Eleazar was chief over them in former times; the LORD was with him. ²¹Zechariah son of Meshelemiah was gatekeeper at the entrance of the tent of meeting. ²²All these, who were chosen as gatekeepers at the thresholds, were two hundred twelve. They were enrolled by genealogies in their villages. David and the seer Samuel established them in their office of trust. ²³So they and their descendants were in charge of the gates of the house of the LORD, that is, the house of the tent, as guards. ²⁴The gatekeepers were on the four sides, east, west, north, and south; ²⁵and their kindred who were in their villages were obliged to come in every seven days, in turn, to be with them; ²⁶for the four chief gatekeepers, who were Levites, were in charge of the chambers and the treasures of the house of God. ²⁷And they would spend the night near the house of God; for on them lay the duty of watching, and they had charge of opening it every morning.

²⁸Some of them had charge of the utensils of service, for they were required to count them when they were brought in and taken out. ²⁹Others of them were ap-

but are frequent in Ezra and Nehemiah. 9.3 Ephraim and Manasseh, not mentioned in Neh 11.4 and probably symbolizing the whole Northern Kingdom. 9.5–6 Among the Judahites, Chronicles adds references to the descendants of Shelah (cf. Num 26.20 for an alternate vocalization of "Shilonites") and Zerah. 9.11 Chief officer of the house of God. V. 11 is in fact a list of high priests. 9.17–34 This stirring apology for the gatekeepers has no parallel in Neh 11. 9.19 The duties of the gatekeepers continue those of the Levites who had worked with the tabernacle. 9.20, 22 The prestige of Phinehas (Num 25.11–13) stands behind the gatekeepers at the time of Moses, and the prestige of David and . . . Samuel lends them authority during the United Monarchy. Since Samuel died before David became king, calling Samuel a seer may refer to his general influence on David and to Samuel's battles for the purity of the religious practice at Shiloh. 9.21 Zechariah, a gatekeeper at the time of David (26.2, 14). 9.26 The gatekeepers are pointed over the furniture, and over all the holy utensils, also over the choice flour, the wine, the oil, the incense, and the spices. ³⁰Others, of the sons of the priests, prepared the mixing of the spices, ³¹and Mattithiah, one of the Levites, the firstborn of Shallum the Korahite, was in charge of making the flat cakes. ³²Also some of their kindred of the Kohathites had charge of the rows of bread, to prepare them for each sabbath.

³³ Now these are the singers, the heads of ancestral houses of the Levites, living in the chambers of the temple free from other service, for they were on duty day and night. ³⁴These were heads of ancestral houses of the Levites, according to their generations; these leaders lived in Jerusalem.

The Family of King Saul

³⁵ In Gibeon lived the father of Gibeon, Jeiel, and the name of his wife was Maacah. ³⁶His firstborn son was Abdon, then Zur, Kish, Baal, Ner, Nadab, ³⁷Gedor, Ahio, Zechariah, and Mikloth; ³⁸and Mikloth became the father of Shimeam; and these also lived opposite their kindred in Jerusalem, with their kindred. ³⁹Ner became the father of Kish, Kish of Saul, Saul of Jonathan, Malchishua, Abinadab, and Esh-baal; ⁴⁰and the son of Jonathan was Merib-baal; and Merib-baal became the father of Micah. ⁴¹The sons of Micah: Pithon, Melech, Tahrea, and Ahaz; ⁴²and Ahaz became the father of Jarah, and Jarah of Alemeth, Azmaveth, and Zimri; and Zimri became the father of Moza. ⁴³Moza became the father of Binea; and Rephaiah was his son, Eleasah his son, Azel his son. ⁴⁴Azel had six sons, and these are their names: Azrikam, Bocheru, Ishmael, Sheariah, Obadiah, and Hanan; these were the sons of Azel.

Death of Saul and His Sons

10 Now the Philistines fought against Israel; and the men of Israel fled before the Philistines, and fell slain on Mount Gilboa. ²The Philistines overtook Saul and his sons; and the Philistines killed Jonathan and Abinadab and Malchishua, sons of Saul. ³The battle pressed hard on Saul; and the archers found him, and he was wounded by the archers. ⁴Then Saul said to his armor-bearer, "Draw your sword, and thrust me through with it, so that these uncircumcised may not come and make sport of me." But his armor-bearer was unwilling, for he was terrified. So Saul took his own sword and fell on it. ⁵When his armor-bearer saw that Saul was dead, he also fell on his sword and died. ⁶Thus Saul died; he and his three sons and all his house died together. ⁷When all the men of Israel who were in the valley saw that the army^v had fled and that Saul and his sons were dead, they abandoned their towns and fled; and the Philistines came and occupied them.

⁸ The next day when the Philistines came to strip the dead, they found Saul and his sons fallen on Mount Gilboa. ⁹They stripped him and took his head and his armor, and sent messengers throughout the land of the Philistines to carry the good news to their idols and to the people. ¹⁰They put his armor in the temple of their gods, and fastened his head in the temple of Dagon. ¹¹But when all Jabesh-gilead heard everything that the Philistines had done to Saul, ¹²all the identified as Levites. 9.33 The singers are considered important enough to be freed from other Levitical duties. 9.34 With v. 3 this sentence emphasizes that the list identifies those who had returned from exile and were dwelling in Jerusalem. V. 34 and vv. 35-44 were later copied to the end of ch. 8, where v. 34 (8.28) does not fit the context.

10.1-14 Cf. 1 Sam 31.1-13. Chronicles omits the story of Saul's kingship except for his death and his defeat by the Philistines. 10.1 Mount Gilboa is six miles west of Beth-shan. 10.2 Chronicles does not mention another son, Ish-bosheth, who succeeded to a portion of his father's kingdom (2 Sam 2.8-10). 10.4 Uncircumcised, a term of derision for Israel's non-Semitic neighbors (cf. 1 Sam 17.36; 18.25-27). 10.6 All his house (dynasty) indicates the severity of the defeat: the battle of Gilboa marks a decisive change in Israel's history. 10.9 The head and armor, trophies signaling victory, are carried around throughout Philistine territory, giving joy to both idols and people. 10.10 Dagon, a fertility deity. The temple of Dagon recalls the Israelite loss of the ark at the battle of Ebenezer (1 Sam 5.1-4). 10.12 Ja-

valiant warriors got up and took away the body of Saul and the bodies of his sons, and brought them to Jabesh. Then they buried their bones under the oak in Jabesh, and fasted seven days.

13 So Saul died for his unfaithfulness; he was unfaithful to the LORD in that he did not keep the command of the LORD; moreover, he had consulted a medium, seeking guidance, ¹⁴and did not seek guidance from the LORD. Therefore the LORD^w put him to death and turned the kingdom over to David son of Jesse.

David Anointed King of All Israel

11 Then all Israel gathered together to David at Hebron and said, "See, we are your bone and flesh. ²For some time now, even while Saul was king, it was you who commanded the army of Israel. The LORD your God said to you: It is you who shall be shepherd of my people Israel, you who shall be ruler over my people Israel." ³So all the elders of Israel came to the king at Hebron, and David made a covenant with them at Hebron before the LORD. And they anointed David king over Israel, according to the word of the LORD by Samuel.

Jerusalem Captured

4 David and all Israel marched to Jerusalem, that is Jebus, where the Jebusites were, the inhabitants of the land. ⁵The inhabitants of Jebus said to David, "You will not come in here." Nevertheless David took the stronghold of Zion, now the city of David. ⁶David had said, "Whoever attacks the Jebusites first shall be chief and commander." And Joab son of Zeruiah went up first, so he became chief. ⁷David resided in the stronghold; therefore it was called the city of David. ⁸He built the city all around, from the Millo in complete circuit; and Joab repaired the rest of the city. ⁹And David became greater and greater, for the LORD of hosts was with him.

David's Mighty Men and Their Exploits

10 Now these are the chiefs of David's warriors, who gave him strong support in his kingdom, together with all Israel, to make him king, according to the word of the LORD concerning Israel. ¹¹This is an account of David's mighty warriors: Jashobeam, son of Hachmoni,^x was chief of the Three;^y he wielded his spear against three hundred whom he killed at one time.

12 And next to him among the three warriors was Eleazar son of Dodo, the Ahohite. ¹³He was with David at Passammim when the Philistines were gather-bash, a city thirteen miles southeast of Beth-shan; it was rescued by Saul from Nahash the Ammonite early in his reign (1 Sam 11). Now its army provides the king and his sons with proper burial. 10.13–14 The king, wounded by archers, actually commits suicide (v. 4). Saul did not keep the Lord's command in general, and he sought (the verb is a pun on the name Saul) a medium in order to consult with the spirit world (cf. 1 Sam 28.8–25). Thus he also did not seek the Lord in the wider sense of the word. "Seeking the LORD" in Chronicles means showing loyalty or reverence toward God. In retribution for Saul's sins, the Lord turns the kingdom over to David, just as he instigated the division of the kingdom between Rehoboam and Jeroboam (2 Chr 10.15).

11.1–9 Cf. 2 Sam 5.1–10. Chronicles omits the events of 2 Sam 1–4, many of which might be interpreted as negative events that followed the death of Saul. 11.3 Hebron, a city south of Jerusalem. Chronicles does not mention the separate anointings by Judah (2 Sam 2.4) and by Israel (2 Sam 5.3). David's covenant with the people is echoed by the great feast in 1 Chr 12.38–40. 11.4 Jebus, an alternate name for Jerusalem, apparently derived from the name of its inhabitants, the Jebusites. In 2 Sam 5.6–7 David's personal army conquers the future capital; in Chronicles the campaign is waged by David and a united Israel. 11.6 Joab, David's nephew, becomes chief officer because of his daring. 11.8 In Chronicles, blessed kings undertake building projects. The Millo was a series of terraces built on the eastern side of the city. 11.9 The Lord is with David as surely as he had departed from Saul.

11.10–47 Cf. 2 Sam 23.8–39. The individual exploits told here are not as important as the unanimous support of these chiefs for David's kingship. The Chronicler puts the list at the beginning of David's reign; in Samuel it comes near the king's death. The first twelve names are repeated in 27.2–15. 11.10 David has the support of all the tribes (ch. 12) in addition to the heroes. David's kingship also results from the divine word of promise. 11.11 Three. Jashobeam, Eleazar, and Shammah (2 Sam 23.11–12) make up this ered there for battle. There was a plot of ground full of barley. Now the people had fled from the Philistines, ¹⁴but he and David took their stand in the middle of the plot, defended it, and killed the Philistines; and the LORD saved them by a great victory.

¹⁵ Three of the thirty chiefs went down to the rock to David at the cave of Adullam, while the army of Philistines was encamped in the valley of Rephaim. ¹⁶ David was then in the stronghold; and the garrison of the Philistines was then at Bethlehem. ¹⁷ David said longingly, "O that someone would give me water to drink from the well of Bethlehem that is by the gate!" ¹⁸ Then the Three broke through the camp of the Philistines, and drew water from the well of Bethlehem that was by the gate, and they brought it to David. But David would not drink of it; he poured it out to the LORD, ¹⁹ and said, "My God forbid that I should do this. Can I drink the blood of these men? For at the risk of their lives they brought it." Therefore he would not drink it. The three warriors did these things.

²⁰ Now Abishai,^z the brother of Joab, was chief of the Thirty.^a With his spear he fought against three hundred and killed them, and won a name beside the Three. ²¹ He was the most renowned^b of the Thirty,^a and became their commander; but he did not attain to the Three.

²² Benaiah son of Jehoiada was a valiant man^c of Kabzeel, a doer of great deeds; he struck down two sons of^d Ariel of Moab. He also went down and killed a lion in a pit on a day when snow had fallen. ²³ And he killed an Egyptian, a man of great stature, five cubits tall. The Egyptian had in his hand a spear like a weaver's beam; but Benaiah went against him with a staff, snatched the spear out of the Egyptian's hand, and killed him with his own spear. ²⁴ Such were the things Benaiah son of Jehoiada did, and he won a name beside the three warriors. ²⁵ He was renowned among the Thirty, but he did not attain to the Three. And David put him in charge of his bodyguard.

¹⁶ Some Benjaminites and Judahites came to the stronghold to David. ¹⁷David went out to meet them and said to them, "If you have come to me in friendship, to help me, then my heart will be knit to you; but if you have come to betray me to my adversaries, though my hands have done no wrong, then may the God of our ancestors see and give judgment." ¹⁸Then the spirit came upon Amasai, chief of the Thirty, and he said,

"We are yours, O David;
and with you, O son of Jesse!
Peace, peace to you,
and peace to the one who
helps you!
For your God is the one who
helps you."

Then David received them, and made them officers of his troops.

¹⁹ Some of the Manassites deserted to David when he came with the Philistines for the battle against Saul. (Yet he did not help them, for the rulers of the Philistines took counsel and sent him away, saying, "He will desert to his master Saul at the cost of our heads.") ²⁰As he went to Ziklag these Manassites deserted to him: Adnah, Jozabad, Jediahel, Michael, Jozabad, Elihu, and Zillethai, chiefs of the thousands in Manasseh. ²¹They helped David against the band of raiders, ⁱfor they were all warriors and commanders in the army. ²²Indeed from day to day people kept coming to David to help him, until there was a great army, like an army of God.

David's Army at Hebron

come from their tribal home on the other side of the Jordan River. 12.16-18 Benjamin and Judah are often linked in Chronicles. Clothed with the spirit, the soldier Amasai delivers a prophetic oracle supporting David. He wishes peace both to the king and to God. 12.19-22 Seven chiefs of Manasseh, a northern tribe, also join David at Ziklag. 12.19 Though David is allied with the Philistines, the enemies of Saul, he is dismissed by them before Saul's death in battle, thus clearing him of any guilt for that death (1 Sam 29). 12.22 God's help (v. 18) is matched by help offered by numerous military volunteers. Army of God can mean a numerous army or one that exerts the power of God's army in holy war.

12.23-40 The size of the armies that rally to David at Hebron from the southern tribes (Judah, Simeon and Benjamin) is relatively small, but the troops from the north (Ephraim, the half-tribe of Manasseh, Issachar, Zebulun, Naphtali, Dan, and Asher) are quite large, as are the volunteers from the Transjordan (Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh). The more distant tribes show their enthusiasm for David's kingship by their extremely high numbers. Judah has a mere 6,800 men; Zebulun 50,000. There are a total of 339,600 soldiers. Through large numbers the author stresses the overwhelming and unified support of all Israel for David. Ephraim and Manasseh are more enthusiastic than Judah; the remotest tribes eight hundred armed troops. ²⁵Of the Simeonites, mighty warriors, seven thousand one hundred. ²⁶Of the Levites four thousand six hundred. ²⁷Jehoiada, leader of the house of Aaron, and with him three thousand seven hundred. ²⁸Zadok, a young warrior, and twenty-two commanders from his own ancestral house. ²⁹Of the Benjaminites, the kindred of Saul, three thousand, of whom the majority had continued to keep their allegiance to the house of Saul. ³⁰Of the Ephraimites, twenty thousand eight hundred, mighty warriors, notables in their ancestral houses. ³¹Of the half-tribe of Manasseh, eighteen thousand, who were expressly named to come and make David king. ³²Of Issachar, those who had understanding of the times, to know what Israel ought to do, two hundred chiefs, and all their kindred under their command. ³³Of Zebulun, fifty thousand seasoned troops, equipped for battle with all the weapons of war, to help David/ with singleness of purpose. ³⁴Of Naphtali, a thousand commanders, with whom there were thirty-seven thousand armed with shield and spear. ³⁵Of the Danites, twenty-eight thousand six hundred equipped for battle. ³⁶Of Asher, forty thousand seasoned troops ready for battle. ³⁷Of the Reubenites and Gadites and the half-tribe of Manasseh from beyond the Jordan, one hundred twenty thousand armed with all the weapons of war.

³⁸ All these, warriors arrayed in battle order, came to Hebron with full intent to make David king over all Israel; likewise all the rest of Israel were of a single mind to make David king. ³⁹They were there with David for three days, eating and drinking, for their kindred had provided for them. ⁴⁰And also their neighbors, from as far away as Issachar and Zebulun and Naphtali, came bringing food on donkeys, camels, mules, and oxen—abundant provisions of meal, cakes of figs, clusters of raisins, wine, oil, oxen, and sheep, for there was joy in Israel.

The Ark Brought from Kiriath-jearim

13 David consulted with the commanders of the thousands and of the hundreds, with every leader. ²David said to the whole assembly of Israel, "If it seems good to you, and if it is the will of the LORD our God, let us send abroad to our kindred who remain in all the land of Israel, including the priests and Levites in the cities that have pasture lands, that they may come together to us. ³Then let us bring again the ark of our God to us; for we did not turn to it in the days of Saul." ⁴The whole assembly agreed to do so, for the thing pleased all the people.

⁵ So David assembled all Israel from the Shihor of Egypt to Lebo-hamath, to bring the ark of God from Kiriath-jearim. ⁶And David and all Israel went up to Balah, that is, to Kiriath-jearim, which belongs to Judah, to bring up from there the ark of God, the LORD, who is enthroned on the cherubim, which is called by his^k name. ⁷They carried the ark of God on a new cart, from the house of Abinadab, are the most enthusiastic of all. 12.28 Zadok, possibly to be identified with the high priest who served David in Jerusalem. 12.29 Saul's tribe has supported the short-lived kingdom of Ish-bosheth (2 Sam 2–4). 12.38 Even those who do not participate in the army are of a single mind (28.9; 2 Chr 19.9; 25.2). 12.40 Three tribes from the far north bring abundant foodstuffs, as if to celebrate the king's coronation with a great banquet. Twin themes emerge: unanimity and joy.

13.1–14 Cf. 2 Sam 6.1–11. All Israel, at David's invitation, brings the ark of the covenant from its temporary home in Kiriath-jearim to Jerusalem (cf. 1 Sam 4–6, without parallel in Chronicles, which tells of the Philistine capture and return of the ark). All Israel also participates in the dedication of Solomon's temple (2 Chr 7.8) and in Hezekiah's Passover (2 Chr 30.5). The Lord's sharp punishment of Uzzah for touching the ark irritates and terrifies David, causing him not to take the ark directly to Jerusalem. Another explanation for this detour is given in 15.2, 13. 13.1–5 These verses are added in Chronicles to emphasize the people's total dedication to the ark, including the participation in the procession by priests and Levites. In 2 Sam 6.1 the ark is brought up by thirty thousand men from David's army. 13.5 Shihor, one of the most eastern branches of the Nile. Lebo-hamath (Hebrew, "Entrance of Hamath"), the traditional northern border of Israel. Kiriath-jearim, a city eight miles northwest of Jerusalem, where the ark was left by the Philistines. 13.6–14 There are numerous minor variations from the text of Samuel. 13.6 The epithet enthroned on the cherubim first ap-and Uzzah and Ahio^l were driving the cart. ⁸David and all Israel were dancing before God with all their might, with song and lyres and harps and tambourines and cymbals and trumpets.

⁹ When they came to the threshing floor of Chidon, Uzzah put out his hand to hold the ark, for the oxen shook it. ¹⁰The anger of the LORD was kindled against Uzzah; he struck him down because he put out his hand to the ark; and he died there before God. ¹¹David was angry because the LORD had burst out against Uzzah; so that place is called Perez-uzzah^m to this day. ¹²David was afraid of God that day; he said, "How can I bring the ark of God into my care?" ¹³So David did not take the ark into his care into the city of David; he took it instead to the house of Obed-edom the Gittite. ¹⁴The ark of God remained with the household of Obed-edom in his house three months, and the LORD blessed the household of Obed-edom and all that he had.

David Established at Jerusalem

14 King Hiram of Tyre sent messengers to David, along with cedar logs, and masons and carpenters to build a house for him. ²David then perceived that the LORD had established him as king over Israel, and that his kingdom was highly exalted for the sake of his people Israel.

³ David took more wives in Jerusalem, and David became the father of more sons and daughters. ⁴These are the names of the children whom he had in Jerusalem: Shammua, Shobab, and Nathan; Solomon, ⁵Ibhar, Elishua, and Elpelet; ⁶Nogah, Nepheg, and Japhia; ⁷Elishama, Beeliada, and Eliphelet.

Defeat of the Philistines

⁸ When the Philistines heard that David had been anointed king over all Israel, all the Philistines went up in search of David; and David heard of it and went out against them. ⁹Now the Philistines had come and made a raid in the valley of Rephaim. ¹⁰David inquired of God, "Shall I go up against the Philistines? Will you give them into my hand?" The LORD said to him, "Go up, and I will give them into your hand." ¹¹So he went up to Baal-perazim, and David defeated them there. David said, "God has burst out" against my enemies by my hand, like a bursting flood." Therefore that place is called Baal-perazim.^o ¹²They abandoned their gods there, and at David's command they were burned.

14.1–17 Cf. 2 Sam 5.11–12. Chronicles places between the first and second attempts to bring the ark to Jerusalem new materials and passages equivalent to 2 Sam 5.11–25. Hiram's provision of materials for David's building projects (14.1–2), the list of David's children born in Jerusalem (14.3–7), and the victories over the Philistines (14.8–17) appear as rewards for the loyal, though flawed and unsuccessful, attempt by David and all Israel to bring the ark to Jerusalem. 14.1–2 Cf. 2 Sam 5.11–12. 14.1 House. While Saul and all his sons die (10.6), David, the blessed king, has many children. An almost identical list of children is found in 3.1–9. 14.3 More wives and more sons and daughters presuppose 2 Sam 3.2–5, a list of David's sons born at Hebron to six different wives, though this list is not mentioned in Chronicles. 14.4 Solomon, born in Jerusalem, plays a role equal to David's in Chronicles. 14.7 Beeliada, appears as Eliada in 3.8; 2 Sam 5.16. 14.8–17 Cf. 2 Sam 5.17–25. David's victories over the Philistines reflect God's approval for his attempt to bring the ark to Jerusalem. David inquires of God, follows God's directions, and wins a decisive victory. Note the clear contrast to his predecessor, Saul. 14.11 Burst out, a translation of a term from the same Hebrew root that appears in Baal-perazim, providing an explanation for the naming of that city. Cf. note on 13.11. 14.12 In 2 Sam 5.21 David and his men take the idols as booty. In Chronicles they burn them according to the law (Deut 7.5; 12.3). Judging by one of the ancient Greek recensions of Samuel, the Lucianic recension, this correction toward the Torah may have already been made in the text of raid in the valley. ¹⁴When David again inquired of God, God said to him, "You shall not go up after them; go around and come on them opposite the balsam trees. ¹⁵When you hear the sound of marching in the tops of the balsam trees, then go out to battle; for God has gone out before you to strike down the army of the Philistines." ¹⁶David did as God had commanded him, and they struck down the Philistine army from Gibeon to Gezer. ¹⁷The fame of David went out into all lands, and the LORD brought the fear of him on all nations.

The Ark Brought to Jerusalem

15 David^p built houses for himself in the city of David, and he prepared a place for the ark of God and pitched a tent for it. ²Then David commanded that no one but the Levites were to carry the ark of God, for the LORD had chosen them to carry the ark of the LORD and to minister to him forever. ³David assembled all Israel in Jerusalem to bring up the ark of the LORD to its place, which he had prepared for it. ⁴Then David gathered together the descendants of Aaron and the Levites: ⁵of the sons of Kohath, Uriel the chief, with one hundred twenty of his kindred; ⁶of the sons of Merari, Asaiah the chief, with two hundred twenty of his kindred; ⁷of the sons of Gershon, Joel the chief, with one hundred thirty of his kindred; ⁸of the sons of Elizaphan, Shemaiah the chief, with two hundred of his kindred; ⁹of the sons of Hebron, Eliel the chief, with eighty of his kindred; ¹⁰of the sons of Uzziel, Amminadab the chief, with one hundred twelve of his kindred.

¹¹David summoned the priests Zadok and Abiathar, and the Levites Uriel, Asaiah, Joel, Shemaiah, Eliel, and Amminadab. ¹²He said to them, "You are the heads of families of the Levites; sanctify yourselves, you and your kindred, so that you may bring up the ark of the LORD, the God of Israel, to the place that I have prepared for it. ¹³Because you did not carry it the first time,^q the LORD our God burst out against us, because we did not give it proper care." ¹⁴So the priests and the Levites sanctified themselves to bring up the ark of the LORD, the God of Israel. ¹⁵And the Levites carried the ark of God on their shoulders with the poles, as Moses had commanded according to the word of the LORD.

Samuel used by Chronicles. 14.16 The Philistines are defeated throughout Judah, from Gibeon, five and a half miles northwest of Jerusalem, to Gezer, about sixteen miles farther west (cf. Isa 28.21). 14.17 An addition in Chronicles, which records David's international fame and God's imposition of the fear of David on the nations. Note the contrast with 10.13–14, where the author summarizes his negative views on Saul.

15.1–24 Chronicles adds a series of preparations for the movement of the ark. 15.1 The tent David pitched for the ark in Jerusalem is different from the tabernacle, which, according to Chronicles, is still at Gibeon (16.39). 15.2 Chronicles favors the Levites; their duty to carry the ark is based on Deut 10.8; 18.5. 15.3 The participation by all Israel is also affirmed by v. 25. 15.4–10 This list of six Levite chiefs from six different families provides details supplementing v. 11. The numbers associated with the leaders are small and suggest the relative antiquity of this list. The families of Kohath, Merari, and Gershon are standard in lists of Levites. The fourth family is that of Elizaphan, who is identified as a grandson of Kohath through Uzziel (see Ex 6.18, 22). The families of Hebron and Uzziel are considered elsewhere as descendants of Kohath (1 Chr 6.18). 15.11 Zadok and Abiathar (cf. 2 Sam 15.24–29) serve as chief priests under David. Abiathar, a descendant of Eli, is exiled by Solomon to Anathoth, the hometown of Jeremiah, when Bathsheba asked the king to give Abishag, a concubine of David, to Solomon's rival Adonijah (1 Kings 2.26–27). 1 Kings notes that Abiathar had carried the ark in the time of David. 15.12 To sanctify oneself probably involved at least bathing and abstention from sexual intercourse. 15.13a The Hebrew Bible, though the text is difficult, suggests that the Levites' failure to carry the ark (or their failure to carry it with poles, v. 15; cf. Ex 25.13–14; 37.4–5) had been the cause of the earlier aborted procession to Jerusalem. 15.16–24 The installation of Levitical musicians. 15.16 Chronicles supports many of the cultic activities of its own day by re-son of Kushaiah; ¹⁸and with them their kindred of the second order, Zechariah, Jaaziel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Benaiah, Maaseiah, Mattithiah, Eliphelehu, and Mikneiah, and the gatekeepers Obed-edom and Jeiel. ¹⁹The singers Heman, Asaph, and Ethan were to sound bronze cymbals; ²⁰Zechariah, Aziel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Maaseiah, and Benaiah were to play harps according to Alamoth; ²¹but Mattithiah, Eliphelehu, Mikneiah, Obed-edom, Jeiel, and Azariah were to lead with lyres according to the Sheminith. ²²Chenaniah, leader of the Levites in music, was to direct the music, for he understood it. ²³Berechiah and Elkanah were to be gatekeepers for the ark. ²⁴Shebaniah, Joshaphat, Nethanel, Amasai, Zechariah, Benaiah, and Eliezer, the priests, were to blow the trumpets before the ark of God. Obed-edom and Jehiah also were to be gatekeepers for the ark.

²⁵ So David and the elders of Israel, and the commanders of the thousands, went to bring up the ark of the covenant of the LORD from the house of Obed-edom with rejoicing. ²⁶And because God helped the Levites who were carrying the ark of the covenant of the LORD, they sacrificed seven bulls and seven rams. ²⁷David was clothed with a robe of fine linen, as also were all the Levites who were carrying the ark, and the singers, and Chenaniah the leader of the music of the singers; and David wore a linen ephod. ²⁸So all Israel brought up the ark of the covenant of the LORD with shouting, to the sound of the horn, trumpets, and cymbals, and made loud music on harps and lyres.

²⁹ As the ark of the covenant of the LORD came to the city of David, Michal daughter of Saul looked out of the window, and saw King David leaping and dancing; and she despised him in her heart.

The Ark Placed in the Tent

16 They brought in the ark of God, and set it inside the tent that David had pitched for it; and they offered burnt offerings and offerings of well-being before God. ²When David had finished offering the burnt offerings and the offerings of well-being, he blessed the people in the name of the LORD; ³and he distributed to every person in Israel—man and woman alike—to each a loaf of bread, a portion of meat,^r and a cake of raisins.

⁴ He appointed certain of the Levites as ministers before the ark of the LORD, to invoke, to thank, and to praise the LORD, the God of Israel. ⁵Asaph was the chief, and second to him Zechariah, Jeiel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Mattithiah, Eliab, Benaiah, Obed-edom, and Jeiel, with harps and lyres; Asaph was to sound the cymbals, ⁶and the priests Benaiah and Jahaziel were to blow trumpets regularly, before the ark of the covenant of God.

porting that they were originally commissioned by King David. 15.18 Obed-edom, a Levitical singer, later demoted with his family to the rank of gatekeeper (v. 24; cf. 26.1–11). 15.19–21 The singers are divided into groups according to their playing of bronze cymbals, harps, and lyres, respectively.

15.25–16.3 Cf. 2 Sam 6.12–19. All Israel now successfully brings the ark to Jerusalem and puts it in David's tent. Chronicles omits an equivalent for 2 Sam 6.12a (the Lord's blessing of the house of Obed-edom) and 2 Sam 6.20b–23 (an argument between David and his wife Michal about his dancing before the ark). Perhaps the latter verses seemed too negative for this happy occasion, or their criticism of David's wild dancing seemed inappropriate. 15.26 God's approval for the procession is shown by his support for the Levites. 15.27 Since the linen ephod was worn only by priests in the Chronicler's era, the author finds inappropriate the reference in 2 Sam 6.14 that states that David himself had worn such a garment (perhaps a loincloth). He writes instead that David and all the Levites were clothed with a robe of fine linen. The final words of the verse (David wore a linen ephod) were a later addition to Chronicles from the text of Samuel. 15.29 As a descendant of Saul's house, Michal despises David's efforts on behalf of the ark, just as her father neglected the ark with disastrous consequences for himself and his house (10.13–14).

16.4–7 Levites and priests are given specific duties in connection with the ark. The Levites are to invoke, thank, and pray until the temple is built, at which time they will also participate in the sacrificial rituals. Prior to that time, sacrifices are offered only at Gibeon (vv. 39–40). The names in this list are related to those in 15.17–18, 19–24. Their inclusion here gives a Davidic pedigree to the musical guilds of the Chronicler's day.

David's Psalm of Thanksgiving

7 Then on that day David first appointed the singing of praises to the LORD by Asaph and his kindred.

on his name,
make known his deeds among
the peoples.
9 Sing to him, sing praises to him,

the LORD rejoice.

seek his presence continually.

his sworn promise to Isaac,

to Israel as an everlasting
covenant,

16.8–36 Cf. Pss 105; 95; 106. Chronicles includes three psalms illustrating how the Levites led Israel's praises. This passage also shows one way the Psalter was used in the postexilic temple. 16.8–22 Cf. Ps 105.1–15. The Levites praise God for his saving deeds for the people. The patriarchs were protected by God because of his covenant promise that they would inherit the land (vv. 16–18). 16.11 The community is to seek the LORD in a way Saul did not. 16.13 Israel, a replacement for "Abraham" in Ps 105.6. The change shows how the community in the time of the writer was identifying itself with the patriarchs and claiming for itself the promise that they would be protected in the future. 16.15 The imperative remember is directed at the author's community; in Ps 105.8 God is construed as the subject of the verb in the phrase "He is mindful." 16.19 They, as in Ps 105.12; the Hebrew of Chronicles actually reads "When you were few in number." Again, the identification of the audience with the patriarchs is exceedingly close. 16.22 Anointed ones and prophets refer in this context to kings and prophets. Or both may refer to kings, with David and his heirs being assigned a prophetic role. 16.23–33 Cf. Ps 96.1–13. The Levites urge people to tell God's wonders to the nations and to bow before the Lord, who is coming to judge. Chronicles omits Ps 96.11b, 13b, both of which refer to God's judging of the people, but that idea is present in 16.33. 16.27, 29 His place (v. 27) replaces "his sanctuary" in Ps 96.6, just as before him (v. 29) replaces "into his courts" in Ps 96.8. Without these changes the poem would refer to a temple that had not yet

Regular Worship Maintained

37 David left Asaph and his kinsfolk there before the ark of the covenant of the LORD to minister regularly before the ark as each day required, ³⁸and also Obed-edom and his^u sixty-eight kinsfolk; while Obed-edom son of Jeduthun and Hosah were to be gatekeepers. ³⁹And he left the priest Zadok and his kindred the priests before the tabernacle of the LORD in the high place that was at Gibeon, ⁴⁰to offer burnt offerings to the LORD on the altar of burnt offering regularly, morning and evening, according to all that is written in the law of the LORD that he commanded Israel. ⁴¹With them were Heman and Jeduthun, and the rest of those chosen and expressly named to render thanks to the LORD, for his steadfast love endures forever. ⁴²Heman and Jeduthun had with them trumpets and cymbals for the music, and instruments for sacred song. The sons of Jeduthun were appointed to the gate.

⁴³ Then all the people departed to their homes, and David went home to bless his household.

been built. 16.34–36 Cf. Ps 106. Most of Ps 106, which recites a long history of Israel's sinful nature and God's decision to hand Israel over to the enemy, is omitted. 16.34 This verse serves as a refrain in Chronicles (cf. v. 41 and note on 2 Chr 5.13). 16.35 Of our salvation and rescue us, added by Chronicles to the text of Ps 106.

16.37–42 Appointment of cultic personnel in Jerusalem and Gibeon. 16.39 Cf. 21.29; 2 Chr 1.3–6. 16.39–40 The morning and evening sacrifices, required by the Torah (Ex 29.38–42; Num 28.3–8), are practiced in the time of David at Gibeon. The presence of the tabernacle and altar in Gibeon makes Solomon's visit there (2 Chr 1.3) appropriate. 16.43 Cf. 2 Sam 6.19b–20a. Everyone's return home brings the ark story to an end. Chronicles omits David's altercation with his wife Michal in 2 Sam 6.20b–23.

17.1–15 Cf. 2 Sam 7.1–17. In response to David's desire to build a temple (house) for the Lord, the Lord promises to give David an everlasting dynasty (house). 17.1 The term house in Hebrew means both temple and dynasty. Chronicles omits "the LORD had given him rest from all his enemies around him" (2 Sam 7.1). Further wars of David appear in chs. 18–20 and only their successful conclusion creates a time for temple building. David is disqualified as temple builder because of his warfare (22.8). Note also the substitution of subdue in 1 Chr 17.10 for "give you rest"

under a tent.”² Nathan said to David, “Do all that you have in mind, for God is with you.”

³ But that same night the word of the LORD came to Nathan, saying: ⁴Go and tell my servant David: Thus says the LORD: You shall not build me a house to live in. ⁵For I have not lived in a house since the day I brought out Israel to this very day, but I have lived in a tent and a tabernacle.^v ⁶Wherever I have moved about among all Israel, did I ever speak a word with any of the judges of Israel, whom I commanded to shepherd my people, saying, Why have you not built me a house of cedar? ⁷Now therefore thus you shall say to my servant David: Thus says the LORD of hosts: I took you from the pasture, from following the sheep, to be ruler over my people Israel; ⁸and I have been with you wherever you went, and have cut off all your enemies before you; and I will make for you a name, like the name of the great ones of the earth. ⁹I will appoint a place for my people Israel, and will plant them, so that they may live in their own place, and be disturbed no more; and evildoers shall wear them down no more, as they did formerly, ¹⁰from the time that I appointed judges over my people Israel; and I will subdue all your enemies.

Moreover I declare to you that the LORD will build you a house. ¹¹When your days are fulfilled to go to be with your ancestors, I will raise up your offspring after you, one of your own sons, and I will establish his kingdom. ¹²He shall build a house for me, and I will establish his throne forever. ¹³I will be a father to him, and he shall be a son to me. I will not take my steadfast love from him, as I took it from him who was before you, ¹⁴but I will confirm him in my house and in my kingdom forever, and his throne shall be established forever. ¹⁵In accordance with all these words and all this vision, Nathan spoke to David.

¹⁶ Then King David went in and sat before the LORD, and said, “Who am I, O LORD God, and what is my house, that you have brought me thus far? ¹⁷And even this was a small thing in your sight, O God; you have also spoken of your servant's house for a great while to come. You regard me as someone of high rank,” O LORD God! ¹⁸And what more can David say to you for honoring your servant? You know your servant. ¹⁹For your servant's sake, O LORD, and according to your own heart, you have done all these great deeds, making known all these great things. ²⁰There is no one like you, O LORD, and there is no God besides you, according to all that we have heard with our ears. ²¹Who is like your people Israel, one nation on the earth whom God went to redeem to be his people, making for yourself a name for great and terrible in 2 Sam 7.11. 17.4 Not, a change in Chronicles, although the question posed in 2 Sam 7.5 (“Are you the one to build me a house to live in?”) has much the same effect. Not already appears in the Septuagint of Samuel. 17.6 Judges. The Hebrew of 2 Sam 7.7 has “tribes” although the NRSV there reads “tribal leaders,” following the Septuagint. 17.9 Wear them down. 2 Sam 7.10 reads “afflict them.” 17.10 Subdue. See note on 17.1. I declare to you that the LORD will build you a house. 2 Sam 7.11 reads “the LORD declares to you that the LORD will make you a house.” In this case house in Chronicles means temple; in Samuel it refers to the dynasty. 17.11 One of your own sons. 2 Sam 7.12 reads “who shall come forth from your body.” 17.13a Chronicles leaves out at this point materials from 2 Sam 7.14: “When he commits iniquity, I will punish him with a rod such as mortals use, with blows inflicted by human beings.” This conforms to the Chronicler's omission elsewhere of negative reports about David and Solomon. 17.14 I will confirm him in my house and in my kingdom forever, and his throne . . . forever. 2 Sam 7.16 reads “Your house and your kingdom shall be made sure forever before me; your throne . . . forever.” The focus in Chronicles is on Solomon, not David. In this case again, house in Chronicles means temple; in Samuel it means dynasty. The kingdom in Chronicles refers to God's kingdom, not David's.

17.16–27 Cf. 2 Sam 7.18–29. In David's prayer in response to Nathan's oracle, God's power, shown in the exodus, is hailed as the authority behind David's dynasty. 17.16 House in the prayer always refers to the dynasty. Cf. vv. 17, 23, 24, 25, 27. 17.21–23 The exodus from Egypt guarantees the promises made to David. In the accounts of Solomon, the promise to David becomes the basis for the entire relationship between God and Israel.

For you, O LORD, have blessed and are blessed forever."

David's Kingdom Established and Extended

18 Some time afterward, David attacked the Philistines and subdued them; he took Gath and its villages from the Philistines.

² He defeated Moab, and the Moabites became subject to David and brought tribute.

³ David also struck down King Hadadezer of Zobah, toward Hamath,^x as he went to set up a monument at the river Euphrates. ⁴David took from him one thousand chariots, seven thousand cavalry, and twenty thousand foot soldiers. David hamstrung all the chariot horses, but left one hundred of them. ⁵When the Arameans of Damascus came to help King Hadadezer of Zobah, David killed twenty-two thousand Arameans. ⁶Then David put garrisons^z in Aram of Damascus; and the Arameans became subject to David, and brought tribute. The LORD gave victory to David wherever he went. ⁷David took the gold shields that were carried by the servants of Hadadezer, and brought them to Jerusalem. ⁸From Tibhath and from Cun, cities of Hadadezer, David took a vast quantity of bronze; with it Solomon made the bronze sea and the pillars and the vessels of bronze.

⁹ When King Tou of Hamath heard that David had defeated the whole army of King Hadadezer of Zobah, ¹⁰he sent his son Hadoram to King David, to greet him and to congratulate him, because he had fought against Hadadezer and defeated him. Now Hadadezer had often been at war with Tou. He sent all sorts of articles of gold, of silver, and of bronze; ¹¹these also King David dedicated to the LORD, together with the silver and gold that he had carried off from all the nations, from Edom, Moab, the Ammonites, the Philistines, and Amalek.

Defeat of the Ammonites and Arameans

19 Some time afterward, King Nahash of the Ammonites died, and his son succeeded him. ²David said, "I will deal loyally with Hanun son of Nahash, for his father dealt loyally with me." So David sent messengers to console him concerning his father. When David's servants came to Hanun in the land of the Ammonites, to console him, ³the officials of the Ammonites said to Hanun, "Do you think, because David has sent consolers to you, that he is honoring your father? Have not his servants come to you to search and to overthrow and to spy out the land?" ⁴So Hanun seized David's servants, shaved them, cut off their garments in the middle at their hips, and sent them away; ⁵and they departed. When David was told about the men, he sent messengers to them, for they felt greatly humiliated. The king said, "Remain at Jericho until your beards have grown, and then return."

⁶ When the Ammonites saw that they had made themselves odious to David, Hanun and the Ammonites sent a thousand talents of silver to hire chariots and cavalry from Mesopotamia, from Aram-maacah and from Zobah. ⁷They hired thirty-two thousand chariots and the king of Maacah with his army, who came and camped before Medeba. And the Ammonites were mustered from their cities and came to battle. ⁸When David heard of it, he sent Joab and all the army of the warriors. ⁹The Ammonites came out and drew up in battle array at the entrance of the city, and the kings who had come were by themselves in the open country.

¹⁰ When Joab saw that the line of battle was set against him both in front and in the rear, he chose some of the picked men of Israel and arrayed them against the Arameans; ¹¹the rest of his troops he put in the charge of his brother Abishai, and they were arrayed against the Ammonites. ¹²He said, "If the Arameans are too strong for me, then you shall help me; but if the Ammonites are too strong for you, then I will help you. ¹³Be strong, and let us be courageous for our people and for the cities of our God; and may the LORD do what seems good to him." ¹⁴So Joab and the troops who were with him advanced toward the Arameans for battle; and they fled before him. ¹⁵When the Ammonites saw that the Arameans fled, they likewise fled before Abishai, Joab's brother, and entered the city. Then Joab came to Jerusalem.

command of the army to a nephew. 18.16 Zadok . . . priests. The text of Chronicles has been damaged. David has two high priests, Zadok and Abiathar. 18.17 Behaiah is a local commander who supported Solomon in his battle with Adonijah for the throne. He also leads foreign mercenary groups such as the Cherethites and the Pelethites.

19.1–20.3 Cf. 2 Sam 10.1–19; 11.1; 12.26, 30, 31. David's additional victories demonstrate God's blessing of the king, but they also show why he is barred from building the temple. The Chronicler omits David's affair with Bathsheba, which took place in the course of his Ammonite wars, as well as his murder of her husband, Uriah, and its aftermath. The Chronicler also does not include 2 Sam 9, which indicates that some members of Saul's family survived the battle of Gilboa. Similarly, 2 Sam 13.1–21.17 is omitted both because it refers to the "trouble . . . from within your own house" (2 Sam 12.10–11) that befell David because of his transgressions and because it indicates that all Israel, including the king's own sons, did not support him. 19.1 Nahash, an opponent of Saul (1 Sam 11). The Ammonites lived north and east of Moab; their name is echoed in the modern city of Amman. 19.2–5 A group sent by David to express official grief is shamefully treated by the Ammonites. 19.6–9 Hanun hires mercenaries to fight David. 19.7 The thirty-two thousand chariots are an escalation of the thirty-three thousand infantry hired according to 2 Sam 10.6. Cf. also David's destruction of seven thousand charioteers (v. 18) with the parallel account in 2 Sam 10.18 and its seven hundred chariot teams. 19.10–15 When Joab takes on the Arameans and his brother Abishai opposes the Ammonites, the two brothers pledge themselves to mutual aid. Both enemy armies flee. 19.16–19 The defeated Arameans summon more of their kin living beyond the Euphrates. David leads all Israel against them, killing some forty-seven thousand Arameans. As a result the Arameans sue David they had been defeated by Israel, they sent messengers and brought out the Arameans who were beyond the Euphrates, with Shophach the commander of the army of Hadadezer at their head. ¹⁷When David was informed, he gathered all Israel together, crossed the Jordan, came to them, and drew up his forces against them. When David set the battle in array against the Arameans, they fought with him. ¹⁸The Arameans fled before Israel; and David killed seven thousand Aramean charioteers and forty thousand foot soldiers, and also killed Shophach the commander of their army. ¹⁹When the servants of Hadadezer saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they made peace with David, and became subject to him. So the Arameans were not willing to help the Ammonites any more.

Siege and Capture of Rabbah

20 In the spring of the year, the time when kings go out to battle, Joab led out the army, ravaged the country of the Ammonites, and came and besieged Rabbah. But David remained at Jerusalem. Joab attacked Rabbah, and overthrew it. ²David took the crown of Milcom^a from his head; he found that it weighed a talent of gold, and in it was a precious stone; and it was placed on David's head. He also brought out the booty of the city, a very great amount. ³He brought out the people who were in it, and set them to work^b with saws and iron picks and axes.^c Thus David did to all the cities of the Ammonites. Then David and all the people returned to Jerusalem.

Exploits Against the Philistines

⁴ After this, war broke out with the Philistines at Gezer; then Sibbecai the Hushathite killed Sippai, who was one of the descendants of the giants; and the Philistines were subdued. ⁵Again there was war with the Philistines; and Elhanan son of Jair killed Lahmi the brother of Goliath the Gittite, the shaft of whose spear was like a weaver's beam. ⁶Again there was war at Gath, where there was a man of great size, who had six fingers on each hand, and six toes on each foot, twenty-four in number; he also was descended from the giants. ⁷When he taunted Israel, Jonathan son of Shimea, David's brother, killed him. ⁸These were descended from the giants in Gath; they fell by the hand of David and his servants.

The Census and Plague

21 Satan stood up against Israel, and incited David to count the people of Israel. ²So David said to Joab and the commanders of the army, "Go, number Israel, from Beer-sheba to Dan, and bring me a report, so that I may know their number." ³But Joab said, "May the LORD increase the number of his people a hundredfold! Are they not, my lord the king, all of them my lord's servants? Why then should my lord require this? Why should he bring guilt on Israel?" ⁴But the king's word prevailed against Joab. So Joab departed and went throughout all Israel, for peace and no longer assist the Ammonites. 20.1 Jerusalem. At this point 2 Sam 11.2–12.25 tells the story of David, Bathsheba, Uriah, and the prophetic condemnation by Nathan before reporting the conclusion of the battle with the Ammonites. Since Chronicles idealizes David's and Solomon's work for the temple and its ritual life, it would not have served its purposes to rehearse the sins of the United Monarchy. We may be sure that the Chronicler and his readers were well aware of these negative incidents. 20.2 Milcom, the national god of the Ammonites. A talent of gold, about 75 pounds.

20.4–8 Cf. 2 Sam 21.18–22. The wars end, as they had begun (18.1), with the Philistines. 20.4 The hero Sibbecai hails from a town near Bethlehem. Subdued. Cf. 17.10; 2 Chr 13.18;

28.19. 20.5 Elhanan's killing of Goliath (2 Sam 21.19) is later ascribed to David. The victim in Chronicles, Lahmi the brother of Goliath, arose through miswriting of the letters of Elhanan's hometown, Bethlehem. 20.8 Giants, or Rapha, a deity.

21.1–17 Cf. 2 Sam 24.1–17. Chronicles omits the Song of David (2 Sam 22; Ps 18) and the Last Words of David (2 Sam 23.1–7). The list of mighty men in 2 Sam 23.8–39 is included in 1 Chr 11.11–41. 21.1 Satan. Cf. Job 1–2; Zech 3.1–10, where, however, the figure is called "the satan." In 2 Sam 24.1 the Lord incites David. 21.2 Beer-sheba to Dan. Chronicles describes the land from south to north. 21.3 Joab's final accusing question is not found in 2 Samuel. David's census shows reliance on numerical might rather and came back to Jerusalem. ⁵Joab gave the total count of the people to David. In all Israel there were one million one hundred thousand men who drew the sword, and in Judah four hundred seventy thousand who drew the sword. ⁶But he did not include Levi and Benjamin in the numbering, for the king's command was abhorrent to Joab.

⁷ But God was displeased with this thing, and he struck Israel. ⁸David said to God, "I have sinned greatly in that I have done this thing. But now, I pray you, take away the guilt of your servant; for I have done very foolishly." ⁹The LORD spoke to Gad, David's seer, saying, ¹⁰"Go and say to David, 'Thus says the LORD: Three things I offer you; choose one of them, so that I may do it to you.'" ¹¹So Gad came to David and said to him, "Thus says the LORD, 'Take your choice: ¹²either three years of famine; or three months of devastation by your foes, while the sword of your enemies overtakes you; or three days of the sword of the LORD, pestilence on the land, and the angel of the LORD destroying throughout all the territory of Israel.' Now decide what answer I shall return to the one who sent me." ¹³Then David said to Gad, "I am in great distress; let me fall into the hand of the LORD, for his mercy is very great; but let me not fall into human hands."

¹⁴ So the LORD sent a pestilence on Israel; and seventy thousand persons fell in Israel. ¹⁵And God sent an angel to Jerusalem to destroy it; but when he was about to destroy it, the LORD took note and relented concerning the calamity; he said to the destroying angel, "Enough! Stay your hand." The angel of the LORD was then standing by the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite. ¹⁶David looked up and saw the angel of the LORD standing between earth and heaven, and in his hand a drawn sword stretched out over Jerusalem. Then David and the elders, clothed in sackcloth, fell on their faces. ¹⁷And David said to God, "Was it not I who gave the command to count the people? It is I who have sinned and done very wickedly. But these sheep, what have they done? Let your hand, I pray, O LORD my God, be against me and against my father's house; but do not let your people be plagued!"

David's Altar and Sacrifice

¹⁸ Then the angel of the LORD commanded Gad to tell David that he should go up and erect an altar to the LORD on the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite. ¹⁹So David went up following Gad's instructions, which he had spoken in the name of the LORD. ²⁰Ornan turned and saw the angel; and while his four sons who were with him hid themselves, Ornan continued to thresh wheat. ²¹As David came to Ornan, Ornan looked and saw David; he went out from the threshing floor, and did obeisance to David with his face to the ground. ²²David said to Ornan, "Give me the site of the threshing floor that I may build on it an altar to the LORD—give it to me at its full price—so that the plague may be averted from the people." ²³Then Ornan said to David, "Take it; and let my lord the king do what seems good to him; see, I present the oxen for burnt offerings, and the threshing sledges for the wood, and the wheat for a grain offering. I give it all." ²⁴But King David said to Ornan, "No; I will buy them for the full price. I will not take for the LORD what is yours, nor offer burnt than on the Lord's help. 21.5 2 Sam 24.9 has Israel, "eight hundred thousand," Judah, "five hundred thousand." The figure of four hundred seventy thousand for Judah in Chronicles may result from the exclusion of Benjamin (v. 6). It is probable that the numbers in Chronicles did not originally include Judah. 21.6 Levi's exclusion is based on Num 1.49; 2.33. Benjamin's exclusion may relate to the presence of the tabernacle in Gibeon. 21.9 Spoke. The Lord's address is more direct than in 2 Sam 24.11. Gad, a court prophet. 21.12 Angel of the LORD. The Chronicler worked with a text of Samuel, found in the Dead Sea Scrolls, that gives similar emphasis to this figure (cf. v. 16). 21.13 David chooses punishment by (the angel of) the Lord, known for his great mercy. God's grace leads to the choice of the temple site in 22.1. 21.15 Ornan. 2 Sam 24.16 reads "Araunah," a variant spelling. The punishment does not include Jerusalem.

21.18–27 Cf. 2 Sam 24.18–25. 21.20 Ornan's sons are not mentioned in 2 Sam 24.20 and may have arisen by a copyist's error. 21.22 David's offer to buy the threshing floor at full price is an addition by the Chronicler, who relates this purchase to Abraham's offer to buy the cave of Machpelah as a burial site. Cf. also v. 24:

offerings that cost me nothing.”²⁵ So David paid Ornan six hundred shekels of gold by weight for the site.²⁶ David built there an altar to the LORD and presented burnt offerings and offerings of well-being. He called upon the LORD, and he answered him with fire from heaven on the altar of burnt offering.²⁷ Then the LORD commanded the angel, and he put his sword back into its sheath.

The Place Chosen for the Temple

28 At that time, when David saw that the LORD had answered him at the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite, he made his sacrifices there.²⁹ For the tabernacle of the LORD, which Moses had made in the wilderness, and the altar of burnt offering were at that time in the high place at Gibeon;³⁰ but David could not go before it to inquire of God, for he was afraid of the sword of the angel of the LORD.¹ Then David said, “Here shall be the house of the LORD God and here the altar of burnt offering for Israel.”

David Prepares to Build the Temple

2 David gave orders to gather together the aliens who were residing in the land of Israel, and he set stonecutters to prepare dressed stones for building the house of God.³ David also provided great stores of iron for nails for the doors of the gates and for clamps, as well as bronze in quantities beyond weighing,⁴ and cedar logs without number—for the Sidonians and Tyrians brought great quantities of cedar to David.⁵ For David said, “My son Solomon is young and inexperienced, and the house that is to be built for the LORD must be exceedingly magnificent, famous and glorified throughout all lands; I will therefore make preparation for it.” So David provided materials in great quantity before his death.

David's Charge to Solomon and the Leaders

6 Then he called for his son Solomon and charged him to build a house for the LORD, the God of Israel.⁷ David said to Solomon, “My son, I had planned to build a house to the name of the LORD my God.⁸ But the word of the LORD came to me, saying, ‘You have shed much blood and have waged great wars; you shall not build a house to my name, because you have shed so much blood in my sight on the earth.’⁹ See, a son shall be born to you; he shall be a man of peace. I will give him peace from all his enemies on every side;

Gen 23.9. 21.25 Six hundred shekels of gold. 2 Sam 24.24 reads “fifty shekels of silver.” The medieval Jewish commentator Rashi suggests that David paid fifty shekels for each tribe. 21.26 The second sentence in this verse is not found in 2 Samuel. The Lord’s fire confirms the choice of this site, much as the fire at the first sacrifice at Sinai validated the sacrificial system (Lev 9.24). 21.27 The Lord’s command to the angel does not appear in the standard text of 2 Samuel. The word translated sheath is a Persian loanword.

21.28–22.1 This significant addition by the Chronicler identifies Ornan’s threshing floor as the site of the future temple. 21.29 Only in Chronicles do we hear that the tabernacle and the altar of burnt offering were located at Gibeon. This information explains in part why Solomon’s famous dream (1 Kings 3.5) took place at Gibeon. 21.30 The angel’s sword in 21.16 prevents David from worshipping at Gibeon (2 Chr 1.6–13). 22.1 The future site of the temple and its altar is validated by the word of David and the actions of the Lord and his angel. This site has continuity with the Mosaic institutions of tabernacle and altar. The story explains why the nation’s worship center is transferred from Gibeon to Jerusalem.

22.2–5 David provides materials for the temple. 22.2 Aliens were used in forced labor gangs. It is unclear whether native Israelites were subject to such service (cf. 1 Kings 5.13; 9.20–22). 22.3 Bronze was obtained, in part, through wars (18.8, 10). Note the emphasis on quantity: great stores and beyond weighing. 22.4 Cedar from Lebanon was supplied by the Phoenicians for the Second Temple (Ezra 3.7). 22.5 According to the Chronicler, Solomon would have been unable to manage the building of the temple if his father had not assembled all the necessary materials. On the other hand, David was unable to build the temple himself (17.4; 22.7–8; 28.2–3; 2 Chr 6.7–9).

22.6–16 A speech addressed to Solomon based in part on Moses’ commissioning of Joshua (Josh 1). 22.7 Throughout the Deuteronomistic History (see Introduction), the temple is the place for God’s name to dwell (e.g., Deut 12.11; 1 Kings 8.16, 19, 20, 29). 22.8 David’s bloodshed bars him from building the temple. 22.9 Solomon fulfills the promises in Nathan’s oracle (17.11–14). The third occurrence of the word peace in this verse is a pun in Hebrew on the word for his name shall be Solomon,^d and I will give peace^e and quiet to Israel in his days. ¹⁰He shall build a house for my name. He shall be a son to me, and I will be a father to him, and I will establish his royal throne in Israel forever.' ¹¹Now, my son, the LORD be with you, so that you may succeed in building the house of the LORD your God, as he has spoken concerning you. ¹²Only, may the LORD grant you discretion and understanding, so that when he gives you charge over Israel you may keep the law of the LORD your God. ¹³Then you will prosper if you are careful to observe the statutes and the ordinances that the LORD commanded Moses for Israel. Be strong and of good courage. Do not be afraid or dismayed. ¹⁴With great pains I have provided for the house of the LORD one hundred thousand talents of gold, one million talents of silver, and bronze and iron beyond weighing, for there is so much of it; timber and stone too I have provided. To these you must add more. ¹⁵You have an abundance of workers: stonecutters, masons, carpenters, and all kinds of artisans without number, skilled in working ¹⁶gold, silver, bronze, and iron. Now begin the work, and the LORD be with you."

¹⁷ David also commanded all the leaders of Israel to help his son Solomon, saying, ¹⁸"Is not the LORD your God with you? Has he not given you peace on every side? For he has delivered the inhabitants of the land into my hand; and the land is subdued before the LORD and his people. ¹⁹Now set your mind and heart to seek the LORD your God. Go and build the sanctuary of the LORD God so that the ark of the covenant of the LORD and the holy vessels of God may be brought into a house built for the name of the LORD."

Families of the Levites and Their Functions

23 When David was old and full of days, he made his son Solomon king over Israel.

² David assembled all the leaders of Israel and the priests and the Levites. ³The Levites, thirty years old and upward, were counted, and the total was thirty-eight thousand. ⁴"Twenty-four thousand of these," David said, "shall have charge of the work in the house of the LORD, six thousand shall be officers and judges, ⁵four thousand gatekeepers, and four thousand shall offer praises to the LORD with the instruments that I have made for praise." ⁶And David organized them in divisions corresponding to the sons of Levi: Gershon,^f Kohath, and Merari.

⁷ The sons of Gershon^g were Ladan and Shimei. ⁸The sons of Ladan: Jehiel

Solomon. The other two occurrences might better be translated "rest." Deut 12.9-11 indicates that when the Lord would give the people rest from their enemies, they should gather to one central sanctuary. Only in the reign of Solomon does Israel attain rest. 22.12 Solomon's wisdom enables him to keep the Torah (Josh 1.7-8). 22.14 The amounts of the precious metals are exaggerated in order to stress the magnificence of the temple. The gold amounts to 3,750 tons, the silver to 37,500 tons! 22.16 Begin the work. The encouragement in David's speech is clarified by a literal translation, "Rise and act." 22.17-19 A speech addressed to the leaders of Israel. 22.18 "Rest" is again preferable to peace (see note on 22.9). The Chronicler seeks to suggest that God is with the people of his own period and gives them rest, just as he was with Solomon and gave him rest (vv. 9-11). 22.19 The people's seeking of the LORD would result in their building the sanctuary for the ark.

23.1-6 Introduction to the Levitical organization. It is likely that some of the materials in chs. 23-27 were a later addition to the Chronicler's work. 23.1 The transition from David to Solomon is orderly and honorable and contrasts with the intrigues in the second half of 2 Samuel and 1 Kings 1-2. David's death and Solomon's coronation are narrated in 1 Chr 29.22-30. 23.3 Thirty years old. Cf. Num 4.3, but in 1 Chr 23.24, 27; 2 Chr 31.17; Ezra 3.8 the beginning age for Levites is twenty. Num 8.23-26 sets the age at twenty-five. Thirty-eight thousand. Note by comparison the small number of Levites among the returnees in Ezra 2 and how few Levites accompany Ezra on his trip home (Ezra 8.15-20). 23.4-5 The four groups of Levites are listed in decreasing numerical order. David is credited for arranging them into four groups and assigning them their duties: those in charge of work in the temple, officers and judges, gatekeepers, and musicians. 23.6 Gershon, Kohath, and Merari. The three sons of Levi provide the names for the Levitical divisions.

23.7-24 A list of the fathers' houses of the Levites, who are in charge of the work of the

the chief, Zetham, and Joel, three. ⁹The sons of Shimei: Shelomoth, Haziël, and Haran, three. These were the heads of families of Ladan. ¹⁰And the sons of Shimei: Jahath, Zina, Jeush, and Beriah. These four were the sons of Shimei. ¹¹Jahath was the chief, and Zizah the second; but Jeush and Beriah did not have many sons, so they were enrolled as a single family.

¹² The sons of Kohath: Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel, four. ¹³The sons of Amram: Aaron and Moses. Aaron was set apart to consecrate the most holy things, so that he and his sons forever should make offerings before the LORD, and minister to him and pronounce blessings in his name forever; ¹⁴but as for Moses the man of God, his sons were to be reckoned among the tribe of Levi. ¹⁵The sons of Moses: Gershom and Eliezer. ¹⁶The sons of Gershom: Shebuel the chief. ¹⁷The sons of Eliezer: Rehabiah the chief; Eliezer had no other sons, but the sons of Rehabiah were very numerous. ¹⁸The sons of Izhar: Shelomith the chief. ¹⁹The sons of Hebron: Jeriah the chief, Amariah the second, Jahaziel the third, and Jekameam the fourth. ²⁰The sons of Uzziel: Micah the chief and Isshiah the second.

from twenty years old and upward who were to do the work for the service of the house of the LORD. ²⁵For David said, "The LORD, the God of Israel, has given rest to his people; and he resides in Jerusalem forever. ²⁶And so the Levites no longer need to carry the tabernacle or any of the things for its service" — ²⁷for according to the last words of David these were the number of the Levites from twenty years old and upward — ²⁸"but their duty shall be to assist the descendants of Aaron for the service of the house of the LORD, having the care of the courts and the chambers, the cleansing of all that is holy, and any work for the service of the house of God; ²⁹to assist also with the rows of bread, the choice flour for the grain offering, the wafers of unleavened bread, the baked offering, the offering mixed with oil, and all measures of quantity or size. ³⁰And they shall stand every morning, thanking and praising the LORD, and likewise at evening, ³¹and whenever burnt offerings are offered to the LORD on sabbaths, new moons, and appointed festivals, according to the number required of them, regularly before the LORD. ³²Thus they shall keep charge of the tent of meeting and the sanctuary, and shall attend the descendants of Aaron, their kindred, for the service of the house of the LORD."

Divisions of the Priests

24 The divisions of the descendants of Aaron were these. The sons of Aaron: Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. ²But Nadab and Abihu died before house of the Lord. 23.7–11 Descendants of Gershon. The genealogy extends only three generations after Levi and hence would not have reached to David. 23.7 Ladan. Elsewhere the first son of Gershon is Libni (cf. Ex 6.17; Num 3.18, 21; 1 Chr 6.17, 20). 23.9 The first sentence in this verse is a later addition; its removal clarifies the genealogy. 23.12–20 Descendants of Kohath. 23.13 Aaron's priestly duties are defined. 23.14–17 The genealogy of Moses, not Aaron, is provided, and it is assigned to the Levites. 23.21–23 Descendants of Merari. 23.24 Conclusion of the list.

23.25–32 The duties of the Levites as compared to those of the priests (cf. 9.28–32). 23.25 The rest that is necessary for the temple to be built is already present in David's time. Cf. 17.10; 22.9. 23.26–27 The construction of the temple obviates the need for Levites to carry the tabernacle. Elsewhere the Chronicler speaks of the Levites carrying the ark. David made the Levites assistants to the Aaronite priests, thus limiting their status. 23.30 Note the role of the Levites as musicians.

24.1–19 The twenty-four priestly courses. This final, organizational development of the priesthood in the OT may have been completed by the mid-fourth century B.C.E. 24.1 For the descendants of Aaron, see 6.2; Ex 6.2–15; Num 3.2–4. 24.2–3 The author of this section does not mention that Nadab and Abihu died because they offered illicit fire (Num 3.4). Zadok, a leading their father, and had no sons; so Eleazar and Ithamar became the priests. ³Along with Zadok of the sons of Eleazar, and Ahimelech of the sons of Ithamar, David organized them according to the appointed duties in their service. ⁴Since more chief men were found among the sons of Eleazar than among the sons of Ithamar, they organized them under sixteen heads of ancestral houses of the sons of Eleazar, and eight of the sons of Ithamar. ⁵They organized them by lot, all alike, for there were officers of the sanctuary and officers of God among both the sons of Eleazar and the sons of Ithamar. ⁶The scribe Shemaiah son of Nethanel, a Levite, recorded them in the presence of the king, and the officers, and Zadok the priest, and Ahimelech son of Abiathar, and the heads of ancestral houses of the priests and of the Levites; one ancestral house being chosen for Eleazar and one chosen for Ithamar.

⁷ The first lot fell to Jehoiarib, the second to Jedaiah, ⁸the third to Harim, the fourth to Seorim, ⁹the fifth to Malchijah, the sixth to Mijamin, ¹⁰the seventh to Hakkoz, the eighth to Abijah, ¹¹the ninth to Jeshua, the tenth to Shecaniah, ¹²the eleventh to Eliashib, the twelfth to Jakim, ¹³the thirteenth to Huppah, the fourteenth to Jeshebeab, ¹⁴the fifteenth to Bilgah, the sixteenth to Immer, ¹⁵the seventeenth to Hezir, the eighteenth to Happizez, ¹⁶the nineteenth to Pethahiah, the twentieth to Jehezkel, ¹⁷the twenty-first to Jachin, the twenty-second to Gamul, ¹⁸the twenty-third to Delaiah, the twenty-fourth to Maaziah. ¹⁹These had as their appointed duty in their service to enter the house of the LORD according to the procedure established for them by their ancestor Aaron, as the LORD God of Israel had commanded him.

priest during David's and Solomon's reigns. Ahimelech is Abiathar's father, not his son as in v. 6. Abiathar is the other leading priest at the time of David. Ahimelech's tie to Ithamar in this chapter is in tension with other evidence that would link him to Eleazar (18.16; 1 Sam 22.20). 24.4 The descendants of Eleazar are superior to the descendants of Ithamar in numbers and in ranking, despite the implication of v. 5. 24.5 By lot. In ch. 23 they are appointed by royal decree. Note also the participation of the leading priests Zadok and Abiathar. 24.7-18 A list in order of the twenty-four priestly houses. 24.7 The family of the Maccabees descend from Jehoiarib (1 Macc 2.1). 24.10 Hakkoz's descendants are barred from the priesthood after the return because they could not find their record in the genealogies (Ezra 2.61). His inclusion in the present list may indicate that this list is later and that the family had made gains in having its claims acknowledged. Abijah, the priestly course to which Zechariah, the father of John the Baptist, belonged (Lk 1.5). 24.19 The duties of the priests were given by God, as revealed to Aaron. The duties of the Levites in ch. 23 are assigned by David.

24.20-31 A supplementary list of Levites. This list repeats some of the information of 23.7-24, extends five families of Kohath and one of Merari by another generation, and adds another son, Jaaziah, to Merari. 24.31 The Levites, like the priests, have their positions assigned by lot.

The Temple Musicians

25 David and the officers of the army also set apart for the service the sons of Asaph, and of Heman, and of Jeduthun, who should prophesy with lyres, harps, and cymbals. The list of those who did the work and of their duties was: ²Of the sons of Asaph: Zaccur, Joseph, Nethaniah, and Asarelah, sons of Asaph, under the direction of Asaph, who prophesied under the direction of the king. ³Of Jeduthun, the sons of Jeduthun: Gedaliah, Zeri, Jeshaiah, Shimei,^k Hashabiah, and Mattithiah, six, under the direction of their father Jeduthun, who prophesied with the lyre in thanksgiving and praise to the LORD. ⁴Of Heman, the sons of Heman: Bukkiah, Mattaniah, Uzziel, Shebuel, and Jerimoth, Hananiah, Hanani, Eliathah, Giddalti, and Romamti-ezer, Joshbekashah, Mallothi, Hothir, Mahazioth. ⁵All these were the sons of Heman the king's seer, according to the promise of God to exalt him; for God had given Heman fourteen sons and three daughters. ⁶They were all under the direction of their father for the music in the house of the LORD with cymbals, harps, and lyres for the service of the house of God. Asaph, Jeduthun, and Heman were under the order of the king. ⁷They and their kindred, who were trained in singing to the LORD, all of whom were skillful, numbered two hundred eighty-eight. ⁸And they cast lots for their duties, small and great, teacher and pupil alike.

⁹ The first lot fell for Asaph to Joseph; the second to Gedaliah, to him and his brothers and his sons, twelve; ¹⁰the third to Zaccur, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹¹the fourth to Izri, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹²the fifth to Nethaniah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹³the sixth to Bukkiah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹⁴the seventh to Jesarelah,^l his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹⁵the eighth to Jeshaiah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹⁶the ninth to Mattaniah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹⁷the tenth to Shimei, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹⁸the eleventh to Azarel, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹⁹the twelfth to Hashabiah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²⁰to the thirteenth, Shubael, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²¹to the fourteenth, Mattithiah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²²to the fifteenth, to Jeremoth, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²³to the sixteenth, to Hananiah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²⁴to the seventeenth, to Joshbekashah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²⁵to the eighteenth, to Hanani, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²⁶to the nineteenth, to Mallothi, his sons and his brothers,

25.1–6 The families of Levitical singers. The families are listed in a traditional order of Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun in v. 1, but in vv. 2–6 the order is Asaph, Jeduthun, and Heman. The fourteen people assigned to Heman indicate his increasing prominence. In even later lists of singers, Jeduthun is replaced by Ethan. The singers are said to prophesy (vv. 1, 2, 3), and Heman is called the king's seer (v. 5). Their prophetic activity may carry on the tradition of the preexilic prophets associated with ritual activities at shrines, or it may indicate that the hortatory words of Levites (and priests) are viewed as a way in which God reveals himself to his people (cf. the description of Levitical singers in prophetic terms elsewhere, 2 Chr 20.14; 29.25; 35.15). Prophetic and musical activities are combined in v. 1. 25.2 Perhaps the number "four" originally appeared after Asarelah but has been dropped out; cf. vv. 3, 5. 25.3 Shimei is restored on the basis of v. 17. 25.4 Some scholars have reconstructed a poem (or the first lines of five poems) out of the names Hananiah . . . Mahazioth ("Be gracious to me, O Yahweh, be gracious to me; You are my God. I exalt (you), I praise (my) helper. / Sitting in adversity I said, Clear Signals give plentifully"). The number fourteen in v. 5, however, presupposes that all these words in v. 4 are to be understood as proper names.

25.7–31 A supplementary list of singers that arranges the singers named in vv. 1–6 into twenty-four courses, like the priests in ch. 24. Small differences in the spelling of names suggest that the supplementary list has developed over a period of time. 25.7 The number two hundred eighty-eight is a product of twenty-four courses multiplied by twelve members in each course. 25.8 The assignment to the twenty-four courses was made by lot; cf. 24.5; 26.13. David and his officers select the families of Levitical singers in the first place without using lots. Teacher and pupil. Perhaps there was some kind of instructional program to train the singers. 25.9 After Joseph should appear "his sons and his brothers, twelve," as with the other twenty-three names.

The Gatekeepers

26 As for the divisions of the gatekeepers: of the Korahites, Meshelemiah son of Kore, of the sons of Asaph. ²Meshelemiah had sons: Zechariah the firstborn, Jediahel the second, Zebadiah the third, Jathniel the fourth, ³Elam the fifth, Jehohanan the sixth, Eliehoenai the seventh. ⁴Obed-edom had sons: Shemaiah the firstborn, Jehoza-bad the second, Joah the third, Sachar the fourth, Nethanel the fifth, ⁵Ammiel the sixth, Issachar the seventh, Peullethai the eighth; for God blessed him. ⁶Also to his son Shemaiah sons were born who exercised authority in their ancestral houses, for they were men of great ability. ⁷The sons of Shemaiah: Othni, Rephael, Obed, and Elzabad, whose brothers were able men, Elihu and Semachiah. ⁸All these, sons of Obed-edom with their sons and brothers, were able men qualified for the service; sixty-two of Obed-edom. ⁹Meshelemiah had sons and brothers, able men, eighteen. ¹⁰Hosah, of the sons of Merari, had sons: Shimri the chief (for though he was not the firstborn, his father made him chief), ¹¹Hilkiah the second, Tebaliah the third, Zechariah the fourth: all the sons and brothers of Hosah totaled thirteen.

¹² These divisions of the gatekeepers, corresponding to their leaders, had duties, just as their kindred did, ministering in the house of the LORD; ¹³and they cast lots by ancestral houses, small and great alike, for their gates. ¹⁴The lot for the east fell to Shelemiah. They cast lots also for his son Zechariah, a prudent counselor, and his lot came out for the north. ¹⁵Obed-edom's came out for the south, and to his sons was allotted the storehouse. ¹⁶For Shuppim and Hosah it came out for the west, at the gate of Shallecheth on the ascending road. Guard corresponded to guard. ¹⁷On the east there were six Levites each day,^m on the north four each day, on the south four each day, as well as two and two at the storehouse; ¹⁸and for the colonnadeⁿ on the west there were four at the road and two at the colonnade.ⁿ ¹⁹These were the divisions of the gatekeepers among the Korahites and the sons of Merari.

The Treasurers, Officers, and Judges

²⁰ And of the Levites, Ahijah had charge of the treasuries of the house of God and the treasuries of the dedicated gifts. ²¹The sons of Ladan, the sons of the Gershonites belonging to Ladan, the

26.1–19 A list of the gatekeepers appointed by David (23.5; gatekeepers are also mentioned in 9.17–32; 15.18, 24; 16.38). Since gatekeepers were not originally Levites, this list is relatively late. 26.1 Korahites. Korah was from the clan of Kohath (6.22). Asaph should read "Ebiasaph." Cf. the Septuagint. 26.4–8 The materials about Obed-edom are intrusive since he is not linked by descent to the Levites and since the total number in his family, sixty-two, is out of proportion with the rest of the chapter. Meshelemiah has eighteen in his family, Hosah thirteen. On Obed-edom, see 15.18, 24; 16.38 (where his number is given as sixty-eight). V. 9 continues the content of v. 3. If vv. 4–8 are a later addition, then vv. 12–18, which presuppose them, are also a later addition. 26.12–18 See note on 26.4–8. 26.13 Lots. Cf. 24.5, 31; 25.8. David is not mentioned in this chapter since gatekeepers presuppose the existence of the temple, which David did not live to see. 26.14 In order to come up with four names for the four gates, both Shelemiah (Meshelemiah of vv. 1–2) and his son Zechariah were assigned gates. 26.16 Shuppim, a mistaken repetition of the previous Hebrew word. Gate of Shallecheth, otherwise unknown. 26.18 Colonnade. The Temple Scroll from Qumran (11QT^a Temple) describes an area full of pillars in the temple, used for offerings. The total of the number of watches in vv. 17–18 is twenty-four, corresponding to the twenty-four courses of the priests and the singers.

26.20–32 Other Levites. 26.20 Many would emend Ahijah to "their brothers." These brothers, or Gershonites (absent from vv. 1–19), were in charge of the temple treasuries (vv. 21–22); they (v. 20) or the Kohathites of Amram's line (v. 25) were in charge of the treasuries heads of families belonging to Ladan the Gershonite: Jehieli.^o

22 The sons of Jehieli, Zetham and his brother Joel, were in charge of the treasuries of the house of the LORD. 23 Of the Amramites, the Izharites, the Hebronites, and the Uzzielites: 24 Shebuel son of Gershom, son of Moses, was chief officer in charge of the treasuries. 25 His brothers: from Eliezer were his son Rehabiah, his son Jeshaiiah, his son Joram, his son Zichri, and his son Shelomoth. 26 This Shelomoth and his brothers were in charge of all the treasuries of the dedicated gifts that King David, and the heads of families, and the officers of the thousands and the hundreds, and the commanders of the army, had dedicated. 27 From booty won in battles they dedicated gifts for the maintenance of the house of the LORD. 28 Also all that Samuel the seer, and Saul son of Kish, and Abner son of Ner, and Joab son of Zeruiah had dedicated—all dedicated gifts were in the care of Shelomoth^p and his brothers.

29 Of the Izharites, Chenaniah and his sons were appointed to outside duties for Israel, as officers and judges. 30 Of the Hebronites, Hashabiah and his brothers, one thousand seven hundred men of ability, had the oversight of Israel west of the Jordan for all the work of the LORD and for the service of the king. 31 Of the Hebronites, Jerijah was chief of the Hebron-

ites. (In the fortieth year of David's reign search was made, of whatever genealogy or family, and men of great ability among them were found at Jazer in Gilead.) 32 King David appointed him and his brothers, two thousand seven hundred men of ability, heads of families, to have the oversight of the Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of the Manassites for everything pertaining to God and for the affairs of the king.

The Military Divisions

27 This is the list of the people of Israel, the heads of families, the commanders of the thousands and the hundreds, and their officers who served the king in all matters concerning the divisions that came and went, month after month throughout the year, each division numbering twenty-four thousand:

2 Jashobeam son of Zabdiel was in charge of the first division in the first month; in his division were twenty-four thousand. 3 He was a descendant of Perez, and was chief of all the commanders of the army for the first month. 4 Dodai the Ahohite was in charge of the division of the second month; Mikloth was the chief officer of his division. In his division were twenty-four thousand. 5 The third com-

of dedicated gifts (v. 25–28). 26.22 The treasuries of the house of the LORD contained things like temple vessels. 26.23 These four Levitical families are descended from Kohath. The Uzzielites are not mentioned in the rest of the chapter. 26.24 Shebuel. Cf. 23.12–16. A descendant of Moses' son Gershom, he is in charge of both treasuries (though cf. v. 20). 26.25–27 The treasuries of the dedicated gifts contained booty won in battles (v. 27; cf. 18.7–8, 11). 26.25 Shelomoth is a descendant of Moses' son Eliezer. 26.28 Abner is Saul's general; Joab is David's general. Samuel too had won military victories (1 Sam 7.3–14). The favorable mention of Saul contrasts with 10.13–14 and may indicate it is a later addition. 26.29 Izharites were Kohathites (v. 23). Officers and judges. See 23.4; Deut 17.9. 26.30 Work of the LORD and . . . service of the king, religious and secular responsibilities, including taxes. Cf. v. 32. Hashabiah and seventeen hundred Hebronites have oversight of Cisjordan. 26.31 David's fortieth year is his last year (29.27; 1 Kings 2.11). 26.31–32 Jerijah (cf. 23.19; 24.23) and twenty-seven hundred Hebronites have oversight of the two and a half Transjordanian tribes.

27.1–15 Commanders of the monthly divisions. The twelve commanders in this list are similar to twelve of the first sixteen chiefs recorded in 11.10–47. Two hundred eighty-eight thousand men were at the king's disposal, with twenty-four thousand on duty each month. Since the list does not concern the Levites or the final acts of David, it is a later addition in this context. There is no evidence that civilians at David's time served the king for a month each year. The model for this chapter may lie in the officials who provided food for Solomon's household each month (1 Kings 4.7–19) and the priestly courses and other groups of twelve and twenty-four in the immediate context. The Davidic era is portrayed as a time of perfect order. 27.1 Commanders of the thousands and the hundreds, words denoting the military character of the following list. 27.4 Mikloth was the chief officer of his division, perhaps a marginal comment about the difference between this verse and 11.12, where Eleazar son of Dodo is called the

mander, for the third month, was Benaiah son of the priest Jehoiada, as chief; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ⁶This is the Benaiah who was a mighty man of the Thirty and in command of the Thirty; his son Ammizabad was in charge of his division.^q ⁷Asahel brother of Joab was fourth, for the fourth month, and his son Zebadiah after him; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ⁸The fifth commander, for the fifth month, was Shamhuth, the Izrahite; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ⁹Sixth, for the sixth month, was Ira son of Ikkeish the Tekoite; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ¹⁰Seventh, for the seventh month, was Helez the Pelonite, of the Ephraimites; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ¹¹Eighth, for the eighth month, was Sibbecai the Hushathite, of the Zerahites; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ¹²Ninth, for the ninth month, was Abiezer of Anathoth, a Benjamite; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ¹³Tenth, for the tenth month, was Maharai of Netophah, of the Zerahites; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ¹⁴Eleventh, for the eleventh month, was Benaiah of Pirathon, of the Ephraimites; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ¹⁵Twelfth, for the twelfth month, was Heldai the Netophathite, of Othniel; in his division were twenty-four thousand.

Leaders of Tribes

16 Over the tribes of Israel, for the Reubenites, Eliezer son of Zichri was chief officer; for the Simeonites, Shephatiah son of Maacah; ¹⁷for Levi, Hashabiah son of Kemuel; for Aaron, Zadok; ¹⁸for Judah, Elihu, one of David's brothers; for Issachar, Omri son of Michael; ¹⁹for Zebulun, Ishmaiah son of Obadiah; for Naphtali, Jerimoth son of Azriel; ²⁰for the Ephraimites, Hoshea son of Azariah; for the half-tribe of Manasseh, Joel son of Pedaiiah; ²¹for the half-tribe of Manasseh in Gilead, Iddo son of Zechariah; for Benjamin, Jaasiel son of Abner; ²²for Dan, Azarel son of Jeroham. These were the leaders of the tribes of Israel. ²³David did not count those below twenty years of age, for the LORD had promised to make Israel as numerous as the stars of heaven. ²⁴Joab son of Zeruiah began to count them, but did not finish; yet wrath came upon Israel for this, and the number was not entered into the account of the Annals of King David.

Other Civic Officials

25 Over the king's treasuries was Azmaveth son of Adiel. Over the treasuries in the country, in the cities, in the villages and in the towers, was Jonathan son of Uziah. ²⁶Over those who did the work of the field, tilling the soil, was Ezri son of Chelub. ²⁷Over the vineyards was Shimei the Ramathite. Over the produce of the vineyards for the wine cellars was Zabdi the Shiphmite. ²⁸Over the olive and sycamore trees in the Shephelah was Baalhanan the Gederite. Over the stores of oil was Joash. ²⁹Over the herds that pastured in Sharon was Shitrai the Sharonite. Over the herds in the valleys was Shaphat son of Adlai. ³⁰Over the camels was Obil the Ahohite. 27.7 Asahel is killed by Abner early in David's reign (2 Sam 2.18-23), when his kingdom includes only Judah; Ashahel could not have commanded troops for a united Israel one month a year. The mention of his son Zebadiah is an effort to correct this error.

27.16-24 The aim of this list of tribal leaders, a later addition to the text, is to lessen the criticism of David for the census described in ch. 21. The number of tribes is kept at twelve by omitting Gad and Asher (the last of the twelve tribes in 2.2) although the tribe of Joseph is represented by three names: the Ephraimites and the two halves of Manasseh. 27.17 Aaron is never considered a tribe and no father's name is provided for Zadok. 27.18 Elihu. David has a brother Eliab, perhaps here misspelled, or Elihu might be an eighth son of Jesse mentioned, but not named, in 1 Sam 16.10-11; 17.12. 27.23 David's census is compared to the one taken by Moses in the wilderness, which also numbers only those who are over twenty (Num 1.1-19). Stars of heaven. Cf. Gen 15.5; 22.17. 27.24 Did not finish. Cf. 21.5. In ch. 21 Joab is the one who objects to the census. The author explains why the census numbers did not appear in the Annals of King David, a source document known to him (but see 21.5).

27.25-31 David's twelve administrators, who manage his treasuries (or storehouses), agricultural endeavors, and livestock. This list indicates the probable sources of the king's income. Cf. also the list of officials in 18.14-17.

Ishmaelite. Over the donkeys was Jehdeiah the Meronothite. Over the flocks was Jaziz the Hagrite. ³¹All these were stewards of King David's property.

³² Jonathan, David's uncle, was a counselor, being a man of understanding and a scribe; Jehiel son of Hachmoni attended the king's sons. ³³Ahithophel was the king's counselor, and Hushai the Archite was the king's friend. ³⁴After Ahithophel came Jehoiada son of Benaiah, and Abiathar. Joab was commander of the king's army.

Solomon Instructed to Build the Temple

28 David assembled at Jerusalem all the officials of Israel, the officials of the tribes, the officers of the divisions that served the king, the commanders of the thousands, the commanders of the hundreds, the stewards of all the property and cattle of the king and his sons, together with the palace officials, the mighty warriors, and all the warriors. ²Then King David rose to his feet and said: "Hear me, my brothers and my people. I had planned to build a house of rest for the ark of the covenant of the LORD, for the footstool of our God; and I made preparations for building. ³But God said to me, 'You shall not build a house for my name, for you are a warrior and have shed blood.' ⁴Yet the LORD God of Israel chose me from all my ancestral house to be king over Israel forever; for he chose

Judah as leader, and in the house of Judah my father's house, and among my father's sons he took delight in making me king over all Israel. ⁵And of all my sons, for the LORD has given me many, he has chosen my son Solomon to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the LORD over Israel. ⁶He said to me, 'It is your son Solomon who shall build my house and my courts, for I have chosen him to be a son to me, and I will be a father to him. ⁷I will establish his kingdom forever if he continues resolute in keeping my commandments and my ordinances, as he is today.' ⁸Now therefore in the sight of all Israel, the assembly of the LORD, and in the hearing of our God, observe and search out all the commandments of the LORD your God; that you may possess this good land, and leave it for an inheritance to your children after you forever.

⁹ "And you, my son Solomon, know the God of your father, and serve him with single mind and willing heart; for the LORD searches every mind, and understands every plan and thought. If you seek him, he will be found by you; but if you forsake him, he will abandon you forever. ¹⁰Take heed now, for the LORD has chosen you to build a house as the sanctuary; be strong, and act."

28.1–10 David's public charge to Solomon echoes his earlier private admonition (22.6–16). 28.1 The substance of 23.2 repeated. The groups listed include many that were discussed in chs. 23–27. 28.2 Footstool. Cf. Ps 132.7. Rest in this verse and in Ps 132 refers to the ark's or to God's rest, not the rest God gives to Israel. Cf. note on 22.9. 28.3 David the warrior is contrasted with Solomon, the man of peace. Cf. 22.8–9. 28.4 The choice of David is made through a series of eliminations, much as in earlier lot-casting ceremonies (cf. Josh 7.16–18; 1 Sam 10.20–21). 28.5 The oracle of Nathan (17.1–15) is fulfilled first of all in Solomon. 28.6 Only in Chronicles is Solomon designated as chosen. Cf. vv. 5, 10; 29.1. 28.7 The promise to Solomon is made conditionally, but his current obedience indicates that compliance is attainable. 28.8 This verse is addressed to the leaders of Israel and makes presence in the land conditional upon carrying out the commandments (Deut 5.33–6.3). Possess and leave. This challenge is addressed to every generation. 28.9–10 Direct address to Solomon. 28.9 Plan and thought. The vocabulary is drawn from Gen 6.5; 8.21. Seek and abandon, typical words for obedience and disobedience in Chronicles (10.13–14; 2 Chr 15.2). The doctrine of retribution is affirmed here.

28.11–21 David gives Solomon instructions for the temple. 28.11 Plan, a technical term is also used when God gives Moses instructions about the tabernacle (Ex 25.9, 40). David's written plan comes from divine inspiration according to v. 19 (cf. "the hand of the LORD," Ezek 1.3; 3.14). Detailed plans for the Second Temple are also given in Ezek 40–48. Room for the mercy seat, a reference to the innermost room or Holy of room for the mercy seat;^r 12 and the plan of all that he had in mind: for the courts of the house of the LORD, all the surrounding chambers, the treasuries of the house of God, and the treasuries for dedicated gifts; 13 for the divisions of the priests and of the Levites, and all the work of the service in the house of the LORD; for all the vessels for the service in the house of the LORD, 14 the weight of gold for all golden vessels for each service, the weight of silver vessels for each service, 15 the weight of the golden lampstands and their lamps, the weight of gold for each lampstand and its lamps, the weight of silver for a lampstand and its lamps, according to the use of each in the service, 16 the weight of gold for each table for the rows of bread, the silver for the silver tables, 17 and pure gold for the forks, the basins, and the cups; for the golden bowls and the weight of each; for the silver bowls and the weight of each; 18 for the altar of incense made of refined gold, and its weight; also his plan for the golden chariot of the cherubim that spread their wings and covered the ark of the covenant of the LORD.

19 "All this, in writing at the LORD's direction, he made clear to me—the plan of all the works."

20 David said further to his son Solomon, "Be strong and of good courage, and act. Do not be afraid or dismayed; for the LORD God, my God, is with you. He will not fail you or forsake you, until all the work for the service of the house of the LORD is finished. 21 Here are the divisions of the priests and the Levites for all the service of the house of God; and with you in all the work will be every volunteer who has skill for any kind of service; also the officers and all the people will be wholly at your command."

Offerings for Building the Temple

29 King David said to the whole assembly, "My son Solomon, whom alone God has chosen, is young and inexperienced, and the work is great; for the temple^s will not be for mortals but for the LORD God. 2 So I have provided for the house of my God, so far as I was able, the gold for the things of gold, the silver for the things of silver, and the bronze for the things of bronze, the iron for the things of iron, and wood for the things of wood, besides great quantities of onyx and stones for setting, antimony, colored stones, all sorts of precious stones, and marble in abundance. 3 Moreover, in addition to all that I have provided for the holy house, I have a treasure of my own of gold and silver, and because of my devotion to the house of my God I give it to the house of my God: 4 three thousand talents of gold, of the gold of Ophir, and seven thousand talents of refined silver, for overlaying the walls of the house, 5 and for all the work to be done by artisans, gold for the things of gold and silver for the things of silver. Who then will offer willingly, consecrating themselves today to the LORD?"

Cf. 2 Chr 4.1-22; 36.18; Ezra 1.7-11; 7.19; 8.25, 33. The silver vessels are not mentioned elsewhere but are presupposed in 2 Kings 25.15. 28.18 The ark is given emphasis by a repetition of the word plan. The reference to the golden chariot of the cherubim evokes the visions of Ezek 1; 10. 28.20-21 A final admonition to Solomon indicates the difficulties he faces. 28.20 He will not fail you or forsake you. Cf. Josh 1.5. 28.21 Skill. Cf. Ex 35.10. Reference to those who will assist Solomon sets the stage for ch. 29.

29.1-9 Contributions to the temple. Cf. the parallel to the tabernacle, Ex 25.1-7; 35.4-9, 20-29. 29.1-5 David's contributions. Cf. 22.2-5, 14. 29.1 The word translated temple occurs only in late biblical Hebrew and is a postexilic loanword. Cf. v. 19. 29.4 Three thousand talents of gold, 112.5 tons. Seven thousand talents of refined silver, 262.5 tons. Ophir, a source of gold, reached by ship, perhaps in Africa or Arabia. 29.5 David invites the people to contribute and is heeded; cf. the same sequence when Moses invites the people to give to the tabernacle (Ex 35.4-9; 35.20-29). 29.6-9 Contributions by others. In the wilderness period, the people make contributions and work on the tabernacle. Since only Levites are permitted in the temple, lay participation in the leaders of the tribes, the commanders of the thousands and of the hundreds, and the officers over the king's work. ⁷They gave for the service of the house of God five thousand talents and ten thousand darics of gold, ten thousand talents of silver, eighteen thousand talents of bronze, and one hundred thousand talents of iron. ⁸Whoever had precious stones gave them to the treasury of the house of the LORD, into the care of Jehiel the Gershonite. ⁹Then the people rejoiced because these had given willingly, for with single mind they had offered freely to the LORD; King David also rejoiced greatly.

David's Praise to God

¹⁰ Then David blessed the LORD in the presence of all the assembly; David said: "Blessed are you, O LORD, the God of our ancestor Israel, forever and ever. ¹¹Yours, O LORD, are the greatness, the power, the glory, the victory, and the majesty; for all that is in the heavens and on the earth is yours; yours is the kingdom, O LORD, and you are exalted as head above all. ¹²Riches and honor come from you, and you rule over all. In your hand are power and might; and it is in your hand to make great and to give strength to all. ¹³And now, our God, we give thanks to you and praise your glorious name.

¹⁴ "But who am I, and what is my people, that we should be able to make this freewill offering? For all things come from you, and of your own have we given you. ¹⁵For we are aliens and transients before you, as were all our ancestors; our days on the earth are like a shadow, and there is no hope. ¹⁶O LORD our God, all this abundance that we have provided for building you a house for your holy name comes from your hand and is all your own. ¹⁷I know, my God, that you search the heart, and take pleasure in uprightness; in the uprightness of my heart I have freely offered all these things, and now I have seen your people, who are present here, offering freely and joyously to you. ¹⁸O LORD, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, our ancestors, keep forever such purposes and thoughts in the hearts of your people, and direct their hearts toward you. ¹⁹Grant to my son Solomon that with single mind he may keep your commandments, your decrees, and your statutes, performing all of them, and that he may build the temple^t for which I have made provision."

²⁰ Then David said to the whole assembly, "Bless the LORD your God." And all the assembly blessed the LORD, the God of their ancestors, and bowed their heads and prostrated themselves before the LORD and the king. ²¹On the next day they offered sacrifices and burnt offerings to the LORD, a thousand bulls, a thou-building is impossible. 29.7 Five thousand talents (of gold), 187.5 tons. Ten thousand darics of gold, 84,200 grams or 185 pounds. This coin was introduced about 515 B.C.E. by Darius I and is, hence, used anachronistically in this passage. Ten thousand talents of silver, 375 tons. Eighteen thousand talents of bronze, 675 tons. One hundred thousand talents of iron, 3,750 tons. All the weights, except perhaps for the darics, are exaggerations. They demonstrate all Israel's dedication to the temple. 29.8 Jehiel, cf. 23.8; 26.21–22. 29.9 The joy of David and the people in contributing echoes the joy of Israel in making David king (12.39–41).

29.10–19 David praises God with joy and humility. 29.11 This verse is the source of the concluding doxology to the Lord's Prayer, which appears in later manuscripts of Mt 6.13: "For the kingdom and the power and the glory are yours forever. Amen." God's kingship is a persistent theme in Chronicles (1 Chr 16.23–33; 17.14) and relativizes the upcoming kingship of Solomon. 29.14 The generous gifts of vv. 1–9 are first of all God's gifts to Israel. 29.15 David recalls that the landless ancestors were few, but received the promise of the land. Cf. vv. 10, 18. Even in the land the Israelites share their ancestors' vulnerability and dependency. 29.18 David asks that the people maintain their present generous purposes and thoughts and that their faith always be directed toward God. The building of the temple is crucial, but it is not the ultimate in religious devotion. 29.19 David prays that Solomon will obey the law and build the temple and so maintain the dynasty (cf. ch. 17). 29.20–22a The assembly blesses the Lord. 29.21 Sacrifices, peace offerings in which the people would eat the sacrificial animal and contribute to the joy mentioned in v. 22. The large number of animals indicates the significance of the event. Cf. 2 Chr 7.4–5; 30.23–27.

sand rams, and a thousand lambs, with their libations, and sacrifices in abundance for all Israel; ²²and they ate and drank before the LORD on that day with great joy.

Solomon Anointed King

They made David's son Solomon king a second time; they anointed him as the LORD's prince, and Zadok as priest. ²³Then Solomon sat on the throne of the LORD, succeeding his father David as king; he prospered, and all Israel obeyed him. ²⁴All the leaders and the mighty warriors, and also all the sons of King David, pledged their allegiance to King Solomon. ²⁵The LORD highly exalted Solomon in the sight of all Israel, and bestowed upon him such royal majesty as had not been on any king before him in Israel.

Summary of David's Reign

²⁶ Thus David son of Jesse reigned over all Israel. ²⁷The period that he reigned over Israel was forty years; he reigned seven years in Hebron, and thirty-three years in Jerusalem. ²⁸He died in a good old age, full of days, riches, and honor; and his son Solomon succeeded him. ²⁹Now the acts of King David, from first to last, are written in the records of the seer Samuel, and in the records of the prophet Nathan, and in the records of the seer Gad, ³⁰with accounts of all his rule and his might and of the events that befell him and Israel and all the kingdoms of the earth.

The present notice gives the high priest nearly equal standing with the king. 29.23 Throne of the LORD. The kingdom is the Lord's (cf. 17.14). 29.24 The claim that all the king's sons and all the leaders obey him is contradicted by 1 Kings 1–2. 29.25 The Lord's exaltation of Solomon is also mentioned in 2 Chr 1.1. Cf. Josh 3.7; 4.14.

29.26–30 Cf. 1 Kings 2.10–12. Chronicles puts the notice of David's death after the accession of Solomon and so binds the two reigns closely together. In 1 Kings 1, the frail king has to be warmed by a young virgin and prodded by Bathsheba to prevent Adonijah from taking the throne from Solomon. 29.29 Authorship of the books of Samuel and Kings—and of other records?—is attributed to the prophetic figures of Samuel, Nathan, and Gad.

2 CHRONICLES

Solomon Requests Wisdom

1 Solomon son of David established himself in his kingdom; the LORD his God was with him and made him exceedingly great.

2 Solomon summoned all Israel, the commanders of the thousands and of the hundreds, the judges, and all the leaders of all Israel, the heads of families. 3 Then Solomon, and the whole assembly with him, went to the high place that was at Gibeon; for God's tent of meeting, which Moses the servant of the LORD had made in the wilderness, was there. 4 (But David had brought the ark of God up from Kiriath-jearim to the place that David had prepared for it; for he had pitched a tent for it in Jerusalem.) 5 Moreover the bronze altar that Bezalel son of Uri, son of Hur, had made, was there in front of the tabernacle of the LORD. And Solomon and the assembly inquired at it. 6 Solomon went up there to the bronze altar before the LORD, which was at the tent of meeting, and offered a thousand burnt offerings on it.

7 That night God appeared to Solomon, and said to him, "Ask what I should give you." 8 Solomon said to God, "You have shown great and steadfast love to my father David, and have made me succeed him as king. 9 O LORD God, let your promise to my father David now be fulfilled, for you have made me king over a people as numerous as the dust of the earth. 10 Give me now wisdom and knowledge to go out and come in before this people, for who can rule this great people of yours?" 11 God answered Solomon, "Because this was in your heart, and you have not asked for possessions, wealth, honor, or the life of those who hate you, and have not even asked for long life, but have asked for wisdom and knowledge for yourself that you may rule my people over whom I have made you king, 12 wisdom and knowledge are granted to you. I will also give you riches, possessions, and Perhaps there is also an allusion to Solomon's mastering of the troubles that accompany his rise to power in 1 Kings 2.5-46. Made him exceedingly great. Cf. Josh 3.7; 4.14; 1 Chr 29.25. 1.2-3 In 1 Kings 3.4 Solomon goes to Gibeon alone; his first act as king in Chronicles is to lead a national pilgrimage to the bronze altar at Gibeon. Assemblies of all Israel in Chronicles always deal with the temple. 1.4 Cf.

1 Chr 13.1-16.1. 1.5 Bezalel. See Ex 31.2-11; 1 Chr 2.20; cf. Ex 38.1-2. It. The RSV translates "the LORD." The Hebrew pronoun is ambiguous. 1.6 The tent of meeting makes Gibeon a legitimate place of sacrifice (Lev 17.8-9). 1.7 1 Kings 3.5 adds "in a dream" after Solomon, but see the criticism of dreams in Jer 23.25-28. 1.8 Chronicles omits the notice of Solomon's weakness from 1 Kings 3.7, but see 1 Chr 22.5; 29.1. 1.9 Fulfilled. Cf. the promise made to Jacob in Gen 28.14. 1.10 In Chronicles wisdom is the ability to build the temple. In 1 Kings Solomon's wisdom is shown in his judging between two prostitutes (3.16-28), his administrative magnificence (4.1-5.8), and his knowledge of nature (5.9-14), all omitted from Chronicles.

honor, such as none of the kings had who were before you, and none after you shall have the like.”¹³ So Solomon came from^a the high place at Gibeon, from the tent of meeting, to Jerusalem. And he reigned over Israel.

Solomon's Military and Commercial Activity

14 Solomon gathered together chariots and horses; he had fourteen hundred chariots and twelve thousand horses, which he stationed in the chariot cities and with the king in Jerusalem. ¹⁵ The king made silver and gold as common in Jerusalem as stone, and he made cedar as plentiful as the sycamore of the Shephelah. ¹⁶ Solomon's horses were imported from Egypt and Kue; the king's traders received them from Kue at the prevailing price. ¹⁷ They imported from Egypt, and then exported, a chariot for six hundred shekels of silver, and a horse for one hundred fifty; so through them these were exported to all the kings of the Hittites and the kings of Aram.

Preparations for Building the Temple

2^b Solomon decided to build a temple for the name of the LORD, and a royal palace for himself. ^{2c} Solomon conscripted seventy thousand laborers and eighty thousand stonecutters in the hill country, with three thousand six hundred to oversee them.

Alliance with Hiram of Tyre

3 Solomon sent word to King Hiram of Tyre: “Once you dealt with my father David and sent him cedar to build himself a house to live in. ⁴ I am now about to build a house for the name of the LORD my God and dedicate it to him for offering fragrant incense before him, and for the regular offering of the rows of bread, and for burnt offerings morning and evening, on the sabbaths and the new moons and the appointed festivals of the LORD our God, as ordained forever for Israel. ⁵ The house that I am about to build will be great, for our God is greater than other gods. ⁶ But who is able to build him a house, since heaven, even highest heaven, cannot contain him? Who am I to build a house for him, except as a place to make offerings before him? ⁷ So now send me an artisan skilled to work in gold, silver, bronze, and iron, and in purple, crimson, and blue fabrics, trained also in engraving, to join the skilled workers who are with me in Judah and Jerusalem, whom my father David provided. ⁸ Send me also cedar, cypress, and algum timber from Lebanon, for I know that your servants are skilled in cutting Lebanon timber. My servants will work with your servants ⁹ to prepare timber for me in abundance, for the house I am about to build will be great and wonderful. ¹⁰ I will

1.14–17 Cf. 1 Kings 10.26–29. Chronicles moves this account of Solomon's riches and commercial activity from the end of Solomon's reign to a point between the revelation at Gibeon and the beginning of the temple building. At this position it fulfills v. 12 and implies that these resources were dedicated to constructing the temple. 1.15 Gold, not present in the Hebrew of 1 Kings 10.27. Shephelah, low hills in western Palestine, separating the coastal plain from the central mountain ridge. 1.16 Kue, Cilicia, on the southeast coast of Asia Minor. 1.17 Hittites, people living roughly in what is now modern Turkey. Solomon is a kind of arms merchant.

2.1–18 Cf. 1 Kings 5.1–8; 7.13–14; 5.9–18. 2.1 Palace. Cf. 2.12; 7.11; 8.1; 9.11. Chronicles omits details about its construction that are reported in 1 Kings 7.1–12. 2.3–10 A letter of Solomon to Hiram. According to 1 Kings 5.1 Hiram initiates the correspondence with Solomon. 2.3 Hiram, a variant spelling of Hiram found consistently in Chronicles. 2.4 Chronicles makes the obligation to sacrifice a major reason for building the temple. 2.6a The inability of any temple to contain God is borrowed from Solomon's speech at the dedication of the temple (6.18). 2.7 The artisan is not mentioned until 1 Kings 7.13–14 in the parallel account, where he is skilled only in bronze work. The wider talents in Chronicles stem from a comparison of Hiram-abi (v. 13) with Oholiab, who worked on the tabernacle (cf. Ex 31.1–11; 35.30–35). 2.8 The identity of algum is not certain, but 9.10–11 indicates that it was imported from Ophir. 2.10 A cor was slightly more than 6 bushels. A bath was 6 gallons or 22 liters. The enormous amounts of grain, wine, and oil fit a pattern of Tyrian dependence on Israel for foodstuffs (Ezek 17.17). In 1 Kings provide for your servants, those who cut the timber, twenty thousand cors of crushed wheat, twenty thousand cors of barley, twenty thousand baths^d of wine, and twenty thousand baths of oil.”

11 Then King Hiram of Tyre answered in a letter that he sent to Solomon, “Because the LORD loves his people he has made you king over them.” 12 Hiram also said, “Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, who made heaven and earth, who has given King David a wise son, endowed with discretion and understanding, who will build a temple for the LORD, and a royal palace for himself.

13 “I have dispatched Hiram-abi, a skilled artisan, endowed with understanding, 14 the son of one of the Danite women, his father a Tyrian. He is trained to work in gold, silver, bronze, iron, stone, and wood, and in purple, blue, and crimson fabrics and fine linen, and to do all sorts of engraving and execute any design that may be assigned him, with your artisans, the artisans of my lord, your father David. 15 Now, as for the wheat, barley, oil, and wine, of which my lord has spoken, let him send them to his servants. 16 We will cut whatever timber you need from Lebanon, and bring it to you as rafts by sea to Joppa; you will take it up to Jerusalem.”

17 Then Solomon took a census of all the aliens who were residing in the land of Israel, after the census that his father David had taken; and there were found to be one hundred fifty-three thousand six hundred. 18 Seventy thousand of them he assigned as laborers, eighty thousand as stonecutters in the hill country, and three thousand six hundred as overseers to make the people work.

Solomon Builds the Temple

3 Solomon began to build the house of the LORD in Jerusalem on Mount Moriah, where the LORD had appeared to his father David, at the place that David had designated, on the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite. 2 He began to build on the second day of the second month of the fourth year of his reign. 3 These are Solomon’s measurements^e for building the house of God: the length, in cubits of the old standard, was sixty cubits, and the width twenty cubits. 4 The vestibule in front of the nave of the house was twenty cubits long, across the width of the

5.11 these are annual payments. 2.11–16 Hiram’s reply. 2.11–12 Hiram expresses piety toward the Lord and mentions the Lord’s endorsement of Solomon’s kingship and his gift of wisdom to him. 2.13 Hiram-abi is a counterpart to Bezalel and Oholiab from the wilderness period (see note on 2.7). The element abi in his name, not attested in 1 Kings 7.13, may be a play on the name Oholiab. 2.14 Danite. According to 1 Kings 7.14, Hiram is the son of a widow from Naphtali. The wilderness artisan Oholiab, however, was from the tribe of Dan (Ex 31.6; 35.34). His skills correspond to those requested by Solomon in v. 7. Both Dan and Naphtali are descendants of Bilhah, the concubine of Jacob. My lord, a term of respect, used by Hiram for both David and Solomon (cf. v. 15). 2.16 Joppa, an important harbor city in antiquity, today a suburb of Tel Aviv. The logs could have been carried on ships or towed as rafts. Cf. 1 Kings 5.9; Ezra 3.7. 2.17 The land of Israel. Cf. 1 Chr 22.2; 2 Chr 30.25; 34.7. Census. Cf. 1 Chr 21; 22.2. Chronicles insists that no Israelite had to do forced labor. Cf. 2 Chr 8.7–10. According to 1 Kings 5.13–18, omitted by Chronicles, Solomon sends thirty thousand workers to Lebanon, in three monthly shifts. 2.18 Three thousand six hundred. 1 Kings 5.16 has three thousand three hundred, but see the Septuagint of 1 Kings.

3.1–17 Cf. 1 Kings 6.1–7.21. The account of the building of the temple is shorter in Chronicles than in 1 Kings, but the Chronicler edits that earlier account to emphasize the parallels between the temple and the tabernacle. 3.1 Mount Moriah. The Temple Mount is identified with the place where Abraham attempted to sacrifice Isaac (Gen 22.2, 14). This site is also the place where David saw an angel with a drawn sword at the time of his census (1 Chr 21.1–22.1). 3.2 959 B.C.E. In 1 Kings 6.1 the temple building begins on the four hundred eightieth anniversary of the exodus. Chronicles generally deemphasizes the exodus. 3.3 The short cubit was 17.4 inches and the long cubit 20.4 inches. It is not clear which of these was considered the old standard. According to the short cubit, the temple measures 87 by 29 feet; according to the long cubit 102 by 34 feet. The height is not given. 3.4 According to 1 Kings 6.3 the vestibule measures 20 by 10 cubits. One hundred twenty. Elsewhere the temple is 30 cubits high. The verse has been damaged in trans-

house;^f and its height was one hundred twenty cubits. He overlaid it on the inside with pure gold. ⁵The nave he lined with cypress, covered it with fine gold, and made palms and chains on it. ⁶He adorned the house with settings of precious stones. The gold was gold from Parvaim. ⁷So he lined the house with gold—its beams, its thresholds, its walls, and its doors; and he carved cherubim on the walls.

⁸ He made the most holy place; its length, corresponding to the width of the house, was twenty cubits, and its width was twenty cubits; he overlaid it with six hundred talents of fine gold. ⁹The weight of the nails was fifty shekels of gold. He overlaid the upper chambers with gold.

¹⁴And Solomonⁱ made the curtain of blue and purple and crimson fabrics and fine linen, and worked cherubim into it.

¹⁵ In front of the house he made two pillars thirty-five cubits high, with a capital of five cubits on the top of each. ¹⁶He made encirclingⁱ chains and put them on the tops of the pillars; and he made one hundred pomegranates, and put them on the chains. ¹⁷He set up the pillars in front of the temple, one on the right, the other on the left; the one on the right he called Jachin, and the one on the left, Boaz.

Furnishings of the Temple

4 He made an altar of bronze, twenty cubits long, twenty cubits wide, and ten cubits high. ²Then he made the molten sea; it was round, ten cubits from rim to rim, and five cubits high. A line of thirty cubits would encircle it completely. ³Under it were panels all around, each of ten cubits, surrounding the sea; there were two rows of panels, cast when it was cast. ⁴It stood on twelve oxen, three facing north, three facing west, three facing south, and three facing east; the sea was set on them. The hindquarters of each were toward the inside. ⁵Its thickness was mission. 3.5 Nave. The largest room in the temple, where most of the ritual activity takes place. Within it were an incense altar, ten golden lampstands, and the table for the bread of the Presence. 3.6 Parvaim, an unknown site. 3.8 Six hundred talents, 22.5 tons. David is said to have amassed 3,750 tons of gold (1 Chr 22.14). 3.9 Fifty shekels, 20 ounces, which is too much for one nail, too little for all the nails. 3.10 Cherubim, winged sphinxes, whose backs formed a throne for the invisible Lord. 3.14 Solomon's temple had doors separating the Most Holy Place from the rest of the building (1 Kings 6.31–32). The curtain may be a projection onto Solomon's temple from the Second Temple, with influence also from the tabernacle account (Ex 26.31–33; cf Mt 27.51). Chronicles omits at this point an equivalent to 1 Kings 6.29–7.14. 1 Kings 7.1–12 deals with the king's palace (cf. 2 Chr 2.1). 3.15–17 The pillars, lacking in the Second Temple, are symbolic and decorative, not structural. Their height in Chronicles is nearly double that in Kings (18 cubits; 1 Kings 7.15). The Chronicler apparently includes in his calculations the circumference (12 cubits; 1 Kings 7.15) and the height of the capital (5 cubits; 1 Kings 7.16). 3.17 Jachin in Hebrew means "he establishes." Boaz, meaning unknown (also the name of David's great-grandfather; Ruth 4.17, 21–22). Some scholars interpret these names as the first words in dynastic oracles.

4.1–5.1 Cf. 1 Kings 7.23–51. 4.1 This account of the bronze altar was omitted accidentally in the present text of 1 Kings because this verse and the following verse start the same way: he made. For a description of the altar from the exilic period, see Ezek 43.13–17. 4.2–5 According to Chronicles the molten sea serves the purposes of purification (cf. Ex 30.18–21). In the temple of Solomon, it may have symbolized the cosmic sea dragon. 4.2 The circumference should be 31.4 cubits. Either thirty is an approximation, or the measurement was calculated from a different place on the rim (inside versus outside). 4.4 The twelve animals supporting the sea face outward and look toward each of the four compass points. The number twelve implies the twelve tribes of Israel (cf. Num 2; Ezek 48.30–35). 4.5 Three thousand baths. 1 Kings 7.26 reads "two thousand baths," a calculation based on a hemispherical

a handbreadth; its rim was made like the rim of a cup, like the flower of a lily; it held three thousand baths.^k ⁶He also made ten basins in which to wash, and set five on the right side, and five on the left. In these they were to rinse what was used for the burnt offering. The sea was for the priests to wash in.

⁷ He made ten golden lampstands as prescribed, and set them in the temple, five on the south side and five on the north. ⁸He also made ten tables and placed them in the temple, five on the right side and five on the left. And he made one hundred basins of gold. ⁹He made the court of the priests, and the great court, and doors for the court; he overlaid their doors with bronze. ¹⁰He set the sea at the southeast corner of the house.

¹¹ And Hiram made the pots, the shovels, and the basins. Thus Hiram finished the work that he did for King Solomon on the house of God: ¹²the two pillars, the bowls, and the two capitals on the top of the pillars; and the two latticeworks to cover the two bowls of the capitals that were on the top of the pillars; ¹³the four hundred pomegranates for the two latticeworks, two rows of pomegranates for each latticework, to cover the two bowls of the capitals that were on the pillars. ¹⁴He made the stands, the basins on the stands, ¹⁵the one sea, and the twelve oxen underneath it. ¹⁶The pots, the shovels, the forks, and all the equipment for these Hiram-abi made of burnished bronze for King Solomon for the house of the LORD. ¹⁷In the plain of the Jordan the king cast them, in the clay ground between Succoth and Zeredah. ¹⁸Solomon made all these things in great quantities, so that the weight of the bronze was not determined.

¹⁹ So Solomon made all the things that were in the house of God: the golden altar, the tables for the bread of the Presence, ²⁰the lampstands and their lamps of pure gold to burn before the inner sanctuary, as prescribed; ²¹the flowers, the lamps, and the tongs, of purest gold; ²²the snuffers, basins, ladles, and firepans, of pure gold. As for the entrance to the temple: the inner doors to the most holy place and the doors of the nave of the temple were of gold.

5 Thus all the work that Solomon did for the house of the LORD was finished. Solomon brought in the things that his father David had dedicated, and stored the silver, the gold, and all the vessels in the treasuries of the house of God.

The Ark Brought into the Temple

2 Then Solomon assembled the elders of Israel and all the heads of the tribes, the leaders of the ancestral houses of the people of Israel, in Jerusalem, to bring up the ark of the covenant of the LORD out of the city of David, which is Zion. ³And all the Israelites assembled before the king at the festival that is in the seventh month.

k A Hebrew measure of volume rather than a cylindrical shape. A bath was approximately 6 gallons or 22 liters. 4.6 There are ten basins in Solomon's temple, according to the Chronicler, while the tabernacle only had one. Similarly, the tabernacle had but one lampstand and one table, not ten as in Chronicles (vv. 7–8). An elaborate description of the basins and their stands in 1 Kings 7.27–38 is omitted in Chronicles. 4.7 Golden lampstands, perhaps symbolizing the presence of God. 4.8 In the tabernacle, a single table was used for the bread of the Presence. The function of the ten tables in Chronicles is not clear, though the lampstands may have been placed on them. 4.9 Court of the priests, called the inner court in 1 Kings 6.36; 7.12. 4.10–22 A close parallel to 1 Kings 7.39–50 that is perhaps a later addition. The mention of inner doors (v. 22) contradicts the Chronicler's idea that a curtain closed off the Most Holy Place (3.14). 4.11

Hiram-abi from Tyre (2.13) makes other miscellaneous furnishings. 4.16 Chronicles does not tell us where Solomon discovered the great quantities of bronze. Recent archaeology demonstrates that the copper from Timna and the valley of Elah was not mined in Solomon's time. 4.17 Solomon makes molds for his bronze castings in the clay of the Jordan River. Succoth and Zeredah (better "Zarethán," following 1 Kings 7.46), cities just east of the Jordan River. 5.1 Dedicated. Cf. 1 Chr 18.1–13; 26.25–27; 29.1–5. Solomon stores the silver, gold, and temple vessels in the treasuries (1 Chr 28.12). There may be a pun in Hebrew on the name "Solomon" and the verb was finished.

5.2–14 Cf. 1 Kings 8.1–11. In Chronicles the whole nation of Israel participates in major cultic events, but in this case the idea is already present in 1 Kings. 5.3 Festival that is in the seventh month, ⁴And all the elders of Israel came, and the Levites carried the ark. ⁵So they brought up the ark, the tent of meeting, and all the holy vessels that were in the tent; the priests and the Levites brought them up. ⁶King Solomon and all the congregation of Israel, who had assembled before him, were before the ark, sacrificing so many sheep and oxen that they could not be numbered or counted. ⁷Then the priests brought the ark of the covenant of the LORD to its place, in the inner sanctuary of the house, in the most holy place, underneath the wings of the cherubim. ⁸For the cherubim spread out their wings over the place of the ark, so that the cherubim made a covering above the ark and its poles. ⁹The poles were so long that the ends of the poles were seen from the holy place in front of the inner sanctuary; but they could not be seen from outside; they are there to this day. ¹⁰There was nothing in the ark except the two tablets that Moses put there at Horeb, where the LORD made a covenant¹ with the people of Israel after they came out of Egypt.

¹¹ Now when the priests came out of the holy place (for all the priests who were present had sanctified themselves, without regard to their divisions), ¹²all the levitical singers, Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun, their sons and kindred, arrayed in fine linen, with cymbals, harps, and lyres, stood east of the altar with one hundred twenty priests who were trumpeters. ¹³It was the duty of the trumpeters

and singers to make themselves heard in unison in praise and thanksgiving to the LORD, and when the song was raised, with trumpets and cymbals and other musical instruments, in praise to the LORD,

"For he is good,
for his steadfast love endures
forever,"

the house, the house of the LORD, was filled with a cloud, ¹⁴so that the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud; for the glory of the LORD filled the house of God.

Dedication of the Temple

6 Then Solomon said, "The LORD has said that he would reside in thick darkness. ²I have built you an exalted house, a place for you to reside in forever."

³ Then the king turned around and blessed all the assembly of Israel, while all the assembly of Israel stood. ⁴And he said, "Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, who with his hand has fulfilled what he promised with his mouth to my father David, saying, ⁵'Since the day that I brought my people out of the land of Egypt, I have not chosen a city from any of the tribes of Israel in which to build a house, so that my name might be there, and I chose no one as ruler over my people Israel; ⁶but I have chosen Jerusalem in order that my name may be there, and I have chosen David to be over my people

Tabernacles (Booths). 5.4 The Chronicler has the Levites carry the ark (cf. 1 Chr 15.2, 11–15) and supports them wherever possible. In 1 Kings 8.3 the priests carry the ark. 5.5 While the ark has already been brought to Jerusalem by David (1 Chr 15–16), the tent of meeting (the tabernacle) is now brought from Gibeon (2 Chr 1.3) and presumably stored in the temple. Priests and the Levites, better "the Levitical priests." 5.7 The priests alone could enter the Most Holy Place. Cf. Num 4.5–20; Ezek 44.10–14. 5.9 Holy place. The NRSV emends, following 1 Kings 8.8; the Hebrew reads "the ark." To this day, taken over from 1 Kings 8.8. The ark no longer existed at the time Chronicles was written. 5.10 Two tablets. According to a later tradition attested by Heb 9.4, a jar of manna and Aaron's rod were also in the ark (cf. Ex 16.32–34; Num 17.10–11). Horeb, the preferred word for Sinai in Deuteronomy–2 Kings (see 1 Kings 8.9). 5.11–13 Almost all of these verses are an addition by the Chronicler. 5.12 The levitical singers, Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun. Cf. 1 Chr 16.37–41. 5.13 For he is good . . . forever is a couplet frequently used in Chronicles (1 Chr 16.34, 41; 2 Chr 7.3, 6; 20.21). 5.13–14 The temple is filled with the cloud of the glory of the LORD, just as the tabernacle had been at its dedication (Ex 40.34–38). The marks of a theophany are seen by the priests. A second theophany, approving the temple, appears in 7.1–3, where it is visible to all the people.

6.1–11 Cf. 1 Kings 8.12–21. 6.2 Solomon builds a permanent house for the Lord, whose glory had once appeared at Sinai (Ex 20.21) and more frequently at the tabernacle. 6.5–6 Though Chronicles follows 1 Kings very closely in ch. 6, the words my name might be there . . . and I chose no one are missing in 1 Kings 8.16 through a scribal mistake. Solomon is portrayed celebrating the divine choice of Jerusalem and of Israel.' 7 My father David had it in mind to build a house for the name of the LORD, the God of Israel. 8 But the LORD said to my father David, 'You did well to consider building a house for my name; 9 nevertheless you shall not build the house, but your son who shall be born to you shall build the house for my name.' 10 Now the LORD has fulfilled his promise that he made; for I have succeeded my father David, and sit on the throne of Israel, as the LORD promised, and have built the house for the name of the LORD, the God of Israel. 11 There I have set the ark, in which is the covenant of the LORD that he made with the people of Israel."

12 Then Solomon^m stood before the altar of the LORD in the presence of the whole assembly of Israel, and spread out his hands. 13 Solomon had made a bronze platform five cubits long, five cubits wide, and three cubits high, and had set it in the court; and he stood on it. Then he knelt on his knees in the presence of the whole assembly of Israel, and spread out his hands toward heaven. 14 He said, "O LORD, God of Israel, there is no God like you, in heaven or on earth, keeping covenant in steadfast love with your servants who walk before you with all their heart— 15 you who have kept for your servant, my father David, what you promised to him. Indeed, you promised with your mouth and this day have fulfilled with your hand. 16 Therefore, O LORD,

God of Israel, keep for your servant, my father David, that which you promised him, saying, 'There shall never fail you a successor before me to sit on the throne of Israel, if only your children keep to their way, to walk in my law as you have walked before me.' 17 Therefore, O LORD, God of Israel, let your word be confirmed, which you promised to your servant David.

18 "But will God indeed reside with mortals on earth? Even heaven and the highest heaven cannot contain you, how much less this house that I have built! 19 Regard your servant's prayer and his plea, O LORD my God, heeding the cry and the prayer that your servant prays to you. 20 May your eyes be open day and night toward this house, the place where you promised to set your name, and may you heed the prayer that your servant prays toward this place. 21 And hear the plea of your servant and of your people Israel, when they pray toward this place; may you hear from heaven your dwelling place; hear and forgive.

22 "If someone sins against another and is required to take an oath and comes and swears before your altar in this house, 23 may you hear from heaven, and act, and judge your servants, repaying the guilty by bringing their conduct on their own head, and vindicating those who are in the right by rewarding them in accordance with their righteousness.

his father David. 6.9 Chronicles does not cite here David's bloodshed as the reason for banning him from temple building (cf. 1 Chr 22.8–9; 28.3). 6.10 Solomon is a double fulfillment of the promise: he succeeds his father as king and he builds the temple. 6.11 Instead of with the people of Israel, 1 Kings 8.21 reads: "with our ancestors when he brought them out of the land of Egypt." Chronicles stresses the contemporary validity of the covenant more than its antiquity, and it omits a reference to the exodus. (See also the note on 6.41–42; an equivalent for 1 Kings 8.51, 53 is omitted.) The exodus is mentioned in 2 Chr 6.5.

6.12–42 Cf. 1 Kings 8.22–53. Chronicles follows the text of Kings closely in this passage, except that it replaces most of 1 Kings 8.50–53 with its own conclusion in vv. 41–42. 6.13 This verse is missing in 1 Kings because of scribal error. Note how both v. 12 and v. 13 end with spread out his hands. 6.14–17 Solomon 'prays that God would fulfill the dynastic promise, just as he had fulfilled his promise to David about the temple. 6.16 Walk in my law. 1 Kings 8.25 reads "walk before me." The expression in Chronicles is more concrete and may refer to canonical law. 6.18–21 The prayer struggles with ideas about God's presence. While heaven is God's dwelling place, not earth among mortals, his name has been set in the earthly temple. Solomon hopes that his own prayer and that of the people will induce God to hear and forgive. 6.22–23 These verses about oath-taking procedures, even though taken from 1 Kings 8.31–32, express well the Chronicler's theory of divine retribution. 6.24–35 Solomon urges God to respond to calamities like drought, famine, sickness, and especially military defeat by hearing the people when they repent (or turn; vv. 24, 26) and by forgiving them.

an enemy but turn again to you, confess your name, pray and plead with you in this house, ²⁵may you hear from heaven, and forgive the sin of your people Israel, and bring them again to the land that you gave to them and to their ancestors.

²⁶ "When heaven is shut up and there is no rain because they have sinned against you, and then they pray toward this place, confess your name, and turn from their sin, because you punish them, ²⁷may you hear in heaven, forgive the sin of your servants, your people Israel, when you teach them the good way in which they should walk; and send down rain upon your land, which you have given to your people as an inheritance.

²⁸ "If there is famine in the land, if there is plague, blight, mildew, locust, or caterpillar; if their enemies besiege them in any of the settlements of the lands; whatever suffering, whatever sickness there is; ²⁹whatever prayer, whatever plea from any individual or from all your people Israel, all knowing their own suffering and their own sorrows so that they stretch out their hands toward this house; ³⁰may you hear from heaven, your dwelling place, forgive, and render to all whose heart you know, according to all their ways, for only you know the human heart. ³¹Thus may they fear you and walk in your ways all the days that they live in the land that you gave to our ancestors.

³² "Likewise when foreigners, who are not of your people Israel, come from a distant land because of your great name, and your mighty hand, and your outstretched arm, when they come and pray toward this house, ³³may you hear from heaven your dwelling place, and do whatever the foreigners ask of you, in order that all the peoples of the earth may know your name and fear you, as do your people Israel, and that they may know that your name has been invoked on this house that I have built.

³⁴ "If your people go out to battle against their enemies, by whatever way you shall send them, and they pray to you toward this city that you have chosen and the house that I have built for your name, ³⁵then hear from heaven their prayer and their plea, and maintain their cause.

³⁶ "If they sin against you—for there is no one who does not sin—and you are angry with them and give them to an enemy, so that they are carried away captive to a land far or near; ³⁷then if they come to their senses in the land to which they have been taken captive, and repent, and plead with you in the land of their captivity, saying, 'We have sinned, and have done wrong; we have acted wickedly'; ³⁸if they repent with all their heart and soul in the land of their captivity, to which they were taken captive, and pray toward their land, which you gave to their ancestors, the city that you have chosen, and the house that I have built for your name, ³⁹then hear from heaven your dwelling place their prayer and their pleas, maintain their cause and forgive your people who have sinned against you. ⁴⁰Now, O my God, let your eyes be open and your ears attentive to prayer from this place.

⁴¹ "Now rise up, O LORD God, and go to your resting place, you and the ark of your might. Let your priests, O LORD God, be clothed with salvation, and let your faithful rejoice in your goodness.

⁴² O LORD God, do not reject your anointed one.

6.36-40 The focus is on the plight of Israel in exile and the belief in the effectiveness of prayer from exile reflects the main concern of the prayer in 1 Kings 8. The Chronicler also affirms elsewhere that prayers from exile are effective (33.10-13). 6.40 To prayer from this place, an addition to the text of 1 Kings, expressing the theological concern of the Chronicler's own day. 6.41-42 The conclusion of the prayer is made up of a quotation from Ps 132.8-10, 1. Thus, the Chronicler builds his hope on words ascribed to David, rather than those ascribed to Moses in the period of the exodus, as in 1 Kings 8.51, 53. 6.41 Resting place, the temple. Ark of your might.

The ark symbolized the presence of God in military battles. Salvation. Ps 132.9 reads "righteousness." In your goodness, an addition in Chronicles. 6.42 Steadfast love for your servant David. Ps 132, by way of contrast, reminds God of David's hardships and the efforts he had expended for God. Chronicles asks God to keep his promises to the anointed king, indicating that the author expects something from these old promises even after the rebuilding of the temple, perhaps even some form of a messianic hope. Isa 55.3 democratizes the "steadfast, sure love for David" by saying it now applies to all Israel.

Remember your steadfast love
for your servant David."

Solomon Dedicates the Temple

7 When Solomon had ended his prayer, fire came down from heaven and consumed the burnt offering and the sacrifices; and the glory of the LORD filled the temple. ²The priests could not enter the house of the LORD, because the glory of the LORD filled the LORD's house. ³When all the people of Israel saw the fire come down and the glory of the LORD on the temple, they bowed down on the pavement with their faces to the ground, and worshiped and gave thanks to the LORD, saying,

"For he is good,
forever."

⁴ Then the king and all the people offered sacrifice before the LORD. ⁵King Solomon offered as a sacrifice twenty-two thousand oxen and one hundred twenty thousand sheep. So the king and all the people dedicated the house of God. ⁶The priests stood at their posts; the Levites also, with the instruments for music to the LORD that King David had made for giving thanks to the LORD—for his steadfast love endures forever—whenever David offered praises by their ministry. Opposite them the priests sounded trumpets; and all Israel stood.

⁷ Solomon consecrated the middle of the court that was in front of the house of the LORD; for there he offered the burnt offerings and the fat of the offerings of well-being because the bronze altar Solomon had made could not hold the burnt offering and the grain offering and the fat parts.

⁸ At that time Solomon held the festival for seven days, and all Israel with him, a very great congregation, from Lebohamath to the Wadi of Egypt. ⁹On the eighth day they held a solemn assembly; for they had observed the dedication of the altar seven days and the festival seven days. ¹⁰On the twenty-third day of the seventh month he sent the people away to their homes, joyful and in good spirits because of the goodness that the LORD had shown to David and to Solomon and to his people Israel.

¹¹ Thus Solomon finished the house of the LORD and the king's house; all that Solomon had planned to do in the house of the LORD and in his own house he successfully accomplished.

God's Second Appearance to Solomon

¹² Then the LORD appeared to Solomon in the night and said to him: "I have heard your prayer, and have chosen this place for myself as a house of sacrifice. ¹³When I shut up the heavens so that there is no rain, or command the locust to devour the land, or send pestilence among my people, ¹⁴if my people who are

7.1-10 Cf. 1 Kings 8.54-66. 7.1 Fire from heaven authenticates the first sacrifices at the new temple, as at the first sacrifices in the wilderness (Lev 9.23-24) and at David's presentation of burnt offerings (1 Chr 21.26). Cf. also Judg 6.20-22; 1 Kings 18. 7.2 A cloud theophany also occurs in 5.13. 7.3 See note on 5.13. Chronicles omits Solomon's blessing of the people in 1 Kings 8.54-61. 7.5 The large number of sacrifices is probably a hyperbole to emphasize the importance of the occasion. Cf. the similar, large figures at ceremonies in the time of Hezekiah (29.32-36) and Josiah (35.7-9). Such sacrifices were to be eaten by the people during the fifteen-day celebration to follow. 7.8 As is fitting for such a momentous event, all Israel celebrates the dedication of the temple. The wide geographic area represented by the participants, from Lebo-hamath, the traditional northern border of Israel, to the Wadi of Egypt, the traditional southern border, recalls the pan-Israelite celebration when David prepared to bring the ark to Jerusalem (1 Chr 13). 7.9-10 The dedication lasts from the eighth to the fourteenth day of the seventh month, followed by the Feast of Tabernacles from the fifteenth to the twenty-second day of the month, with dismissal on the twenty-third day. Hezekiah also is said to have held his great Passover for two weeks (30.23). 7.10 The Chronicler adds a reference to Solomon as part of his equal treatment for the two kings of the United Kingdom (cf. 1 Kings 8.66).

7.11-22 Cf. 1 Kings 9.1-9. In this second theophany to Solomon, God gives a positive response to Solomon's prayer at the dedication of the temple (6.14-42). 7.11 Since the building of the king's palace (the king's house) took thirteen years, according to 1 Kings 7.1, the second theophany occurs much later than its position in 2 Chronicles would suggest. 7.12 In the night, a reference to the theophany at Gibeon (1.7-13). 7.12b-15 This material, not contained in 1 Kings, affirms that God will respond to the petitions of ch. 6. 7.14 Humble repentance will called by my name humble themselves, pray, seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and heal their land. ¹⁵Now my eyes will be open and my ears attentive to the prayer that is made in this place. ¹⁶For now I have chosen and consecrated this house so that my name may be there forever; my eyes and my heart will be there for all time. ¹⁷As for you, if you walk before me, as your father David walked, doing according to all that I have commanded you and keeping my statutes and my ordinances, ¹⁸then I will establish your royal throne, as I made covenant with your father David saying, 'You shall never lack a successor to rule over Israel.'

¹⁹ "But if youⁿ turn aside and forsake my statutes and my commandments that I have set before you, and go and serve other gods and worship them, ²⁰then I will pluck you^o up from the land that I have given you;^o and this house, which I have consecrated for my name, I will cast out of my sight, and will make it a proverb and a byword among all peoples. ²¹And regarding this house, now exalted, everyone passing by will be astonished, and say, 'Why has the LORD done such a thing to this land and to this house?' ²²Then they will say, 'Because they abandoned the LORD the God of their ancestors who brought them out of the land of Egypt, and they adopted other gods, and worshiped them and served them; therefore he has brought all this calamity upon them.'

Various Activities of Solomon

8 At the end of twenty years, during which Solomon had built the house of the LORD and his own house, ²Solomon rebuilt the cities that Hiram had given to him, and settled the people of Israel in them.

³ Solomon went to Hamath-zobah, and captured it. ⁴He built Tadmor in the wilderness and all the storage towns that he built in Hamath. ⁵He also built Upper Beth-horon and Lower Beth-horon, fortified cities, with walls, gates, and bars, ⁶and Baalath, as well as all Solomon's storage towns, and all the towns for his chariots, the towns for his cavalry, and whatever Solomon desired to build, in Jerusalem, in Lebanon, and in all the land of his dominion. ⁷All the people who were left of the Hittites, the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites,

ⁿ The word you in this verse is plural

force God to hear, forgive, and heal. Throughout the rest of 2 Chronicles this principle of immediate retribution is illustrated through the history of the Southern Kingdom. 7.18 Made covenant with, more specific and intense than in 1 Kings 9.5 ("promised"). You shall never lack a successor to rule over Israel, another indication of the low-key messianic hope of the Chronicler. 7.19–22 God's address to the people, announcing the consequences of idolatry. 7.19 You includes Solomon and the people since the Chronicler omits the reference to David's sons in 1 Kings 9.6. The evil behavior of the people would force God to banish all of them from the land. 7.21–22 A similar question and answer format dealing with the causes of the desolations of exile appears in Deut 29.24–25.

8.1–18 Cf. 1 Kings 9.10–28. The Chronicler, as here with Solomon, often discloses his approval of a king by recording his many building projects. 8.2 The parallel text in 1 Kings 9.11 reports that Solomon gave Hiram twenty cities, apparently in payment for help with his various building projects or because he needed money for something else. The Chronicler may have been embarrassed that Solomon disposed of some of the land of Israel or that he was in debt. As a result, the Chronicler changes the text to make the cities pass from Hiram (a variant spelling of Hiram) to Solomon. 8.3–6 Solomon's military successes, otherwise unreported, also show his life under blessing, though elsewhere in Chronicles he is called a man of peace (1 Chr 22.9). 8.3 Hamath-zobah, an unknown city, perhaps a scribal error. David strikes down Hadadezer of Zobah, toward Hamath, according to 1 Chr 18.3. 8.4 Tadmor, a caravan city (Palmyra) located 140 miles northeast of Damascus. 1 Kings 9.18 reads "Tamar" (a small site in southern Judah; cf. Ezek 47.19; 48.28). Hamath, modern Hama, a city located between Damascus and Aleppo on the main overland route to Mesopotamia. 8.5 Upper Beth-horon and Lower Beth-horon, twin cities in Ephraim that guarded a major pass on the road from the coast, by way of the valley of Ajalon, to the hill country and Jerusalem. 8.6 Baalath, an unidentified city in Judah. 8.7–10 The nations in v. 7 are the traditional inhabitants of the land before the arrival of Israel. Only the descendants of these nations, not the

who were not of Israel, ⁸from their descendants who were still left in the land, whom the people of Israel had not destroyed—these Solomon conscripted for forced labor, as is still the case today. ⁹But of the people of Israel Solomon made no slaves for his work; they were soldiers, and his officers, the commanders of his chariotry and cavalry. ¹⁰These were the chief officers of King Solomon, two hundred fifty of them, who exercised authority over the people.

¹¹ Solomon brought Pharaoh's daughter from the city of David to the house that he had built for her, for he said, "My wife shall not live in the house of King David of Israel, for the places to which the ark of the LORD has come are holy."

¹² Then Solomon offered up burnt offerings to the LORD on the altar of the LORD that he had built in front of the vestibule, ¹³as the duty of each day required, offering according to the commandment of Moses for the sabbaths, the new moons, and the three annual festivals—the festival of unleavened bread, the festival of weeks, and the festival of booths. ¹⁴According to the ordinance of his father David, he appointed the divisions of the priests for their service, and the Levites for their offices of praise and ministry alongside the priests as the duty of each day required, and the gatekeepers in their divisions for the several gates; for so David the man of God had commanded. ¹⁵They did not turn away from what the king had commanded the priests and Levites regarding anything at all, or regarding the treasuries.

¹⁷ Then Solomon went to Ezion-geber and Eloth on the shore of the sea, in the land of Edom. ¹⁸Huram sent him, in the care of his servants, ships and servants familiar with the sea. They went to Ophir, together with the servants of Solomon, and imported from there four hundred fifty talents of gold and brought it to King Solomon.

9 When the queen of Sheba heard of the fame of Solomon, she came to Jerusalem to test him with hard questions, having a very great retinue and camels bearing spices and very much gold and precious stones. When she came to Solomon, she discussed with him all that was on her mind. ²Solomon answered all her questions; there was nothing hidden from Solomon that he could not explain to her. ³When the queen of Sheba had observed the wisdom of Solomon, the house that he had built, ⁴the food of his table, the seating of his officials, and the attendance of his servants, and their clothing, his valets, and their clothing, and his burnt offerings^q that he offered at the house of the LORD, there was no more spirit left in her.

⁵ So she said to the king, "The report was true that I heard in my own land of your accomplishments and of your wisdom, Israelites themselves, are conscripted into forced labor according to the Chronicler. 8.11 Solomon moves a wife who was also the daughter of Pharaoh out of Jerusalem because of the sanctifying presence of the ark in the capital city. Chronicles does not include the other references from Kings to this marriage (1 Kings 3.1; 7.8; 9.16; 11.1). 8.12 Only the priests are allowed to go beyond the vestibule. 8.13–15 These verses, added by the Chronicler, demonstrate Solomon's conformity to the law of Moses (cf. Num 28–29). His appointment of the Levites follows the precedent of David, his father. Cf. 1 Chr 23–27. 8.17–18 Ezion-geber and Eloth were ports on the northeast end of the Gulf of Aqaba. A joint sailing venture with Hiram embarks from there and brings back with it four hundred fifty talents (about 33,750 pounds) of gold. Ophir, an unknown and presumably distant city. It took three years to get there (9.21).

9.1–12 Cf. 1 Kings 10.1–13. The queen of Sheba admires the wealth and wisdom of Solomon. Chronicles begins its account of Solomon with an account of Solomon's relationship with the king of Tyre (2.1–16). The queen's trip probably involved commercial interests since the trade routes to Tyre would pass through Israel. 9.1 Sheba, modern Yemen, some fourteen hundred miles from Jerusalem. The Sabaeans prospered because of trade in myrrh, frankincense, gold, and precious stones. 9.4 The NRSV emendation (see text note q) is correct; the difference between burnt offerings and ascent involves a yod, the smallest letter in the Hebrew alphabet.

⁶but I did not believe their reports until I came and my own eyes saw it. Not even half of the greatness of your wisdom had been told to me; you far surpass the report that I had heard. ⁷Happy are your people! Happy are these your servants, who continually attend you and hear your wisdom! ⁸Blessed be the LORD your God, who has delighted in you and set you on his throne as king for the LORD your God. Because your God loved Israel and would establish them forever, he has made you king over them, that you may execute justice and righteousness.” ⁹Then she gave the king one hundred twenty talents of gold, a very great quantity of spices, and precious stones: there were no spices such as those that the queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon.

¹² Meanwhile King Solomon granted the queen of Sheba every desire that she expressed, well beyond what she had brought to the king. Then she returned to her own land, with her servants.

Solomon's Great Wealth

¹³ The weight of gold that came to Solomon in one year was six hundred sixty-six talents of gold, ¹⁴besides that which the traders and merchants brought; and all the kings of Arabia and the governors of the land brought gold and silver to Solomon. ¹⁵King Solomon made two hundred large shields of beaten gold; six hundred shekels of beaten gold went into each large shield. ¹⁶He made three hundred shields of beaten gold: three hundred shekels of gold went into each shield; and the king put them in the House of the Forest of Lebanon. ¹⁷The king also made a great ivory throne, and overlaid it with pure gold. ¹⁸The throne had six steps and a footstool of gold, which were attached to the throne, and on each side of the seat were arm rests and two lions standing beside the arm rests, ¹⁹while twelve lions were standing, one on each end of a step on the six steps. The like of it was never made in any kingdom. ²⁰All King Solomon's drinking vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of the House of the Forest of Lebanon were of pure gold; silver was not considered as anything in the days of Solomon. ²¹For the king's ships went to Tarshish with the servants of Hiram; once every three years the ships of Tarshish used to come bringing gold, silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks.^t

9.8 His [God's] throne. 1 Kings 10.9 reads “the throne of Israel.” In Chronicles, the throne and kingdom are God's (1 Chr 17.14; 28.5; 29.23; 2 Chr 13.8). God's rule would continue forever, even if there were no human king, as at the time when Chronicles was written. Hiram affirms that God's love for Israel led him to place Solomon on the throne (2.11). 9.9 One hundred twenty talents, 9,000 pounds. 9.10 Chronicles goes beyond 1 Kings 10.11 by making Solomon an equal partner in Hiram's gold trade. Alnum wood. 1 Kings 10.11 reads “almug wood”; it is perhaps red sandalwood.

9.13–28 Cf. 1 Kings 10.14–29. This idealized picture of the wealth of the United Monarchy may imply that a united Israel in the future might prosper similarly. 9.13 Six hundred sixty-six talents, 49,950 pounds. 9.15 These shields will later be taken by King Shishak of Egypt (12.9–11). 9.16 House of the Forest of Lebanon. Cf. 1 Kings 7.1–12. 9.18 A footstool of gold. 1 Kings 10.19 reads “the top of the throne was rounded in the back.” The Chronicler may have found the text of Kings theologically offensive. 9.21 Tarshish, probably a site in Spain, or a designation for any distant place. Peacocks. The alternate baboons is preferred by many. 9.25 Solomon's strength in horses is already mentioned at the beginning

²⁹ Now the rest of the acts of Solomon, from first to last, are they not written in the history of the prophet Nathan, and in the prophecy of Ahijah the Shilonite, and in the visions of the seer Iddo concerning Jeroboam son of Nebat? ³⁰Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel forty years. ³¹Solomon slept with his ancestors and was buried in the city of his father David; and his son Rehoboam succeeded him.

The Revolt Against Rehoboam

10 Rehoboam went to Shechem, for all Israel had come to Shechem to make him king. ²When Jeroboam son of Nebat heard of it (for he was in Egypt, where he had fled from King Solomon), then Jeroboam returned from Egypt. ³They sent and called him; and Jeroboam

and all Israel came and said to Rehoboam, ⁴"Your father made our yoke heavy. Now therefore lighten the hard service of your father and his heavy yoke that he placed on us, and we will serve you." ⁵He said to them, "Come to me again in three days." So the people went away.

⁶ Then King Rehoboam took counsel with the older men who had attended his father Solomon while he was still alive, saying, "How do you advise me to answer this people?" ⁷They answered him, "If you will be kind to this people and please them, and speak good words to them, then they will be your servants forever." ⁸But he rejected the advice that the older men gave him, and consulted the young men who had grown up with him and now attended him. ⁹He said to them, "What do you advise that we answer this people who have said to me, 'Lighten the yoke that your father put on us'?" ¹⁰The young men who had grown up with him said to him, "Thus should you speak to the people who said to you, 'Your father made our yoke heavy, but you must lighten it for us'; tell them, 'My little finger is thicker than my father's loins. ¹¹Now, whereas my father laid on you a heavy yoke, I will add to your yoke. My

of his reign (1.14–17; 1 Kings 10.26–29). 9.26 Chronicles adds this description of the wide extent of the kingdom to provide a positive conclusion to the reign of Solomon. The words are taken from 1 Kings 4.21.

9.29–31 Cf. 1 Kings 11.41–43. Chronicles omits 1 Kings 11.1–40, which tells of Solomon's foreign wives, the Lord's decision to give most of the kingdom to one of the king's servants, and rebellions in Edom and Aram and by Jeroboam, the first king of the Northern Kingdom. 9.29 Chronicles ascribes the Book of the Acts of Solomon (1 Kings 11.41) to a series of prophetic authors: Nathan (1 Chr 17), Ahijah (1 Kings 11–15), and Iddo (2 Chr 12.15; 13.22). There is no indication that the Chronicler used any other source than 1 Kings in producing the account of Solomon. Chronicles also cites three prophets in the final summary of David (1 Chr 29.29).

10.1–19 Cf. 1 Kings 12.1–20. The Northern tribes protest against Solomon's oppressive rule, rebel against Rehoboam, and set up the rival Northern Kingdom. They remain part of Israel, according to the Chronicler, but they need to repent of forsaking God. 10.1 Forty-one miles north of Jerusalem, Shechem was important in the patriarchal period (Abraham, Jacob) and was the site of Joshua's farewell address (Josh 24). The choice of the traditional city of Shechem as the site for Rehoboam's coronation may imply resistance to the Davidic dynasty and its capital at Jerusalem. All Israel in Chronicles refers to all of the tribes. In 1 Kings only the Northern tribes are meant. 10.2 Jeroboam is not mentioned previously in Chronicles, except for 2 Chr 9.29. Chronicles seems to assume knowledge of 1 Kings 11.26–40. Jeroboam rebels against Solomon and flees to Egypt. Solomon seeks to kill Jeroboam after he has been designated king of the ten Northern tribes by Ahijah, a prophet from Shiloh. 10.4 The hard service and heavy yoke probably include taxes and forced labor. Cf. the mention of the taskmaster over forced labor (v. 18) with the denial that Solomon really utilizes the corvée within Israel (2.17–18; 8.7–10). The elders counsel moderation and conciliation; Rehoboam's own generation urges a hard-line approach. Rehoboam is already forty-one years old. 10.10 My little finger, lit. "my little one," a euphemism for the penis. By using this coarse comparison Rehoboam promises a far harsher rule than his father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions.’”

12 So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the third day, as the king had said, “Come to me again the third day.” 13The king answered them harshly. King Rehoboam rejected the advice of the older men; 14he spoke to them in accordance with the advice of the young men, “My father made your yoke heavy, but I will add to it; my father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions.” 15So the king did not listen to the people, because it was a turn of affairs brought about by God so that the LORD might fulfill his word, which he had spoken by Ahijah the Shilonite to Jeroboam son of Nebat.

16 When all Israel saw that the king would not listen to them, the people answered the king,

“What share do we have in David?

We have no inheritance in the son of Jesse.

Each of you to your tents,
O Israel!

Look now to your own house,
O David.”

So all Israel departed to their tents. 17But

Rehoboam reigned over the people of Israel who were living in the cities of Judah. 18When King Rehoboam sent Hadoram, who was taskmaster over the forced labor, the people of Israel stoned him to death. King Rehoboam hurriedly mounted his chariot to flee to Jerusalem. 19So Israel has been in rebellion against the house of David to this day.

Judah and Benjamin Fortified

11 When Rehoboam came to Jerusalem, he assembled one hundred eighty thousand chosen troops of the house of Judah and Benjamin to fight against Israel, to restore the kingdom to Rehoboam. 2But the word of the LORD came to Shemaiah the man of God: 3Say to King Rehoboam of Judah, son of Solomon, and to all Israel in Judah and Benjamin, 4“Thus says the LORD: You shall not go up or fight against your kindred. Let everyone return home, for this thing is from me.” So they heeded the word of the LORD and turned back from the expedition against Jeroboam.

5 Rehoboam resided in Jerusalem, and he built cities for defense in Judah. 6He built up Bethlehem, Etam, Tekoa, 7Beth-zur, Soco, Adullam, 8Gath, Mare-father. 10.11 Scorpions, perhaps a type of scourge. 10.15 Turn of affairs. The same Hebrew root used here to refer to God's control of events is also found in 1 Chr 10.14 to speak of God's handing the kingdom from Saul to David. Ahijah's word about the division of the kingdom (1 Kings 11.29–39) is not contained in 2 Chronicles. 10.16 Saw. The verb is lacking in the Hebrew; the NRSV here follows the text of 1 Kings 12.16. What share . . . O David, the poem rejecting Rehoboam's kingship forms a mirror image to Amasai's cry of support for David (1 Chr 12.18; cf. 1 Sam 25.10; 2 Sam 20.1). 10.18 Hadoram. 1 Kings 12.18 reads “Adoram.” By sending the leader of the forced labor Rehoboam confirms his hard line and provokes strong opposition. People of Israel. The Chronicler includes the citizens of the Northern Kingdom in the concept “Israel.” Chronicles omits an equivalent for 1 Kings 12.20, which reports that all Israel anoints Jeroboam to be their king.

11.1–4 Cf. 1 Kings 12.21–24. The prophet Shemaiah successfully warns Rehoboam not to fight against the North, and this results in a temporary truce. 11.1 One hundred eighty thousand. The number of troops is much larger than the size of ancient armies, but Chronicles has even bigger figures elsewhere (580,000 at the time of Asa, 2 Chr 14.8; 307,500 at the time of Uzziah, 2 Chr 26.10). 11.3 All Israel in Judah and Benjamin. 1 Kings 12.23 reads “all the house of Judah and Benjamin.” In Chronicles both North and South may be called Israel (for the North, see 2 Chr 10.16). 11.4 Against your kindred. 1 Kings 12.24 reads “against your kindred the people of Israel.” Note that the Northerners in Chronicles are still deemed kindred (brothers). This thing is from me. The Lord takes responsibility in this verse for the division of the kingdom.

11.5–12 According to this paragraph, which is unique to Chronicles, Rehoboam erected fortresses at fifteen strategic sites to protect his kingdom from the west, south, and east. A lack of fortresses in the north may imply that he intended to expand his territory in that direction. The western border is pulled back somewhat, perhaps indicating that the territory defended reflects the effects of Shishak's invasion. According to archaeology, Beth-zur (v. 7) was destroyed at the time of Rehoboam, and Lachish (v. 9) was not yet fortified. The list may, therefore, come from a later king. Theologically, Rehoboam's building project shows he was under divine favor. 11.8 Gath, Moresheth-gath or Tell Judeideh.

shah, Ziph, ⁹Adoraim, Lachish, Azekah, ¹⁰Zorah, Aijalon, and Hebron, fortified cities that are in Judah and in Benjamin. ¹¹He made the fortresses strong, and put commanders in them, and stores of food, oil, and wine. ¹²He also put large shields and spears in all the cities, and made them very strong. So he held Judah and Benjamin.

Priests and Levites Support Rehoboam

¹³The priests and the Levites who were in all Israel presented themselves to him from all their territories. ¹⁴The Levites had left their common lands and their holdings and had come to Judah and Jerusalem, because Jeroboam and his sons had prevented them from serving as priests of the LORD, ¹⁵and had appointed his own priests for the high places, and for the goat-demons, and for the calves that he had made. ¹⁶Those who had set their hearts to seek the LORD God of Israel came after them from all the tribes of Israel to Jerusalem to sacrifice to the LORD, the God of their ancestors. ¹⁷They strengthened the kingdom of Judah, and for three years they made Rehoboam son of Solomon secure, for they walked for three years in the way of David and Solomon.

Rehoboam's Marriages

¹⁸Rehoboam took as his wife Mahalath daughter of Jerimoth son of David, and of Abihail daughter of Eliab son of Jesse. ¹⁹She bore him sons: Jeush, Shemaiah, and Zaham. ²⁰After her he took Maacah daughter of Absalom, who bore him Abijah, Attai, Ziza, and Shelomith. ²¹Rehoboam loved Maacah daughter of Absalom more than all his other wives and concubines (he took eighteen wives and sixty concubines, and became the father of twenty-eight sons and sixty daughters). ²²Rehoboam appointed Abijah son of Maacah as chief prince among his brothers, for he intended to make him king. ²³He dealt wisely, and distributed some of his sons through all the districts of Judah and Benjamin, in all the fortified cities; he gave them abundant provisions, and found many wives for them.

Egypt Attacks Judah

12 When the rule of Rehoboam was established and he grew strong, he abandoned the law of the LORD, he and all Israel with him. ²In the fifth year of King Rehoboam, because they had been unfaithful to the LORD, King Shishak of Egypt came up against Jerusalem ³with twelve hundred chariots and sixty

11.13–17 The priests and Levites, banned from liturgical service by Jeroboam, rally to Rehoboam. Laity join in this movement (cf. v. 16). 11.15 Goat-demons. Cf. Lev 17.7. Originally pedestals for Yahweh, statues of calves are interpreted in the books of Kings and in Chronicles as idolatrous. 11.16 Seek the LORD, a favorite phrase in Chronicles for faithfulness. 11.17 Three years of obedience are followed by apostasy (12.1) and the invasion of Shishak (12.2). The positive behavior in the first years of Rehoboam is compared to conduct during the reigns of David and Solomon (cf. 7.10). The end of Solomon's reign according to 1 Kings had been highly flawed.

11.18–23 Rehoboam establishes a household. 11.18 Mahalath, second cousin to Rehoboam. Her paternal grandfather is David (as is Rehoboam's), and her maternal grandfather is David's brother Eliab. Her parents are first cousins. 11.20 Maacah, granddaughter of David's rebellious son Absalom (2 Sam 13–18). She is descended from Uriel and his wife Tamar, the daughter of Absalom (cf. 2 Chr 13.2). In 1 Kings 15.10 she is the wife of Abijah. Abijah succeeds Rehoboam on the throne even though he is not the eldest (cf. v. 22). 11.21 Rehoboam's numerous wives and concubines are far fewer than those of his father, Solomon (1 Kings 11.17; not mentioned in Chronicles). They serve as signs of God's blessing.

12.1–14 Cf. 1 Kings 14.25–28. 12.1 Abandoned is one of the chief terms for disobedience in Chronicles; see v. 5. Specific misdeeds are listed in 1 Kings 14.22–24. The law of the LORD. The Pentateuch probably had canonical status by the time of the Chronicler. 12.2 Unfaithful, another common term (see note on 12.1) for disobedience in Chronicles, without parallel in 1 Kings 14.25. Shishak (Shoshenq I, ca. 945–924 B.C.E.) was founder of the twenty-second (Libyan) dynasty in Egypt. His own account of this battle, recorded on the walls of the Amun-Re temple at Karnak, lists more than 150 towns. 12.3 Libyans, people from the North African coast, just west of Egypt. Sukkiim, a group of Libyan forces from the western desert. Ethiopians. Ethiopia in biblical times was the region between the first and second cataracts of the Nile, south of Aswan, and was not identical thousand cavalry. A countless army came with him from Egypt—Libyans, Sukkiim, and Ethiopians.⁴ He took the fortified cities of Judah and came as far as Jerusalem.⁵ Then the prophet Shemaiah came to Rehoboam and to the officers of Judah, who had gathered at Jerusalem because of Shishak, and said to them, “Thus says the LORD: You abandoned me, so I have abandoned you to the hand of Shishak.”⁶ Then the officers of Israel and the king humbled themselves and said, “The LORD is in the right.”⁷ When the LORD saw that they humbled themselves, the word of the LORD came to Shemaiah, saying: “They have humbled themselves; I will not destroy them, but I will grant them some deliverance, and my wrath shall not be poured out on Jerusalem by the hand of Shishak.⁸ Nevertheless they shall be his servants, so that they may know the difference between serving me and serving the kingdoms of other lands.”

⁹ So King Shishak of Egypt came up against Jerusalem; he took away the treasures of the house of the LORD and the treasures of the king's house; he took everything. He also took away the shields of gold that Solomon had made; ¹⁰but King Rehoboam made in place of them shields of bronze, and committed them to the hands of the officers of the guard, who kept the door of the king's house.

¹¹ Whenever the king went into the house of the LORD, the guard would come along bearing them, and would then bring them back to the guardroom. ¹² Because he humbled himself the wrath of the LORD turned from him, so as not to destroy them completely; moreover, conditions were good in Judah.

Death of Rehoboam

¹³ So King Rehoboam established himself in Jerusalem and reigned. Rehoboam was forty-one years old when he began to reign; he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city that the LORD had chosen out of all the tribes of Israel to put his name there. His mother's name was Naamah the Ammonite. ¹⁴ He did evil, for he did not set his heart to seek the LORD.

with modern Ethiopia. 12.4 Fortified cities. Cf. 11.6–10. Aijalon occurs in 11.10 and in Shishak's list. According to Shishak's account, his major attack was on the Negeb region in the south and on Israel in the north. At least part of his forces moved toward Gibeon, where Shishak may have received the submission and tribute of Rehoboam. This would explain why the city was spared, according to the Bible, and account for the lack of any reference to Jerusalem in Shishak's account. Thereafter, Shishak turned north and invaded Israel. 12.5–8 The speech by Shemaiah (cf. 11.2) does not occur in 1 Kings. 12.5 Exact retribution is described in this verse. For the word abandon, see 1 Chr 28.9; 2 Chr 15.2; 24.20 (where the term is translated “forsaken”). 12.6 The government's repentance takes the form of its leaders humbling themselves (cf. 2 Chr 7.14; 12.7, 12) and confessing the righteousness of the Lord. 12.7 The Lord's acceptance of their repentance fulfills the promise in the divine oracle delivered to Solomon in 7.14 and explains why Jerusalem escapes the full brunt of Shishak's attack. 12.8 Service to a foreign king would be more burdensome than service to the Lord. 12.9 King Shishak . . . Jerusalem. The first half of the verse resumes in v. 2. 12.10 Judah's diminished circumstances lead Rehoboam to replace the shields of gold with shields of bronze. 12.12 Conditions were good in Judah, better “in Judah there was some good.” Positive retribution explains in part the sparing of Rehoboam from more serious attack.

12.13–16 Cf. 1 Kings 14.21–22, 29–31. 12.13–14 The summary of Rehoboam's reign appears after the Shishak invasion in Chronicles, instead of before it as in Kings. 12.13 In Jerusalem. 1 Kings 14.21 reads “in Judah.” Naamah the Ammonite. Note the foreign origin of Rehoboam's mother, who is mentioned twice in 1 Kings (14.21, 31). 12.14 The effects of Rehoboam's evil are illustrated in this chapter. To seek is the opposite of to abandon (v. 1). 12.15 Chronicles changes the “Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah” from 1 Kings 14.29 into prophetic sources written by Shemaiah and Iddo. Genealogy, unclear, perhaps a reference to another source.

Abijah Reigns over Judah

13 In the eighteenth year of King Jeroboam, Abijah began to reign over Judah. ²He reigned for three years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Micaiah daughter of Uriel of Gibeah.

Now there was war between Abijah and Jeroboam. ³Abijah engaged in battle, having an army of valiant warriors, four hundred thousand picked men; and Jeroboam drew up his line of battle against him with eight hundred thousand picked mighty warriors. ⁴Then Abijah stood on the slope of Mount Zemaraim that is in the hill country of Ephraim, and said, "Listen to me, Jeroboam and all Israel! ⁵Do you not know that the LORD God of Israel gave the kingship over Israel forever to David and his sons by a covenant of salt? ⁶Yet Jeroboam son of Nebat, a servant of Solomon son of David, rose up and rebelled against his lord; ⁷and certain worthless scoundrels gathered around him and defied Rehoboam son of Solomon, when Rehoboam was young and irresolute and could not withstand them.

⁸ "And now you think that you can withstand the kingdom of the LORD in the hand of the sons of David, because you are a great multitude and have with you the golden calves that Jeroboam made as gods for you. ⁹Have you not driven out the priests of the LORD, the descendants of Aaron, and the Levites, and made priests for yourselves like the peoples of other lands? Whoever comes to be consecrated with a young bull or seven rams becomes a priest of what are no gods. ¹⁰But as for us, the LORD is our God, and we have not abandoned him. We have priests ministering to the LORD who are descendants of Aaron, and Levites for their service. ¹¹They offer to the LORD every morning and every evening burnt offerings and fragrant incense, set out the rows of bread on the table of pure gold, and care for the golden lampstand so that its lamps may burn every evening; for we keep the charge of the LORD our God, but you have abandoned him. ¹²See, God is with us at our head, and his priests have their battle trumpets to sound the call to battle against you. O Israelites, do not fight against the LORD, the God of your ancestors; for you cannot succeed."

¹³ Jeroboam had sent an ambush around to come on them from behind; thus his troops^v were in front of Judah, and the ambush was behind them. ¹⁴When Judah turned, the battle was in front of them and behind them. They cried out to the LORD, and the priests blew the trumpets. ¹⁵Then the people of Judah raised the battle shout. And when the people of Judah shouted, God defeated Jeroboam and all Israel before Abijah and

Abijah has a different mother and grandfather in 1 Kings 15.2, Maacah and Abishalom, respectively. The source for the information about constant warfare is 1 Kings 15.7. Cf. 1 Kings 15.6. 13.3 The size of the armies is enormous (cf. 2 Sam 24.9). God helps Abijah and Judah to victory despite their being outnumbered two to one. 13.4–12 The speech of Abijah was composed by the Chronicler and reflects his theology. 13.4 Mount Zemaraim. Cf. Josh 18.22. The territory of Benjamin served as a kind of buffer between the North and the South. 13.5 Covenant of salt. Cf. Lev 2.13; Num 18.19. The covenant with David is everlasting. 13.6–7 Jeroboam is criticized for rebellion and for associating with the wrong crowd; Reho-boam's fault is attributed to his youth. With the pious Abijah on the throne, there is no reason for the North to rebel. 13.8–11 The sin of the Northern Kingdom is balanced by the faithfulness of the Southern Kingdom. The North resists God's kingdom as manifested in the Davidic dynasty (1 Chr 17.14), worships the golden calves as gods (2 Chr 11.15), drives out the Aaronite priests and Levites, and makes priests out of all who step forward with a gift in their hand (cf. 11.14–15). Abijah confesses the faith of his people in the Lord (cf. v. 18) and states that the South has not abandoned him (while the North has; 12.1). The legitimate Aaronite priests and the Levites carry out the appropriate sacrifices each day. 13.12 With God on the side of Judah and the priests ready to blow their trumpets to initiate holy war, the situation of the North is hopeless. 13.13–20 A battle account. 13.13 Judah is outnumbered and trapped between two wings of Israel's army. 13.14–15 Trumpet blasts and battle cries induce God to intervene in the battle.

Judah. ¹⁶The Israelites fled before Judah, and God gave them into their hands. ¹⁷Abijah and his army defeated them with great slaughter; five hundred thousand picked men of Israel fell slain. ¹⁸Thus the Israelites were subdued at that time, and the people of Judah prevailed, because they relied on the LORD, the God of their ancestors. ¹⁹Abijah pursued Jeroboam, and took cities from him: Bethel with its villages and Jeshanah with its villages and Ephron^w with its villages. ²⁰Jeroboam did not recover his power in the days of Abijah; the LORD struck him down, and he died. ²¹But Abijah grew strong. He took fourteen wives, and became the father of twenty-two sons and sixteen daughters. ²²The rest of the acts of Abijah, his behavior and his deeds, are written in the story of the prophet Iddo.

Asa Reigns

14^x So Abijah slept with his ancestors, and they buried him in the city of David. His son Asa succeeded him. In his days the land had rest for ten years. ^{2y}Asa did what was good and right in the sight of the LORD his God. ³He took away the foreign altars and the high places, broke down the pillars, hewed down the sacred poles,^z ⁴and commanded Judah to seek the LORD, the God of their ancestors, and to keep the law and the commandment. ⁵He also removed from all the cities of Judah the high places and the incense altars. And the kingdom had rest under him. ⁶He built fortified cities in Judah while the land had rest. He had no war in those years, for the LORD gave him peace. ⁷He said to Judah, "Let us build these cities, and surround them with walls and towers, gates and bars; the land is still ours because we have sought the LORD our God; we have sought him, and he has given us peace on every side." So they built and prospered. ⁸Asa had an army of three hundred thousand from Judah, armed with large shields and spears, and two hundred eighty thousand troops from Benjamin who carried shields and drew bows; all these were mighty warriors.

13.16–17 Judah's role is to pursue a fleeing enemy. The casualties are caused by divine intervention; the action of the Judahite army seems incidental to the war itself. Five hundred thousand. In all of World War II the United States had about 400,000 fatal casualties. 13.19 Bethel, Jeshanah, and Ephron. Abijah expands his territory toward the north by taking these cities of Benjamin (Josh 18.21–24). 13.20 The verse implies that Jeroboam outlived Abijah (cf. 1 Kings 15.9). According to 1 Kings 14.20, Jeroboam seems to have died peacefully. 13.21 Abijah's many wives and children indicate divine favor. Cf. 11.22. Note how Abijah also grew strong. 13.22 Story, lit. "the midrash." See the visions of Iddo in 9.29 and his records in 12.15. In 1 Kings 15.7 the sources are given as the "Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah." Chronicles turns this into a prophetic record. 14.1 Rest, a characteristic feature of pious reigns (cf. vv. 5–6; 1 Chr 22.9). Ten years, proper retribution for the pious king Asa; but 1 Kings 15.16 speaks of continual warfare between Baasha and Asa.

14.2–8 Cf. 1 Kings 15.11. The Chronicler omits 1 Kings 15.12 and does not return to the Kings text until 2 Chr 15.16 (1 Kings 15.13).

14.3 The high places are not removed by the king according to a later summary (15.17; 1 Kings 15.14). Asa's actions in these verses correspond to the directives of Deut 7.5; 12.3; 16.21–22 and make him a reformer somewhat like Hezekiah and Josiah. 14.4 Seek. The same term for faithfulness occurs nine times in the three chapters dealing with Asa. 14.5 Incense altars or shrines: the meaning of the word in Hebrew is uncertain. 14.6–7 Asa's obedience brings peace and provides the wherewithal to build. Divine protection, however, would seem to obviate the need for additional fortified cities. 14.7 We have sought him. Many emend the text to read "He has sought us." 14.8 The army of 580,000 shows the divine favor that rests upon Asa. The army, which lacks horses and chariots, is roughly half the size of Zerah's.

14.9–15 Asa shows complete reliance upon the Lord. 14.9 Zerah, otherwise unknown. A million men. The number dramatizes the danger posed by Zerah and the fact that the Lord helps the weak Southern Kingdom (v. 11). Three hundred chariots, a more realistic number, or a small number because Zerah and the Ethiopians were seminomadic (note the camels and the tent dwell-

Help us, O LORD our God, for we rely on you, and in your name we have come against this multitude. O LORD, you are our God; let no mortal prevail against you." ¹²So the LORD defeated the Ethiopians^b before Asa and before Judah, and the Ethiopians^b fled. ¹³Asa and the army with him pursued them as far as Gerar, and the Ethiopians^b fell until no one remained alive; for they were broken before the LORD and his army. The people of Judah^c carried away a great quantity of booty. ¹⁴They defeated all the cities around Gerar, for the fear of the LORD was on them. They plundered all the cities; for there was much plunder in them. ¹⁵They also attacked the tents of those who had livestock,^d and carried away sheep and goats in abundance, and camels. Then they returned to Jerusalem.

Azariah's Prophecy and Asa's Reform

15 The spirit of God came upon Azariah son of Oded. ²He went out to meet Asa and said to him, "Hear me, Asa, and all Judah and Benjamin: The LORD is with you, while you are with him.

If you seek him, he will be found by you, but if you abandon him, he will abandon you. ³For a long time Israel was without the true God, and without a teaching priest, and without law; ⁴but when in their distress they turned to the LORD, the God of Israel, and sought him, he was found by them. ⁵In those times it was not safe for anyone to go or come, for great disturbances afflicted all the inhabitants of the lands. ⁶They were broken in pieces, nation against nation and city against city, for God troubled them with every sort of distress. ⁷But you, take courage! Do not let your hands be weak, for your work shall be rewarded."

⁸When Asa heard these words, the prophecy of Azariah son of Oded,^e he took courage, and put away the abominable idols from all the land of Judah and Benjamin and from the towns that he had taken in the hill country of Ephraim. He repaired the altar of the LORD that was in front of the vestibule of the house of the LORD.^f ⁹He gathered all Judah and Benjamin, and those from Ephraim, Manasseh, and Simeon who were residing as aliens with them, for great numbers had deserted to him from Israel when they

Gen 20.1–2; 26.1), a city about thirty miles southwest of Mareshah. The divine army completely destroys the million-person Ethiopian army. All Judah has to do is collect the booty. 14.14 The fear instilled by the Lord makes Israel's victory over neighboring cities easy (cf. Ex 23.28; Deut 7.20, 23; Josh 24.12). 14.15 Livestock is taken even from the civilian herdsmen.

15.1–19 Cf. 1 Kings 15.13–15. 15.1 The spirit of God connotes prophetic inspiration and authority (cf. 20.14). Azariah son of Oded, otherwise unknown. 15.2–7 Azariah's sermon. 15.2 The maxims in this verse seem to be based on the victory over Zerah (cf. 14.4, 7). The Lord has been with Asa because of his early reforms (14.3–5) and because of his faith (14.11). 15.3 This verse seems to describe the period of the judges, when there was no priest to give authoritative direction (law). 15.4 Cf. Judg 2.18. 15.7 Azariah urges Asa to complete his work of reform. Readers of Chronicles are to expect the same kind of deliverance that their ancestors experienced in the past (v. 4). The Chronicler cites Jer 31.16 ("There is a reward for your work") and Zeph 3.16 ("Do not let your hands grow weak") in order to make his message compelling for his own generation. 15.8 Since the reform includes portions of Ephraim from the Northern Kingdom, Asa apparently engages in combat against the North before his thirty-sixth year (16.1). Altar of the LORD, used for burnt offerings. 15.9 Ephraim, Manasseh, and Simeon. The association of the Southern tribe Simeon with the Northern tribes Ephraim and Manasseh is unexplained. Perhaps circumstances have forced elements of Simeon to move north. Asa and other Southern kings (Jehoshaphat, Hezekiah, and Josiah) attempt to include the North within their control and to bring about recognition of the ritual life centered at the Jerusalem temple. The Chronicler cites these examples in support of his own desire to incorporate all Israel into the cult of the Jerusalem saw that the LORD his God was with him. ¹⁰They were gathered at Jerusalem in the third month of the fifteenth year of the reign of Asa. ¹¹They sacrificed to the LORD on that day, from the booty that they had brought, seven hundred oxen and seven thousand sheep. ¹²They entered into a covenant to seek the LORD, the God of their ancestors, with all their heart and with all their soul. ¹³Whoever would not seek the LORD, the God of Israel, should be put to death, whether young or old, man or woman. ¹⁴They took an oath to the LORD with a loud voice, and with shouting, and with trumpets, and with horns. ¹⁵All Judah rejoiced over the oath; for they had sworn with all their heart, and had sought him with their whole desire, and he was found by them, and the LORD gave them rest all around.

¹⁶ King Asa even removed his mother Maacah from being queen mother because she had made an abominable image for Asherah. Asa cut down her image, crushed it, and burned it at the Wadi Kidron. ¹⁷But the high places were not taken out of Israel. Nevertheless the heart of Asa was true all his days. ¹⁸He brought into the house of God the votive gifts of his father and his own votive gifts—silver, gold, and utensils. ¹⁹And there was no more war until the thirty-fifth year of the reign of Asa.

Alliance with Aram Condemned

16 In the thirty-sixth year of the reign of Asa, King Baasha of Israel went up against Judah, and built Ramah, to prevent anyone from going out or coming into the territory of King Asa of Judah. ²Then Asa took silver and gold from the treasures of the house of the LORD and the king's house, and sent them to King Ben-hadad of Aram, who resided in Damascus, saying, ³"Let there be an alliance between me and you, like that between my father and your father; I am sending to you silver and gold; go, break your alliance with King Baasha of Israel, so that he may withdraw from me." ⁴Ben-hadad listened to King Asa, and sent the commanders of his armies against the cities of Israel. They conquered Ijon, Dan, Abel-maim, and all the store-cities of Naphtali. ⁵When Baasha heard of it, he stopped building Ramah, and let his work cease. ⁶Then King Asa brought all Judah, and they carried away the stones of Ramah and its timber, with which Baasha

Jezebel was also an advocate for Asherah (1 Kings 18.19). Wadi Kidron, a valley between the Temple Mount and the Mount of Olives. Hezekiah (2 Chr 29.16; 30.14) and Josiah (2 Kings 23.4–6) also destroy cult objects there. 15.17 High places . . . out of Israel. Out of Israel is added by the Chronicler. Israel is here a designation for the Northern Kingdom. 15.19 No more war until the thirty-fifth year is in tension with 1 Kings 15.16, which describes continuous warfare between Asa and Baasha. More is not contained in the Hebrew text. The Chronicler apparently does not consider the conflicts of 14.9–15; 15.8 to be full warfare. Some scholars believe that the thirty-fifth year should be calculated as dating from the division of the United Monarchy. If so, the thirty-fifth year of v. 19 and the fifteenth year of v. 10 would be the same.

16.1–10 Cf. 1 Kings 15.17–22. 16.1 According to 1 Kings 16.6, 8 Baasha dies in Asa's twenty-sixth year. The date in this verse (the thirty-sixth year of Asa) may be calculated historically from the division of the monarchy, making it only the sixteenth year of Asa's reign. The Chronicler dates Baasha's attack to the thirty-sixth year of Asa, making the vast majority of his reign positive. Baasha, the third king of the Northern Kingdom. Ramah, a town five miles north of Jerusalem. Baasha is trying to prevent people from deserting to the South (cf. v. 9). 16.2 Ben-hadad. lit. "son of Hadad" in Hebrew, the name of two or more kings. Aram, the ancient name for Syria. 16.3 Asa bribes Ben-hadad to open a second, northern front against Baasha. 16.4 The three cities lay in the northernmost part of Naphtali. 16.6 When Baasha retreats from Ramah, Asa uses the materials left behind to fortify two neigh-had been building, and with them he built up Geba and Mizpah.

7 At that time the seer Hanani came to King Asa of Judah, and said to him, "Because you relied on the king of Aram, and did not rely on the LORD your God, the army of the king of Aram has escaped you. 8 Were not the Ethiopians^h and the Libyans a huge army with exceedingly many chariots and cavalry? Yet because you relied on the LORD, he gave them into your hand. 9 For the eyes of the LORD range throughout the entire earth, to strengthen those whose heart is true to him. You have done foolishly in this; for from now on you will have wars." 10 Then Asa was angry with the seer, and put him in the stocks, in prison, for he was in a rage with him because of this. And Asa inflicted cruelties on some of the people at the same time.

Asa's Disease and Death

11 The acts of Asa, from first to last, are written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. 12 In the thirty-ninth year of his reign Asa was diseased in his feet, and his disease became severe; yet even in his disease he did not seek the LORD, but sought help from physicians. 13 Then Asa slept with his ancestors, dying in the forty-first year of his reign. 14 They buried him in the tomb that he had hewn out for himself in the city of David. They laid him on a bier that had been filled with various kinds of spices prepared by the perfumer's art; and they made a very great fire in his honor.

Jehoshaphat's Reign

17 His son Jehoshaphat succeeded him, and strengthened himself against Israel. 2 He placed forces in all the fortified cities of Judah, and set garrisons in the land of Judah, and in the cities of Ephraim that his father Asa had taken. 3 The LORD was with Jehoshaphat, because he walked in the earlier ways of his father;ⁱ he did not seek the Baals, 4 but sought the God of his father and walked in his commandments, and not according to the ways of Israel. 5 Therefore the LORD established the kingdom in his hand. All Judah brought tribute to Jehoshaphat, and he had great riches and honor. 6 His heart was courageous in the ways of the LORD; and furthermore he removed the high places and the sacred poles^j from Judah.

7 In the third year of his reign he sent boring cities. 16.7–10 The prophetic account is added by the Chronicler to express his own theological view of the faithless alliance with Ben-hadad. 16.7 Hanani later rebukes Jehoshaphat (19.2). Asa would have defeated Aram if he had remained faithful and is indicted for lack of faith as evidenced in his foreign alliance (cf. 14.11). 16.8 Asa's reliance on the Lord in the past led to the defeat of Zerah, the Ethiopians, and the Libyans (14.9–15). 16.9 A quotation from Zech 4.10. God will protect those who are loyal. 16.10 Stocks. Asa's treatment of Hanani resembles Pashhur's treatment of the prophet Jeremiah (Jer 20.2–3). In prison is not in the Hebrew text. Asa's anger over the prophetic oracle leads to violence against other people as well.

16.11–14 Cf. 1 Kings 15.23–24. 16.11 The Chronicler adds and Israel to his source reference, perhaps to indicate that Judah is part of the larger people of Israel. 16.12 A year after his treaty with Ben-hadad, Asa becomes sick with a foot disease, demonstrating the immediate effect of negative retribution (cf. 12.2; 24.23). Even then he does not demonstrate faith but seeks the help of (has faith in) doctors. 16.14 Chronicles adds additional details to the death and burial account of

Asa (spices, a great fire in his honor) that underscore the positive evaluation of his life. Through his first thirty-five years he won great victories and led the nation in reform; in his last six years he showed lack of faith and he practiced cruelty. 17.1–19 The Chronicler's assessment of Jehoshaphat is positive in chs. 17 and 20, but the chapters in between criticize him for two foreign alliances. Only the first half verse in ch. 17 is dependent on 1 Kings (15.24b); the rest is from the Chronicler. 17.2 The king's military strength indicates divine favor. 17.3–4 Earlier ways of his father, the ways of Asa, who is described as faithful for his first thirty-five years. (The Hebrew text mistakenly identifies this ancestor with David.) Jehoshaphat did not seek the Baals, but sought the God of his father. Fidelity to God and his commandments is contrasted generically with the conduct of the Northern Kingdom (the ways of Israel). 17.5 Because of his faith and pious works, tribute and honor are paid to Jehoshaphat by the whole kingdom of Judah. 17.6 High places. Cf. 20.33. Sacred poles, dedicated to the goddess Asherah. Jehoshaphat is a reforming king. 17.7 Third year. The Chronicler may have believed that Jehoshaphat was a coregent with Asa during his

his officials, Ben-hail, Obadiah, Zechariah, Nethanel, and Micaiah, to teach in the cities of Judah. ⁸With them were the Levites, Shemaiah, Nethaniah, Zebadiah, Asahel, Shemiramoth, Jehonathan, Adonijah, Tobijah, and Tob-adonijah; and with these Levites, the priests Elishama and Jehoram. ⁹They taught in Judah, having the book of the law of the LORD with them; they went around through all the cities of Judah and taught among the people.

¹⁰ The fear of the LORD fell on all the kingdoms of the lands around Judah, and they did not make war against Jehoshaphat. ¹¹Some of the Philistines brought Jehoshaphat presents, and silver for tribute; and the Arabs also brought him seven thousand seven hundred rams and seven thousand seven hundred male goats. ¹²Jehoshaphat grew steadily greater. He built fortresses and storage cities in Judah. ¹³He carried out great works in the cities of Judah. He had soldiers, mighty warriors, in Jerusalem. ¹⁴This was the muster of them by ancestral houses: Of Judah, the commanders of the thousands: Adnah the commander, with three hundred thousand mighty warriors, ¹⁵and next to him Jehohanan the commander, with two hundred eighty thousand, ¹⁶and next to him Amasiah son of Zichri, a volunteer for the service of the LORD, with two hundred thousand mighty warriors. ¹⁷Of Benjamin: Eliada, a mighty warrior, with two hundred thousand armed with bow and shield, ¹⁸and next to him Jehozabad with one hundred eighty thousand armed for war. ¹⁹These were in the service of the king, besides those whom the king had placed in the fortified cities throughout all Judah.

Micaiah Predicts Failure

18 Now Jehoshaphat had great riches and honor; and he made a marriage alliance with Ahab. ²After some years he went down to Ahab in Samaria. Ahab slaughtered an abundance of sheep and oxen for him and for the people who were with him, and induced him to go up against Ramoth-gilead. ³King Ahab of Israel said to King Jehoshaphat of Judah, "Will you go with me to Ramoth-gilead?" He answered him, "I am with you, my people are your people. We will be with you in the war."

⁴ But Jehoshaphat also said to the king of Israel, "Inquire first for the word of the LORD." ⁵Then the king of Israel gathered the prophets together, four hundred of them, and said to them, "Shall final two years of illness. Within a year after assuming sole power he sends out a sixteen-person teaching commission. 17.8 Tob-adonijah may be a mistaken duplication of the two previous names. The list probably antedates the Chronicler. Note the prominence of the laity and the listing of Levites before priests. It is not clear whether the mission of this group is related to the judicial reform in 19.4–11. 17.9 For the Chronicler, the book of the law is the Pentateuch. At Jehoshaphat's time, when the Pentateuch had not yet been completed, it may have been some kind of royal law code. 17.10–11 Fear induced by God prevents surrounding nations from attacking Judah and induces Philistines and Arabs to pay lavish tribute. 17.13–19 While Jehoshaphat has troops throughout Judah (vv. 2, 19), he also has an extraordinarily large army in Jerusalem: 1,160,000. The size of this army serves to indicate Jehoshaphat's high standing before God. None of the five leaders is known from other sources. An epithet of Amasiah, a volunteer for the service of the LORD (v. 16), gives an air of verisimilitude to the whole list.

18.1–19.3 Cf. 1 Kings 22.1–40. This is the only time in Chronicles that a lengthy text from 1 or 2 Kings dealing with a Northern king is included. Chronicles omits the bloody details of Ahab's death (1 Kings 22.35–38) and Ahab's final regnal formula (1 Kings 22.39–40). The Chronicler makes significant changes at the beginning and end; the rest is largely unchanged from 1 Kings 22. 18.1 Now, better "although." The information about Jehoshaphat's riches in 17.5 should have removed the need for an alliance. Jehoshaphat's son Jehoram marries Athaliah, the daughter of Ahab. 18.2 The context in Chronicles makes Jehoshaphat's trip to Samaria part of the marriage agreement, with Ahab preparing a banquet of sheep and cattle. Ahab plays the role of tempter: he induced, or "seduced," Jehoshaphat into going with him. Ramoth-gilead, a city in the territory of Gad, some twenty-five miles east of the Jordan River. 18.4–11 The four hundred court prophets assure the two kings that God supports the upcoming battle. At Jehoshaphat's request, Ahab agrees to send for Micaiah son of Imlah, a prophet known for his unfavorable messages. A prophet named Zedekiah performs a symbolic act, in which he compares the army to a we go to battle against Ramoth-gilead, or shall I refrain?" They said, "Go up; for God will give it into the hand of the king." ⁶But Jehoshaphat said, "Is there no other prophet of the LORD here of whom we may inquire?" ⁷The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, "There is still one other by whom we may inquire of the LORD, Micaiah son of Imlah; but I hate him, for he never prophesies anything favorable about me, but only disaster." Jehoshaphat said, "Let the king not say such a thing." ⁸Then the king of Israel summoned an officer and said, "Bring quickly Micaiah son of Imlah." ⁹Now the king of Israel and King Jehoshaphat of Judah were sitting on their thrones, arrayed in their robes; and they were sitting at the threshing floor at the entrance of the gate of Samaria; and all the prophets were prophesying before them. ¹⁰Zedekiah son of Chenaanah made for himself horns of iron, and he said, "Thus says the LORD: With these you shall gore the Arameans until they are destroyed." ¹¹All the prophets were prophesying the same and saying, "Go up to Ramoth-gilead and triumph; the LORD will give it into the hand of the king."

¹² The messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, "Look, the words of the prophets with one accord are favorable to the king; let your word be like the word of one of them, and speak favorably." ¹³But Micaiah said, "As the LORD lives, whatever my God says, that I will speak."

¹⁴ When he had come to the king, the king said to him, "Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall I refrain?" He answered, "Go up and triumph; they will be given into your hand." ¹⁵But the king said to him, "How many times must I make you swear to tell me nothing but the truth in the name of the LORD?" ¹⁶Then Micaiah^k said, "I saw all Israel scattered on the mountains, like sheep without a shepherd; and the LORD said, 'These have no master; let each one go home in peace.'" ¹⁷The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, "Did I not tell you that he would not prophesy anything favorable about me, but only disaster?"

¹⁸ Then Micaiah^k said, "Therefore hear the word of the LORD: I saw the LORD sitting on his throne, with all the host of heaven standing to the right and to the left of him. ¹⁹And the LORD said, 'Who will entice King Ahab of Israel, so that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-gilead?' Then one said one thing, and another said another, ²⁰until a spirit came forward and stood before the LORD, saying, 'I will entice him.' The LORD asked him, 'How?' ²¹He replied, 'I will go out and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.' Then the LORD^k said, 'You are to entice him, and you shall succeed; go out and do it.' ²²So you see, the LORD has put a lying spirit in the mouth of these your prophets; the LORD has decreed disaster for you."

²³ Then Zedekiah son of Chenaanah came up to Micaiah, slapped him on the cheek, and said, "Which way did the spirit of the LORD pass from me to speak to you?" ²⁴Micaiah replied, "You will find out on that day when you go in to hide in an inner chamber." ²⁵The king of Israel then ordered, "Take Micaiah, and return him to Amon the governor of the city and to Joash the king's son; ²⁶and say, 'Thus says the king: Put this fellow in prison, and feed him on reduced rations of bread and water until I return in peace.'" ²⁷Micaiah said, "If you return in peace, the LORD has not spoken by me." And he said, "Hear, you peoples, all of you!"

goring bull, to encourage the kings to attack the Arameans. 18.12–22 After an initial and presumably insincere positive oracle, Micaiah says that Israel will in fact be scattered like sheep without a shepherd. Micaiah reports his attendance at a meeting of the divine council, where a spirit offered to be a lying spirit in the mouth of all the prophets so that Ahab would go out and fall at Ramoth-gilead. With God's encouragement, this lying spirit induces all the court prophets to urge Ahab toward disaster. 18.23–27 After a confrontation with Zedekiah, Micaiah is imprisoned by Ahab until he returns safely from battle. Micaiah charges that if Ahab were to return safely, this would prove that the Lord had not sent Micaiah. 18.28–34 The Arameans at first mistake Jehoshaphat for Ahab, but the Lord deflects the pursuers; a chance shot later wounds the real king of gilead. ²⁹The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, "I will disguise myself and go into battle, but you wear your robes." So the king of Israel disguised himself, and they went into battle. ³⁰Now the king of Aram had commanded the captains of his chariots, "Fight with no one small or great, but only with the king of Israel." ³¹When the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, they said, "It is the king of Israel." So they turned to fight against him; and Jehoshaphat cried out, and the LORD helped him. God drew them away from him, ³²for when the captains of the chariots saw that it was not the king of Israel, they turned back from pursuing him. ³³But a certain man drew his bow and unknowingly struck the king of Israel between the scale armor and the breastplate; so he said to the driver of his chariot, "Turn around, and carry me out of the battle, for I am wounded." ³⁴The battle grew hot that day, and the king of Israel propped himself up in his chariot facing the Arameans until evening; then at sunset he died.

19 King Jehoshaphat of Judah returned in safety to his house in Jerusalem. ²Jehu son of Hanani the seer went out to meet him and said to King Jehoshaphat, "Should you help the wicked and love those who hate the LORD?

Because of this, wrath has gone out against you from the LORD. ³Nevertheless, some good is found in you, for you destroyed the sacred poles¹ out of the land, and have set your heart to seek God."

The Reforms of Jehoshaphat

⁴ Jehoshaphat resided at Jerusalem; then he went out again among the people, from Beer-sheba to the hill country of Ephraim, and brought them back to the LORD, the God of their ancestors. ⁵He appointed judges in the land in all the fortified cities of Judah, city by city, ⁶and said to the judges, "Consider what you are doing, for you judge not on behalf of human beings but on the LORD's behalf; he is with you in giving judgment. ⁷Now, let the fear of the LORD be upon you; take care what you do, for there is no perversion of justice with the LORD our God, or partiality, or taking of bribes."

At the end of the day he dies. 18.31 Although and the LORD helped him is not in the Hebrew text of Kings, these words are attested in one of the ancient Greek recensions of the Bible, the Lucianic recension, and were probably in the Hebrew text known by the Chronicler. They are not a theological addition by the Chronicler. God drew them away from him. In this addition by the Chronicler, the words drew them away use the same verb as induce (seduce) in v. 2. 19.1–3 An addition by the Chronicler. Having ignored the warning of the prophet Micaiah (18.27), Jehoshaphat is met by a prophet of his own kingdom, Jehu, the son of Hanani (1 Kings 16.1, 7). 19.2 The wicked, namely, Ahab. Love, a reference to Jehoshaphat's marriage alliance. The campaign of Jehoshaphat against Ramoth-gilead represents the kind of unholy alliance with the North that the Chronicler bitterly opposes. 19.3 Jehoshaphat's destruction of the sacred poles dedicated to the goddess Asherah (17.6) and his seeking God mitigate the judgment against him.

19.4–11 This reform and the exemplary behavior of Jehoshaphat in a subsequent military crisis (2 Chr 20), both without parallel in Kings, illustrate the "good" found in Jehoshaphat (19.3) that helps him escape divine wrath. 19.4 Again presupposes the earlier teaching mission in 17.7–9. 19.5 By appointing judges, delegating judicial authority to officials appointed by himself throughout the kingdom, Jehoshaphat extends his own jurisdiction and restricts the influence of the local courts. Fortified cities. In some respects the account in Chronicles seems to be typologically older than the laws in Deuteronomy. In Deut 16.18–20, the lawgiver says that judges are to be set up in all towns and not just in the fortified cities. 19.6–7 The Lord's own sense of integrity and justice is to give form to the behavior of the local judges (Deut 10.17–18; 16.19). 19.8 Jehoshaphat establishes a central court in Jerusalem to deal with cases referred to it from local courts. These cases could be resolved by the establishment of precedents or the formulation of new law. They had their seat at Jerusalem. This translation results from a changed vocalization: "[To decide the disputed cases] of the inhabitants of Jerusalem" (Septuagint, Vulgate); "They returned to Jerusalem" (Hebrew). The NRSV's alternative seems kindred who live in their cities, concerning bloodshed, law or commandment, statutes or ordinances, then you shall instruct them, so that they may not incur

and you will not incur guilt. ¹¹See, Ama-riah the chief priest is over you in all matters of the LORD; and Zebadiah son of dah, in all the king's matters; and the Levites will serve you as officers. Deal

Invasion from the East

20 After this the Moabites and Am-monites, and with them some of the Meunites,^m came against Jehosha-phat for battle. ²Messengersⁿ came and told Jehoshaphat, "A great multitude is coming against you from Edom,^o from beyond the sea; already they are at Hazazon-tamar" (that is, En-gedi). ³Jehoshaphat was afraid; he set himself to seek the LORD, and proclaimed a fast throughout all Judah. ⁴Judah assembled to seek help from the LORD; from all the towns of Judah they came to seek
the LORD.

Jehoshaphat's Prayer and Victory

⁵ Jehoshaphat stood in the assembly of Judah and Jerusalem, in the house of the LORD, before the new court, ⁶and said, "O LORD, God of our ancestors, are you not God in heaven? Do you not rule over all the kingdoms of the nations? In your hand are power and might, so that no one is able to withstand you. ⁷Did you not, O our God, drive out the inhabitants of this land before your people Israel, and give it forever to the descendants of your friend Abraham? ⁸They have lived in it, and in it have built you a sanctuary for your name, saying, ⁹'If disaster comes upon us, the sword, judgment,^p or pestilence, or famine, we will stand before this house, and before you, for your name is in this house, and cry to you in our distress, and you will hear and save.' ¹⁰See

now, the people of Ammon, Moab, and Mount Seir, whom you would not let Israel invade when they came from the land of Egypt, and whom they avoided and did not destroy — ¹¹they reward us by coming to drive us out of your possession that you have given us to inherit. ¹²O our God, will you not execute judgment upon them? For we are powerless against this great multitude that is coming against us.
We do not know what to do, but our eyes
are on you."

¹³ Meanwhile all Judah stood before the LORD, with their little ones, their wives, and their children. ¹⁴Then the spirit of the LORD came upon Jahaziel son of Zechariah, son of Benaiah, son of Jeiel, son of Mattaniah, a Levite of the sons of Asaph, in the middle of the assembly.
¹⁵He said, "Listen, all Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem, and King Jehosha-phat: Thus says the LORD to you: 'Do not fear or be dismayed at this great multitude; for the battle is not yours but God's.

2.1–22), but instead they now try to take the land

vading horde, Jehoshaphat indicates his strong trust in God. 20.14 Jahaziel, a Levitical singer (descendant of Asaph) who functions as a prophet and promises Israel a victory in holy war (cf. 1 Chr 25.1–8; 2 Chr 29.25; 35.15).
20.15–17 The speech of Jahaziel answers Jehosha-phat's lament and resembles the speech of a

16 Tomorrow go down against them; they will come up by the ascent of Ziz; you will find them at the end of the valley, before the wilderness of Jeruel. 17 This battle is not for you to fight; take your position, stand still, and see the victory of the LORD on your behalf, O Judah and Jerusalem. Do not fear or be dismayed; tomorrow go out against them, and the LORD will be with you."

18 Then Jehoshaphat bowed down with his face to the ground, and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem fell down before the LORD, worshiping the LORD. 19 And the Levites, of the Kohathites and the Korahites, stood up to praise the LORD, the God of Israel, with a very loud voice.

20 They rose early in the morning and went out into the wilderness of Tekoa; and as they went out, Jehoshaphat stood and said, "Listen to me, O Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem! Believe in the LORD your God and you will be established; believe his prophets." 21 When he had taken counsel with the people, he appointed those who were to sing to the LORD and praise him in holy splendor, as they went before the army, saying,

"Give thanks to the LORD,
forever."

22 As they began to sing and praise, the LORD set an ambush against the Ammonites, Moab, and Mount Seir, who had come against Judah, so that they were routed. 23 For the Ammonites and Moab attacked the inhabitants of Mount Seir, destroying them utterly; and when they had made an end of the inhabitants of Seir, they all helped to destroy one another.

24 When Judah came to the watchtower of the wilderness, they looked toward the multitude; they were corpses lying on the ground; no one had escaped. 25 When Jehoshaphat and his people came to take the booty from them, they found livestock^q in great numbers, goods, clothing, and precious things, which they took for themselves until they could carry no more. They spent three days taking the booty, because of its abundance. 26 On the fourth day they assembled in the Valley of Beracah, for there they blessed the LORD; therefore that place has been called the Valley of Beracah^r to this day. 27 Then all the people of Judah and Jerusalem, with Jehoshaphat at their head, returned to Jerusalem with joy, for the LORD had enabled them to rejoice over their enemies. 28 They came to Jerusalem, with harps and lyres and trumpets, to the house of the LORD. 29 The fear of God came on all the kingdoms of the countries when they heard that the LORD had fought against the enemies of Israel. 30 And the realm of Jehoshaphat was quiet, for his God gave him rest all around.

The End of Jehoshaphat's Reign

31 So Jehoshaphat reigned over Judah. He was thirty-five years old when he began to reign; he reigned twenty-five years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Azubah daughter of Shilhi. 32 He walked in the way of his father Asa and did not turn aside from it, doing what was right in the sight of the LORD. 33 Yet the high places were not removed; the people priest before a battle (Deut 20.2–4). 20.16 Ascent of Ziz, between Tekoa, a town in the highlands of Judah, and En-gedi (see note on 20.2). Wilderness of Jeruel, unidentified. 20.17 Despite the fact that Jehoshaphat has more than a million troops in Jerusalem alone (17.14–18), the people are reminded that they are not to fight, but to watch the victory of the Lord. 20.20 In his exhortation, Jehoshaphat would seem to refer to Isaiah ("If you do not stand firm in faith, you shall not stand at all," Isa 7.9), to Jahaziel, who had just assured them of victory, and to Jahaziel's fellow Levites who are Kohathites, more specifically Korahites. It is probable that the temple singers of the Chronicler's day claimed prophetic authority. 20.21 The appointment of (prophetic) singers is the trigger that causes the Lord to set the invading nations against one another, leading to their total destruction. 20.25 The magnitude of the victory is reflected in the overwhelming amount of booty that is taken. 20.26 The Hebrew for "blessed" has the same consonants as the word Beracah. This verse is an etymological etiology. 20.30 Jehoshaphat is rewarded with rest.

20.31–34 Cf. 1 Kings 22.41–45. 20.33 While the Chronicler repeats the notice from 1 Kings 22.43 that the high places are not removed, he omits a sentence from 1 Kings that says the people keep worshipping at those high places. In had not yet set their hearts upon the God of their ancestors.

34 Now the rest of the acts of Jehoshaphat, from first to last, are written in the Annals of Jehu son of Hanani, which are recorded in the Book of the Kings of Israel.

35 After this King Jehoshaphat of Judah joined with King Ahaziah of Israel, who did wickedly. 36 He joined him in building ships to go to Tarshish; they built the ships in Ezion-geber. 37 Then Eliezer son of Dodavahu of Mareshah prophesied against Jehoshaphat, saying, "Because you have joined with Ahaziah, the LORD will destroy what you have made." And the ships were wrecked and were not able to go to Tarshish.

Jehoram's Reign

21 Jehoshaphat slept with his ancestors and was buried with his ancestors in the city of David; his son Jehoram succeeded him. 2 He had brothers, the sons of Jehoshaphat: Azariah, Jehiel, Zechariah, Azariah, Michael, and Shephatiah; all these were the sons of King Jehoshaphat of Judah.^s 3 Their father gave them many gifts, of silver, gold, and valuable possessions, together with fortified cities in Judah; but he gave the kingdom to Jehoram, because he was the firstborn. 4 When Jehoram had ascended the throne of his father and was established, he put all his brothers to the sword, and also some of the officials of Israel. 5 Jehoram was thirty-two years old when he began to reign; he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. 6 He walked in the way of the kings of Israel, as the house of Ahab had done; for the daughter of Ahab was his wife. He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD. 7 Yet the LORD would not destroy the house of David because of the covenant that he had made with David, and since he had promised to give a lamp to him and to his descendants forever.

Revolt of Edom

8 In his days Edom revolted against the rule of Judah and set up a king of their own. 9 Then Jehoram crossed over with his commanders and all his chariots. He set out by night and attacked the Edomites, who had surrounded him and his chariot commanders. 10 So Edom has been in revolt against the rule of Judah to this day. At that time Libnah also revolted

2 Chr 17.6 the Chronicler states that Jehoshaphat has in fact removed the high places. 20.34 The source reference from 1 Kings is ascribed the prophetic authority of Jehu son of Hanani.

20.35–37 Cf. 1 Kings 22.48–49. According to 1 Kings, Jehoshaphat makes ships to go to Ophir, but they never sail since they are destroyed at Ezion-geber. When King Ahaziah subsequently requests Jehoshaphat to allow the servants of the Northern Kingdom to go with him, Jehoshaphat refuses. In Chronicles, Jehoshaphat first makes a pact with the wicked Ahaziah, with a result that they join in building ships at Ezion-geber. The prophet Eliezer then intervenes and condemns Jehoshaphat for this alliance. As a result the Lord destroys the ships.

21.1–7 Cf. 1 Kings 22.50; 2 Kings 8.16–19. 21.2–4 These verses, which are not contained in Kings, indicate that the new king has six brothers. All the sons receive rich gifts from Jehoshaphat, but Jehoram, as the firstborn, becomes king after his father. By assigning the sons fortified cities the king scatters them throughout his realm. 21.2 Judah. The Hebrew reads Israel. The latter, as the more difficult reading, is preferred. 21.4 Solomon too eliminated rivals at the beginning of his reign (1 Kings 2). In view of the confusion in v. 2, Israel here may refer to the Southern Kingdom. 21.6 Jehoram's conduct is like that of the kings of the Northern Kingdom, particularly the dynasty of Ahab. Both Kings and Chronicles note that the reason for this was that the daughter of Ahab was his wife. Later, she will be identified as Athaliah. 21.7 Two things keep Jehoram and the dynasty from destruction in spite of the negative qualities of the king: the covenant the Lord made with David and the lamp (better "dominion") the Lord promised him forever. The term covenant is added by Chronicles, and the house of David replaces "Judah" from 2 Kings 8.19.

21.8–10 Cf. 2 Kings 8.20–22. 21.8 Edom's successful revolt continues with only momentary exceptions until the end of the Southern Kingdom. David had conquered Edom, but it had rebelled already under Solomon (1 Kings 11.14–22). Perhaps Asa or Jehoshaphat regained control, but under Jehoram the breach becomes decisive. 21.10 Libnah, a city on the western, or Philistine, border of Judah. Since Edom was south to southeast from Judah, Jehoram is faced with conflict on two fronts. This revolt is God's retribution for the king's unfaithfulness.

against his rule, because he had forsaken the LORD, the God of his ancestors.

Elijah's Letter

11 Moreover he made high places in the hill country of Judah, and led the inhabitants of Jerusalem into unfaithfulness, and made Judah go astray. 12 A letter came to him from the prophet Elijah, saying: "Thus says the LORD, the God of your father David: Because you have not walked in the ways of your father Jehoshaphat or in the ways of King Asa of Judah, 13 but have walked in the way of the kings of Israel, and have led Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem into unfaithfulness, as the house of Ahab led Israel into unfaithfulness, and because you also have killed your brothers, members of your father's house, who were better than yourself, 14 see, the LORD will bring a great plague on your people, your children, your wives, and all your possessions, 15 and you yourself will have a severe sickness with a disease of your bowels, until your bowels come out, day after day, because of the disease."

16 The LORD aroused against Jehoram the anger of the Philistines and of the Arabs who are near the Ethiopians.^t 17 They came up against Judah, invaded it, and carried away all the possessions they found that belonged to the king's house, along with his sons and his wives, so that no son was left to him except Jehorahaz, his youngest son.

Disease and Death of Jehoram

18 After all this the LORD struck him in his bowels with an incurable disease. 19 In course of time, at the end of two years, his bowels came out because of the disease, and he died in great agony. His people made no fire in his honor, like the fires made for his ancestors. 20 He was thirty-two years old when he began to reign; he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. He departed with no one's regret. They buried him in the city of David, but not in the tombs of the kings.

Ahaziah's Reign

22 The inhabitants of Jerusalem made his youngest son Ahaziah king as his successor; for the troops who came with the Arabs to the camp had killed all the older sons. So Ahaziah son of Jehoram reigned as king of Judah. 2 Ahaziah was forty-two years old when he began to reign; he reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Athaliah, a granddaughter of Omri. 3 He also walked in the ways of the house of Ahab, for his mother was his counselor in doing wickedly. 4 He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, as the house of Ahab

21.11–20 The lengthy Elijah narrative from 1 Kings 17–19; 2 Kings 1–2 is omitted in Chronicles. 21.11 Jehoram restores the high places that Asa and Jehoshaphat had torn down. 21.12–15 Chronicles supplies a letter from the Northern prophet Elijah, Ahab's constant critic, in which Jehoram, Ahab's son-in-law, is charged with following the kings of the North (v. 11) and with killing his own brothers (v. 4). Elijah announces a plague for the people and a dreadful illness for the king himself. Illness also brings immediate retribution for Asa (16.12–14) and Uzziah (26.16–21). 21.16–17 God's agents of retribution are the Philistines and the Arabs, who deprive the king of wives and children, the normal signs of blessing. 21.18–19 The identity of the disease cannot be determined. Colitis and dysentery have been suggested. At the end of two years, better "two days" (before his death). Came out, perhaps prolapsed. In contrast with Asa (16.14), there are no great ceremonial fires at his funeral.

Jehoram is the first Davidic king whom the Chronicler judges in a totally negative way. 21.20 Cf. 2 Kings 8.23–24. Chronicles repeats chronological data from v. 5, but omits the source reference listed in 2 Kings 8.23. Not in the tombs of the kings. According to 2 Kings 8.24, Jehoram is buried in the tombs of his ancestors. Cf. 2 Chr. 24.25; 26.23.

22.1–9 Cf. 2 Kings 8.24b–10.14. Chronicles abbreviates the earlier account and focuses on the Southern Kingdom. 22.1 Jehoram, who has killed all his brothers, loses his own sons to foreign troops because of divine retribution (cf. 21.16–17). Ahaziah cannot be forty-two years old since his father is said to have died at forty (21.20). 2 Kings 8.26 sets his age at twenty-two. Granddaughter, in the Hebrew "daughter" (cf. 21.6). 22.3–4 Athaliah and other members of the Northern royal family mislead Ahaziah (cf. 21.6). 22.5 Ahab's son Jehoram (the brother of Athaliah) is wounded at Ramoth-gilead, a city of

had done; for after the death of his father they were his counselors, to his ruin. ⁵He even followed their advice, and went with Jehoram son of King Ahab of Israel to make war against King Hazael of Aram at Ramoth-gilead. The Arameans wounded Joram, ⁶and he returned to be healed in Jezreel of the wounds that he had received at Ramah, when he fought King Hazael of Aram. And Ahaziah son of King Jehoram of Judah went down to see Joram son of Ahab in Jezreel, because he was sick.

⁷ But it was ordained by God that the downfall of Ahaziah should come about through his going to visit Joram. For when he came there he went out with Jehoram to meet Jehu son of Nimshi, whom the LORD had anointed to destroy the house of Ahab. ⁸When Jehu was executing judgment on the house of Ahab, he met the officials of Judah and the sons of Ahaziah's brothers, who attended Ahaziah, and he killed them. ⁹He searched for Ahaziah, who was captured while hiding in Samaria and was brought to Jehu, and put to death. They buried him, for they said, "He is the grandson of Jehoshaphat, who sought the LORD with all his heart." And the house of Ahaziah had no one able to rule the kingdom.

Athaliah Seizes the Throne

¹⁰ Now when Athaliah, Ahaziah's mother, saw that her son was dead, she set about to destroy all the royal family of the house of Judah. ¹¹But Jehoshabeath, the king's daughter, took Joash son of Ahaziah, and stole him away from among the king's children who were about to be killed; she put him and his nurse in a bedroom. Thus Jehoshabeath, daughter of King Jehoram and wife of the priest Jehoiada—because she was a sister of Ahaziah—hid him from Athaliah, so that she did not kill him; ¹²he remained with them six years, hidden in the house of God, while Athaliah reigned over the land.

23 But in the seventh year Jehoiada took courage, and entered into a compact with the commanders of the hundreds, Azariah son of Jeroham, Ishmael son of Jehohanan, Azariah son of Obed, Maaseiah son of Adaiah, and Elishaphat son of Zichri. ²They went around through Judah and gathered the Levites from all the towns of Judah, and the heads of families of Israel, and they came to Jerusalem. ³Then the whole assembly made a covenant with the king in the house of God. The Chronicler criticizes each of the Judean kings contemporary with Ahab and his successors for making alliances with their Northern counterparts. 22.7b After a bloody coup, Jehu son of Nimshi rules Israel for twenty-eight years. The Chronicler omits the introduction to his reign from 2 Kings 9.1–20. Anointed. See 2 Kings 9.6. 22.8 According to 2 Kings 10.12–14, the princes of Judah are killed after King Ahaziah. 22.9 In 2 Kings 9.27–28 Ahaziah is wounded near Ibleam and dies after fleeing to Megiddo. He is buried in Jerusalem. Ahaziah's burial away from Jerusalem in 2 Chr 22.9 may express the Chronicler's negative evaluation of him. He is the grandson . . . kingdom is not in 2 Kings. Because Ahaziah is the grandson of Jehoshaphat, it is not appropriate to leave him unburied.

22.10–12 Cf. 2 Kings 11.1–3. Athaliah's seizure of power here differs little from the account in 2 Kings. Note that Jehoshabeath (in Kings "Jehosheba") is the wife of the priest Jehoiada, who plays a prominent role in the revolution against Athaliah (v. 11). Jehoshabeath is the half sister of Ahaziah. Neither Kings nor Chronicles regards Athaliah as legitimate and so both omit the standard royal introductory and concluding notices.

23.1–7 Cf. 2 Kings 11.4–8. 23.1 Compact, in the Hebrew "covenant." Cf. vv. 3, 16. Chronicles adds the names of the commanders of the hundreds to materials inherited from 2 Kings. 23.2 Chronicles gives a role in the revolution to the Levites and the family heads of Israel instead of restricting the revolutionaries, with 2 Kings, to the captains of the hundreds, the Carites, and the royal household. The clergy may have been unhappy with Athaliah's fostering of Baalism (23.17). The participation of the family heads of Israel indicates that all Israel backs the revolution. 23.3 The whole assembly makes a covenant according to Chronicles; in 2 Kings the covenant was only with the military commanders. King, an addition, referring to Joash. Jehoiada, according to Chronicles, based the installation of Joash on "Here is the king's son! Let him reign, as the LORD promised concerning the sons of David. ⁴This is what you are to do: one-third of you, priests and Levites, who come on duty on the sabbath, shall be gatekeepers, ⁵one-third shall be at the king's house, and one-third at the Gate of the Foundation; and all the people shall be in the courts of the house of the LORD. ⁶Do not let anyone enter the house of the LORD except the priests and ministering Levites; they may enter, for they are holy, but all the other^v people shall observe the instructions of the LORD. ⁷The Levites shall surround the king, each with his weapons in his hand; and whoever enters the house shall be killed. Stay with the king in his comings and goings."

Joash Crowned King

⁸ The Levites and all Judah did according to all that the priest Jehoiada commanded; each brought his men, who were to come on duty on the sabbath, with those who were to go off duty on the sabbath; for the priest Jehoiada did not dismiss the divisions. ⁹The priest Jehoiada delivered to the captains the spears and the large and small shields that had been King David's, which were in the house of God; ¹⁰and he set all the people as a guard for the king, everyone with weapon in hand, from the south side of the house to the north side of the house, around the altar and the house. ¹¹Then he brought out the king's son, put the crown on him, and gave him the covenant;^w they proclaimed him king, and Jehoiada and his sons anointed him; and they shouted, "Long live the king!"

Athaliah Murdered

¹² When Athaliah heard the noise of the people running and praising the king, she went into the house of the LORD to the people; ¹³and when she looked, there was the king standing by his pillar at the entrance, and the captains and the trumpeters beside the king, and all the people of the land rejoicing and blowing trumpets, and the singers with their musical instruments leading in the celebration. Athaliah tore her clothes, and cried, "Treason! Treason!" ¹⁴Then the priest Jehoiada brought out the captains who were set over the army, saying to them, "Bring her out between the ranks; anyone who follows her is to be put to the sword." For the priest said, "Do not put her to death in the house of the LORD." ¹⁵So they laid hands on her; she went into the entrance of the Horse Gate of the king's house, and there they put her to death.

¹⁶ Jehoiada made a covenant between himself and all the people and the king that they should be the LORD's people. ¹⁷Then all the people went to the house of Baal, and tore it down; his altars and his images they broke in pieces, and they killed Mattan, the priest of Baal, in front of the altars. ¹⁸Jehoiada assigned the care of the house of the LORD to the levitical priests whom David had organized to be in charge of the house of the LORD, to offer burnt offerings to the LORD, as it is written in the law of Moses, with rejoicing and with singing, according to the order of David. ¹⁹He stationed the gatekeepers at the gates of the house of the LORD so the promise to David. 23.4–5 It is difficult to identify precisely which people are stationed where. Staging the revolution at the change of shifts is a brilliant strategy. 23.5 Gate of the Foundation. 2 Kings 11.6 reads "gate Sur." 23.6 The addition of the first half of this verse by the Chronicler makes it clear that laypeople do not intrude on forbidden areas of the temple. 23.7 Levites. The identity of the king's guards is not given in 2 Kings.

23.8–11 Cf. 2 Kings 11.9–12. 23.8 The Levites and all Judah. 2 Kings 11.9 reads "The captains." For the priest Jehoiada did not dismiss the divisions. Thus they stay in the temple area to help with the revolution. 23.10 All the people. 2 Kings 11.11 reads "the guards."

23.12–21 Cf. 2 Kings 11.13–20. 23.12 And praising the king, an addition in Chronicles. 23.13 And the singers . . . celebration, an addition in Chronicles, underlining the writer's interest in music. 23.14 Jehoiada's own son will later die in the temple (24.21). 23.15 Horse Gate. Ironically, Athaliah's mother was trampled by horses (2 Kings 9.33). 23.16 Jehoiada, the people, and the king are the covenant partners; in 2 Kings 11.17 the covenant partners are the Lord, the king, and the people. 23.18 Chronicles specifies that the guards mentioned in 2 Kings were Levitical priests organized by David. Cf. 1 Chr 15–16, 23–27; 2 Chr 29.25–30. The Levitical priests offer the sacrifices required in the Pentateuch. 23.19 The Chronicler adds a reference to gate-

that no one should enter who was in any way unclean. ²⁰And he took the captains, the nobles, the governors of the people, and all the people of the land, and they brought the king down from the house of the LORD, marching through the upper gate to the king's house. They set the king on the royal throne. ²¹So all the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was quiet after Athaliah had been killed with the sword.

Joash Repairs the Temple

24 Joash was seven years old when he began to reign; he reigned forty years in Jerusalem; his mother's name was Zibiah of Beer-sheba. ²Joash did what was right in the sight of the LORD all the days of the priest Jehoiada. ³Jehoiada got two wives for him, and he became the father of sons and daughters.

⁴Some time afterward Joash decided to restore the house of the LORD. ⁵He assembled the priests and the Levites and said to them, "Go out to the cities of Judah and gather money from all Israel to repair the house of your God, year by year; and see that you act quickly." But the Levites did not act quickly. ⁶So the king summoned Jehoiada the chief, and said to him, "Why have you not required the Levites to bring in from Judah and Jerusalem the tax levied by Moses, the servant of the LORD, on^x the congregation of Israel for the tent of the covenant?"^y ⁷For the children of Athaliah, that wicked woman, had broken into the house of God, and had even used all the dedicated things of the house of the LORD for the Baals.

⁸So the king gave command, and they made a chest, and set it outside the gate of the house of the LORD. ⁹A proclamation was made throughout Judah and Jerusalem to bring in for the LORD the tax that Moses the servant of God laid on Israel in the wilderness. ¹⁰All the leaders and all the people rejoiced and brought their tax and dropped it into the chest until it was full. ¹¹Whenever the chest was brought to the king's officers by the Levites, when they saw that there was a large amount of money in it, the king's secretary and the officer of the chief priest would come and empty the chest and take it and return it to its place. So they did day after day, and collected money in abundance. ¹²The king and Jehoiada gave it to those who had charge of the work of the house of the LORD, and they hired masons and carpenters to restore the house of the LORD, and also workers in iron and bronze to repair the house of the LORD. ¹³So those who were engaged in the work labored, and the repairing went forward at their hands, and they restored the house of God to its proper condition and strengthened it. ¹⁴When they keepers, who were to keep out all who were unclean. 23.20 The captains, the nobles, the governors . . . all the people, a list demonstrating the wide support for Joash. Upper gate. 2 Kings 11.19 reads "the gate of the guards." They set the king. In 2 Kings the king himself takes his seat. 23.21 Quiet. Cf. 1 Chr 4.40; 22.9; 2 Chr 14.1 (13.23 in the Hebrew); 14.1, 6; 20.30. 2 Kings 11.20 notes that Athaliah was killed at the king's house.

24.1–14 Cf. 2 Kings 12.1–17. While both Kings and Chronicles record the restoration of the temple, their accounts diverge from one another more widely than usual. 24.2 According to 2 Kings 12.2 Joash did what was right all his days, but Chronicles records a change in Joash's life after the death of Jehoiada. The notice in 2 Kings 12.3 (v. 4 in the Hebrew) that Joash did not remove the high places is omitted since it would not conform to the Chronicler's depiction of the first part of Joash's reign. 24.3 Wives and children are signs of God's blessing for the pious

Joash. 24.5 Joash requests that the priests and Levites raise a special collection, but the Levites react slowly, possibly because this collection would divert funds from their own income. The Levites play no role in 2 Kings 12. 24.6 Joash prods Jehoiada to get the Levites to collect the tax said to have been inaugurated by Moses for the building of the tabernacle (Ex 30.12–16; 38.25–26). 24.7 Chronicles provides specifics on what was wrong with the temple; 2 Kings 12.6 speaks vaguely of the need for repairs. 24.8 Chest. A collection box was a common feature in ancient Near Eastern temples. Outside the gate reflects Second Temple practice, when laity had no access to the inner court. In 2 Kings 12.9 the chest is placed beside the altar. 24.10 The joyous generosity of the people repeats the joy of the wilderness community over the tabernacle (Ex 36.4–7) and provides an example for the Chronicler's audience (cf. 1 Chr 29.9). 24.14 Funds are used for various types of temple paraphernalia, as in the construction of the tabernacle (Ex 25; 31.1–10); in had finished, they brought the rest of the money to the king and Jehoiada, and with it were made utensils for the house of the LORD, utensils for the service and for the burnt offerings, and ladles, and vessels of gold and silver. They offered burnt offerings in the house of the LORD regularly all the days of Jehoiada.

Apostasy of Joash

15 But Jehoiada grew old and full of days, and died; he was one hundred thirty years old at his death. 16 And they buried him in the city of David among the kings, because he had done good in Israel, and for God and his house.

17 Now after the death of Jehoiada the officials of Judah came and did obeisance to the king; then the king listened to them. 18 They abandoned the house of the LORD, the God of their ancestors, and served the sacred poles^z and the idols. And wrath came upon Judah and Jerusalem for this guilt of theirs. 19 Yet he sent prophets among them to bring them back to the LORD; they testified against them, but they would not listen.

20 Then the spirit of God took possession of^a Zechariah son of the priest Jehoiada; he stood above the people and said to them, "Thus says God: Why do you transgress the commandments of the LORD, so that you cannot prosper? Because you have forsaken the LORD, he has also forsaken you." 21 But they conspired against him, and by command of the king they stoned him to death in the court of the house of the LORD. 22 King Joash did not remember the kindness that Jehoiada, Zechariah's father, had shown him, but killed his son. As he was dying, he said, "May the LORD see and avenge!"

Death of Joash

23 At the end of the year the army of Aram came up against Joash. They came to Judah and Jerusalem, and destroyed all the officials of the people from among them, and sent all the booty they took to the king of Damascus. 24 Although the army of Aram had come with few men, the LORD delivered into their hand a very great army, because they had abandoned the LORD, the God of their ancestors. Thus they executed judgment on Joash.

25 When they had withdrawn, leaving him severely wounded, his servants conspired against him because of the blood of the son^b of the priest Jehoiada, and they killed him on his bed. So he died; and they buried him in the city of David, but they did not bury him in the tombs of the kings. 26 Those who conspired against him were Zabad son of Shimeath the Ammonite, and Jehozabad son of Shimrith the Moabite. 27 Accounts of his sons, and of the many oracles against him, and of the rebuilding^c of the house of God are written in the Commentary on the Book

2 Kings 12.13–14 this is explicitly prohibited.

24.15–22 The Chronicler adds a description of Joash's apostasy after the death of Jehoiada. 24.15 Jehoiada's extremely long life testifies symbolically to his fidelity. 24.16 Jehoiada the priest is given a grave among the kings while Joash himself is not (24.25). 24.17–19 Joash heeds the bad advice of officials who worship poles and idols dedicated to the goddess Asherah and refuses the admonition of prophets. Note the immediate retribution for their abandoning of the temple. 24.20 Jehoiada's son threatens retribution in words reminiscent of Moses (Num 14.41). 24.21 The officials and the king agree to the murder of Zechariah (cf. Mt 23.35; Lk 11.50–51) and kill him in the temple where Jehoiada made Joash king and where efforts have been taken by Jehoiada to avoid violence in the temple (cf. 2 Chr 23.14). 24.22 Zechariah calls for divine retribution.

24.23–27 Cf. 2 Kings 12.19–21 (18–23 in the Hebrew). 24.23 An invasion by Aram (Syria) brings the divine retribution earned by the officials. According to 2 Kings 12.7–18 Joash buys off Hazael. 24.24 The small Aramean army was empowered by the Lord to defeat a far more numerous Judean army that had committed the fatal sin of abandoning God. Chronicles stresses elsewhere that a small Judean army could defeat a larger enemy army. 24.25 Joash's servants murder him because he has participated in the murder of Zechariah. 2 Kings provides no rationale for this murder. Joash is denied royal burial by the Chronicler in spite of evidence to the contrary in 2 Kings 12.21. 24.26 The chief conspirators are children of an Ammonite woman and a Moabite woman. While the names of the conspirators come from 2 Kings 12.21, the ethnic designations come from the Chronicler. 24.27 Commentary on the Book of the Kings. Cf. 2 Chr 13.22.

of the Kings. And his son Amaziah succeeded him.

Reign of Amaziah

25 Amaziah was twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jehoaddan of Jerusalem. ²He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, yet not with a true heart. ³As soon as the royal power was firmly in his hand he killed his servants who had murdered his father the king. ⁴But he did not put their children to death, according to what is written in the law, in the book of Moses, where the LORD commanded, "The parents shall not be put to death for the children, or the children be put to death for the parents; but all shall be put to death for their own sins."

Slaughter of the Edomites

⁵ Amaziah assembled the people of Judah, and set them by ancestral houses under commanders of the thousands and of the hundreds for all Judah and Benjamin. He mustered those twenty years old and upward, and found that they were three hundred thousand picked troops fit for war, able to handle spear and shield. ⁶He also hired one hundred thousand mighty warriors from Israel for one hundred talents of silver. ⁷But a man of God came to him and said, "O king, do not let the army of Israel go with you, for the LORD is not with Israel—all these Ephraimites. ⁸Rather, go by yourself and act; be strong in battle, or God will fling you down before the enemy; for God has power to help or to overthrow." ⁹Amaziah said to the man of God, "But what shall we do about the hundred talents that I have given to the army of Israel?" The man of God answered, "The LORD is able to give you much more than this." ¹⁰Then Amaziah discharged the army that had come to him from Ephraim, letting them go home again. But they became very angry with Judah, and returned home in fierce anger.

¹¹ Amaziah took courage, and led out his people; he went to the Valley of Salt, and struck down ten thousand men of Seir. ¹²The people of Judah captured another ten thousand alive, took them to the top of Sela, and threw them down from the top of Sela, so that all of them were dashed to pieces. ¹³But the men of the army whom Amaziah sent back, not letting them go with him to battle, fell on the cities of Judah from Samaria to Beth-horon; they killed three thousand people in them, and took much booty.

¹⁴ Now after Amaziah came from the slaughter of the Edomites, he brought the gods of the people of Seir, set them up as his gods, and worshiped them, making offerings to them. ¹⁵The LORD was angry with Amaziah and sent to him a prophet, who said to him, "Why have you resorted to a people's gods who could not deliver their own people from your hand?" ¹⁶But as he was speaking the king^d said to him, "Have we made you a royal counselor?"

25.1-4 Cf. 2 Kings 14.1-6. 25.2 As with Joash's, the first half of Amaziah's reign is judged favorably. With a true heart. 2 Kings 14.3 reads "like his ancestor David." 2 Kings also indicates that he behaves like Joash and that the high places are not removed (cf. 2 Chr 24.2; 26.4; 27.2). Amaziah's performance is half-hearted from the beginning. 25.4 Amaziah's reason for not killing the children of his father's murderers is based on Deut 24.16.

25.5-16 Cf. 2 Kings 14.7. 25.5 Three hundred thousand. Asa mustered 580,000 and Jehoshaphat 1,160,000. 25.6 One hundred talents of silver, roughly one ounce of silver for every man. 25.8 The oracle of the anonymous man of God is supplied by the Chronicler and shows his usual opposition to an alliance with the North (cf. 13.4-12; 19.1-13). 25.9 God's help would more than make up for the loss of one-fourth of his army. 25.11 This verse is based on 2 Kings 14.7. Valley of Salt, near the southern end of the Dead Sea (cf. 2 Sam 8.13; 1 Chr 18.12). Seir, a mountainous region lying southeast of Judah. 25.12 Sela, Hebrew, "rock, precipice." The exact location is contested. 25.13 Samaria, the capital of the Northern Kingdom. Another city may have originally been mentioned here. Beth-horon, a city in Ephraim near Benjamin. 25.14 In antiquity the gods of defeated nations were sometimes said to abandon their own nation and side with the victor. 25.15-16 Amaziah opposes a second, anonymous prophet, who repeats the inevitability of divine retribution. The king does not listen to divine counsel and follows human counsel (v. 17), to his own harm.

Stop! Why should you be put to death?" So the prophet stopped, but said, "I know that God has determined to destroy you, because you have done this and have not listened to my advice."

Israel Defeats Judah

17 Then King Amaziah of Judah took counsel and sent to King Joash son of Jehoahaz son of Jehu of Israel, saying, "Come, let us look one another in the face." 18 King Joash of Israel sent word to King Amaziah of Judah, "A thornbush on Lebanon sent to a cedar on Lebanon, saying, 'Give your daughter to my son for a wife'; but a wild animal of Lebanon passed by and trampled down the thornbush. 19 You say, 'See, I have defeated Edom,' and your heart has lifted you up in boastfulness. Now stay at home; why should you provoke trouble so that you fall, you and Judah with you?"

20 But Amaziah would not listen—it was God's doing, in order to hand them over, because they had sought the gods of Edom. 21 So King Joash of Israel went up; he and King Amaziah of Judah faced one another in battle at Beth-shemesh, which belongs to Judah. 22 Judah was defeated by Israel; everyone fled home. 23 King Joash of Israel captured King Amaziah of Judah, son of Joash, son of Ahaziah, at Beth-shemesh; he brought him to Jerusalem, and broke down the wall of Jerusalem from the Ephraim Gate to the Corner Gate, a distance of four hundred cubits.

24 He seized all the gold and silver, and all the vessels that were found in the house of God, and Obed-edom with them; he seized also the treasuries of the king's house, also hostages; then he returned to Samaria.

Death of Amaziah

25 King Amaziah son of Joash of Judah, lived fifteen years after the death of King Joash son of Jehoahaz of Israel. 26 Now the rest of the deeds of Amaziah, from first to last, are they not written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel? 27 From the time that Amaziah turned away from the LORD they made a conspiracy against him in Jerusalem, and he fled to Lachish. But they sent after him to Lachish, and killed him there. 28 They brought him back on horses; he was buried with his ancestors in the city of David.

Reign of Uzziah

26 Then all the people of Judah took Uzziah, who was sixteen years old, and made him king to succeed his father Amaziah. 2 He rebuilt Eloth and restored it to Judah, after the king slept with his ancestors. 3 Uzziah was sixteen years old when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty-two years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jecoliah of Jerusalem. 4 He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, just as his father Amaziah had 25.17–24 Cf. 2 Kings 14.8–16. 25.18 In this fable, the arrogance of the thistle in proposing a marriage alliance with a cedar is punished by a wild animal. 25.19 Joash castigates Amaziah for his arrogance after the defeat of Edom and warns him to avoid a military confrontation. 25.20 The Chronicler adds his theological interpretation. Amaziah's stubbornness is really God's doing (cf. 10.15; 22.7) to punish him for the idolatry of v. 14. 25.21 Faced one another. Note the pun with v. 17. Beth-shemesh, a town sixteen miles southwest of Jerusalem. 25.23 Ephraim gate, in the northern wall. Corner gate, in the northwestern corner of the city. 25.24 And Obed-edom with them, better "in the care of Obed-edom"; this is only in Chronicles. David has put this Levitical family in charge of the temple treasuries (1 Chr 13.13–14; 26.4–8, 15).

25.25–28 Cf. 2 Kings 14.17–20. 25.25 Despite his defeat by Joash, Amaziah outlives him by fifteen years. 25.27 Turned away. Cf. vv. 14, 20. In Jerusalem. The conspirators may be responding to the plunder of Jerusalem in vv. 23–24. Lachish, a city thirty miles southwest of Jerusalem fortified by Rehoboam (11.9). 25.28 David, following the Septuagint and 2 Kings 14.20; in the Hebrew "Judah." Jerusalem is called the city of Judah in the Babylonian Chronicle, a cuneiform historiographic source of the eighth century B.C.E.

26.1–15 Cf. 2 Kings 14.21–15.4. Vv. 5–15, which identify the signs of blessings in Uzziah's reign, are unique to Chronicles. In 2 Kings, which gives a brief account of his very long reign, he is usually called Azariah. 26.2 Eloth, alternate spelling for Elath, a port city on the northeast arm of the Red Sea, that revolted during the reign of Jehoram (21.8–10). 26.4 The Chronicler qualifies his positive assessment of Uzziah in vv. 16–21. An early good period is followed by infidelity, just as with the reign of Amaziah.

done. ⁵He set himself to seek God in the days of Zechariah, who instructed him in the fear of God; and as long as he sought the LORD, God made him prosper.

⁶ He went out and made war against the Philistines, and broke down the wall of Gath and the wall of Jabneh and the wall of Ashdod; he built cities in the territory of Ashdod and elsewhere among the Philistines. ⁷God helped him against the Philistines, against the Arabs who lived in Gur-baal, and against the Meunites. ⁸The Ammonites paid tribute to Uzziah, and his fame spread even to the border of Egypt, for he became very strong. ⁹Moreover Uzziah built towers in Jerusalem at the Corner Gate, at the Valley Gate, and at the Angle, and fortified them. ¹⁰He built towers in the wilderness and hewed out many cisterns, for he had large herds, both in the Shephelah and in the plain, and he had farmers and vinedressers in the hills and in the fertile lands, for he loved the soil. ¹¹Moreover Uzziah had an army of soldiers, fit for war, in divisions according to the numbers in the muster made by the secretary Jeiel and the officer Maaseiah, under the direction of Hanaiah, one of the king's commanders. ¹²The whole number of the heads of ancestral houses of mighty warriors was two thousand six hundred. ¹³Under their command was an army of three hundred seven thousand five hundred, who could make war with mighty power, to help the king against the enemy. ¹⁴Uzziah provided for all the army the shields, spears, helmets, coats of mail, bows, and stones for slinging. ¹⁵In Jerusalem he set up machines, invented by skilled workers, on the towers and the corners for shooting arrows and large stones. And his fame spread far, for he was marvelously helped until he became strong.

Pride and Apostasy

¹⁶ But when he had become strong he grew proud, to his destruction. For he was false to the LORD his God, and entered the temple of the LORD to make offering on the altar of incense. ¹⁷But the priest Azariah went in after him, with eighty priests of the LORD who were men of valor; ¹⁸they withstood King Uzziah, and said to him, "It is not for you, Uzziah, to make offering to the LORD, but for the priests the descendants of Aaron, who are consecrated to make offering. Go out of the sanctuary; for you have done wrong, and it will bring you no honor from the LORD God." ¹⁹Then Uzziah was angry. Now he had a censer in his hand to make offering, and when he became angry with the priests a leprose^e disease broke out on his forehead, in the presence of the priests in the house of the LORD, by the altar of incense. ²⁰When the chief priest Azariah, and all the priests, looked at him, he was leprose^e in his forehead. They hurried him out, and he himself hurried to get out, because the LORD had struck him. ²¹King Uzziah was leprose^e to the day of his death, and being leprose^e lived in a separate house, for he was excluded from the house of the LORD. His son Jotham was in charge of the palace of the king, governing the people of the land.

Uzziah's expansion is all in a southerly direction; Jeroboam II is too strong in the North. 26.9–10 Royal building activities are a sign of blessing; numerous archaeological remains have been related to Uzziah. Shephelah, low hills in western Palestine. Plain, perhaps the plain of Sharon. The hills, the hill country of Judah.

26.11–13 Large armies are another sign of God's blessing (cf. 1 Chr 12.23–40; 2 Chr 12.3; 13.3, 17; 14.9; 17.12–19; 25.5–6. 26.15 Machines, not catapults, but defensive structures that protected the soldiers.

26.16–23 Cf. 2 Kings 15.5–7. Vv. 16–21 are found only in Chronicles. 26.16 Grew proud. Uzziah's sinful pride (cf. 12.1) leads to negative consequences in the second half of his reign. Incense offerings are to be conducted only by priests (Ex 30.1–10; Num 16.40; 18.1–7). 26.17 Azariah, otherwise unknown. 26.20 Because of his illness, Uzziah serves in a coregency with his son Jotham. God effects immediate retribution. 26.22 Isaiah. The account of Uzziah is traced to prophetic authorship (cf. 1 Chr 29.29; 2 Chr 9.29;

of Amoz wrote. ²³Uzziah slept with his ancestors; they buried him near his ancestors in the burial field that belonged to the kings, for they said, "He is leprous."^f His son Jotham succeeded him.

Reign of Jotham

27 Jotham was twenty-five years old when he began to reign; he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jerushah daughter of Zadok. ²He did what was right in the sight of the LORD just as his father Uzziah had done—only he did not invade the temple of the LORD. But the people still followed corrupt practices. ³He built the upper gate of the house of the LORD, and did extensive building on the wall of Ophel. ⁴Moreover he built cities in the hill country of Judah, and forts and towers on the wooded hills. ⁵He fought with the king of the Ammonites and prevailed against them. The Ammonites gave him that year one hundred talents of silver, ten thousand cors of wheat and ten thousand of barley. The Ammonites paid him the same amount in the second and the third years. ⁶So Jotham became strong because he ordered his ways before the LORD his God. ⁷Now the rest of the acts of Jotham, and all his wars and his ways, are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel and Judah. ⁸He was twenty-five years old when he began to reign; he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. ⁹Jotham slept with his ancestors, and they buried him in the city of David; and his son Ahaz succeeded him.

Reign of Ahaz

28 Ahaz was twenty years old when he began to reign; he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. He did not do what was right in the sight of the LORD, as his ancestor David had done, ²but he walked in the ways of the kings of Israel. He even made cast images for the Baals; ³and he made offerings in the valley of the son of Hinnom, and made his sons pass through fire, according to the abominable practices of the nations whom the LORD drove out before the people of Israel. ⁴He sacrificed and made offerings on the high places, on the hills, and under every green tree.

Aram and Israel Defeat Judah

⁵ Therefore the LORD his God gave him into the hand of the king of Aram, who defeated him and took captive a great number of his people and brought them to Damascus. He was also given into the hand of the king of Israel, who defeated him with great slaughter. ⁶Pekah son of Remaliah killed one hundred

12.15; 32.32). The book of Isaiah refers to Uzziah in 1.1; 6.1; 7.1. 2 Kings 15.6 reads "Are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah?" 26.23 His grave is near, but not in, the royal cemetery. A later, Hasmonean ossuary text reads: "Herein are the bones of Uzziah, king of Judah. Do not open." The separate burial of the king may have led to the discovery and reburial of his bones in the first century B.C.E.

27.1–9 Cf. 2 Kings 15.32–38. Unlike his three predecessors, Jotham is given a totally positive judgment. 27.2 Chronicles adds a note that Jotham did not invade the temple because of the tradition included in 2 Chr 26.16–20 concerning Uzziah's improper use of incense. Corrupt practices, a paraphrase of information in 2 Kings about making sacrifices and burning incense at the high places. 27.3 In Chronicles pious kings usually carry out building projects. Ophel, a ridge extending south of Jerusalem that was fortified by David. See note on 33.14. Jotham's work on the temple gate and on towers echoes the activities of Uzziah. 27.5 The tribute from the Ammonites demonstrates that divine favor rests with Jotham. One hundred talents, 7,500 pounds. Ten thousand cors, somewhere between 65,000 and 140,000 bushels. 27.6 A clear statement of the doctrine of retribution. 27.7 Chronicles omits the reference to Rezin and Pekah from 2 Kings 15.37 and associates their attack with the next king, Ahaz (2 Chr 28.5–8).

28.1–4 Cf. 2 Kings 16.1–4. Chronicles follows Kings closely in this sharply negative summary of Ahaz. 28.2 Cast images for the Baals. Ahaz commits the same sin as Jeroboam, first king of the Northern Kingdom (13.8). 28.3 Valley of the son of Hinnom, a wadi south of Jerusalem where child sacrifice was practiced (33.6; Jer 7.31–32).

28.5–7 Cf. 2 Kings 16.5. 28.5 The king of Aram (Syria) is identified in 2 Kings as Rezin. He was allied with Pekah of the Northern Kingdom against Judah in what is known as the Syro-Ephraimitic war. Here the two enemies of Judah attack independently. According to Chronicles, the wicked king Ahaz suffers retribution through both opposing countries. 28.6 One hundred twen-

twenty thousand in Judah in one day, all of them valiant warriors, because they had abandoned the LORD, the God of their ancestors. ⁷And Zichri, a mighty warrior of Ephraim, killed the king's son Maaseiah, Azrikam the commander of the palace, and Elkanah the next in authority to the king.

Intervention of Oded

8 The people of Israel took captive two hundred thousand of their kin, women, sons, and daughters; they also took much booty from them and brought the booty to Samaria. ⁹But a prophet of the LORD was there, whose name was Oded; he went out to meet the army that came to Samaria, and said to them, "Because the LORD, the God of your ancestors, was angry with Judah, he gave them into your hand, but you have killed them in a rage that has reached up to heaven. ¹⁰Now you intend to subjugate the people of Judah and Jerusalem, male and female, as your slaves. But what have you except sins against the LORD your God? ¹¹Now hear me, and send back the captives whom you have taken from your kindred, for the fierce wrath of the LORD is upon you." ¹²Moreover, certain chiefs of the Ephraimites, Azariah son of Johanan, Berechiah son of Meshillemoth, Jehizkiah son of Shallum, and Amasa son of Hadlai, stood up against those who were coming from the war, ¹³and said to them, "You shall not bring the captives in here, for you propose to bring on us guilt against the LORD in addition to our present sins and guilt. For our guilt is already great, and there is fierce wrath against Israel." ¹⁴So the warriors left the captives and the booty before the officials and all the assembly. ¹⁵Then those who were mentioned by name got up and took the captives, and with the booty they clothed all that were naked among them; they clothed them, gave them sandals, provided them with food and drink, and anointed them; and carrying all the feeble among them on donkeys, they brought them to their kindred at Jericho, the city of palm trees. Then they returned to Samaria.

Assyria Refuses to Help Judah

16 At that time King Ahaz sent to the king of Assyria for help. ¹⁷For the Edomites had again invaded and defeated Judah, and carried away captives. ¹⁸And the Philistines had made raids on the cities in the Shephelah and the Negeb of Judah, and had taken Beth-shemesh, Aijalon, Gederot, Soco with its villages, Timnah with its villages, and Gimzo with its villages; and they settled there. ¹⁹For the LORD brought Judah low because of King Ahaz of Israel, for he had behaved without restraint in Judah and had been ty thousand. The exaggerated number of casualties—and in one day!—shows the penalty for abandoning the Lord (cf. 13.9–12). 28.7 Next in authority. Cf. Esth 10.3.

28.8–15 The Chronicler inserts a sermon by a prophet and an admonition by Ephraimite chiefs that lead the Northern troops to change their mind. Certain details of this narrative may have influenced the account of the good Samaritan in the NT. 28.8 Two hundred thousand captives plus the fatalities in v. 6 would have depopulated Judah. 28.9–10 Oded, otherwise unknown. This prophet concedes the wickedness of Judah but accuses the army of excesses (cf. Isa 10.5–19), the killing of some in anger and the enslaving of the rest (Lev 25.39–55). Note that the Lord (Yahweh) is still considered as the God of the North. 28.11 Citizens of the two kingdoms are kindred (lit. "brothers"). 28.12 The decisive action by certain chiefs may mean that the Northern monarchy is already a thing of the past. 28.13 The four chiefs also admonish the army not to add guilt from the present incident to their existing guilt (cf. 13.4–12). 28.14 Remarkably, the army repents. 28.15 Those mentioned by name in v. 12 (or "men nominated for this duty" as translated by the New English Bible) outfit the captives from the booty that has been taken and return them to Judean authorities at Jericho.

28.16–21 Cf. 2 Kings 16.6–9. In 2 Kings Ahaz appeals to the Assyrian king for relief from the Northern invaders. Since the Chronicler had already reported that the North had repented and restored their captives, he identifies the cause of Ahaz's plea as pressure from neighboring countries, the Edomites and Philistines. This additional material is historically plausible. 28.16 Ahaz should have asked God rather than a foreign king for help (cf. 26.7, 15). 28.18 The Philistines capture a number of cities between themselves and Judah. Gimzo, a town north of Gezer. 28.19 The Philistine attack metes faithless to the LORD. ²⁰So King Tilgath-pilneser of Assyria came against him, and oppressed him instead of strengthening him. ²¹For Ahaz plundered the house of the LORD and the houses of the king and of the officials, and gave tribute to the king of Assyria; but it did not help him.

Apostasy and Death of Ahaz

²² In the time of his distress he became yet more faithless to the LORD—this same King Ahaz. ²³For he sacrificed to the gods of Damascus, which had defeated him, and said, “Because the gods of the kings of Aram helped them, I will sacrifice to them so that they may help me.” But they were the ruin of him, and of all Israel. ²⁴Ahaz gathered together the utensils of the house of God, and cut in pieces the utensils of the house of God. He shut up the doors of the house of the LORD and made himself altars in every corner of Jerusalem. ²⁵In every city of Judah he made high places to make offerings to other gods, provoking to anger the LORD, the God of his ancestors. ²⁶Now the rest of his acts and all his ways, from first to last, are written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. ²⁷Ahaz slept with his ancestors, and they buried him in the city, in Jerusalem; but they did not bring him into the tombs of the kings of Israel. His son Hezekiah succeeded him.

out appropriate retribution to Ahaz. 28.20 Tilgath-pilneser, spelled Tiglath-pileser [III] in 2 Kings 16.7 (but see 1 Chr 5.6). The Assyrian king attacks the South instead of coming to its aid. According to 2 Kings 16.9 the Assyrian king listens to Ahaz and provides him relief by attacking Damascus and killing Rezin. In 733 B.C.E. Tiglath-pileser reorganized the Northern Kingdom into three Assyrian provinces. 28.21 In this added verse, Chronicles attributes Judah’s defeat to the fact that Ahaz wrongly paid tribute to the Assyrians.

28.22–27 Cf. 2 Kings 16.10–20. 28.23 Ahaz compounds his guilt by worshipping the Aramean gods. According to 2 Kings 16.10–13 Ahaz copied an Aramean altar and worshiped the Lord with it. 28.24 By closing the Jerusalem temple and thus distancing himself from it, Ahaz acts in a way similar to Jeroboam. In 2 Kings 16.12–14, Ahaz makes special offerings to the temple, but in 2 Kings 16.17–18 the king plunders the temple in order to pay tribute. 28.27 Like Uzziah, Ahaz is

Reign of Hezekiah

29 Hezekiah began to reign when he was twenty-five years old; he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Abijah daughter of Zechariah. ²He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, just as his ancestor David had done.

The Temple Cleansed

³ In the first year of his reign, in the first month, he opened the doors of the house of the LORD and repaired them. ⁴He brought in the priests and the Levites and assembled them in the square on the east. ⁵He said to them, “Listen to me, Levites! Sanctify yourselves, and sanctify the house of the LORD, the God of your ancestors, and carry out the filth from the holy place. ⁶For our ancestors have been unfaithful and have done what was evil in the sight of the LORD our God; they have forsaken him, and have turned away their faces from the dwelling of the LORD, and turned their backs. ⁷They also shut the doors of the vestibule and put out the lamps, and have not offered incense or made burnt offerings in the holy place to the God of Israel. ⁸Therefore the wrath of the LORD came upon Judah and Jerusalem, and he has made them an object of horror, of astonishment, and of hissing, as you see with your own eyes. ⁹Our fathers have fallen by the sword and our sons and buried in Jerusalem but not with the other kings (cf. 2 Kings 16.20; 2 Chr 21.20; 24.25; 26.23).

29.1–2 Cf. 2 Kings 18.1–3. The opening paragraph for Hezekiah is virtually identical with the material in 2 Kings, except that the Chronicler, as usual, omits the synchronism with the Northern king. The Chronicler gives great attention to Hezekiah’s reform (chs. 29–31), but less attention than in 2 Kings to the Assyrian invasion (ch. 32), the delegation from Babylon (32.31), and the king’s illness (32.24–26). Unity returns to all Israel under Hezekiah, who is a second David (see 29.2) and especially a second Solomon.

29.3 Like Solomon, Hezekiah is concerned with the temple right from the start of his reign (cf. chs. 1–2). The actions urged by Hezekiah would reverse those of his father, Ahaz (28.24–25; 29.19). 29.5 Levites is used in a broad sense that includes both priests and Levites. 29.8 This description of circumstances at the time of Hezekiah quotes Jer 29.18, which announces the exile that took place more than our daughters and our wives are in captivity for this. ¹⁰Now it is in my heart to make a covenant with the LORD, the God of Israel, so that his fierce anger may turn away from us. ¹¹My sons, do not now be negligent, for the LORD has chosen you to stand in his presence to minister to him, and to be his ministers and make offerings to him."

¹² Then the Levites arose, Mahath son of Amasai, and Joel son of Azariah, of the sons of the Kohathites; and of the sons of Merari, Kish son of Abdi, and Azariah son of Jehallelel; and of the Gershonites, Joah son of Zimmah, and Eden son of Joah; ¹³and of the sons of Elizaphan, Shimri and Jeuel; and of the sons of Asaph, Zechariah and Mattaniah; ¹⁴and of the sons of Heman, Jehuel and Shimei; and of the sons of Jeduthun, Shemaiah and Uzziel. ¹⁵They gathered their brothers, sanctified themselves, and went in as the king had commanded, by the words of the LORD, to cleanse the house of the LORD. ¹⁶The priests went into the inner part of the house of the LORD to cleanse it, and they brought out all the unclean things that they found in the temple of the LORD into the court of the house of the LORD; and the Levites took them and carried them out to the Wadi Kidron. ¹⁷They began to sanctify on the first day of the first month, and on the eighth day of the month they came to the vestibule of the LORD; then for eight days they sanctified the house of the LORD, and on the sixteenth day of the first month they finished. ¹⁸Then they went inside to King Hezekiah and said, "We have cleansed all the house of the LORD, the altar of burnt offering and all its utensils, and the table for the rows of bread and all its utensils. ¹⁹All the utensils that King Ahaz repudiated during his reign when he was faithless, we have made ready and sanctified; see, they are in front of the altar of the LORD."

Temple Worship Restored

²⁰ Then King Hezekiah rose early, assembled the officials of the city, and went up to the house of the LORD. ²¹They brought seven bulls, seven rams, seven lambs, and seven male goats for a sin offering for the kingdom and for the sanctuary and for Judah. He commanded the priests the descendants of Aaron to offer them on the altar of the LORD. ²²So they slaughtered the bulls, and the priests received the blood and dashed it against the altar; they slaughtered the rams and their blood was dashed against the altar; they also slaughtered the lambs and their blood was dashed against the altar. ²³Then the male goats for the sin offering were brought to the king and the assembly; they laid their hands on them, ²⁴and the priests slaughtered them and made a sin offering with their blood at the altar, to make atonement for all Israel. For the king commanded that the burnt offering and the sin offering should be made for all Israel.

a century after Hezekiah. 29.10 The temple cleansing renews the covenant and sets an example for the postexilic audience. 29.12-14 There are two Levites from each of the families of Kohath, Merari, and Gershon, two from the family of Elizaphan (descended from Kohath), and two from each division of the singers: Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun. 29.15 By the words of the LORD. Hezekiah's reform is given divine sanction. 29.16-17 As prohibited items are removed from the temple, priests and Levites are active in places appropriate to them (cf. 5.4-11). Kidron, just east of the city, is also the place for destroying polluted vessels under Asa (15.16) and Josiah (2 Kings 23.4, 6, 12). The purification rites end two days after the normal beginning of Passover.

29.21 The bulls, rams, and lambs are for the burnt offering and the goats for the sin offering. The sin offering benefited the royal house (kingdom), the temple and its personnel (sanctuary), and the whole nation (Judah). 29.22 They, the king and his officials (cf. v. 20). 29.23 Through laying on of hands, the offerer identifies with the victim in the sin offering. 29.24 All Israel. The king's offering is explicitly inclusive (cf. v. 21). 29.25-30 The Levites accompany the sacrifices with music. Their role may reflect worship practices from the Chronicler's own time, but it also echoes their activity at the dedication of the temple (7.6). The restoration of the temple makes Hezekiah a second Solomon. 29.25 David and the prophets are credited with authorizing the the trumpets. 27 Then Hezekiah commanded that the burnt offering be offered on the altar. When the burnt offering began, the song to the LORD began also, and the trumpets, accompanied by the instruments of King David of Israel. 28 The whole assembly worshiped, the singers sang, and the trumpeters sounded; all this continued until the burnt offering was finished. 29 When the offering was finished, the king and all who were present with him bowed down and worshiped. 30 King Hezekiah and the officials commanded the Levites to sing praises to the LORD with the words of David and of the seer Asaph. They sang praises with gladness, and they bowed down and worshiped.

31 Then Hezekiah said, "You have now consecrated yourselves to the LORD; come near, bring sacrifices and thank offerings to the house of the LORD." The assembly brought sacrifices and thank offerings; and all who were of a willing heart brought burnt offerings. 32 The number of the burnt offerings that the assembly brought was seventy bulls, one hundred rams, and two hundred lambs; all these were for a burnt offering to the LORD. 33 The consecrated offerings were six hundred bulls and three thousand sheep. 34 But the priests were too few and could not skin all the burnt offerings, so, until other priests had sanctified themselves, their kindred, the Levites, helped them until the work was finished—for the Levites were more conscientious^h than the priests in sanctifying themselves. 35 Besides the great number of burnt offerings there was the fat of the offerings of well-being, and there were the drink offerings for the burnt offerings. Thus the service of the house of the LORD was restored. 36 And Hezekiah and all the people rejoiced because of what God had done for the people; for the thing had come about suddenly.

The Great Passover

30 Hezekiah sent word to all Israel and Judah, and wrote letters also to Ephraim and Manasseh, that they should come to the house of the LORD at Jerusalem, to keep the passover to the LORD the God of Israel. 2 For the king and his officials and all the assembly in Jerusalem had taken counsel to keep the passover in the second month³ (for they could not keep it at its proper time because the priests had not sanctified themselves in sufficient number, nor had the people assembled in Jerusalem). 4 The plan seemed right to the king and all the assembly. 5 So they decreed to make a proclamation throughout all Israel, from Beer-sheba to Dan, that the people should come and keep the passover to the LORD the God of Israel, at Jerusalem; for they had not kept it in great numbers as prescribed. 6 So couriers went throughout all Israel and Judah with letters from the king and his officials, as the king had commanded, saying, "O people of Israel, return to the LORD, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, so that he may turn again to the remnant of you who have escaped from the hand of the kings of Assyria. 7 Do not be like your ancestors and your kindred, who Levitical activity. 29.31–36 The people join their leaders in bringing sacrifices and so reinaugurate regular worship practices (v. 35; cf. 8.16). Their enthusiasm harks back to popular enthusiasm for the sanctuary at the time of Moses and during the reigns of David and Solomon. 29.32 Burnt offerings, expressions of self-giving. 29.33 Consecrated offerings. Only parts of these offerings are burned; the rest are consumed by the offerers. 29.34 While the priests are not required by the law to skin the animals (Lev 1), this verse criticizes them for their delay and offers praise for the Levites. 29.36 Suddenly. The purification of the temple happens within three weeks in Hezekiah's first year.

30.1 In the Chronicler's reckoning, the North is already in exile when Hezekiah begins to rule.

One of Hezekiah's first acts is to attempt to unite all Israel around the temple in Jerusalem. Such unification is the main agenda for the author of Chronicles in his postexilic setting. This Passover takes place at the central sanctuary (Deut 16: 2 Kings 23.21–23) and not in the Israelite homes (Ex 12.1–20). 30.2 Second month. Individuals who became unclean through contact with a corpse or who had been on a trip could delay the celebration of Passover one month (Num 9.9–11). Hezekiah extends this exception to those identified in v. 3. 30.5 Beer-sheba to Dan, the south to north description of the land, characteristic of Chronicles (cf. 1 Chr 21.2). The author uses a wide variety of terms to identify the North. See vv. 11, 12, 18. 30.6 Israel, Jacob (cf. 1 Chr 16.13, 17). The Chronicler demands repentance as the were faithless to the LORD God of their ancestors, so that he made them a desolation, as you see. ⁸Do not now be stiff-necked as your ancestors were, but yield yourselves to the LORD and come to his sanctuary, which he has sanctified forever, and serve the LORD your God, so that his fierce anger may turn away from you. ⁹For as you return to the LORD, your kindred and your children will find compassion with their captors, and return to this land. For the LORD your God is gracious and merciful, and will not turn away his face from you, if you return to him."

¹⁰ So the couriers went from city to city through the country of Ephraim and Manasseh, and as far as Zebulun; but they laughed them to scorn, and mocked them. ¹¹Only a few from Asher, Manasseh, and Zebulun humbled themselves and came to Jerusalem. ¹²The hand of God was also on Judah to give them one heart to do what the king and the officials commanded by the word of the LORD.

¹³ Many people came together in Jerusalem to keep the festival of unleavened bread in the second month, a very large assembly. ¹⁴They set to work and removed the altars that were in Jerusalem, and all the altars for offering incense they took away and threw into the Wadi Kidron. ¹⁵They slaughtered the passover lamb on the fourteenth day of the second month. The priests and the Levites were ashamed, and they sanctified themselves and brought burnt offerings into the house of the LORD. ¹⁶They took their accustomed posts according to the law of Moses the man of God; the priests dashed the blood that they receivedⁱ from the hands of the Levites. ¹⁷For there were many in the assembly who had not sanctified themselves; therefore the Levites had to slaughter the passover lamb for everyone who was not clean, to make it holy to the LORD. ¹⁸For a multitude of the people, many of them from Ephraim, Manasseh, Issachar, and Zebulun, had not cleansed themselves, yet they ate the passover otherwise than as prescribed. But Hezekiah prayed for them, saying, "The good LORD pardon all ¹⁹who set their hearts to seek God, the LORD the God of their ancestors, even though not in accordance with the sanctuary's rules of cleanliness." ²⁰The LORD heard Hezekiah, and healed the people. ²¹The people of Israel who were present at Jerusalem kept the festival of unleavened bread seven days with great gladness; and the Levites and the priests praised the LORD day by day, accompanied by loud instruments for the LORD. ²²Hezekiah spoke encouragingly to all the Levites who showed good skill in the service of the LORD. So the people ate the food of the festival for seven days, sacrificing offerings of well-being and giving thanks to the LORD the God of their ancestors.

²³ Then the whole assembly agreed together to keep the festival for another seven days; so they kept it for another seven days with gladness. ²⁴For King Hezekiah of Judah gave the assembly a thousand bulls and seven thousand sheep for offerings, and the officials gave the assembly a thousand bulls and ten thousand sheep. The priests sanctified themselves in great numbers. ²⁵The whole assembly of Judah, the priests and the Levites, and prerequisite for restoration. 30.9 An excellent statement of the doctrine of retribution. 30.10 The Northerners show reluctance (cf. 36.16), perhaps reflecting their attitude toward the Jerusalem temple in the Chronicler's time, but Hezekiah, nevertheless, works for their incorporation in the celebration (vv. 18–20). 30.13 The agricultural festival of unleavened bread was originally celebrated separately from Passover (Ex 23.14–17; 34.18–23). The large attendance at the Passover is frequently mentioned in this account. 30.14 Eating of the Passover meal is preceded by reform of inappropriate installations in Jerusalem. Ahaz had built altars to alien deities (28.24). 30.16 Regulation of the cultic roles of priests and Levites is based on the Pentateuch in general. 30.17 The Levites make great efforts to make the Northerners feel welcome. 30.18–20 Hezekiah prays for the people who set their hearts to seek God, even if they have violated ritual regulations in the process. Their intentions and Hezekiah's prayer bring healing. The steps in this incident follow the procedures laid out in the Lord's response to Solomon's prayer at the dedication of the temple (7.14). 30.23 The people decide to celebrate for a second week, just as the celebration at the temple dedication lasts a fortnight (7.9). 30.24 The king and his officials generously provide animals for sacrifice, and the priests are finally ready in sufficient numbers to sacrifice them (cf. 29.34; 30.3). 30.25 Note the all-inclusive makeup of those who celebrate Passthe whole assembly that came out of Israel, and the resident aliens who came out of the land of Israel, and the resident aliens who lived in Judah, rejoiced. ²⁶There was great joy in Jerusalem, for since the time of Solomon son of King David of Israel there had been nothing like this in Jerusalem. ²⁷Then the priests and the Levites stood up and blessed the people, and their voice was heard; their prayer came to his holy dwelling in heaven.

Pagan Shrines Destroyed

31 Now when all this was finished, all Israel who were present went out to the cities of Judah and broke down the pillars, hewed down the sacred poles,^j and pulled down the high places and the altars throughout all Judah and Benjamin, and in Ephraim and Manasseh, until they had destroyed them all. Then all the people of Israel returned to their cities, all to their individual properties.

² Hezekiah appointed the divisions of the priests and of the Levites, division by division, everyone according to his service, the priests and the Levites, for burnt offerings and offerings of well-being, to minister in the gates of the camp of the LORD and to give thanks and praise. ³The contribution of the king from his own possessions was for the burnt offerings: the burnt offerings of morning and evening, and the burnt offerings for the sabbaths, the new moons, and the appointed festivals, as it is written in the law of the

LORD. ⁴He commanded the people who lived in Jerusalem to give the portion due to the priests and the Levites, so that they might devote themselves to the law of the LORD. ⁵As soon as the word spread, the people of Israel gave in abundance the first fruits of grain, wine, oil, honey, and of all the produce of the field; and they brought in abundantly the tithe of everything. ⁶The people of Israel and Judah who lived in the cities of Judah also brought in the tithe of cattle and sheep, and the tithe of the dedicated things that had been consecrated to the LORD their God, and laid them in heaps. ⁷In the third month they began to pile up the heaps, and finished them in the seventh month. ⁸When Hezekiah and the officials came and saw the heaps, they blessed the LORD and his people Israel. ⁹Hezekiah questioned the priests and the Levites about the heaps. ¹⁰The chief priest Azariah, who was of the house of Zadok, answered him, "Since they began to bring the contributions into the house of the LORD, we have had enough to eat and have plenty to spare; for the LORD has blessed his people, so that we have this great supply left over."

Reorganization of Priests and Levites

¹¹ Then Hezekiah commanded them to prepare store-chambers in the house of the LORD; and they prepared them. ¹²Faithfully they brought in the contributions, the tithes and the dedicated things.

The destruction of the high places, pillars, and sacred poles is taken from Kings, but Chronicles omits the account of Nehushtan. 31.2 Hezekiah organizes the cultic personnel, as did Solomon (8.14). The priests sacrifice and the Levites are gatekeepers and singers. Camp of the LORD, the temple (cf. 1 Chr 9.18). 31.3 Hezekiah provides animals for sacrifices, as had many kings before him. Persian kings do the same for postexilic Judah (Ezra 6.9; 7.21–23). 31.4 The king restores the financial support system for the priests and Levites, which may have been disrupted by Ahaz. The dedication to the study of the law reflects the Chronicler's own time. Since Malachi complains that people are avoiding payments (Mal 3.8–10), the Chronicler may be dealing with a contemporary issue. 31.5 The people's generosity reflects that of the king. 31.7 The people contribute from the third month (Pentecost) through the seventh month (Tabernacles). 31.10 The chief priest affirms the doctrine of retribution: the people's generosity has led to general prosperity. The people had also contributed generously to the tabernacle (Ex 36.2–7) and to the temple (1 Chr 29.6–9). Azariah, perhaps the grandson of the priest mentioned in 26.17.

The chief officer in charge of them was Conaniah the Levite, with his brother Shimei as second; ¹³while Jehiel, Azaziah, Nahath, Asahel, Jerimoth, Jozabad, Eliel, Ismachiah, Mahath, and Benaiah were overseers assisting Conaniah and his brother Shimei, by the appointment of King Hezekiah and of Azariah the chief officer of the house of God. ¹⁴Kore son of Imnah the Levite, keeper of the east gate, was in charge of the freewill offerings to God, to apportion the contribution reserved for the LORD and the most holy offerings. ¹⁵Eden, Miniamin, Jeshua, She-maiah, Amariah, and Shecaniah were faithfully assisting him in the cities of the priests, to distribute the portions to their kindred, old and young alike, by divisions, ¹⁶except those enrolled by genealogy, males from three years old and upwards, all who entered the house of the LORD as the duty of each day required, for their service according to their offices, by their divisions. ¹⁷The enrollment of the priests was according to their ancestral houses; that of the Levites from twenty years old and upwards was according to their offices, by their divisions. ¹⁸The priests were enrolled with all their little children, their wives, their sons, and their daughters, the whole multitude; for they were faithful in keeping themselves holy. ¹⁹And for the descendants of Aaron, the priests, who were in the fields of common land belonging to their towns, town by town, the people designated by name were to distribute portions to every male among the priests and to everyone among the Levites who was enrolled.

20 Hezekiah did this throughout all

Judah; he did what was good and right and faithful before the LORD his God. ²¹And every work that he undertook in the service of the house of God, and in accordance with the law and the commandments, to seek his God, he did with all his heart; and he prospered.

Sennacherib's Invasion

32 After these things and these acts of faithfulness, King Sennacherib of Assyria came and invaded Judah and encamped against the fortified cities, thinking to win them for himself. ²When Hezekiah saw that Sennacherib had come and intended to fight against Jerusalem, ³he planned with his officers and his warriors to stop the flow of the springs that were outside the city; and they helped him. ⁴A great many people were gathered, and they stopped all the springs and the wadi that flowed through the land, saying, "Why should the Assyrian kings come and find water in abundance?" ⁵Hezekiah^k set to work resolutely and built up the entire wall that was broken down, and raised towers on it,^l and outside it he built another wall; he also strengthened the Millo in the city of David, and made weapons and shields in abundance. ⁶He appointed combat commanders over the people, and gathered them together to him in the square at the gate of the city and spoke encouragingly to them, saying, ⁷"Be strong and of good courage. Do not be afraid or dismayed before the king of Assyria and all the horde that is with him; for there is one greater

32.1-19 Cf. 2 Kings 18.13-37. The material in Kings is often divided into three sources: 18.13-16 (A); 18.17-19.9a, 36-37 (B¹); 19.9b-35 (B²), with B¹ being parallel to B². Chronicles omits references to the stripping of the temple, Hezekiah's trust in foreign alliances, and references to Isaiah as recipient of an oracle. In Chronicles Hezekiah is unafraid and directly receives divine messages. 32.1 Acts of faithfulness, Hezekiah's reform and Passover. Sennacherib, king of Assyria, whose third campaign took him to Judah in 701 B.C.E. 32.3-4 Hezekiah concealed the water supply and dug a famous tunnel, which can be visited in Jerusalem today. 32.5 Built up . . . another wall. Rebuilding the wall was a sign of rebellion against Sennacherib; in Chronicles building projects show that a king is divinely favored. Millo, terraces. 32.6-8 Hezekiah's speech urges trust in God and reflects standard holy war theology. In 2 Kings 18.19-25, Sennacherib's officer

⁹ After this, while King Sennacherib of Assyria was at Lachish with all his forces, he sent his servants to Jerusalem to King Hezekiah of Judah and to all the people of Judah that were in Jerusalem, saying, ¹⁰"Thus says King Sennacherib of Assyria: On what are you relying, that you undergo the siege of Jerusalem? ¹¹Is not Hezekiah misleading you, handing you over to die by famine and by thirst, when he tells you, 'The LORD our God will save us from the hand of the king of Assyria'? ¹²Was it not this same Hezekiah who took away his high places and his altars and commanded Judah and Jerusalem, saying, 'Before one altar you shall worship, and upon it you shall make your offerings'? ¹³Do you not know what I and my ancestors have done to all the peoples of other lands? Were the gods of the nations of those lands at all able to save their lands out of my hand? ¹⁴Who among all the gods of those nations that my ancestors utterly destroyed was able to save his people from my hand, that your God should be able to save you from my hand? ¹⁵Now therefore do not let Hezekiah deceive you or mislead you in this fashion, and do not believe him, for no god of any nation or kingdom has been able to save his people from my hand or from the hand of my ancestors. How much less will your God save you out of my hand!"

Israel and to speak against him, saying, "Just as the gods of the nations in other lands did not rescue their people from my hands, so the God of Hezekiah will not rescue his people from my hand." ¹⁸They shouted it with a loud voice in the language of Judah to the people of Jerusalem who were on the wall, to frighten and terrify them, in order that they might take the city. ¹⁹They spoke of the God of Jerusalem as if he were like the gods of the peoples of the earth, which are the work of human hands.

²⁰ Then King Hezekiah and the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz prayed because of this and cried to heaven. ²¹And the LORD sent an angel who cut off all the mighty warriors and commanders and officers in the camp of the king of Assyria. So he returned in disgrace to his own land. When he came into the house of his god, some of his own sons struck him down there with the sword. ²²So the LORD saved Hezekiah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem from the hand of King Sennacherib of Assyria and from the hand of all his enemies; he gave them rest^m on every side. ²³Many brought gifts to the LORD in Jerusalem and precious things to King Hezekiah of Judah, so that he was exalted in the sight of all nations from that time onward.

Hezekiah's Sickness

²⁴ In those days Hezekiah became sick and was at the point of death. He prayed to the LORD, and he answered him accuses Hezekiah of trusting in Egypt. 32.9 Lachish. See note on 25.27. 32.10–15 The message of Sennacherib is meant to terrify the people and to alienate them from Hezekiah. 32.12 The Assyrian misinterprets the reform of Hezekiah as if his destruction of high places and altars were a destruction of the Lord's own sanctuaries. 32.13–15 Since no god of any other nation has been able to stop Sennacherib, the Assyrian suggests that the Lord also could not provide help. 32.16 Cf. Ps 2.2: [The nations speak] "against the LORD and his anointed." 32.18 The language of Judah, Hebrew. The standard language of diplomacy was Aramaic. 32.19 In the Chronicler's view, all other gods are impotent idols.

32.20–23 Cf. 2 Kings 19.15, 35–37. 32.20 In 2 Kings 19.1–4; Isa 37.1–4, Hezekiah requests Isaiah to pray. In Chronicles they pray together. 32.21 The Lord answers Hezekiah's prayer (cf. 7.13–15) by completely destroying Sennacherib's army. Sennacherib was in fact killed by his son some twenty years later. 32.22 Rest. Cf. 14.1. 32.23 The acclaim of the nations demonstrates how favored Hezekiah is in God's eyes.

32.24–26 Cf. 2 Kings 20.1–11 (Isa 38.1–22). In this abbreviated account, Hezekiah is healed in answer to prayer (cf. 7.14). His subsequent pride leads to divine wrath. When he and the citizens of Jerusalem humble themselves (cf. 7.14; 12.1–12;

and gave him a sign. ²⁵But Hezekiah did not respond according to the benefit done to him, for his heart was proud. Therefore wrath came upon him and upon Judah and Jerusalem. ²⁶Then Hezekiah humbled himself for the pride of his heart, both he and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so that the wrath of the LORD did not come upon them in the days of Hezekiah.

Hezekiah's Prosperity and Achievements

²⁷ Hezekiah had very great riches and honor; and he made for himself treasures for silver, for gold, for precious stones, for spices, for shields, and for all kinds of costly objects; ²⁸storehouses also for the yield of grain, wine, and oil; and stalls for all kinds of cattle, and sheepfolds.ⁿ ²⁹He likewise provided cities for himself, and flocks and herds in abundance; for God had given him very great possessions. ³⁰This same Hezekiah closed the upper outlet of the waters of Gihon and directed them down to the west side of the city of David. Hezekiah prospered in all his works. ³¹So also in the matter of the envoys of the officials of Babylon, who had been sent to him to inquire about the sign that had been done in the land, God left him to himself, in order to test him and to know all that was in his heart.

³² Now the rest of the acts of Hezekiah, and his good deeds, are written in the vision of the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. ³³Hezekiah slept with his ancestors, and they buried him on the ascent to the tombs of the descendants of David; and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem did him honor at his death. His son Manasseh succeeded him.

Reign of Manasseh

33 Manasseh was twelve years old when he began to reign; he reigned fifty-five years in Jerusalem. ²He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, according to the abominable practices of the nations whom the LORD drove out before the people of Israel. ³For he rebuilt the high places that his father Hezekiah had pulled down, and erected altars to the Baals, made sacred poles,^o worshiped all the host of heaven, and served them. ⁴He built altars in the house of the LORD, of which the LORD had said, "In Jerusalem shall my name be forever." ⁵He built altars for all the host of heaven in the two courts of the house of the LORD. ⁶He made his son pass through fire in the valley of the son of Hinnom, practiced soothsaying and augury and sorcery, and dealt with mediums and with wizards. He did much evil in the sight of the LORD, provoking him to anger. ⁷The carved image of the idol that he had made he set in the house of God, of which God said to David and to his son Solomon, "In this house, and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, I will put my 30.11), the effects of the divine anger are delayed to a later reign. 32.24 Sign. Cf. 2 Kings 20.8–11, where the shadow retreats ten intervals.

32.27–33 Cf. 2 Kings 20.12, 20–21. 32.27–30 These verses are added by the Chronicler. Hezekiah's wealth and building projects demonstrate that divine favor is upon him. 32.31 The incident with the Babylonian envoys is interpreted merely as a divine test. In 2 Kings 20.12–19 Hezekiah proudly shows the envoys all his treasures and receives from Isaiah a stern rebuke. Sign . . . in the land. Cf. v. 24. 32.32 The source from which Chronicles draws is given prophetic authority (cf. 1 Chr 29.29; 2 Chr 9.29). 32.33a The location of Hezekiah's grave, added by the Chronicler, gives him special honor.

33.1–9 Cf. 2 Kings 21.1–9. While Manasseh is as wicked in Chronicles as in Kings, Chronicles reports that toward the end of his life he repents and becomes a religious reformer. 33.1 Beginning with Manasseh and continuing until the end of the monarchy, Chronicles omits the name of the queen mother. Fifty-five. In view of his extensive wickedness, Manasseh's long reign seems to contradict the doctrine of retribution. 33.2 In Kings this verse suggests that exile for the nation is inevitable; in Chronicles it leads to the exile of the king himself. 33.3 Sacred poles, dedicated to the goddess Asherah. Chronicles omits the comparison with Ahab found in 2 Kings 21.3. In Chronicles Ahaz, not Manasseh, is the most wicked of the Judean kings. Host of heaven, probably an old Canaanite cult and not Assyrian astral worship. 33.6 Manasseh practices child sacrifice in a valley south of Jerusalem (the valley of the son of Hinnom) that later became Gehenna, a name for hell or everlasting damnation (Mt 5.22, 29–30). On soothsaying and similar activities, see Deut 18.9–13.

name forever; ⁸I will never again remove the feet of Israel from the land that I appointed for your ancestors, if only they will be careful to do all that I have commanded them, all the law, the statutes, and the ordinances given through Moses.” ⁹Manasseh misled Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so that they did more evil than the nations whom the LORD had destroyed before the people of Israel.

Manasseh Restored After Repentance

10 The LORD spoke to Manasseh and to his people, but they gave no heed. ¹¹Therefore the LORD brought against them the commanders of the army of the king of Assyria, who took Manasseh captive in manacles, bound him with fetters, and brought him to Babylon. ¹²While he was in distress he entreated the favor of the LORD his God and humbled himself greatly before the God of his ancestors. ¹³He prayed to him, and God received his entreaty, heard his plea, and restored him again to Jerusalem and to his kingdom. Then Manasseh knew that the LORD indeed was God.

14 Afterward he built an outer wall for the city of David west of Gihon, in the valley, reaching the entrance at the Fish Gate; he carried it around Ophel, and raised it to a very great height. He also put commanders of the army in all the fortified cities in Judah. ¹⁵He took away the foreign gods and the idol from the house of the LORD, and all the altars that he had built on the mountain of the house of the LORD and in Jerusalem, and he threw them out of the city. ¹⁶He also restored the altar of the LORD and offered on it sacrifices of well-being and of thanksgiving; and he commanded Judah to serve the LORD the God of Israel. ¹⁷The people, however, still sacrificed at the high places, but only to the LORD their God.

Death of Manasseh

18 Now the rest of the acts of Manasseh, his prayer to his God, and the words of the seers who spoke to him in the name of the LORD God of Israel, these are in the Annals of the Kings of Israel. ¹⁹His prayer, and how God received his entreaty, all his sin and his faithlessness, the sites on which he built high places and set up the sacred poles^p and the images, before he humbled himself, these are written in the records of the seers.^q ²⁰So Manasseh slept with his ancestors, and they buried him in his house. His son Amon succeeded him.

Amon's Reign and Death

21 Amon was twenty-two years old when he began to reign; he reigned two years in Jerusalem. ²²He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, as his father Manasseh had done. Amon sacrificed to all the images that his father Manasseh had made, and served them. ²³He did not humble himself before the LORD, as his father Manasseh had humbled himself, 33.10–17 Cf. 2 Kings 21.10. Kings and Chronicles diverge after v. 10. In Kings, Manasseh's wickedness is the culmination of Southern apostasy and necessitates the nation's exile despite the goodness of Josiah (2 Kings 21.11–16). In Chronicles, retribution happens in one's own generation. 33.11 The exile of Manasseh to Babylon requites him for his misdeeds but is not reported in Kings. Assyrian documents refer to Manasseh as a loyal vassal. It is not clear why the exile took place in Babylon rather than in Assyria. 33.12–14 In captivity Manasseh repents and prays, and the Lord hears his prayer (cf. 7.14) and restores him to Jerusalem, thus confirming the doctrine of retribution. A prayer attributed to Manasseh is contained in the Apocrypha. 33.14 Building projects and powerful armies are signs of Manasseh's forgiven and favored status.

Ophel, see note on 27.3. 33.15 According to 2 Kings 23.14 Josiah still has to remove from the temple altars erected by Manasseh. 33.17 The Chronicler concedes that the reform is not completely successful.

33.18–20 Cf. 2 Kings 21.17–18. 33.18 Seers. Cf. v. 10. 33.19 Records of the seers. Again the Chronicler's sources are ascribed prophetic authority. 33.20a Chronicles omits from 2 Kings 21.18 a reference to “the garden of Uzza” (cf. 2 Kings 21.26, according to which Amon is also buried in this garden). Since Uzza was an Arabian astral god, this notice would not conform to the Chronicler's idea of a repentant Manasseh.

33.21–25 Cf. 2 Kings 21.19–26. 33.23 This verse adjusts the summary of Amon's reign to fit the Chronicler's version of Manasseh's reign.

but this Amon incurred more and more guilt. ²⁴His servants conspired against him and killed him in his house. ²⁵But the people of the land killed all those who had conspired against King Amon; and the people of the land made his son Josiah king to succeed him.

Reign of Josiah

34 Josiah was eight years old when he began to reign; he reigned thirty-one years in Jerusalem. ²He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, and walked in the ways of his ancestor David; he did not turn aside to the right or to the left. ³For in the eighth year of his reign, while he was still a boy, he began to seek the God of his ancestor David, and in the twelfth year he began to purge Judah and Jerusalem of the high places, the sacred poles,^r and the carved and the cast images. ⁴In his presence they pulled down the altars of the Baals; he demolished the incense altars that stood above them. He broke down the sacred poles^r and the carved and the cast images; he made dust of them and scattered it over the graves of those who had sacrificed to them. ⁵He also burned the bones of the priests on their altars, and purged Judah and Jerusalem. ⁶In the towns of Manasseh, Ephraim, and Simeon, and as far as Naphtali, in their ruins^s all around, ⁷he broke down the altars, beat the sacred poles^r and the images into powder, and demolished all the incense altars throughout all the land of Israel. Then he returned to Jerusalem.

Discovery of the Book of the Law

⁸ In the eighteenth year of his reign, when he had purged the land and the house, he sent Shaphan son of Azaliah, Maaseiah the governor of the city, and Joah son of Joahaz, the recorder, to repair the house of the LORD his God. ⁹They came to the high priest Hilkiah and delivered the money that had been brought into the house of God, which the Levites, the keepers of the threshold, had collected from Manasseh and Ephraim and from all the remnant of Israel and from all Judah and Benjamin and from the inhabitants of Jerusalem. ¹⁰They delivered it to the workers who had the oversight of the house of the LORD, and the workers who were working in the house of the LORD gave it for repairing and restoring the house. ¹¹They gave it to the carpenters and the builders to buy quarried stone, and timber for binders, and beams for the buildings that the kings of Judah had let go to ruin. ¹²The people did the work faithfully. Over them were appointed the Levites Jahath and Obadiah, of the sons of Merari, along with Zechariah and Meshullam, of the sons of the Kohathites, to have oversight. Other Levites, all skillful with instruments of music, ¹³were over the burden bearers and directed all who did work in every kind of service; and some of the Levites

34.1-7 Cf. 2 Kings 22.1-2; 23.4-20. 34.2 Josiah is the best of all Judean kings in following the example of David, although in Chronicles many of his activities merely repeat those of Hezekiah, who is identified as the real innovator. 34.3 According to Chronicles, Josiah begins seeking God at the age of sixteen and begins his reforming activities at twenty. Note the similar early activities of Hezekiah (29.3). Kings places his main reform in his eighteenth year, after the discovery of the law book, when he was twenty-six. A careful reading of Kings, however, shows that reforming activities (e.g., the temple repair) begin earlier. The few parallels with 2 Kings in 2 Chr 34.3-7 deal with Josiah's reforms in his eighteenth year. Chronicles antedates the purification of the temple to the reign of Manasseh (33.15-16). 34.4-5 The text implies that Josiah kills the priests of Baal (cf. 2 Kings 10; 23.17). 34.6 Because Assyria's power is rapidly deteriorating, Josiah's reform, as in Kings, extends into the Northern Kingdom. Josiah's territory in Chronicles nearly equals that of David and Solomon—from Simeon to Naphtali.

34.8-21 Cf. 2 Kings 22.3-13. 34.8 Maaseiah and Joah are added by the Chronicler, or they may have been accidentally lost from 2 Kings. 34.9 The Chronicler identifies the Levites as the collectors of the temple contribution and includes both Northern and Southern tribes among the contributors. 34.11 Kings of Judah, perhaps Ahaz, Manasseh, and Amon. 34.12-13 The Chronicler places Levites, including the Levitical

14 While they were bringing out the money that had been brought into the house of the LORD, the priest Hilkiah found the book of the law of the LORD given through Moses. 15 Hilkiah said to the secretary Shaphan, "I have found the book of the law in the house of the LORD"; and Hilkiah gave the book to Shaphan. 16 Shaphan brought the book to the king, and further reported to the king, "All that was committed to your servants they are doing. 17 They have emptied out the money that was found in the house of the LORD and have delivered it into the hand of the overseers and the workers." 18 The secretary Shaphan informed the king, "The priest Hilkiah has given me a book." Shaphan then read it aloud to the king.

19 When the king heard the words of the law he tore his clothes. 20 Then the king commanded Hilkiah, Ahikam son of Shaphan, Abdon son of Micah, the secretary Shaphan, and the king's servant Asaiah: 21 "Go, inquire of the LORD for me and for those who are left in Israel and in Judah, concerning the words of the book that has been found; for the wrath of the LORD that is poured out on us is great, because our ancestors did not keep the word of the LORD, to act in accordance with all that is written in this book."

The Prophet Huldah Consulted

22 So Hilkiah and those whom the king had sent went to the prophet Huldah, the wife of Shallum son of Tokhath son of Hasrah, keeper of the wardrobe (who lived in Jerusalem in the Second Quarter) and spoke to her to that effect.

23 She declared to them, "Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Tell the man who sent you to me, 24 Thus says the LORD: I will indeed bring disaster upon this place and upon its inhabitants, all the curses that are written in the book that was read before the king of Judah. 25 Because they have forsaken me and have made offerings to other gods, so that they have provoked me to anger with all the works of their hands, my wrath will be poured out on this place and will not be quenched. 26 But as to the king of Judah, who sent you to inquire of the LORD, thus shall you say to him: Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Regarding the words that you have heard, 27 because your heart was penitent and you humbled yourself before God when you heard his words against this place and its inhabitants, and you have humbled yourself before me, and have torn your clothes and wept before me, I also have heard you, says the LORD. 28 I will gather you to your ancestors and you shall be gathered to your grave in peace; your eyes shall not see all the disaster that I will bring on this place and its inhabitants." They took the message back to the king.

The Covenant Renewed

29 Then the king sent word and gathered together all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem. 30 The king went up to the house of the LORD, with all the people of Judah, the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the priests and the Levites, all the people both great and small; he read in their hearing all the words of the book of the covenant that had been found in the house of the LORD. 31 The king stood in his place and singers, as supervisors and in other offices during the reform. 34.14 Hilkiah's discovery of the law book is a reward for Josiah's generosity and faithfulness to the temple. Modern scholars identify the law book as some form of Deuteronomy; the Chronicler may take it to be the whole Pentateuch. 34.15 2 Kings 22.8 notes that Shaphan reads the book. The Chronicler may think it unlikely that the Pentateuch was read twice by Shaphan in one day (cf. 2 Chr 34.18). 34.21 Those who are left in Israel. The Chronicler's interest in all Israel leads him to add a reference to the remnant of the Northern Kingdom.

34.22–28 Cf. 2 Kings 22.14–20. 34.22 Huldah, a Jerusalemite prophetess. Second Quarter, a part of the city added by Hezekiah. 34.24 Curses. Cf. Deut 27.9–26; 28.15–68. 34.27 Josiah's repentance leads to his deliverance. 34.28 In peace implies a natural death even though Josiah died of wounds suffered in battle (35.23–24). Huldah predicts that Josiah will not himself experience the destruction of Jerusalem.

34.29–33 Cf. 2 Kings 23.1–3. 34.30 Levites. 2 Kings 23.2 reads "prophets." 34.31 In 2 Kings the covenant is followed by the destruction of inappropriate worship sites. In Chronicles these have been destroyed before the finding of the law book. The covenant leads in Chronicles to the celebration of Passover after a summary of

made a covenant before the LORD, to follow the LORD, keeping his commandments, his decrees, and his statutes, with all his heart and all his soul, to perform the words of the covenant that were written in this book. ³²Then he made all who were present in Jerusalem and in Benjamin pledge themselves to it. And the inhabitants of Jerusalem acted according to the covenant of God, the God of their ancestors. ³³Josiah took away all the abominations from all the territory that belonged to the people of Israel, and made all who were in Israel worship the LORD their God. All his days they did not turn away from following the LORD the God of their ancestors.

Celebration of the Passover

35 Josiah kept a passover to the LORD in Jerusalem; they slaughtered the passover lamb on the fourteenth day of the first month. ²He appointed the priests to their offices and encouraged them in the service of the house of the LORD. ³He said to the Levites who taught all Israel and who were holy to the LORD, "Put the holy ark in the house that Solomon son of David, king of Israel, built; you need no longer carry it on your shoulders. Now serve the LORD your God and his people Israel. ⁴Make preparations by your ancestral houses by your divisions, following the written directions of King David of Israel and the written directions of his son Solomon. ⁵Take position in the holy place according to the groupings of the ancestral houses of your kindred the people, and let there be Levites for each division of an ancestral house.^t ⁶Slaughter the passover lamb, sanctify yourselves, and on behalf of your kindred make preparations, acting according to the word of the LORD by Moses."

⁷Then Josiah contributed to the people, as passover offerings for all that were present, lambs and kids from the flock to the number of thirty thousand, and three thousand bulls; these were from the king's possessions. ⁸His officials contributed willingly to the people, to the priests, and to the Levites. Hilkiah, Zechariah, and Jehiel, the chief officers of the house of God, gave to the priests for the passover offerings two thousand six hundred lambs and kids and three hundred bulls. ⁹Conaniah also, and his brothers Shemaiah and Nethanel, and Hashabiah and Jehiel and Jozabad, the chiefs of the Levites, gave to the Levites for the passover offerings five thousand lambs and kids and five hundred bulls.

¹⁰When the service had been prepared for, the priests stood in their place, and the Levites in their divisions according to the king's command. ¹¹They slaughtered the passover lamb, and the priests dashed the blood that they received^u from them, while the Levites did the skinning. ¹²They set aside the burnt offerings so that they might distribute them according to the groupings of the ancestral houses of the people, to offer to the LORD, as it is written in the book of Moses. And they did the same with the bulls. ¹³They roasted the passover lamb with fire according to the ordinance; and

35.1-19 Cf. 2 Kings 23.21-23. Chronicles greatly expands the report of Josiah's Passover and gives prominence to the Levites. 35.1 In Jerusalem, following the precedent of Hezekiah. Fourteenth day of the first month. Josiah's Passover is held at the normal time (Ex 12.6; Lev 23.5; Num 9.3; cf. 2 Chr 30.2-3). 35.3 Taught all Israel. Cf. 17.7-9. According to the Chronicler, the ark had actually been deposited in the temple at the time of Solomon (2 Chr 5) and the Levites had been given alternate duties since the time of David (1 Chr 16.4). 35.4 The Chronicler links David and Solomon as kings who established the duties of the Levites. See 1 Chr 23-27. Other parallels between David and Solomon are given in 2 Chr 7.10; 11.17. 35.7-9 The generosity of the king and his officials could serve as an example to the Chronicler's audience. The bulls are not part of the Passover ritual but may be associated with the Feast of Unleavened Bread. The number of animals contributed is 41,400 (cf. 2 Chr 30.24, where 19,000 animals were given at Hezekiah's Passover). The population of Judah is about 300,000, not counting participants from the North. 35.11 Because of the large numbers at the centralized Passover, the Levites kill and skin the lambs, while the priests manipulate the blood. 35.13 They roasted . . . fire, lit. "They boiled the passover lamb with fire." According to Ex 12.8-9 the Passover lamb is to be roasted; according to

they boiled the holy offerings in pots, in caldrons, and in pans, and carried them quickly to all the people. ¹⁴Afterward they made preparations for themselves and for the priests, because the priests the descendants of Aaron were occupied in offering the burnt offerings and the fat parts until night; so the Levites made preparations for themselves and for the priests, the descendants of Aaron. ¹⁵The singers, the descendants of Asaph, were in their place according to the command of David, and Asaph, and Heman, and the king's seer Jeduthun. The gatekeepers were at each gate; they did not need to interrupt their service, for their kindred the Levites made preparations for them.

¹⁶ So all the service of the LORD was prepared that day, to keep the passover and to offer burnt offerings on the altar of the LORD, according to the command of King Josiah. ¹⁷The people of Israel who were present kept the passover at that time, and the festival of unleavened bread seven days. ¹⁸No passover like it had been kept in Israel since the days of the prophet Samuel; none of the kings of Israel had kept such a passover as was kept by Josiah, by the priests and the Levites, by all Judah and Israel who were present, and by the inhabitants of Jerusalem. ¹⁹In the eighteenth year of the reign of Josiah this passover was kept.

Defeat by Pharaoh Neco and Death of Josiah

²⁰ After all this, when Josiah had set the temple in order, King Neco of Egypt went up to fight at Carchemish on the Euphrates, and Josiah went out against him. ²¹But Neco sent envoys to him, saying, "What have I to do with you, king of Judah? I am not coming against you today, but against the house with which I am at war; and God has commanded me to hurry. Cease opposing God, who is with me, so that he will not destroy you." ²²But Josiah would not turn away from him, but disguised himself in order to fight with him. He did not listen to the words of Neco from the mouth of God, but joined battle in the plain of Megiddo. ²³The archers shot King Josiah; and the king said to his servants, "Take me away, for I am badly wounded." ²⁴So his servants took him out of the chariot and carried him in his second chariot and brought him to Jerusalem. There he died, and was buried in the tombs of his ancestors. All Judah and Jerusalem mourned for Josiah. ²⁵Jeremiah also uttered a lament for Josiah, and all the singing men and singing women have spoken of Josiah in their laments to this day. They made these a custom in Israel; they are recorded in the Laments. ²⁶Now the rest of the acts of Jo-

Since centralization has already occurred with Hezekiah according to Chronicles, the innovation with Josiah may be the prominent role of the Levites (cf. vv. 3–6). This verse also stresses the significance of an all-Israel celebration.

35.20–27 Cf. 2 Kings 23.28–30a. Josiah's death comes thirteen years after the Passover celebration. Neco was on his way to prop up Assyria as a buffer against Babylon (2 Kings 23.29 indicates that Neco was fighting against Assyria though this point is not clear in NRSV). Josiah opposes him because he is anti-Assyrian, or because of a league with Babylon, or because he wants independence. 35.20 Neco, king of Egypt 610–595 B.C.E. Carchemish, a city sixty miles northeast of Aleppo. 35.21 Since Neco claims he has been sent by God, anyone opposing him would be opposing God. He desires safe passage through Judah. 35.22 Josiah persists in his battle plans and disobeys the word of God as revealed through Neco. Hence the death of this otherwise exemplary king corresponds with the doctrine of retribution. According to 1 Esd 1.26, Jeremiah had authenticated the message from Neco. Disguised himself, a detail not mentioned in 2 Kings (cf. Ahab in 1 Kings 22.30). Megiddo, a town located on an important pass in the Carmel range. 35.23 The Chronicler observes that the archers wounded the king, who begs his attendants to take him from the battle. 35.24 Transported in a second chariot, Josiah dies in Jerusalem. In 2 Kings 23.29–30 Josiah dies at Megiddo. 35.25 Jeremiah expresses public sorrow, and he is joined by other singers. The Laments, a work otherwise unknown; not the biblical book of Lamentations. 35.26 The Chronicler notes that the deeds of Josiah were in accord with what is written in the law of the Lord, that is, the Pentateuch. Chronicles places the summary of Josiah's reign after the account of his death, not before it as in Kings.

Reign of Jehoahaz

36 The people of the land took Jehoahaz son of Josiah and made him king to succeed his father in Jerusalem. ²Jehoahaz was twenty-three years old when he began to reign; he reigned three months in Jerusalem. ³Then the king of Egypt deposed him in Jerusalem and laid on the land a tribute of one hundred talents of silver and one talent of gold. ⁴The king of Egypt made his brother Eliakim king over Judah and Jerusalem, and changed his name to Jehoiakim; but Neco took his brother Jehoahaz and carried him to Egypt.

Reign and Captivity of Jehoiakim

⁵ Jehoiakim was twenty-five years old when he began to reign; he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD his God. ⁶Against him King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon came up, and bound him with fetters to take him to Babylon. ⁷Nebuchadnezzar also carried some of the vessels of the house of the LORD to Babylon and put them in his palace in Babylon. ⁸Now the rest of the acts of Jehoiakim, and the abominations that he did, and what was found against him, are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel and Judah; and his son Jehoiachin succeeded him.

Reign and Captivity of Jehoiachin

⁹ Jehoiachin was eight years old when he began to reign; he reigned three months and ten days in Jerusalem. He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD. ¹⁰In the spring of the year King Nebuchadnezzar sent and brought him to Babylon, along with the precious vessels of the house of the LORD, and made his brother Zedekiah king over Judah and Jerusalem.

Reign of Zedekiah

¹¹ Zedekiah was twenty-one years old when he began to reign; he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. ¹²He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD his God. He did not humble himself before the prophet Jeremiah who spoke from the mouth of the LORD. ¹³He also rebelled against King Nebuchadnezzar, who had made him swear by God; he stiffened his neck and hardened his heart against turning to the LORD, the God of Israel. ¹⁴All the leading priests and the people also were exceedingly unfaithful, following all the abominations of the nations; and they polluted the house of the LORD that he had consecrated in Jerusalem.

Eliakim/Jehoiakim is actually older than Jehoahaz, but we do not know why he is not the first to succeed his father (cf. 1 Chr 3.15). Each of the last four kings winds up in exile and each pays tribute.

36.5-8 Cf. 2 Kings 23.36-24.7. 36.6 Nebuchadnezzar ruled Babylon from 605 to 562 B.C.E. Jehoiakim's death is reported in 2 Kings 24.6; 2 Chronicles reports his (temporary or possibly his threatened) exile. 36.7 On the temple vessels, see 1 Chr 28.14-17; 2 Chr 4.19-22; 36.18; Ezra 1.7-11).

36.9-10 Cf. 2 Kings 24.8-17; 25.27-30.

36.9 A child king for three months, Jehoiachin spends thirty-seven years in a Babylonian prison (2 Kings 25.27-30). According to 2 Kings 24.8, he is eighteen when he becomes king. 36.10 Brother, perhaps a relative. 2 Kings 24.17 reads "uncle." Cf. also 1 Chr 3.15-16.

36.11-14 Cf. 2 Kings 24.18-25.7. 36.12 Chronicles condemns Zedekiah by citing his disobedience toward the prophet Jeremiah (cf. Jer 37.2). 36.13 Zedekiah breaks an oath by rebelling against Nebuchadnezzar. 36.14 The author charges the leading priests and the people with being unfaithful, a favorite word for sin in Chronicles.

36.15-16 Exile results from persistent despising of the prophets (cf. Jer 26.5; 29.19). No remedy. Cf. 2 Chr 7.14, where God promises his people and on his dwelling place; ¹⁶but they kept mocking the messengers of God, despising his words, and scoffing at his prophets, until the wrath of the LORD against his people became so great that there was no remedy.

¹⁷ Therefore he brought up against them the king of the Chaldeans, who killed their youths with the sword in the house of their sanctuary, and had no compassion on young man or young woman, the aged or the feeble; he gave them all into his hand. ¹⁸ All the vessels of the house of God, large and small, and the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king and of his officials, all these he brought to Babylon. ¹⁹ They burned the house of God, broke down the wall of Jerusalem, burned all its palaces with fire, and destroyed all its precious vessels. ²⁰ He took into exile in Babylon those who had escaped from the sword, and they became servants to him and to his sons until the establishment of the kingdom of Persia, ²¹ to fulfill the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah, until the land had made up for its sabbaths. All the days that it lay desolate it kept sabbath, to fulfill seventy years.

Cyrus Proclaims Liberty for the Exiles

to heal the people. 36.17 Chaldeans, the peoples who ruled Mesopotamia during the Neo-Babylonian period. 36.21 Jeremiah. Cf. Jer 25.11–12; 29.10. The Chronicler views Palestine as empty during the exilic period, but free to enjoy the sabbaths it had missed (perhaps since the beginning of the monarchy) and to get ready for the exiles who would return (Lev 26.34–35). Seventy years. The actual length of the exile was about fifty years.

36.22–23 Cf. Ezra 1.1–3a. The last verses of Chronicles are virtually identical with the first verses of Ezra. This passage views Cyrus as the fulfillment of Jeremiah's prophecy and implicitly accepts Persian rule in the postexilic period. The Persian king authorizes the rebuilding of the temple (cf. Ezra 6.3–5) and gives his blessings to all exiles who desire to return to Palestine. 36.22 Cyrus ruled Babylonia from about 539 to 530 B.C.E.

EZRA

THE BOOKS OF EZRA AND NEHEMIAH are our most important source of evidence for the history of the early postexilic period, from 539 to ca. 430 B.C.E. They bear the names of the two best-known leaders of the Jewish community of those years, Ezra the priest and Nehemiah the governor, both of whom were active in the middle of the fifth century B.C.E., though their activity in Jerusalem perhaps never overlapped.

Connections with Other Books

The narrative of Ezra-Nehemiah continues directly from the end of 2 Chronicles, and the style and interests of the author are so like those of the Chronicler that most scholars have thought that the whole sequence of 1 Chronicles through Nehemiah was once a single work by one author. Even if the differences between 1 and 2 Chronicles, on the one hand, and Ezra-Nehemiah, on the other, point to different authorship, it seems that Ezra-Nehemiah was composed as a sequel to 1 and 2 Chronicles and that the authors of both works were Jerusalem clergy of the fourth century B.C.E.

1 Esdras, in the Protestant Apocrypha but not among the Catholic deuterocanonical books, is another work bearing the name of Ezra. Its narrative parallels the story from 2 Chr 35 to Neh 8, with only its last two chapters being concerned with Ezra. (See the table, "The Relation of 1 Esdras to Other Biblical Books," in the Introduction to 1 Esdras.) 2 Esdras is found in the Apocrypha of Anglo-Saxon churches but is usually assigned to the Pseudepigrapha by the Lutheran tradition, and in Catholic Bibles it is either included among the NT Apocrypha or omitted altogether. It has nothing to do with the historical Ezra; it is a set of apocalypses attributed to him.

Structure

The books of Ezra and Nehemiah are a narrative of the restoration of the Jewish people to its homeland. What drives that story are the decrees of two Persian kings, Cyrus and Artaxerxes, and what counts as restoration is the fulfillment of their demands. In Ezra 1 Cyrus commands the Jews to return to their land and resume temple worship; in accord with that, Ezra 1–6 narrates the return and the rebuilding of the temple. In Ezra 7 Artaxerxes commands obedience to the law of Moses on the part of all the Jews; and in Neh 2 he authorizes the reestablishment of Jerusalem, which will be the focus of national identity. In accord with these initiatives, Ezra 7 through Neh 13 narrates the imposition of the Mosaic law and its effects; Ezra insists on obedience to its demands for separation from non-Jews and Nehemiah likewise creates a distinctive Jewish identity when he encloses Jerusalem with a wall and purges the community from all things foreign.

Sources

The author has drawn on various sources for the narrative, at times editing them quite heavily and at other times simply copying them. Extensive sources were an Ezra “memoir,” which provided the material for Ezra 7–10 and Neh 8–9, and a Nehemiah memoir, lightly edited to form Neh 1–7; 11.1–2; 12.31–43; 13.4–31 (though it is disputed whether Neh 3, for example, was ever part of such a memoir). Use of first-person language in some of the Ezra material and all of the Nehemiah narrative does not, of course, prove that the documents are authentic, but it is very probable that in the Nehemiah memoir at least we are reading the record of a leading statesman about events in which he was personally involved.

The author has also perhaps drawn on an “Aramaic chronicle,” a collection of Persian documents in Aramaic purporting to be official correspondence about Jerusalem. That would explain why Ezra 4.7–6.18 is entirely in Aramaic while the rest of Ezra-Nehemiah is mostly in Hebrew. The typical bureaucratic language of these documents suggests they are authentic, though there are evidences of editing by a Jewish author. Other Persian documents are quoted in Ezra 1.2–4 (the edict of Cyrus) and 7.12–28 (Artaxerxes’ authorization to Ezra, in Aramaic).

Other sources include various Jewish lists, e.g., of inhabitants of Judea (Ezra 2.3–58; Neh 7.8–60; 11.3–9), and of priests and Levites (Neh 11.10–23; 12.1–26), and the document recording the people’s pledge to keep the details of the law and the names of those who signed it (Neh 10).

Historical Background

These books have their historical setting in two distinct periods, in the sixth and in the fifth centuries B.C.E.

539–515 B.C.E.

The Persian emperor Cyrus, having gained the Babylonian Empire in 539, gave permission to the Jewish exiles in Babylonia to return to the land of Israel and to rebuild the temple. Sacrifice is said to have been resumed immediately upon their return, but repairs on the temple did not apparently progress. Only in 520, when Zerubbabel was governor of the province of Judea, did the temple building start in earnest, and it was finished in 515 (Ezra 6.15).

It is debated whether Ezra's work is to be dated to 458 or 398, but on the assumption of the earlier date, the second period begins with the commissioning of the Jewish priest Ezra by Artaxerxes I to establish pentateuchal law as state law in the province of Judea and to regulate the temple worship (Ezra 7). Ezra read the law to the people at the Festival of Booths in September, 458 (Neh 8), and his commission of enquiry into marriages of Jews with non-Jews sat from December of that year until the spring of 457 (Ezra 9–10).

A decade later, in 445, Nehemiah, a Jewish official in the service of Artaxerxes, was appointed governor of Judea (Neh 2; 5.14) with responsibility to rebuild the wall of Jerusalem and thus presumably to enhance the status of the city. Nehemiah, having completed that task (Neh 6.15), remained governor for twelve years and enlarged the city's population by resettling villagers in the capital. At some time after 433, he returned for a second term of duty and carried out reforms of the religious life of the community (Neh 13.4–31).

End of the Babylonian Captivity

1 In the first year of King Cyrus of Persia, in order that the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah might be accomplished, the LORD stirred up the spirit of King Cyrus of Persia so that he sent a herald throughout all his kingdom, and also in a written edict declared:

2 "Thus says King Cyrus of Persia:

The LORD, the God of heaven, has given me all the kingdoms of the earth, and he has charged me to build him a house at Jerusalem in Judah.³ Any of those among you who are of his people—may their God be with them!—are now permitted to go up to Jerusalem in Judah, and rebuild the house of the LORD, the God of Israel—he is the God who is in Jerusalem;⁴ and let all survivors, in whatever place they

1.1–11 The Persian king Cyrus authorizes the Jews in exile in Babylonia to return to the land to rebuild the temple; the returning exiles carry with them treasures earlier plundered from the temple. 1.1–2 Mostly the same wording as 2 Chr 36.22, perhaps copied into 2 Chronicles as a link to Ezra. 1.1 The first year of King Cyrus of Persia. The first year of the reign of Cyrus II (the Great) over the Babylonian Empire, 539–37 B.C.E. Cyrus had been king over Anshan (Elam) since 559 B.C.E.; he then conquered Persia, Media, Lydia, Assyria, and finally Babylonia. The word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah. Jer 25.11 predicts subjection to Babylon for seventy years, and Jer 29.10 tells Jewish exiles in Babylon that after seventy years God will bring them back to Jerusalem. The first deportation was in 597 B.C.E. (2 Kings

24.12–16), only sixty years previously; perhaps seventy is understood as a round number. Or perhaps the reference in Dan 1.1 to a deportation in 606 B.C.E. is a genuine historical reminiscence. Herald . . . written edict. After the public announcement of the royal edict, the herald would post a copy of it on an official notice board. 1.2–4 Another edict of Cyrus concerning the rebuilding of the temple is in 6.3–5. 1.2 A temple is often called the house of the deity who dwells in it. Judah, the Persian province known as Judea, Yehud in Hebrew. 1.3 Permitted may mean "commanded," since this is the edict of an autocrat. Rebuild implies knowledge of the destruction of the Jerusalem temple (587/6 B.C.E.) 1.4 Survivors from the destruction of Jerusalem, i.e., those exiled to Babylon. The people of their place are reside, be assisted by the people of their place with silver and gold, with goods and with animals, besides freewill offerings for the house of God in Jerusalem."

5 The heads of the families of Judah and Benjamin, and the priests and the Levites—everyone whose spirit God had stirred—got ready to go up and rebuild the house of the LORD in Jerusalem. 6 All their neighbors aided them with silver vessels, with gold, with goods, with animals, and with valuable gifts, besides all that was freely offered. 7 King Cyrus himself brought out the vessels of the house of the LORD that Nebuchadnezzar had carried away from Jerusalem and placed in the house of his gods. 8 King Cyrus of Persia had them released into the charge of Mithredath the treasurer, who counted them out to Sheshbazzar the prince of Judah. 9 And this was the inventory: gold basins, thirty; silver basins, one thousand; knives,^a twenty-nine; 10 gold bowls, thirty; other silver bowls, four hundred ten; other vessels, one thousand; 11 the total of the gold and silver vessels was five thousand four hundred. All these Sheshbazzar brought up, when the exiles were brought up from Babylonia to Jerusalem.

List of the Returned Exiles

2 Now these were the people of the province who came from those captive exiles whom King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon had carried captive to Babylonia;

they returned to Jerusalem and Judah, all to their own towns. 2 They came with Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, Seraiah, Reelaiah, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispar, Bigvai, Rehum, and Baanah.

"father's houses," the extended family consisting of all descendants of a living patriarch (except women married into other families) and the family's slaves or servants. Judah and Benjamin, the tribes (cf. Judah the state in 1.2). Priests traced their ancestry to Aaron, son of Levi; Levites were other members of the tribe of Levi who undertook more menial duties in temple worship (cf. Num 3.5–9). 1.7 Nebuchadnezzar had carried away, a reference either to pillaging during the capture of Jerusalem in 597 B.C.E. (cf. 2 Kings 24.13) or to the final plundering of the temple in 587 B.C.E. (25.13–15; see also 2 Chr 36.10, 18; Jer 52.17–19). The house of his gods, or rather "the house of his god," the temple, called Esagila, of Nebuchadnezzar's preferred deity, Marduk of Babylon. 1.8 Sheshbazzar, perhaps Shenazzar, a son of Jehoiachin, the exiled king of Judah (1 Chr 3.18). Cf. note on 5.14. 1.9–11 The number of items in the inventory comes to 2499, which differs from the total given as 5400. The rsv translation emended the 30 gold basins to 1000 (as in the parallel 1 Esd 2.13), the 410 silver bowls to 2410 (as in 1 Esd 2.13), and the total to 5469 (as in 1 Esd 2.14).

2.2a Apparently a list of leaders from various periods after the return. Zerubbabel and Jeshua are the governor and the priest of 3.2; perhaps Nehemiah is the governor Nehemiah (Neh 1.1), Seraiah the father of the priest Ezra (Ezra 7.1), and Bigvai the governor of Judea (Hebrew Yehud) after Nehemiah known from the Elephantine papyri.

2.2b–58 A census of inhabitants of Judea (the province Yehud in Hebrew), at some unknown time after the return from exile. The list is paralleled in Neh 7 and 1 Esd 5, with many variations, especially in the numerals. 2.2b The Israelite people, i.e., laypersons, as distinct from priests, Levites, and other religious professionals (2.36–58). 2.3–35 These are not the names of individuals but of clans or phratries (2.3–20) and

Bethel and Ai, two hundred twenty-three. ²⁹The descendants of Nebo, fifty-two. ³⁰Of Magbish, one hundred fifty-six. ³¹Of the other Elam, one thousand two hundred fifty-four. ³²Of Harim, three hundred twenty. ³³Of Lod, Hadid, and Ono, seven hundred twenty-five. ³⁴Of Jericho, three hundred forty-five. ³⁵Of Senaah, three thousand six hundred thirty.

³⁶ The priests: the descendants of Jedaiah, of the house of Jeshua, nine hundred seventy-three. ³⁷Of Immer, one thousand fifty-two. ³⁸Of Pashhur, one thousand two hundred forty-seven. ³⁹Of Harim, one thousand seventeen.

⁴³ The temple servants: the descendants of Ziha, Hasupha, Tabbaoth, ⁴⁴Keros, Siaha, Padon, ⁴⁵Lebanah, Hagabah, Akkub, ⁴⁶Hagab, Shamlai, Hanan, ⁴⁷Giddel, Gahar, Reaiah, ⁴⁸Rezin, Nekoda, Gazzam, ⁴⁹Uzza, Paseah, Besai, ⁵⁰Asnah, Meunim, Nephisim, ⁵¹Bakbuk, Hakupha, Harhur, ⁵²Bazluth, Mehida, Harsha, ⁵³Barkos, Sisera, Temah, ⁵⁴Neziah, and Hatipha.

⁵⁵ The descendants of Solomon's servants: Sotai, Hassophereth, Peruda, ⁵⁶Jalah, Darkon, Giddel, ⁵⁷Shephatiah, Hattil, Pochereth-hazzebaim, and Ami.

⁵⁸ All the temple servants and the descendants of Solomon's servants were three hundred ninety-two.

⁵⁹ The following were those who came up from Tel-melash, Tel-harsha, Cherub, Addan, and Immer, though they could not prove their families or their descent, whether they belonged to Israel: ⁶⁰the descendants of Delaiah, Tobiah, and Nekoda, six hundred fifty-two. ⁶¹Also, of the descendants of the priests: the descendants of Habaiah, Hakkoz, and Barzillai (who had married one of the daughters of Barzillai the Gileadite, and was called by their name). ⁶²These looked for their entries in the genealogical records, but they were not found there, and so they were excluded from the priesthood as unclean; ⁶³the governor told them that they were not to partake of the most holy food, until there should be a priest to consult Urim and Thummim.

of towns (2.21–35). 2.36–39 Other lists of postexilic priests are in Neh 10.2–8; 12.1–7. 2.40–42 Levites are also listed in Neh 10.9–13; 12.8–9. The temple singers (cf. 1 Chr 9.33–44) and gatekeepers (cf. 1 Chr 9.17–27) seem also to be regarded as Levites (as in Neh 12.9, 24–25). 2.43–54 Temple servants, a hereditary caste of temple servitors (Hebrew netinim), mostly with non-Israelite names. 2.55–57 Solomon's servants, ostensibly the descendants of Solomon's Canaanite slaves (1 Kings 9.20–21; 2 Chr 8.7–8), now temple officials.

2.59–69 Unlike 2.2b–58, a census of inhabitants of the province, this appears to be a report of the return of the exiles from five towns in Babylonia. 2.61 Barzillai, a contemporary of David (2 Sam 17.27–29; 19.31–39). For a male to take the name of his wife's family is unparalleled in the OT. 2.62–63 Unclean, in the ritual sense, and so unable to officiate as priests or be fed from the temple revenues (not to partake of the most holy food). 2.63 We cannot tell which governor (Hebrew tirshata, a Persian title signifying "His Excellency") of the Persian province of Judea is intended here. Urim and Thummim, sacred lots enabling the answers to difficult questions to be divined. They were apparently two small objects kept in a pouch of the high priest's ephod (Ex 28.30; Lev 8.8); they could yield the responses "yes," "no," or "no answer" (cf. 1 Sam 14.36–37; 23.9–12; 30.7–8). 2.64 The figure of 42,360 members of the assembly differs from the total of the individual sums (29,818) in 2.2b–58. Such figures often suffer from errors in transmission. But perhaps the 42,360 are returnees, including women, and the 29,818 are inhabitants of the province at a later date including those who had not been exiled, but excluding women. 2.65 Both male and female servants and male and female singers are counted, so probably women members of the community are also included in the total of 2.64. The singers are secular entertainers; the temple singers have been mentioned in 2.41, and there were no female singers in the temple, as far as we know. 2.66–67 Horses and mules are for riding, camels and donkeys for carrying 67 four hundred thirty-five camels, and six thousand seven hundred twenty donkeys.

68 As soon as they came to the house of the LORD in Jerusalem, some of the heads of families made freewill offerings for the house of God, to erect it on its site. 69 According to their resources they gave to the building fund sixty-one thousand darics of gold, five thousand minas of silver, and one hundred priestly robes.

70 The priests, the Levites, and some of the people lived in Jerusalem and its vicinity;^b and the singers, the gatekeepers, and the temple servants lived in their towns, and all Israel in their towns.

Worship Restored at Jerusalem

3 When the seventh month came, and the Israelites were in the towns, the people gathered together in Jerusalem.

2 Then Jeshua son of Jozadak, with his fellow priests, and Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel with his kin set out to build the altar of the God of Israel, to offer burnt offerings on it, as prescribed in the law of Moses the man of God. 3 They set up the altar on its foundation, because they were in dread of the neighboring peoples, and they offered burnt offerings upon it to the LORD, morning and evening. 4 And they kept the festival of booths,^c as prescribed, and offered the daily burnt offerings by number according to the ordinance, as required for each day, 5 and after that the regular burnt offerings, the offerings at the new moon and at all the sacred festivals of the LORD, and the offerings of everyone who loads; the list seems to be something like a caravan inventory. 2.68 The building and furnishing of the Second Temple is here regarded as the responsibility of the community at large rather than of a king, as it was with Solomon's temple (1 Kings 6–7). The giving of freewill offerings is reminiscent of the accounts of the construction of the tabernacle (Ex 25.2–7; 35.21–29); 1 Chr 29.6–9 also ascribes the funding of the First Temple to the donations of the people. 2.69 Sixty-one thousand darics. A daric was a gold coin of 8.4 grams, apparently named for Darius I (522–486 B.C.E.), who was represented on his coins half-length or kneeling with a bow and arrow. The reference to darics at a time earlier than Darius is anachronistic and suggests a composition or revision of this text later than the time it purports to describe. The total weight of gold in 61,000 darics (41,000 in Neh 7.70–72) is 1,133 pounds. Minas are not coins, but weights of about 570 grams (20 ounces), 50 times the weight of a shekel. 5,000 minas of silver would weigh 6,250 pounds. Priestly robes, i.e., tunics, of intricately embroidered linen (Ex 28.4–5; cf. 28.39; 39.27–29).

3.1–13 Sacrifices are resumed and preparations for the rebuilding are made. 3.1 The seventh month, Tishri (September/October) of 538 B.C.E. The Israelites were in the towns. The people had settled in their ancestral homes in the country towns and villages, as well, of course, as in Jerusalem. The people gathered together in Jerusalem. The seventh month, the most important in the liturgical year (Num 29), required in principle the presence in Jerusalem at least of all males in order to celebrate the Festival of Booths (see note on 3.4). 3.2 Jeshua, the high priest (cf. Neh 12.10; Hag 1.1, 14; 2.2), called Joshua in Haggai, is here named before Zerubbabel because the context concerns worship. Usually their names are given in the reverse order (e.g., Ezra 2.2; 3.8; 4.3; 5.2). Jeshua's father, Jozadak (Jehozadak), was high priest at the time of the exile in 587 B.C.E. (1 Chr 6.15). Zerubbabel, grandson of the exiled king of Judah, Jehoiachin (Jeconia; 1 Chr 3.17–19), is the Jewish governor appointed by the Persians. To build the altar. The assumption is that the altar of the First Temple had been destroyed (on destroying altars, cf. 2 Kings 23.15). As prescribed in the law of Moses, i.e., built of unhewn stones (Ex 20.25; cf. Deut 27.6; 1 Macc 4.42–47). 3.3 On its foundation, i.e., on the foundation of the old altar still remaining. Continuity of tradition is deemed important for the legitimacy of the worship. Because they were in dread. The reestablishment of worship is the priority in the restoration of the state as a means of warding off danger from the neighboring peoples, lit. "the peoples of the lands," such as Edomites and Ammonites. Cf. the term people of the land for the inhabitants of Palestine proper (cf. note on 4.4). Burnt offerings . . . morning and evening, the prescribed "perpetual offering" (Hebrew tamid), a lamb together with flour, oil, and wine, the staple produce of the land (Ex 29.38–42; Num 28.3–8). 3.4 The festival of booths (Tabernacles) was held from the fifteenth to the twenty-second of the seventh month (Lev 23.33–36). The daily burnt offerings are detailed in Num 29.12–38, totaling in the week 71 bulls, 15 rams, 105 lambs, and 7 goats. 3.5 Throughout the year there would be offered sacrifices: the public regular burnt offerings daily, the new moon offerings monthly, the offerings at sacred festivals seasonally, and the private freewill offerings irregularly. The sacred festivals are enumerated in made a freewill offering to the LORD. ⁶From the first day of the seventh month they began to offer burnt offerings to the LORD. But the foundation of the temple of the LORD was not yet laid. ⁷So they gave money to the masons and the carpenters, and food, drink, and oil to the Sidonians and the Tyrians to bring cedar trees from Lebanon to the sea, to Joppa, according to the grant that they had from King Cyrus of Persia.

Foundation Laid for the Temple

8 In the second year after their arrival at the house of God at Jerusalem, in the second month, Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel and Jeshua son of Jozadak made a beginning, together with the rest of their people, the priests and the Levites and all who had come to Jerusalem from the captivity. They appointed the Levites, from twenty years old and upward, to have the oversight of the work on the house of the LORD. ⁹And Jeshua with his sons and his kin, and Kadmiel and his sons, Binnui and Hodaviah^d along with the sons of Henadad, the Levites, their sons and kin, together took charge of the workers in the house of God.

10 When the builders laid the foundation of the temple of the LORD, the priests in their vestments were stationed to praise the LORD with trumpets, and the Levites, the sons of Asaph, with cymbals, according to the directions of King David of Israel; ¹¹and they sang responsively,

Lev 23. 3.6 The first day of the seventh month. According to the narrator's report, the date is September 17, 538 B.C.E. The foundation of the temple . . . was not yet laid, better "work had not yet started on the temple rebuilding." Many of the foundations must have survived from the ruins of the First Temple. The point is that sacrificial worship was resumed long before the temple building itself was repaired. 3.7 The account of the building of the Second Temple is intended to remind readers of the building of Solomon's temple (2 Chr 3; cf. 1 Chr 22.2–4), for the narrator sees the Second Temple as essentially a rebuilding and continuation of the First Temple. Money is probably an anachronistic translation, for coins were not yet in common use. The Hebrew is lit. "silver," which would have been weighed out as wages. Masons, including stonecutters (as in 1 Chr 22.2). The English word carpenters is too specific; the Hebrew is lit. "cutters," i.e., workers in wood, metal, and stone (cf. 1 Chr 22.15). Food, drink, and oil to the Sidonians and the Tyrians. Solomon too paid his workmen from Sidon and Tyre in kind (wheat and oil, 1 Kings 5.11). Cedar trees from Lebanon. These tall and robust trees, highly prized throughout the ancient Near East, were ideal for roof beams. Isa 60.13 speaks of the "glory of Lebanon" coming to Jerusalem to "beautify" the temple. To the sea, to Joppa, better "to the port at Joppa." In Solomon's time too (according to 2 Chr 2.16) logs bound together as rafts had been towed from Lebanon to Joppa, Tell Qasile, just north of modern Tel Aviv. The grant . . . from King Cyrus, probably not the money grant (6.4) but his permission for timber to be taken free from Lebanon, which had become a royal Persian forest.

3.8 In the second year, 537 B.C.E. Not much is said to have been done at this time (cf. laid the foundation, 3.10), for work ceases until the reign of Darius (522–486 B.C.E.; 4.5) and then is resumed and completed in his sixth year (6.15). In the second month, Ziv (Iyyar) (April–May). In the same month Solomon began work on his temple (1 Kings 6.1; 2 Chr 3.2); it was a suitable season for building work, after the spring rains and the early harvest of flax and barley. Zerubbabel, Jeshua. See note on 3.2. All who had come . . . from the captivity. Those who had not been in exile in Babylonia but had remained in the land seem to be studiously ignored by the author. Twenty years old, the minimum age for Levitical duties according to the Chronicler (cf. 1 Chr 23.24, 27; 2 Chr 31.17). 3.9 In accordance with his custom, the author lingers over the names and functions of the Levites, creating the impression that he himself was a Levite. This Jeshua is a Levite, not the high priest (3.2). 3.10 Laid the foundation. Whether there was any foundation laying we do not know (cf. note on 3.6), for the Hebrew says only that they "restored, repaired," which must mean in the context that they began to repair. 2 Kings 25.9 speaks only of the burning of the temple by the Babylonians, and the large dressed foundation stones, up to 12 or 15 feet in length (1 Kings 5.17; 7.10), would not have been much damaged by the collapse of the temple. In their vestments. The Hebrew has simply "clothed"; presumably a word like "in linen" has been accidentally omitted. Trumpets of silver (Num 10.2) blown by priests and cymbals of bronze (1 Chr 15.19) sounded by the sons of Asaph, the musicians' guild among the Levites (see Ezra 2.41; 2 Chr 29.25–26), were a rhythmical backing for the vocal music. According to the directions of King David. See 1 Chr 16.4–6; 25.1, 6. 3.11 For praising and giving thanks to the LORD,

 "For he is good,
 for his steadfast love endures
 forever toward Israel."

And all the people responded with a great shout when they praised the LORD, because the foundation of the house of the LORD was laid. ¹² But many of the priests and Levites and heads of families, old people who had seen the first house on its foundations, wept with a loud voice when they saw this house, though many shouted aloud for joy, ¹³ so that the people could not distinguish the sound of the joyful shout from the sound of the people's weeping, for the people shouted so loudly that the sound was heard far away.

Resistance to Rebuilding the Temple

4 When the adversaries of Judah and Benjamin heard that the returned exiles were building a temple to the LORD, the God of Israel, ² they approached Zerubbabel and the heads of families and said to them, "Let us build with you, for we worship your God as you do, and we have been sacrificing to him ever since the days of King Esar-haddon of Assyria who brought us here." ³ But Zerubbabel, Jeshua, and the rest of the heads of families in Israel said to them, "You shall have no part with us in building a house to our God; but we alone will build to the LORD, the God of Israel, as King Cyrus of Persia has commanded us."

⁴ Then the people of the land discouraged the people of Judah, and made them afraid to build, ⁵ and they bribed officials to frustrate their plan throughout the reign of King Cyrus of Persia and until the reign of King Darius of Persia.

Rebuilding of Jerusalem Opposed

⁶ In the reign of Ahasuerus, in his accession year, they wrote an accusation against the inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem.

⁷ And in the days of Artaxerxes, Bishlam and Mithredath and Tabeel and the rest of their associates wrote to King Artaxerxes of Persia; the letter was written in Aramaic and translated. ⁸ Rehum the

he is good . . . toward Israel, a quotation from a psalm such as 106 (v. 1) or 136, intended for responsive singing. The theme of the praise is God's fidelity (steadfast love) to the nation; true to his promise, he has enabled them to return to the land. The shout is often associated with military victory and the return of the ark of the covenant, seat of the divine king (e.g., 1 Sam 4.5-6; Pss 47.5; 132.16), to the center of the people. Because the foundation . . . was laid, rather "because of the rebuilding" (cf. notes on 3.6; 3.10). 3.12 The first house, Solomon's temple, destroyed in 587 B.C.E., fifty years previously. When they saw this house, rather, with the Hebrew, "this (or that) was the temple in their eyes (i.e., as far as they were concerned)," a parenthetical phrase that follows the first house on its foundations.

4.1-5 The building of the temple ceases, ostensibly because of opposition from northern neighbors. 4.1 The adversaries, presumably the people of the land (4.4). The returned exiles. Again, there is no word of those who had stayed in the land (cf. note on 3.8). 4.2 Esar-haddon, king of Assyria (681-669 B.C.E.), who imported colonists from other parts of his empire to settle in northern Israel after the deportation of many inhabitants in 721 B.C.E. (cf. also note on 4.10). 4.3 No part with us. Perhaps it is implied that they continued worship of their national gods along with Yahweh, as former colonists are said to have done (2 Kings 17.41). 4.4 People of the land, non-Jewish settlers in the land of Israel (cf. note on 4.2). Discouraged, lit. "relaxed the hands of," i.e., "weakened the morale of." 4.5 Until the reign of King Darius (522-486 B.C.E.). The opposition of the non-Jewish settlers is offered as the explanation of the cessation of temple building from 537 to 520 B.C.E.

4.6-23 This section has nothing to do with the building of the temple, but with opposition to the building of Jerusalem, many years later. Apparently it has been included here to illustrate the kinds of methods that enemies of the Jews would have employed to discourage them (4.4). 4.6 Ahasuerus, the Persian king Xerxes I (486-465 B.C.E.). In his accession year, December 486 to April 6, 485 B.C.E. 4.7 Artaxerxes I, 465-424 B.C.E. Bishlam, perhaps Belshunu, the governor of the province Beyond the River. Translated, at the court into Persian (cf. 4.18). 4.8-6.18 The text is in Aramaic (as the last word of 4.7 says; see text note e), not Hebrew; several Aramaic documents seem to be cited here. 4.8-16 An accusation, no doubt false, by officials of the province of Samaria that the Jews intend to revolt against the Persians. It is in the name of various Persian officials (judges . . . envoys . . .) and ethnic groups settled there (people of Erech . . .).

royal deputy and Shimshai the scribe wrote a letter against Jerusalem to King Artaxerxes as follows ⁹(then Rehum the royal deputy, Shimshai the scribe, and the rest of their associates, the judges, the envoys, the officials, the Persians, the people of Erech, the Babylonians, the people of Susa, that is, the Elamites, ¹⁰and the rest of the nations whom the great and noble Osnappar deported and settled in the cities of Samaria and in the rest of the province Beyond the River wrote—and now ¹¹this is a copy of the letter that they sent):

“To King Artaxerxes: Your servants, the people of the province Beyond the River, send greeting. And now ¹²may it be known to the king that the Jews who came up from you to us have gone to Jerusalem. They are rebuilding that rebellious and wicked city; they are finishing the walls and repairing the foundations. ¹³Now may it be known to the king that, if this city is rebuilt and the walls finished, they will not pay tribute, custom, or toll, and the royal revenue will be reduced. ¹⁴Now because we share the salt of the palace and it is not fitting for us to witness the king’s dishonor, therefore we send and inform the king, ¹⁵so that a search may be made in the annals of your ancestors. You will discover in the annals that this is a rebellious city, hurtful to kings and provinces, and that sedition was stirred up in it from long ago. On that account this city was laid waste. ¹⁶We make known to the king that, if this city is rebuilt and its walls finished, you will then have no possession in the province Beyond the River.”

¹⁷ The king sent an answer: “To Rehum the royal deputy and Shimshai the scribe and the rest of their associates who live in Samaria and in the rest of the province Beyond the River, greeting. And now ¹⁸the letter that you sent to us has been read in translation before me. ¹⁹So I made a decree, and someone searched and discovered that this city has risen against kings from long ago, and that rebellion and sedition have been made in it. ²⁰Jerusalem has had mighty kings who ruled over the whole province Beyond the River, to whom tribute, custom, and toll were paid. ²¹Therefore issue an order that these people be made to cease, and that this city not be rebuilt, until I make a decree. ²²Moreover, take care not to be slack in this matter; why should damage grow to the hurt of the king?”

²³ Then when the copy of King Artaxerxes’ letter was read before Rehum and the scribe Shimshai and their associates, they hurried to the Jews in Jerusalem and by force and power made them cease. ²⁴At that time the work on the house of God in Jerusalem stopped and was discontinued until the second year of the reign of King Darius of Persia.

Restoration of the Temple Resumed

5 Now the prophets, Haggai^f and Zechariah son of Iddo, prophesied to the Jews who were in Judah and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel who was over them. ²Then Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel and Jeshua son of Jozadak set out to rebuild the house of God in Jerusalem; and with them were the prophets of God, helping them.

It is being built of hewn stone, and timber is laid in the walls; this work is being done diligently and prospers in their hands. ⁹Then we spoke to those elders and asked them, 'Who gave you a decree to build this house and to finish this structure?' ¹⁰We also asked them their names, for your information, so that we might write down the names of the men at their head. ¹¹This was their reply to us: 'We are the servants of the God of heaven and earth, and we are rebuilding the house that was built many years ago, which a great king of Israel built and finished. ¹²But because our ancestors had angered the God of heaven, he gave them into the hand of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, the Chaldean, who destroyed this house and carried away the people to Babylonia. ¹³However, King Cyrus of Babylon, in the first year of his reign, made a decree that this house of God should be rebuilt. ¹⁴Moreover, the gold and silver vessels of the house of God, which Nebuchadnezzar had taken out of the temple in Jerusalem and had brought into the temple of Babylon, these King Cyrus took out of the temple of Babylon, and they were delivered to a man named Sheshbazzar, whom he had made governor. ¹⁵He said to him, "Take these vessels; go and put them in the temple in Jerusalem, and let the house of God be rebuilt on its site." ¹⁶Then this Sheshbazzar came and laid the foundations of the house of God in Jerusalem; and from that time until now it has been under construction, and it is not yet finished.' ¹⁷And now, if it seems good to the king, have a search made in the royal archives there in Babylon, to see whether a decree was issued by King Cyrus for the rebuilding of this house of God in Jerusalem. Let the king send us his pleasure in this matter."

The Decree of Darius

Beyond the River. Cf. note on 4.10. 5.5 Strangely, Zerubbabel is not mentioned here or at the completion of the temple (6.14–18), despite Zechariah's assurance that "his hands shall also complete it" (Zech 4.9). Had Zerubbabel died or fallen out of favor with the Persians? A report, given in 5.7–17. Answer, given in 6.2–12. 5.8 Timber is laid in the walls, as in the building edict of Cyrus (6.4), as also in the account of Solomon's temple (1 Kings 6.36; 7.12), possibly to limit damage in case of an earthquake. 5.11 A great king of Israel, Solomon. 5.12 King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, the Chaldean. Nebuchadnezzar II ruled the Neo-Babylonian Empire from 605 to 562 B.C.E. and captured Jerusalem in 597 B.C.E. and again in 587 or 586 B.C.E., taking many inhabitants into captivity (2 Kings 24–25). He was by tribal affiliation a Chaldean from southern Babylonia. 5.13 Made a decree. The reference is to 6.3–5; cf. also 1.1. 5.14 Vessels . . . which Nebuchadnezzar had taken. Cf. note on 1.7. Sheshbazzar. Cf. note on 1.8. A man named Sheshbazzar is perhaps no more respectful in Aramaic than in English; the idiom is often found in Aramaic papyri in reference to slaves. The term translated governor may not mean "provincial ruler" (as in 5.6; Neh 5.14), but simply "commissioner" for this project. 5.16 Foundations, or rather the platform on which the temple was built; the term is different from that in 3.10. In all the other evidence it is Zerubbabel, not Sheshbazzar, who is said to have begun the rebuilding (3.2; 4.3; 5.2; Hag 1.14; Zech 4.9). Perhaps it was the commissioner Sheshbazzar who was named in the official Persian correspondence and not the governor Zerubbabel. From that time until now it has been under construction. But both 4.4, 24 and Hag 1.2, 4, 9 report that work ceased for about seventeen years. The leaders obviously do not want to admit this; and it is true enough that since work has not yet been completed, it could be said to be still "in progress."

6.1–12 The decree of Darius authorizing the rebuilding of the temple quotes the earlier decree of Cyrus (6.2–5). 6.2 Ecbatana, modern Hamadan, the former capital of Media and the summer residence of the Persian kings. Scroll, or "roll," a rolled piece of leather or papyrus written on in Aramaic and kept in a clay sealing shaped like a

⁶ "Now you, Tattenai, governor of the province Beyond the River, Shethar-bozenai, and you, their associates, the envoys in the province Beyond the River, keep away; ⁷let the work on this house of God alone; let the governor of the Jews and the elders of the Jews rebuild this house of God on its site. ⁸Moreover I make a decree regarding what you shall do for these elders of the Jews for the rebuilding of this house of God: the cost is to be paid to these people, in full and without delay, from the royal revenue, the tribute of the province Beyond the River. ⁹Whatever is needed— young bulls, rams, or sheep for burnt offerings to the God of heaven, wheat, salt, wine, or oil, as the priests in Jerusalem require—let that be given to them day by day without fail, ¹⁰so that they may offer pleasing sacrifices to the God of heaven, and pray for the life of the king and his children. ¹¹Furthermore I decree that if anyone alters this edict, a beam shall be pulled out of the house of the perpetrator, who then shall be impaled on it. The house shall be made a dunghill. ¹²May the God who has established his name there overthrow any king or people that shall put forth a hand to alter this, or to destroy this house of God in Jerusalem. I, Darius, make a decree; let it be done with all diligence."

Completion and Dedication of the Temple

¹³ Then, according to the word sent by King Darius, Tattenai, the governor of the province Beyond the River, Shethar-bozenai, and their associates did with all diligence what King Darius had ordered. ¹⁴So the elders of the Jews built and prospered, through the prophesying of the prophet Haggai and Zechariah son of Iddo. They finished their building by command of the God of Israel and by decree of Cyrus, Darius, and King Artaxerxes of Persia; ¹⁵and this house was finished on the third day of the month of Adar, in the sixth year of the reign of King Darius.

Solomon's temple was 60 cubits long, 20 wide, 30 high (1 Kings 6.2). If the Second Temple was 60 cubits long, it would have been a perfect cube, 60 by 60 by 60 cubits; but it would also have been six times the volume of Solomon's temple! To fit on the same foundations (see note on 3.10), the Second Temple would most likely have had the same dimensions. A cubit was about 17.5 inches or, if the "royal" or "long" cubit was used (Ezek 41.8), about 20.4 inches. On the basis of the standard cubit, the temple would have been 90 by 30 by 45 feet. 6.4 Three courses . . . timber. Cf. note on 5.8. Paid from the royal treasury, hence the necessity for details of size and building materials in the edict. 6.13–18 The temple is finally completed and dedicated. By command . . . by decree. 6.14 The twin impulses, from divine and human sources, are artlessly conjoined. The reference to King Artaxerxes (465–424 B.C.E.) is out of place here, since he did not come to the throne until well after the temple was completed. 6.15 On the third day . . . in the sixth year, March 12, 515 B.C.E. 16 The people of Israel, the priests and the Levites, and the rest of the returned exiles, celebrated the dedication of this house of God with joy. 17 They offered at the dedication of this house of God one hundred bulls, two hundred rams, four hundred lambs, and as a sin offering for all Israel, twelve male goats, according to the number of the tribes of Israel. 18 Then they set the priests in their divisions and the Levites in their courses for the service of God at Jerusalem, as it is written in the book of Moses.

The Passover Celebrated

19 On the fourteenth day of the first month the returned exiles kept the passover. 20 For both the priests and the Levites had purified themselves; all of them were clean. So they killed the passover lamb for all the returned exiles, for their fellow priests, and for themselves. 21 It was eaten by the people of Israel who had returned from exile, and also by all who had joined them and separated themselves from the pollutions of the nations of the land to worship the LORD, the God of Israel. 22 With joy they celebrated the festival of unleavened bread seven days;

for the LORD had made them joyful, and had turned the heart of the king of Assyria to them, so that he aided them in the work on the house of God, the God of Israel.

The Coming and Work of Ezra

7 After this, in the reign of King Artaxerxes of Persia, Ezra son of Seraiah, son of Azariah, son of Hilkiah, 2 son of Shallum, son of Zadok, son of Ahitub, 3 son of Amariah, son of Azariah, son of Meraioth, 4 son of Zerahiah, son of Uzzi, son of Bukki, 5 son of Abishua, son of Phinehas, son of Eleazar, son of the chief priest Aaron — 6 this Ezra went up from Babylonia. He was a scribe skilled in the law of Moses that the LORD the God of Israel had given; and the king granted him all that he asked, for the hand of the LORD his God was upon him.

7 Some of the people of Israel, and some of the priests and Levites, the singers and gatekeepers, and the temple servants also went up to Jerusalem, in the seventh year of King Artaxerxes. 8 They came to Jerusalem in the fifth month, which was in the seventh year of the king. 9 On the first day of the first month the a Friday. 6.16 The returned exiles. Cf. notes on 3.8; 4.1. 6.17 The ceremony of dedication is modeled on that of Solomon (1 Kings 8; 2 Chr 7.4–7), though the number of animals said to have been sacrificed is very much smaller (cf. 1 Kings 8.63). A sin offering decontaminates the temple from impurity (cf. Ezek 43.18–27). The number of the tribes. Although only members of Judah, Benjamin, and Levi are said to have constituted the postexilic community, they regard themselves as the authentic Israel and as worshiping on behalf of all the tribes. 6.18 As it is written in the book of Moses. In the biblical tradition, however, it was not Moses but David who arranged the divisions and courses of these clergy (1 Chr 23–26); Moses simply established the two classes (Ex 29; Lev 8; Num 3; 4; 8).

6.19–22 Now that the temple is finished, it can serve its purpose as the center for the festival cult. The first festival that falls due is Passover (cf. Ex 12), some six weeks after the dedication, on April, 21, 515 B.C.E. 6.21 All who had joined them and separated themselves. For the first time (cf. notes on 3.8; 4.1) the presence of a wider circle of Jews than those who had returned from exile is acknowledged. Pollutions of the nations of the land, the worship of foreign gods practiced by non-Jews in the land of Israel. 6.22 The festival of unleavened bread, an extension of Passover and celebrated from the fifteenth to the twenty-first of the first month (Ex 12.15–20; Lev 23.6–8; Deut 16.1–8). Unleavened bread was a reminder of the food the Israelites ate before they made their hasty escape from Egypt (Deut 16.3). The king of Assyria. The Assyrian Empire was of course long since defunct when Cyrus and Darius reigned, but they were its heirs and they reversed the evil against Israel initiated by the Assyrian kings.

7.1–10 Ezra's lineage and office (7.1–6) and a brief notice of his coming to Jerusalem (7.7–10; more detail in 8.15–36). 7.1 After this. The narrative moves suddenly from the end of the sixth century to the middle of the fifth (or beginning of the fourth, if the king is Artaxerxes II; see note on 7.7). Artaxerxes. See note on 7.7. Ezra's genealogy shows him to be a member of the high-priestly family, though not high priest himself. 7.6 Scribe, doctor of the Jewish law (cf. also Sir 38.34b–39.11). All that he asked, to be inferred from the king's letter of 7.12–26. 7.7 In the seventh year of King Artaxerxes, 458 B.C.E. if the king is Artaxerxes I (465–424), 398 B.C.E. if it is Artaxerxes II (404–358). 7.9 On the assumption that Ezra's journey took place in 458 B.C.E., he left journey up from Babylon was begun, and on the first day of the fifth month he came to Jerusalem, for the gracious hand of his God was upon him. ¹⁰For Ezra had set his heart to study the law of the LORD, and to do it, and to teach the statutes and ordinances in Israel.

The Letter of Artaxerxes to Ezra

11 This is a copy of the letter that King Artaxerxes gave to the priest Ezra, the scribe, a scholar of the text of the commandments of the LORD and his statutes for Israel: ¹²"Artaxerxes, king of kings, to the priest Ezra, the scribe of the law of the God of heaven: Peace.ⁱ And now ¹³I decree that any of the people of Israel or their priests or Levites in my kingdom who freely offers to go to Jerusalem may go with you. ¹⁴For you are sent by the king and his seven counselors to make inquiries about Judah and Jerusalem according to the law of your God, which is in your hand, ¹⁵and also to convey the silver and gold that the king and his counselors have freely offered to the God of Israel, whose dwelling is in Jerusalem, ¹⁶with all the silver and gold that you shall find in the whole province of Babylonia, and with the freewill offerings of the people and the priests, given willingly for the house of their God in Jerusalem. ¹⁷With this money, then, you shall with all diligence buy bulls, rams, and lambs, and their grain offerings and their drink offerings, and you shall offer them on the altar of the house of your God in Jerusalem. ¹⁸Whatever seems good to you and your colleagues to do with the rest of the silver and gold, you may do, according to the will of your God. ¹⁹The vessels that have been given you for the service of the house of your God, you shall deliver before the God of Jerusalem. ²⁰And whatever else is required for the house of your God, which you are responsible for providing, you may provide out of the king's treasury.

21 "I, King Artaxerxes, decree to all the treasurers in the province Beyond the River: Whatever the priest Ezra, the scribe of the law of the God of heaven, requires of you, let it be done with all diligence, ²²up to one hundred talents of silver, one hundred cors of wheat, one hundred baths^j of wine, one hundred baths^j of oil, and unlimited salt. ²³Whatever is commanded by the God of heaven, let it be done with zeal for the house of the God of heaven, or wrath will come upon the realm of the king and his heirs. ²⁴We also notify you that it shall not be lawful to impose tribute, custom, or toll on any of the priests, the Levites, the singers, the doorkeepers, the temple servants, or other servants of this house of God.

25 "And you, Ezra, according to the God-given wisdom you possess, appoint magistrates and judges who may judge all the people in the province Beyond the River who know the laws of your God; and you shall teach those who do not know them. ²⁶All who will not obey the law of your God and the law of the king, let judgment be strictly executed on them,

Babylonia on April 8 and arrived in Jerusalem on August 4. 7.10 To study, i.e., to learn and to interpret, and to do are the twin ideals of postexilic Judaism.

7.11–26 After an introductory verse in Hebrew (7.11), there follows a long official document in Aramaic (7.12–26), the language in which most documents of this kind are found in Ezra. This is Artaxerxes' firman or letter of authorization to Ezra. 7.12 Peace. The Aramaic means "perfect," which may be an abbreviation of a greeting formula or may be a scribal mark to show that the matter has been dealt with. 7.13 People . . . priests . . . Levites, the familiar threefold division of Israel into laity and two types of religious personnel (see also 2.70; 6.16). Freely offers, another typically Jewish term (cf. also 1.6; 2.68; 3.5; 8.28), suggesting a Jewish drafting of this letter. 7.14 Seven counselors, known in Greek sources as the king's advisers from the leading aristocratic families (cf. also Esth 1.14). To make inquiries . . . according to the law, to discover how far Jewish law is being observed in Judea. Which is in your hand, i.e., of which you have the mastery. The law was almost certainly the Pentateuch in more or less its present form. 7.16 Find, as donations from fellow Jews and others (cf. 1.4). 7.21–24 Ezra's authorization includes an edict addressed to the treasurers of the province for support of the temple worship in Jerusalem. The grant seems to be an annual one, except that the amount of silver, one hundred talents, more than 3 tons, is hugely disproportionate. Perhaps talents is an error for "minas," one-sixtieth of the weight. 7.25 Ezra's authority extends only to Jews in the province, whether they already know pentateuwhether for death or for banishment or for confiscation of their goods or for imprisonment.”

27 Blessed be the LORD, the God of our ancestors, who put such a thing as this into the heart of the king to glorify the house of the LORD in Jerusalem, ²⁸and who extended to me steadfast love before the king and his counselors, and before all the king's mighty officers. I took courage, for the hand of the LORD my God was upon me, and I gathered leaders from Israel to go up with me.

Heads of Families Who Returned with Ezra

8 These are their family heads, and this is the genealogy of those who went up with me from Babylonia, in the reign of King Artaxerxes: ²Of the descendants of Phinehas, Gershom. Of Ithamar, Daniel. Of David, Hattush, ³of the descendants of Shecaniah. Of Parosh, Zechariah, with whom were registered one hundred fifty males. ⁴Of the descendants of Pahath-moab, Eliehoenai son of Zerahiah, and with him two hundred males. ⁵Of the descendants of Zattu,^k Shecaniah son of Jahaziel, and with him three hundred males. ⁶Of the descendants of Adin, Ebed son of Jonathan, and with him fifty males. ⁷Of the descendants of Elam, Jeshaiiah son of Athaliah, and with him seventy males. ⁸Of the descendants of Shephatiah, Zebadiah son of Michael, and with him eighty males. ⁹Of the descendants of Joab, Obadiah son of Jehiel, and with him two hundred eighteen males. ¹⁰Of the descendants of Bani,^l Shelomith son of Josiphiah, and with him one hundred sixty males. ¹¹Of the descendants of Bebai, Zechariah son of Bebai, and with him twenty-eight males. ¹²Of the descendants of Azgad, Johanan son of Hakkatan, and with him one hundred ten males. ¹³Of the descendants of Adonikam, those who came later, their names being Eliphelet, Jeuel, and Shemaiah, and with them sixty males. ¹⁴Of the descendants of Bigvai, Uthai and Zaccur, and with them seventy males.

Servants for the Temple

15 I gathered them by the river that runs to Ahava, and there we camped three days. As I reviewed the people and the priests, I found there none of the descendants of Levi. ¹⁶Then I sent for Eliezer, Ariel, Shemaiah, Elnathan, Jarib, Elnathan, Nathan, Zechariah, and Meshullam, who were leaders, and for Joiarib and Elnathan, who were wise, ¹⁷and sent them to Iddo, the leader at the place called Casiphia, telling them what to say to Iddo and his colleagues the temple servants at Casiphia, namely, to send us ministers for the house of our God. ¹⁸Since the gracious hand of our God was upon us, they brought us a man of discretion, of the descendants of Mahli son of Levi son of Israel, namely Sherebiah, with his sons and kin, eighteen; ¹⁹also Hashabiah and with him Jeshaiiah of the descendants of Merari, with his kin and their sons, twenty; ²⁰besides two hundred twenty of the temple servants, whom David and his officials had set apart to attend the Levites. These were all mentioned by name.

Fasting and Prayer for Protection

21 Then I proclaimed a fast there, at the river Ahava, that we might deny ourselves^m before our God, to seek from him a safe journey for ourselves, our children, and all our possessions. ²²For I was ashamed to ask the king for a band of soldiers and cavalry to protect us against the

chal law or need to be taught it. 7.27–28 The text changes back to Hebrew at this point, and the narrator quotes a first-person account of Ezra's work.

8.1–14 Ezra's company numbered about fifteen hundred males, all from families of which some members had already returned. The twelve phratry names are to be found also in Ezra 2.3–15. Unlike in Ezra 2, here the priests are mentioned first (8.2). 8.15–20 The presence of Levites seems to have been needed for the symbolism, so that Ezra's caravan would include representatives of all Israel. The place names are unknown. 8.20 Mentioned by name, perhaps in the first-person Ezra memoir (see Introduction), but omitted by the editor of the present book of Ezra. 8.21 A fast . . . that we might deny ourselves. Fasting seems to have been a symbolic entering of a near-death state so as to represent oneself as an endangered person who is in need of divine care. A safe journey, lit. "a straight (or level) way," per-enemy on our way, since we had told the king that the hand of our God is gracious to all who seek him, but his power and his wrath are against all who forsake him. ²³So we fasted and petitioned our God for this, and he listened to our entreaty.

Gifts for the Temple

24 Then I set apart twelve of the leading priests: Sherebiah, Hashabiah, and ten of their kin with them. ²⁵And I weighed out to them the silver and the gold and the vessels, the offering for the house of our God that the king, his counselors, his lords, and all Israel there present had offered; ²⁶I weighed out into their hand six hundred fifty talents of silver, and one hundred silver vessels worth . . . talents,ⁿ and one hundred talents of gold, ²⁷twenty gold bowls worth a thousand darics, and two vessels of fine polished bronze as precious as gold. ²⁸And I said to them, "You are holy to the LORD, and the vessels are holy; and the silver and the gold are a freewill offering to the LORD, the God of your ancestors. ²⁹Guard them and keep them until you weigh them before the chief priests and the Levites and the heads of families in Israel at Jerusalem, within the chambers of the house of the LORD." ³⁰So the priests and the Levites took over the silver, the gold, and the vessels as they were weighed out, to bring them to Jerusalem, to the house of our God.

The Return to Jerusalem

31 Then we left the river Ahava on the twelfth day of the first month, to go to Jerusalem; the hand of our God was upon us, and he delivered us from the hand of the enemy and from ambushes along the way. ³²We came to Jerusalem and remained there three days. ³³On the fourth day, within the house of our God, the silver, the gold, and the vessels were weighed into the hands of the priest Meremoth son of Uriah, and with him was Eleazar son of Phinehas, and with them were the Levites, Jozabad son of Jeshua and Noadiah son of Binnui. ³⁴The total was counted and weighed, and the weight of everything was recorded.

35 At that time those who had come from captivity, the returned exiles, offered burnt offerings to the God of Israel, twelve bulls for all Israel, ninety-six rams, seventy-seven lambs, and as a sin offering twelve male goats; all this was a burnt offering to the LORD. ³⁶They also delivered the king's commissions to the king's satraps and to the governors of the province Beyond the River; and they supported the people and the house of God.

Denunciation of Mixed Marriages

9 After these things had been done, the officials approached me and said, "The people of Israel, the priests, and the Levites have not separated them-

haps recalling Isa 40.3. 8.24 The leading priests: Sherebiah, Hashabiah . . ., better "the leading priests, and Sherebiah, Hashabiah . . .," for these are Levites (8.18–19); and twelve priests and twelve Levites would be a symbol of all Israel. 8.26 Six hundred fifty talents, about 19 tons. Worth . . . talents. The numeral is missing; or perhaps the word for talents could be read as "two talents." One hundred talents of gold, about 3 tons. The figures are either exaggerated or errors have been introduced in the course of copying. 8.27 Darics. See note on 2.69. 8.28 Holy, i.e. belonging to God, whether objects or persons. Any seizure of the gifts or their guardians would be an assault on God. 8.35–36 These summary verses, which probably were originally followed by the account of the law-reading ceremony of Neh 7.73b–8.18, are in third-person narrative, and so apparently not from the Ezra memoir (see Introduction). 8.36 The term satraps is used loosely, for there was only one satrap of the province Beyond the River, though Ezra would have encountered various "governors."

9.1–10.44 Ezra is now informed that certain Jews have broken the law by marrying non-Jews (9.1–2); he responds with mourning (9.3–5) and a prayer of repentance (9.5–15) since he feels the people as a whole have been implicated in this breach of the law. A group of rigorists then propose to Ezra the action they think he should take (10.1–5), and Ezra accedes, calling a public assembly that determines that foreign wives should be divorced (10.6–17). A list follows of the 113 men who had married non-Jews. The first-person form in ch. 9 suggests that an Ezra memoir (see Introduction) is being drawn on; in ch. 10 the third-person form resumes. It is hard to fault the desire of the beleaguered postexilic community to maintain its own distinctive way of life, its religion, and its language (cf. Neh 13.23), but selves from the peoples of the lands with their abominations, from the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the Ammonites, the Moabites, the Egyptians, and the Amorites. ²For they have taken some of their daughters as wives for themselves and for their sons. Thus the holy seed has mixed itself with the peoples of the lands, and in this faithlessness the officials and leaders have led the way.” ³When I heard this, I tore my garment and my mantle, and pulled hair from my head and beard, and sat appalled. ⁴Then all who trembled at the words of the God of Israel, because of the faithlessness of the returned exiles, gathered around me while I sat appalled until the evening sacrifice.

Ezra's Prayer

5 At the evening sacrifice I got up from my fasting, with my garments and my mantle torn, and fell on my knees, spread out my hands to the LORD my God, ⁶and said,

“O my God, I am too ashamed and embarrassed to lift my face to you, my God, for our iniquities have risen higher than our heads, and our guilt has mounted up to the heavens. ⁷From the days of our ancestors to this day we have been deep in guilt, and for our iniquities we, our kings, and our priests have been handed over to the kings of the lands, to the sword, to captivity, to plundering, and to utter shame, as is now the case. ⁸But now for a brief moment favor has been shown by the LORD our God, who has left us a remnant, and given us a stake in his holy place, in order that he^o may brighten our eyes and grant us a little sustenance in our slavery. ⁹For we are slaves; yet our God has not forsaken us in our slavery, but has extended to us his steadfast love before the kings of Persia, to give us new life to set up the house of our God, to repair its ruins, and to give us a wall in Judea and Jerusalem.

harder still for modern readers to sympathize with the drastic solution proposed in this narrative. Hints of opposition, in the presence of non-Jewish persons even in noble families in subsequent generations (Neh 6.17–18) and in Nehemiah's less rigorous response to a similar situation (Neh 13.23–27), suggest that Ezra's decision was regarded as extreme even within the post-exilic community itself. ^{9.1} After these things had been done. Most probably the account of the law reading of Neh 8 and perhaps also that of the penitential service of Neh 9 earlier came between the moment of Ezra's arrival in Jerusalem and the events of Ezra 9–10. The peoples of the lands, non-Jewish or part-Jewish inhabitants. There were no surviving Canaanites, Hittites, Perizzites, Jebusites, or Amorites still in Palestine in Ezra's time. The names come from an old stereotyped list of foreign nations with whom intermarriage was forbidden (esp. in Deut 7.1–4), and they are mentioned here to invoke the ancient law as relevant to the current situation. Marriage with Ammonites and Moabites, though they were recognized as members of the Semitic family of nations, had also been strongly prohibited (Deut 23.3–6), but with Egyptians it was not forbidden (Deut 23.7). ^{9.2} The holy seed, a phrase from Isa 6.13, with overtones of the language of the blessings to Abraham (e.g., Gen 12.7; 13.14–16; 17.1–8). The exclusivist language expresses of course a concern with religious rather than simply ethnic identity, but whether that makes it better or worse is a matter of opinion. ^{9.3} I tore my garment (tunic or undergarment) and my mantle (cloak or outer garment), an act of mourning, a stylized stripping oneself naked as a symbol of death. Pulled hair from my head and beard, a customary modification of the forbidden practice of shaving the head in mourning (Lev 19.27; 21.5). ^{9.4} All who trembled at the words of the God of Israel, the strict adherents of the law (cf. 10.9; Isa 66.2, 5). Appalled, i.e., dumbfounded, the conventional shocked silence at a time of lamentation (cf. Job 2.12–13; Ezek 26.16). Until the evening sacrifice, until the ninth hour, about 3 P.M., an appropriate time for prayer (1 Kings 18.36; Acts 3.1). ^{9.5} Spread out my hands, palms upward, a gesture of supplication in prayer. ^{9.7} Utter shame, as is now the case, because as a people the Jews are subject to the Persians. ^{9.8} A remnant, those of the nation who remain. A stake, lit. “a tent peg,” the rebuilt temple as a guarantee of security and God's presence. Brighten our eyes, revive our spirits (cf. 1 Sam 14.27). ^{9.9} Slaves, not literally, but, as Persian subjects, lacking national independence. A wall in Judea and Jerusalem, a metaphor (cf. Ps 80.2) for the protection of the Persian government. ^{9.11–12} The words quoted by Ezra come mostly from the Pentateuch, so he must regard Moses as a prophet (as does Deut 18.15; 34.10); there are allusions to Deut 7.1; Lev 18.24–30; Deut 18.9; 2 Kings 21.16; Deut 7.3; 23.6; 11.8; 6.11; 1.38–39.

manded by your servants the prophets, saying, 'The land that you are entering to possess is a land unclean with the pollutions of the peoples of the lands, with their abominations. They have filled it from end to end with their uncleanness. 12 Therefore do not give your daughters to their sons, neither take their daughters for your sons, and never seek their peace or prosperity, so that you may be strong and eat the good of the land and leave it for an inheritance to your children forever.' 13 After all that has come upon us for our evil deeds and for our great guilt, seeing that you, our God, have punished us less than our iniquities deserved and have given us such a remnant as this, 14 shall we break your commandments again and intermarry with the peoples who practice these abominations? Would you not be angry with us until you destroy us without remnant or survivor? 15 O LORD, God of Israel, you are just, but we have escaped as a remnant, as is now the case. Here we are before you in our guilt, though no one can face you because of this."

The People's Response

10 While Ezra prayed and made confession, weeping and throwing himself down before the house of God, a very great assembly of men, women, and children gathered to him out of Israel; the people also wept bitterly. 2 Shecaniah son of Jehiel, of the descendants of Elam, addressed Ezra, saying, "We have broken faith with our God and have married foreign women from the peoples of the land, but even now there is hope for Israel in spite of this. 3 So now let us make a covenant with our God to send away all these wives and their children, according to the counsel of my lord and of those who tremble at the commandment of our God; and let it be done according to the law. 4 Take action, for it is your duty, and we are with you; be strong, and do it." 5 Then Ezra stood up and made the leading priests, the Levites, and all Israel swear that they would do as had been said. So they swore.

Foreign Wives and Their Children Rejected

6 Then Ezra withdrew from before the house of God, and went to the chamber of Jehohanan son of Eliashib, where he spent the night.^p He did not eat bread or drink water, for he was mourning over the faithlessness of the exiles. 7 They made a proclamation throughout Judah and Jerusalem to all the returned exiles that they should assemble at Jerusalem, 8 and that if any did not come within three days, by order of the officials and the elders all their property should be forfeited, and they themselves banned from the congregation of the exiles.

9 Then all the people of Judah and Benjamin assembled at Jerusalem within the three days; it was the ninth month, on the twentieth day of the month. All the people sat in the open square before the house of God, trembling because of this matter and because of the heavy rain. 10 Then Ezra the priest stood up and said to them, "You have trespassed and married foreign women, and so increased the guilt of Israel. 11 Now make confession to the LORD the God of your ancestors, and do his will; separate yourselves from the

According to the law.* The law sanctions divorce in the case of a man finding some "uncleanness" in his wife (Deut 24.1–4); apparently the law is here being applied to the case of the (ritual) "uncleanness" of foreign birth. Previously, while the law forbade certain intermarriage, there was no rule about what action should be taken once it had occurred. 10.6 The chamber. There were rooms in the temple for accommodating priests and Levites

Nor is this a task for one day or for two, for many of us have transgressed in this matter. ¹⁴Let our officials represent the whole assembly, and let all in our towns who have taken foreign wives come at appointed times, and with them the elders and judges of every town, until the fierce wrath of our God on this account is averted from us." ¹⁵Only Jonathan son of Asahel and Jahzeiah son of Tikvah opposed this, and Meshullam and Shabbethai the Levites supported them.

¹⁶ Then the returned exiles did so. Ezra the priest selected men,^q heads of families, according to their families, each of them designated by name. On the first day of the tenth month they sat down to examine the matter. ¹⁷By the first day of the first month they had come to the end of all the men who had married foreign women.

haps also of his law reading (Neh 8). 10.14 The appointment of a commission to examine the individual cases casts a veneer of propriety and legality over the proceedings, which had, however, been decided on by a popular assembly of which the vast majority had nothing to lose by the decision. 10.15 The opposition may be to the proposal to postpone the investigations, and these four men may be more rigorous, not more liberal, than the majority; the Levite Meshullam may well be Ezra's companion in 8.16, and Shabbethai's name suggests that he came from a strictly religious family (cf. Isa 58.13). 10.16–17 A full three months (from December 29, 458, to March 27, 457 B.C.E., if the contemporary Persian king was Artaxerxes I; cf. note on 7.7) were spent on the identification of 113 offenders; it cannot have always been easy to determine the racial status of a woman who was of partly Jewish and partly non-Jewish descent. The list may of course be incomplete: it includes none of the temple servants or of the inhabitants of the towns listed in 2.20–35. 10.44 The narrative can be reasonably expected to have concluded with some such note, but the Hebrew is not intelligible, and the NRSV has recourse to the parallel in 1 Esd 9.36.

NEHEMIAH

Nehemiah Prays for His People

1 The words of Nehemiah son of Hacaliah. In the month of Chislev, in the twentieth year, while I was in Susa the capital, ²one of my brothers, Hanani, came with certain men from Judah; and I asked them about the Jews that survived, those who had escaped the captivity, and about Jerusalem. ³They replied, "The survivors there in the province who escaped captivity are in great trouble and shame; the wall of Jerusalem is broken down, and its gates have been destroyed by fire."

⁴ When I heard these words I sat down and wept, and mourned for days, fasting and praying before the God of heaven. ⁵I said, "O LORD God of heaven, the great and awesome God who keeps covenant and steadfast love with those who love him and keep his commandments; ⁶let your ear be attentive and your eyes open to hear the prayer of your servant that I now pray before you day and night for your servants, the people of Israel, confessing the sins of the people of Israel, which we have sinned against you. Both I and my family have sinned. ⁷We have offended you deeply, failing to keep the commandments, the statutes, and the ordinances that you commanded your servant Moses. ⁸Remember the word that you commanded your servant Moses, 'If you are unfaithful, I will scatter you among the peoples; ⁹but if you return to me and keep my commandments and do them, though your outcasts are under the farthest skies, I will gather them from there and bring them to the place at which I have chosen to establish my name.' ¹⁰They are your servants and your people, whom you redeemed by your great power and your strong hand.

1.1–11 Nehemiah, hearing of some recent attack upon Jerusalem, prays for the success of his planned request to the Persian king to be allowed to rebuild the city walls. The narrative is told in the first person and presumably has been only lightly edited from a memoir composed by Nehemiah himself. 1.1 Nehemiah, a Jew who had risen to high office in the Persian administration; cf. notes on 1.11; 5.14. Chislev, the ninth month, November/December. The twentieth year, apparently of Artaxerxes I (465–424 B.C.E.). But ch. 2 is dated in the month Nisan (the first month) of the twentieth year; since the month Nisan does not follow Chislev, the year date in 1.1 is apparently an error for "nineteenth," i.e., 446 B.C.E. Susa, the winter residence of the Persian kings.

1.2 The Jews that survived, those who had escaped the captivity, apparently both the descendants of those who had never been exiled and those who had returned from exile. 1.3 This cannot refer to the destruction of the city in 587 B.C.E., since it is presented as fresh news. Perhaps this assault on the city is the result of the military force deployed against Jerusalem according to Ezra 4.23 in the reign of Artaxerxes. 1.4 Sat down, a customary posture in mourning and fasting (cf. Job 2.8, 13). 1.5–11 Nehemiah's prayer uses much conventional language, taken especially from Deuteronomy. See especially Deut 5.31; 7.8, 9, 21; 9.29; 12.11; 30.1–5. 1.6 Confessing. This is a general confession, without reference to any specific sins (in contrast to Ezra's prayer of Ezra 9). 1.8–9 The word that you commanded. What follows is not a literal quotation but a free summary of ¹¹O Lord, let your ear be attentive to the prayer of your servant, and to the prayer of your servants who delight in revering your name. Give success to your servant today, and grant him mercy in the sight of this man!"

At the time, I was cupbearer to the king.

Nehemiah Sent to Judah

2 In the month of Nisan, in the twentieth year of King Artaxerxes, when wine was served him, I carried the wine and gave it to the king. Now, I had never been sad in his presence before. ²So the king said to me, "Why is your face sad, since you are not sick? This can only be sadness of the heart." Then I was very much afraid. ³I said to the king, "May the king live forever! Why should my face not be sad, when the city, the place of my ancestors' graves, lies waste, and its gates have been destroyed by fire?" ⁴Then the king said to me, "What do you request?" So I prayed to the God of heaven. ⁵Then I said to the king, "If it pleases the king, and if your servant has found favor with you, I ask that you send me to Judah, to the city of my ancestors' graves, so that I may rebuild it." ⁶The king said to me (the queen also was sitting beside him), "How long will you be gone, and when will you return?" So it pleased the king to send me, and I set him a date. ⁷Then I said to the king, "If it pleases the king, let letters be given me to the governors of the province Beyond the River, that they may grant me passage until I arrive in Judah; ⁸and a letter to Asaph, the keeper of the king's forest, directing him to give me timber to make beams for the gates of the temple fortress, and for the wall of the city, and for the house that I shall occupy." And the king granted me what I asked, for the gracious hand of my God was upon me.

⁹ Then I came to the governors of the province Beyond the River, and gave them the king's letters. Now the king had sent officers of the army and cavalry with me. ¹⁰When Sanballat the Horonite and Tobiah the Ammonite official heard this, it displeased them greatly that someone had come to seek the welfare of the people of Israel.

Nehemiah's Inspection of the Walls

¹¹ So I came to Jerusalem and was there for three days. ¹²Then I got up during the night, I and a few men with me; I told no one what my God had put into my heart to do for Jerusalem. The Deut 30.1–5. 1.11 This man. Nehemiah has not yet mentioned the name of his sovereign, but God is expected to know, and readers will soon be enlightened. Perhaps Nehemiah's language gives a hint of how he regards him: he is a mere man. Cupbearer, an important office in the Persian court. As taster of the king's wine and guard of the royal apartment, he would no doubt have great personal influence on the king's decisions.

2.1–20 Nehemiah gains appointment from the king as (implicit) governor of Judea (2.1–8). He meets with hostility from the governors of neighboring provinces (2.9–10), arrives in Jerusalem, inspects the state of the walls (2.11–16), and determines to rebuild them regardless of the opposition (2.17–20). 2.3 The city. Nehemiah wisely never mentions the name of Jerusalem, since it was notorious as a rebellious city (cf. Ezra 4.12, 15). 2.4 What do you request? The king realizes that Nehemiah's response is no resigned sigh but itself demands a reply. 2.5 Nehemiah's rebuilding of Jerusalem would not simply be a pious act in memory of his fathers; it would, by ancient custom, imply rulership of the rebuilt city and, since it is a capital, governorship of the province as well. 2.6 The queen is known as Damaspia from Greek sources. 2.7–8 Perhaps it is etiquette that prevents Nehemiah asking explicitly for the governorship, but 5.14 implies that he was appointed governor of Judea at this time. Nehemiah asks only for a passport for safe conduct through the other Persian provinces and a requisition order for timber from the royal forest. 2.8 This is the first we hear of the temple fortress; cf. also 7.2. It may be the Tower of Hananel (3.1), and it may have been the predecessor of the Antonia tower built by Herod. For the wall of the city, for its gates. The city wall itself would have been entirely of stone. 2.9 The province Beyond the River. Cf. note on Ezra 4.10. 2.10 Sanballat, the governor of the province of Samaria, adjoining Judea on the north. The Horonite seems to be a contemptuous reference to Sanballat's humble origins; Nehemiah never accords him his official title. Tobiah, probably the governor of the province of Ammon, Nehemiah's eastern neighbor. It displeased them greatly. Nehemiah's appointment directly by the king perhaps was felt by Sanballat and Tobiah as a threat to their own political and economic status. They were probably more hostile to Nehemiah personally than to the Jews them-only animal I took was the animal I rode. ¹³I went out by night by the Valley Gate past the Dragon's Spring and to the Dung Gate, and I inspected the walls of Jerusalem that had been broken down and its gates that had been destroyed by fire. ¹⁴Then I went on to the Fountain Gate and to the King's Pool; but there was no place for the animal I was riding to continue. ¹⁵So I went up by way of the valley by night and inspected the wall. Then I turned back and entered by the Valley Gate, and so returned. ¹⁶The officials did not know where I had gone or what I was doing; I had not yet told the Jews, the priests, the nobles, the officials, and the rest that were to do the work.

Decision to Restore the Walls

¹⁷ Then I said to them, "You see the trouble we are in, how Jerusalem lies in ruins with its gates burned. Come, let us rebuild the wall of Jerusalem, so that we may no longer suffer disgrace." ¹⁸I told them that the hand of my God had been gracious upon me, and also the words that the king had spoken to me. Then they said, "Let us start building!" So they committed themselves to the common good. ¹⁹But when Sanballat the Horonite and Tobiah the Ammonite official, and Geshem the Arab heard of it, they mocked and ridiculed us, saying, "What is this that you are doing? Are you rebelling against the king?" ²⁰Then I replied to them, "The God of heaven is the one who will give us success, and we his servants are going to start building; but you have no share or claim or historic right in Jerusalem."

Organization of the Work

3 Then the high priest Eliashib set to work with his fellow priests and rebuilt the Sheep Gate. They consecrated it and set up its doors; they consecrated it as far as the Tower of the Hundred and as far as the Tower of Hananel. ²And the men of Jericho built next to him. And next to them^a Zaccur son of Imri built.

³ The sons of Hassenaah built the Fish Gate; they laid its beams and set up its doors, its bolts, and its bars. ⁴Next to them Meremoth son of Uriah son of Hakkoz made repairs. Next to them Meshullam son of Berechiah son of Meshezabel made repairs. Next to them Zadok son of Baana made repairs. ⁵Next to them the Tekoites made repairs; but their nobles would not put their shoulders to the work of their Lord.^b selves. 2.13–15 Nehemiah's night ride took him in a counterclockwise direction around Jerusalem, beginning at the north or west of the city. 2.13 Valley Gate, in the western wall, 1000 cubits north of the Dung Gate (3.13). Dragon's Spring. No longer known. Dung Gate, or Potsherd Gate (Jer 19.2), at the southern tip of the city. 2.14 Fountain Gate, in the Kidron Valley on the east of the city. King's Pool, the Pool of Shelah (Shiloah), fed from the spring Gihon farther up the valley (cf. 3.15; Isa 8.6). No place for the animal . . . to continue. The elaborate system of terraces on the eastern slope had collapsed after the Babylonian destruction, and the valley floor was now a vast tumble of stones. The archaeological evidence is that Nehemiah abandoned the old line of wall on the eastern slope and built a new wall on the crest. 2.16 Perhaps Nehemiah is stressing that the rebuilding of the city walls was entirely his initiative. 2.19 Geshem the Arab, king of Qedar, the ruler, under nominal Persian control, of a large territory in northern Arabia, Edom, and the Negev of Judah. Cf. also 6.1–6. Rebelling. The fortification of the city could be seen as a preparation for revolt.

3.1–32 This list did not perhaps form part of Nehemiah's memoir (see Introduction); it views the wall building as completed (e.g., 3.1, 3, 6) but is set in the narrative between the decision to build (2.18) and the events that occurred during the building (4.1–23). 3.1–5 Gates and wall in the northern sector are mainly said to be built (e.g., v. 2), suggesting that they were more damaged than those that were only repaired (e.g., v. 6). The north wall fronts the main access road to Jerusalem and would have to bear the brunt of military attacks. The "builders" mentioned by name are no doubt those who financed the work rather than those who actually worked with their hands. 3.1 Sheep Gate. The name probably came from the market there. It is probably the northeast gate, the Benjamin Gate. They consecrated it, perhaps a special ceremony for a section of wall adjoining the temple, for the consecration of the wall as a whole occurs much later (12.27–30). 3.3 Fish Gate, naturally enough on the west of the city, nearest the sea. 3.5 The noncooperation of the nobles of Tekoa, in the south, may have been due to the influence of Geshem. 3.6–14 The line of wall on the west of

son of Besodeiah repaired the Old Gate; they laid its beams and set up its doors, its bolts, and its bars. ⁷Next to them repairs were made by Melatiah the Gibeonite and Jadon the Meronothite—the men of Gibeon and of Mizpah—who were under the jurisdiction of ^c the governor of the province Beyond the River. ⁸Next to them Uzziel son of Harhaiah, one of the goldsmiths, made repairs. Next to him Hananiah, one of the perfumers, made repairs; and they restored Jerusalem as far as the Broad Wall. ⁹Next to them Rephaiah son of Hur, ruler of half the district of ^d Jerusalem, made repairs. ¹⁰Next to them Jedaiah son of Harumaph made repairs opposite his house; and next to him Hattush son of Hashabneiah made repairs. ¹¹Malchijah son of Harim and Hasshub son of Pahath-moab repaired another section and the Tower of the Ovens. ¹²Next to him Shallum son of Hallohesh, ruler of half the district of ^d Jerusalem, made repairs, he and his daughters.

¹⁵ And Shallum son of Col-hozeh, ruler of the district of ^e Mizpah, repaired the Fountain Gate; he rebuilt it and covered it and set up its doors, its bolts, and its bars; and he built the wall of the Pool of Shelah of the king's garden, as far as the stairs that go down from the City of David. ¹⁶After him Nehemiah son of Azbuk, ruler of half the district of ^d Beth-zur, repaired from a point opposite the graves of David, as far as the artificial pool and the house of the warriors. ¹⁷After him the Levites made repairs: Rehum son of Bani; next to him Hashabiah, ruler of half the district of ^d Keilah, made repairs for his district. ¹⁸After him their kin made repairs: Binnui, ^f son of Henadad, ruler of half the district of ^d Keilah; ¹⁹next to him Ezer son of Jeshua, ruler of Mizpah, repaired another section opposite the ascent to the armory at the Angle. ²⁰After him Baruch son of Zabbai repaired another section from the Angle to the door of the house of the high priest Eliashib. ²¹After him Meremoth son of Uriah son of Hakkoz repaired another section from the door of the house of Eliashib to the end of the house of Eliashib. ²²After him the priests, the men of the surrounding area, made repairs. ²³After them Benjamin and Hasshub made repairs opposite their house. After them Azariah son of Maaseiah son of Ananiah made repairs beside his own house. ²⁴After him Binnui son of Henadad repaired another section, from the house of Azariah to the Angle and to the corner. ²⁵Palal son of Uzai repaired opposite the Angle and the tower projecting from the upper house of the king at the court of the guard. After him Pedaiah son of Parosh ²⁶and the temple servants living ^h on Ophel made repairs up to a point opposite the Water Gate on the east and the projecting tower. ²⁷After him the Tekoites repaired another section opposite the great projecting tower as far as the wall of Ophel.

²⁸ Above the Horse Gate the priests made repairs, each one opposite his own house. ²⁹After them Zadok son of Immer

the city cannot easily be associated with any archaeological remains. 3.6 Old Gate. The name should probably be emended to Mishneh Gate, the gate of the extended Second Quarter of the city (cf. 2 Kings 22.14). 3.8 Restored Jerusalem as far as the Broad Wall. Some translate "abandoned Jerusalem as far as the Broad Wall" (part of the western or Mishneh quarter of the preexilic city). 3.12 He and his daughters is the only reference to the participation of women in the building, but we need not assume that these were the only females involved. 3.15-32 The east wall.

Especially in the southern half of this wall, the builders seem to have been working on an entirely new wall (cf. note on 2.14). This will explain the large number of gangs that worked on this stretch of wall. 3.15 Pool of Shelah. Cf. note on 2.14. 3.16 The graves of David, i.e., the graves of the Davidic kings. The house of the warriors, presumably an army barracks. 3.25 The upper house of the king, perhaps Solomon's palace, higher up the hill than David's. 3.26 Ophel, part or all of the southeastern hill overlooking the Kidron Valley. 3.29 East Gate, a gate of the temple, not of the city made repairs opposite his own house. After him Shemaiah son of Shecaniah, the keeper of the East Gate, made repairs. ³⁰After him Hananiah son of Shelemiah and Hanun sixth son of Zalaph repaired another section. After him Meshullam son of Berechiah made repairs opposite his living quarters. ³¹After him Malchijah, one of the goldsmiths, made repairs as far as the house of the temple servants and of the merchants, opposite the Muster Gate,ⁱ and to the upper room of the corner. ³²And between the upper room of the corner and the Sheep Gate the goldsmiths and the merchants made repairs.

Hostile Plots Thwarted

4^j Now when Sanballat heard that we were building the wall, he was angry and greatly enraged, and he mocked the Jews. ²He said in the presence of his associates and of the army of Samaria, "What are these feeble Jews doing? Will they restore things? Will they sacrifice? Will they finish it in a day? Will they revive the stones out of the heaps of rubbish—and burned ones at that?" ³Tobiah the Ammonite was beside him, and he said, "That stone wall they are building—any fox going up on it would break it down!" ⁴Hear, O our God, for we are despised; turn their taunt back on their own heads, and give them over as plunder in a land of captivity. ⁵Do not cover their guilt, and do not let their sin be blotted out from your sight; for they have hurled insults in the face of the builders.

⁷^k But when Sanballat and Tobiah and the Arabs and the Ammonites and the Ashdodites heard that the repairing of the walls of Jerusalem was going forward and the gaps were beginning to be closed, they were very angry, ⁸and all plotted together to come and fight against Jerusalem and to cause confusion in it. ⁹So we prayed to our God, and set a guard as a protection against them day and night.

¹⁰ But Judah said, "The strength of the burden bearers is failing, and there is too much rubbish so that we are unable to work on the wall." ¹¹And our enemies said, "They will not know or see anything before we come upon them and kill them and stop the work." ¹²When the Jews who lived near them came, they said to us ten times, "From all the places where they live^l they will come up against us."^m ¹³So in the lowest parts of the space behind the wall, in open places, I stationed the people according to their families,ⁿ with their swords, their spears, and their bows. ¹⁴After I looked these things over, I stood up and said to the nobles and the officials and the rest of the people, "Do not be afraid of them. Remember the LORD, who is great and awesome, and fight for your kin, your sons, your daughters, your wives, and your homes."

¹⁵ When our enemies heard that their plot was known to us, and that God had frustrated it, we all returned to the wall, wall. 3.31 Muster Gate, probably a gate of the temple court.

4.1-23 This narrative of progress on the wall is interlaced with reports of hostility toward the Jews on the part of the Persian authorities in Samaria. 4.1 Sanballat. See note on 2.10. 4.2 The army of Samaria, Sanballat's troops as governor. Will they restore things? Sanballat pokes fun at what he supposes to be the incompetence of the Jews; the sentence might mean "Will they repair for themselves?" suggesting they would build a makeshift wall unlike the elegant city wall of Samaria. Sacrifice, perhaps a foundation or dedication sacrifice. 4.3 Tobiah. Cf. note on 2.10; see also 2.19. 4.4-5 Nehemiah's plea to God, though doubtless part of his written report of past events, is presented as a prayer composed at the time of Sanballat's mockery. The imprecation on enemies is a feature of several similar psalms of appeal (e.g., Pss 35; 58.6-9). 4.7 The Arabs, under their king, Geshem (cf. note on 2.19). Ammonites are on the east, Ashdodites on the west of Judah; on all sides Nehemiah is surrounded by enemies. 4.8 Plotted . . . to come. But did they come? There is no evidence that they did. 4.10 Judah, the Judeans. Their speech seems to have poetic form and may be a work song. 4.12 Near them, near the enemies. 4.13 Nehemiah's tactic seems to have been to mass armed citizens in those places where the wall could be overlooked from outside the city, so as to give to enemy spies the impression of massive defensive forces.

each to his work. ¹⁶From that day on, half of my servants worked on construction, and half held the spears, shields, bows, and body-armor; and the leaders posted themselves behind the whole house of Judah, ¹⁷who were building the wall. The burden bearers carried their loads in such a way that each labored on the work with one hand and with the other held a weapon. ¹⁸And each of the builders had his sword strapped at his side while he built. The man who sounded the trumpet was beside me. ¹⁹And I said to the nobles, the officials, and the rest of the people, "The work is great and widely spread out, and we are separated far from one another on the wall. ²⁰Rally to us wherever you hear the sound of the trumpet. Our God will fight for us."

²¹ So we labored at the work, and half of them held the spears from break of dawn until the stars came out. ²²I also said to the people at that time, "Let every man and his servant pass the night inside Jerusalem, so that they may be a guard for us by night and may labor by day." ²³So neither I nor my brothers nor my servants nor the men of the guard who followed me ever took off our clothes; each kept his weapon in his right hand.^o

5 Now there was a great outcry of the people and of their wives against their Jewish kin. ²For there were those who said, "With our sons and our daughters, we are many; we must get grain, so that we may eat and stay alive." ³There were also those who said, "We are having to pledge our fields, our vineyards, and our houses in order to get grain during the famine." ⁴And there were those who said, "We are having to borrow money on our fields and vineyards to pay the king's tax. ⁵Now our flesh is the same as that of our kindred; our children are the same as their children; and yet we are forcing our sons and daughters to be slaves, and some of our daughters have been ravished; we are powerless, and our fields and vineyards now belong to others."

⁶ I was very angry when I heard their outcry and these complaints. ⁷After thinking it over, I brought charges against the nobles and the officials; I said to them, "You are all taking interest from your own people." And I called a great assembly to deal with them, ⁸and said to them, "As far as we were able, we have bought back our Jewish kindred who had been sold to other nations; but now you are selling your own kin, who must then be bought back by us!" They were silent, and could not find a word to say. ⁹So I said, "The thing that you are doing is not good. Should you not walk in the fear of our God, to prevent the taunts of the nations our enemies? ¹⁰Moreover I and my brothers and my servants are lending them money and grain. Let us stop this taking of interest. ¹¹Restore to them, this very day, their fields, their vineyards, their olive orchards, and their houses, and the interest on money, grain, wine, and oil that you have been exacting from them." ¹²Then they said, "We will restore everything and demand nothing more from them. We will do as you say." And I called the priests, and made them take an oath to do as they had promised. ¹³I also shook

4.16–23 There are various public relations and morale-boosting activities here: forming an armed guard for the builders, arming the workers themselves, appointing a trumpeter to sound an alarm in case of attack, and keeping the workers overnight in the city for security and to prevent intimidation by the enemy.

5.1–13 The threat from without is followed by a threat to the community's stability from within. A shortage of food had led to large-scale debt slavery, and Nehemiah takes measures in response to an outcry from the people. 5.2 With our sons and our daughters, we are many, preferably "we are giving our sons and our daughters as pledges" for borrowings. 5.4 The king's tax, the levy from the provinces for the central Persian government. 5.7 The nobles and the officials, the lenders of money. Taking interest. The Hebrew means rather "seizing (persons, land, and goods) given in pledge against debts." Interest on loans was illegal (Lev 25.36–37; Deut 23.19–20), but taking pledges was sanctioned by the law (Deut 24.10). Nehemiah, himself one of the moneylenders (5.10), is not confessing to any illegal act but accepts that pledge taking from kinspeople is not good (5.9). 5.10 Stop this taking of interest, rather "stop this taking in pledge," and perhaps implying also the return of pledges already taken. 5.11 Interest on, rather "pledge on." 5.13 The fold of my garment, the ancient equivalent of pock-

out the fold of my garment and said, "So may God shake out everyone from house and from property who does not perform this promise. Thus may they be shaken out and emptied." And all the assembly said, "Amen," and praised the LORD. And the people did as they had promised.

The Generosity of Nehemiah

14 Moreover from the time that I was appointed to be their governor in the land of Judah, from the twentieth year to the thirty-second year of King Artaxerxes, twelve years, neither I nor my brothers ate the food allowance of the governor. 15 The former governors who were before me laid heavy burdens on the people, and took food and wine from them, besides forty shekels of silver. Even their servants lorded it over the people. But I did not do so, because of the fear of God. 16 Indeed, I devoted myself to the work on this wall, and acquired no land; and all my servants were gathered there for the work. 17 Moreover there were at my table one hundred fifty people, Jews and officials, besides those who came to us from the nations around us. 18 Now that which was prepared for one day was one ox and six choice sheep; also fowls were prepared for me, and every ten days skins of wine in abundance; yet with all this I did not demand the food allowance of the governor, because of the heavy burden of labor on the people. 19 Remember for my good, O my God, all that I have done for this people.

Intrigues of Enemies Foiled

6 Now when it was reported to Sanballat and Tobiah and to Geshem the Arab and to the rest of our enemies that I had built the wall and that there was no gap left in it (though up to that time I had not set up the doors in the gates), 2 Sanballat and Geshem sent to me, saying, "Come and let us meet together in one of the villages in the plain of Ono." But they intended to do me harm. 3 So I sent messengers to them, saying, "I am doing a great work and I cannot come down. Why should the work stop while I leave it to come down to you?" 4 They sent to me four times in this way, and I answered them in the same manner. 5 In the same way Sanballat for the fifth time sent his servant to me with an open letter in his hand. 6 In it was written, "It is reported among the nations—and Geshem^p also says it—that you and the Jews intend to rebel; that is why you are building the wall; and according to this report you wish to become their king. 7 You have also set up prophets to proclaim in Jerusalem concerning you, 'There is a king in Judah!' And now it will be reported to the king according to these words. So come, therefore, and let us confer together." 8 Then I sent to him, saying, "No such things as you say have been done; you are inventing them out of your own mind" 9—for they all wanted to frighten us, thinking, "Their hands will drop from the work, and it will not be done." But now, O God, strengthen my hands.

5.14–19 The account of Nehemiah's generosity as governor now continues the theme of the benefits of his rule for the Judeans. 5.14 Nehemiah's appointment as governor was only implicit in 2.5–8. It ran from 445 to 433/2 B.C.E. As governor, he was entitled to deduct his own expenses from the taxes he collected for the central government, but he refrained from doing so. 5.15 Forty shekels of silver a day (about 1 pound). 5.17 Those who came to us from the nations, imperial and satrapal (provincial) officials.

Nehemiah does not know what kind of harm exactly. 6.3 It is a witty reply to make the work his excuse for refusing the invitation when the purpose of the invitation is to make him cease the work. 6.5 An open letter, an unsealed sheet of papyrus or an ostrakon (a piece of potsherd), containing a charge of treason could be fatal for Nehemiah. 6.7 There is a king in Judah. It is not impossible that Nehemiah was being hailed by some as a messiah, as Haggai (2.21–23) and Zechariah (3.8; 4.6–10; 6.10–14) had hailed a former governor, Zerubbabel. 6.9 But now . . . hands, a prayer that suits the time of the events rather than of the writing (cf. note on 4.4–5). 6.10–13 Sanballat engineers a further attempt to

Would a man like me go into the temple to save his life? I will not go in!" ¹² Then I perceived and saw that God had not sent him at all, but he had pronounced the prophecy against me because Tobiah and Sanballat had hired him. ¹³ He was hired for this purpose, to intimidate me and make me sin by acting in this way, and so they could give me a bad name, in order to taunt me. ¹⁴ Remember Tobiah and Sanballat, O my God, according to these things that they did, and also the prophetess Noadiah and the rest of the prophets who wanted to make me afraid.

The Wall Completed

¹⁵ So the wall was finished on the twenty-fifth day of the month Elul, in fifty-two days. ¹⁶ And when all our enemies heard of it, all the nations around us were afraid^q and fell greatly in their own esteem; for they perceived that this work had been accomplished with the help of our God. ¹⁷ Moreover in those days the nobles of Judah sent many letters to Tobiah, and Tobiah's letters came to them. ¹⁸ For many in Judah were bound by oath to him, because he was the son-in-law of Shecaniah son of Arah: and his son Jehohanan had married the daughter of Meshullam son of Berechiah. ¹⁹ Also they spoke of his good deeds in my presence, and reported my words to him. And Tobiah sent letters to intimidate me.

⁷ Now when the wall had been built and I had set up the doors, and the gatekeepers, the singers, and the Levites had been appointed, ²¹ I gave my brother Hanani charge over Jerusalem, along with Hananiah the commander of the citadel—for he was a faithful man and feared God more than many. ³ And I said to them, "The gates of Jerusalem are not to be opened until the sun is hot; while the gatekeepers^r are still standing guard, let them shut and bar the doors. Appoint guards from among the inhabitants of Jerusalem, some at their watch posts, and others before their own houses." ⁴ The city was wide and large, but the people within it were few and no houses had been built.

⁵ Then my God put it into my mind to assemble the nobles and the officials and the people to be enrolled by genealogy. And I found the book of the genealogy of those who were the first to come back, and I found the following written in it:

discredit Nehemiah and make him stop the wall building. 6.10–11 Shemaiah seems to have been inveigling Nehemiah to enter the temple, which was forbidden to him as a layman, in order to destroy his reputation. How this is connected to what Nehemiah perceived as a threat to his life is hard to tell. 6.10 Shemaiah, an otherwise unknown prophet apparently in league with Sanballat. Confined to his house, for some religious reason. 6.14 A prayer like that of 6.9 except that it belongs rather to the time of writing. Noadiah and the rest of the prophets, allusions to otherwise unknown events. 6.15 The wall was finished on October 2, 445 B.C.E., having been begun on August 11. 6.17–19 Instead of an account of the dedication of the wall, which will come in 12.27–43, we have a further note of hostility to Nehemiah. It is hard to see what Tobiah hoped to achieve by both threatening Nehemiah and having his friends praise him to Nehemiah. 7.1 The singers, and the Levites, probably to be omitted as a scribal addition. 7.2 It is likely that the text refers to only one city governor, Hanani, Nehemiah's brother, Hananiah being an alternative writing of the name. 7.3 The strict security precautions are not hard to understand, but obviously not opening the gates until the sun is hot was unusual. 7.4 Wide and large, 30 or 40 acres. No houses, i.e., no new houses, for there were already inhabitants of the city (cf., e.g., 3.20; 7.3).

7.5–7.3a Nehemiah takes a census of the people to prepare for the repopulating of the city (11.1–2). The list that follows is largely identical with Ezra 2. This old list, which Nehemiah says he found, may have been useful in establishing which families were of pure Jewish descent, for only those would have been eligible for transfer to Jerusalem.

⁴⁶ The temple servants: the descendants of Ziha, of Hasupha, of Tabbaoth, ⁵⁷ The descendants of Solomon's servants: of Sotai, of Sophereth, of Perida, ⁵⁸of Jaala, of Darkon, of Giddel, ⁵⁹of Shephatiah, of Hattil, of Pochereth-hazzebaim, of Amon.

⁶⁶ The whole assembly together was forty-two thousand three hundred sixty, ⁶⁷besides their male and female slaves, of whom there were seven thousand three hundred thirty-seven; and they had two hundred forty-five singers, male and female. ⁶⁸They had seven hundred thirty-six horses, two hundred forty-five mules, ⁶⁹four hundred thirty-five camels, and six thousand seven hundred twenty donkeys.

⁷⁰ Now some of the heads of ancestral houses contributed to the work. The governor gave to the treasury one thousand darics of gold, fifty basins, and five hundred thirty priestly robes. ⁷¹And some of the heads of ancestral houses gave into the building fund twenty thousand darics of gold and two thousand two hundred minas of silver. ⁷²And what the rest of the people gave was twenty thousand darics of gold, two thousand minas of silver, and sixty-seven priestly robes.

73 So the priests, the Levites, the gatekeepers, the singers, some of the people, the temple servants, and all Israel settled in their towns.

Ezra Summons the People to Obey the Law

When the seventh month came—the people of Israel being settled in their towns—¹all the people gathered together into the square before the Water Gate. They told the scribe Ezra to bring the book of the law of Moses, which the LORD had given to Israel. ²Accordingly, the priest Ezra brought the law before the assembly, both men and women and all who could hear with understanding. This was on the first day of the seventh month. ³He read from it facing the square before the Water Gate from early morning until midday, in the presence of the men and the women and those who could understand; and the ears of all the people were attentive to the book of the law. ⁴The scribe Ezra stood on a wooden platform that had been made for the purpose; and beside him stood Mattithiah, Shema, Anaiah, Uriah, Hilkiah, and Maaseiah on his right hand; and Pedaiiah, Mishaël, Malchijah, Hashum, Hashbaddanah, Zechariah, and Meshullam on his left hand. ⁵And Ezra opened the book in the sight of all the people, for he was standing above all the people; and when he opened it, all the people stood up. ⁶Then Ezra blessed the LORD, the great God, and all the people answered, “Amen, Amen,” lifting up their hands. Then they bowed their heads and worshiped the LORD with their faces to the ground. ⁷Also Jeshua, Bani, Sherebiah, Jamin, Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodiah, Maaseiah, Kelita, Azariah, Jozabad, Hanan, Pelaiah, the Levites,^t helped the people to understand the law, while the people remained in their places. ⁸So they read from the book, from the law of God, with interpretation. They gave the sense, so that the people understood the reading.

⁹ And Nehemiah, who was the governor, and Ezra the priest and scribe, and the Levites who taught the people said to all the people, “This day is holy to the LORD your God; do not mourn or weep.” For all the people wept when they heard the words of the law. ¹⁰Then he said to them, “Go your way, eat the fat and drink sweet wine and send portions of them to those for whom nothing is prepared, for this day is holy to our LORD; and do not be grieved, for the joy of the LORD is your strength.” ¹¹So the Levites stilled all the people, saying, “Be quiet, for this day is holy; do not be grieved.” ¹²And all the people went their way to eat and drink and to send portions and to make great rejoicing, because they had understood the words that were declared to them.

^t 1 Esdras 9.48 Vg: Heb and the Levites

7.73b–9.37 In these chapters Ezra is the principal figure, and it seems that they were originally integrated with the Ezra memoir of Ezra 7–10. 7.73b–8.12 Ezra summons the people to a ceremony for the reading of the law. In the present context, it occurs about a week after the finishing of the wall (cf. 6.15). But on the view that Neh 8–9 reports events of 458 B.C.E., and that that was the year of Ezra's arrival, the law reading took place two months after Ezra came to Jerusalem (cf. 8.2 with Ezra 7.9). 8.1 The square before the Water Gate, on the east of the city, outside the temple area, where even ritually defiled citizens could be present. They told the scribe Ezra. Though Ezra is plainly the initiator of the law teaching (cf. Ezra 7.25), he wants to represent it as a response to the people's request. 8.2 The first day of the seventh month, the new moon day introducing the most important festival month in Israel. The term translated with interpretation, meaning in Hebrew “distinctly” or “with pauses,” perhaps implies translation from Hebrew to Aramaic. 8.9 Nehemiah. This is the only evidence that Ezra and Nehemiah were contemporaries; and since the verb said is singular it seems likely that Nehemiah, who was the governor should be deleted. Mourn or weep, in repentance for having disobeyed the law. 8.10 They should celebrate the new moon festival as they were planning to and send portions to the poor and for-

The Festival of Booths Celebrated

13 On the second day the heads of ancestral houses of all the people, with the priests and the Levites, came together to the scribe Ezra in order to study the words of the law. 14 And they found it written in the law, which the LORD had commanded by Moses, that the people of Israel should live in booths^u during the festival of the seventh month, 15 and that they should publish and proclaim in all their towns and in Jerusalem as follows, "Go out to the hills and bring branches of olive, wild olive, myrtle, palm, and other leafy trees to make booths,^u as it is written." 16 So the people went out and brought them, and made booths^u for themselves, each on the roofs of their houses, and in their courts and in the courts of the house of God, and in the square at the Water Gate and in the square at the Gate of Ephraim. 17 And all the assembly of those who had returned from the captivity made booths^u and lived in them; for from the days of Jeshua son of Nun to that day the people of Israel had not done so. And there was very great rejoicing. 18 And day by day, from the first day to the last day, he read from the book of the law of God. They kept the festival seven days; and on the eighth day there was a solemn assembly, according to the ordinance.

National Confession

9 Now on the twenty-fourth day of this month the people of Israel were assembled with fasting and in sackcloth, and with earth on their heads.^v 2 Then those of Israelite descent separated themselves from all foreigners, and stood and confessed their sins and the iniquities of their ancestors. 3 They stood up in their place and read from the book of the law of the LORD their God for a fourth part of the day, and for another fourth they made confession and worshiped the LORD their God. 4 Then Jeshua, Bani, Kadmiel, Shebaniah, Bunni, Sherebiah, Bani, and Chenani stood on the stairs of the Levites and cried out with a loud voice to the LORD their God. 5 Then the Levites, Jeshua, Kadmiel, Bani, Hashabneiah, Sherebiah, Hodiah, Shebaniah, and Pethahiah, said, "Stand up and bless the LORD your God from everlasting to everlasting. Blessed be your glorious name, which is exalted above all blessing and praise."

6 And Ezra said:^w "You are the LORD, you alone; you have made heaven, the heaven of heavens, with all their host, the earth and all that is on it, the seas and all that is in them. To all of them you give life, and the host of heaven worships you.

igners (Deut 14.29; 26.12–13). 8.13–18 The following day a smaller group, the family heads and temple officials in Jerusalem, studied with Ezra the details for exact observance of the next festival, Booths (cf. note on Ezra 3.4), to begin on the fifteenth of the month. Living for a week in huts commemorated the journeying in the wilderness (Lev 23.42). 8.17 Jeshua, Joshua, Moses' successor. The festival itself had been always celebrated, as far as we know (cf. Judg 21.19; 1 Sam 1.3; Ezra 3.4); the novelty now was apparently that all Israel could celebrate it together in one place, last possible when they were camped by Gilgal with Joshua (though Josh 5.10 speaks of Passover and not specifically of Booths).

9.1–37 Two days later, a day of penitence is held (9.1–4), and the prayer of the Levites is reported (9.5–37). Strangely, the Day of Atonement (Yom Kippur) on the tenth has not been mentioned; perhaps the ceremony of the twenty-fourth replaces it. 9.1 Rituals of mourning are often used to express penitence. Mourners and penitents alike want to depict themselves as being like the dead, so they perform a ritual of fasting from food, wear sackcloth, from which shrouds are made, and put earth on their heads as if they were buried. 9.2 Separated themselves from all foreigners. This is not the divorcing of foreign wives as in Ezra 9–10, but it reflects the same concern for religious distinctiveness. Though foreigners living in Judea could participate in the festival (Deut 16.14) and were obliged to keep the law (Num 15.15–16), they had no need to confess Israel's sins as their own. 9.5–37 The Levites first summon the people to Stand up and bless the LORD (9.5a). Their prayer must then begin with Blessed be your glorious name, addressed to God. The theme of the prayer is Israelite history viewed as a story of apostasy: there has been divine blessing (9.6–15), blessing continued despite rebellion (9.16–25), and rebellion renewed (9.26–31). It concludes with an appeal for deliverance from foreign domination (9.32–37, especially 9.32, do not treat lightly all the hardship that has come upon us). 9.6 There is no good reason to add to the text And Ezra said, for the Levitical

⁷You are the LORD, the God who chose Abram and brought him out of Ur of the Chaldeans and gave him the name Abraham; ⁸and you found his heart faithful before you, and made with him a covenant to give to his descendants the land of the Canaanite, the Hittite, the Amorite, the Perizzite, the Jebusite, and the Girgashite; and you have fulfilled your promise, for you are righteous.

¹⁶ "But they and our ancestors acted presumptuously and stiffened their necks and did not obey your commandments; ¹⁷they refused to obey, and were not mindful of the wonders that you performed among them; but they stiffened their necks and determined to return to their slavery in Egypt. But you are a God ready to forgive, gracious and merciful, slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love, and you did not forsake them. ¹⁸Even when they had cast an image of a calf for themselves and said, 'This is your

God who brought you up out of Egypt,' and had committed great blasphemies, ¹⁹you in your great mercies did not forsake them in the wilderness; the pillar of cloud that led them in the way did not leave them by day, nor the pillar of fire by night that gave them light on the way by which they should go. ²⁰You gave your good spirit to instruct them, and did not withhold your manna from their mouths, and gave them water for their thirst. ²¹Forty years you sustained them in the wilderness so that they lacked nothing; their clothes did not wear out and their feet did not swell. ²²And you gave them kingdoms and peoples, and allotted to them every corner,^y so they took possession of the land of King Sihon of Heshbon and the land of King Og of Bashan. ²³You multiplied their descendants like the stars of heaven, and brought them into the land that you had told their ancestors to enter and possess. ²⁴So the descendants went in and possessed the land, and you subdued before them the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, and gave them into their hands, with their kings and the peoples of the land, to do with them as they pleased. ²⁵And they captured fortress cities and a rich land, and took possession of houses filled with all sorts of goods, hewn cisterns, vineyards, olive orchards, and fruit trees in abundance; so they ate, and were filled and became fat, and delighted themselves in your great goodness.

²⁶ "Nevertheless they were disobedient and rebelled against you and cast your law behind their backs and killed your prophets, who had warned them in order to turn them back to you, and they committed great blasphemies. ²⁷Therefore you gave them into the hands of their enemies, who made them suffer. Then in the time of their suffering they cried out to you and you heard them from heaven, and according to your great mercies you gave them saviors who saved them from the hands of their enemies. ²⁸But after they had rest, they again did evil before

Those Who Signed the Covenant

³⁸ Because of all this we make a firm agreement in writing, and on that sealed document are inscribed the names of our officials, our Levites, and our priests.

10^a Upon the sealed document are the names of Nehemiah the governor, son of Hachaliah, and Zedekiah; ²Seraiah, Azariah, Jeremiah, ³Pashhur, Amariah, Malchijah, ⁴Hattush, Shebaniah, Malluch, ⁵Harim, Meremoth, Obadiah, ⁶Daniel, Ginnethon, Baruch, ⁷Meshullam, Abijah, Mijamin, ⁸Maaziah, Bilgai, Shemaiah; these are the priests. ⁹And the Levites: Jeshua son of Azaniah, Binnui of the sons of Henadad, Kadmiel; ¹⁰and their associates, Shebaniah, Hodiah, Kelita, Pelaiah, Hanan, ¹¹Mica, Rehob, Hashabiah, ¹²Zaccur, Sherebiah, Shebaniah, ¹³Hodiah, Bani, Beninu. ¹⁴The leaders of the people: Parosh, Pahath-moab, Elam, Zattu, Bani, ¹⁵Bunni, Azgad, Bebai, ¹⁶Adonijah, Bigvai, Adin, ¹⁷Ater, Hezekiah, Azzur, ¹⁸Hodiah, Hashum, Bezai, ¹⁹Hariph, Anathoth, Nebai, ²⁰Magpiash, Meshullam, Hezir, ²¹Meshezabel, Zadok, Jaddua, ²²Pelathiah, Hanan, Ananiah, ²³Hoshea, Hananiah, Hasshub, ²⁴Hallohesh, Pilha, Shobek, ²⁵Rehum, Hashabnah, Maaseiah, ²⁶Ahiah, Hanan, Anan, ²⁷Malluch, Harim, and Baanah.

Summary of the Covenant

²⁸ The rest of the people, the priests, the Levites, the gatekeepers, the singers, the temple servants, and all who have separated themselves from the peoples of the lands to adhere to the law of God, their wives, their sons, their daughters, all who have knowledge and understanding, ²⁹join with their kin, their nobles, and enter into a curse and an oath to walk in

Judg 2.11–18. 9.29 Cf. Deut 4.1.

9.38–10.39 The pledge of reform is here firmly attached to the prayer of penitence (Because of all this). But historically it seems more likely that it stemmed from the community of Nehemiah (probably following the events of Neh 13) rather than that of Ezra, who is not named in it. 10.1–27 The priests' names (10.2–8) are probably “course” (or duty roster) names rather than the names of individuals. The laymen's names (10.14–27) often correspond to Ezra 2 and Neh 7, suggesting that individuals signed on behalf of their families. 10.28–39 The people pledge to keep not just pentateuchal law in general but particular interpretations of it. 10.28 All who have

God's law, which was given by Moses the servant of God, and to observe and do all the commandments of the LORD our Lord and his ordinances and his statutes. ³⁰We will not give our daughters to the peoples of the land or take their daughters for our sons; ³¹and if the peoples of the land bring in merchandise or any grain on the sabbath day to sell, we will not buy it from them on the sabbath or on a holy day; and we will forego the crops of the seventh year and the exaction of every debt.

³² We also lay on ourselves the obligation to charge ourselves yearly one-third of a shekel for the service of the house of our God; ³³for the rows of bread, the regular grain offering, the regular burnt offering, the sabbaths, the new moons, the appointed festivals, the sacred donations, and the sin offerings to make atonement for Israel, and for all the work of the house of our God. ³⁴We have also cast lots among the priests, the Levites, and the people, for the wood offering, to bring it into the house of our God, by ancestral houses, at appointed times, year by year, to burn on the altar of the LORD our God, as it is written in the law. ³⁵We obligate ourselves to bring the first fruits of our soil and the first fruits of all fruit of every tree, year by year, to the house of the LORD; ³⁶also to bring to the house of our God, to the priests who minister in the house of our God, the firstborn of our sons and of our livestock, as it is written in the law, and the firstlings of our herds and of our flocks; ³⁷and to bring the first of our dough, and our contributions, the fruit of every tree, the wine and the oil, to the priests, to the chambers of the house of our God; and to bring to the Levites

the tithes from our soil, for it is the Levites who collect the tithes in all our rural towns. ³⁸And the priest, the descendant of Aaron, shall be with the Levites when the Levites receive the tithes; and the Levites shall bring up a tithe of the tithes to the house of our God, to the chambers of the storehouse. ³⁹For the people of Israel and the sons of Levi shall bring the contribution of grain, wine, and oil to the store-rooms where the vessels of the sanctuary are, and where the priests that minister, and the gatekeepers and the singers are. We will not neglect the house of our God.

11 Now the leaders of the people lived in Jerusalem; and the rest of the people cast lots to bring one out of ten to live in the holy city Jerusalem, while nine-tenths remained in the other towns. ²And the people blessed all those who willingly offered to live in Jerusalem.

³ These are the leaders of the province who lived in Jerusalem; but in the towns of Judah all lived on their property in their towns: Israel, the priests, the Levites, the temple servants, and the descendants of Solomon's servants. ⁴And in Jerusalem lived some of the Judahites and of the Benjaminites. Of the Judahites: Athaiah son of Uzziah son of Zechariah son of Amariah son of Shephatiah son of Mahalalel, of the descendants of Perez; ⁵and Maaseiah son of Baruch son of Colhozeh son of Hazaiah son of Adaiah son of Joiarib son of Zechariah son of the Shilonite. ⁶All the descendants of Perez who lived in Jerusalem were four hundred sixty-eight valiant warriors.

And previously the fallow year law (Ex 23.10–11), which works to the disadvantage of the farmer, had not been combined with the remission year law (Deut 15.1–8), which works to the disadvantage of the merchant. 10.32 Previously any temple tax had been only occasional (as 2 Kings 12.4–15), not annual. 10.33 For the temple expenditures, cf. Num 28–29. 10.34 The law prescribed a continual fire on the altar (Lev 6.8–13), but not how the wood should be collected. 10.35–39 Most of these gifts for the temple personnel are prescribed in various parts of the law, but this is the first time they are all brought together. For first fruits, see Num 18.12–13; for firstborn, see Ex 22.29–30; for the first, or better “choice produce,” manufactured rather than raw, see Num 18.12; for tithes, see Num 18.26–32. 10.38 Priests receive a tenth of the Levites' income (Num 18.26–28).

11.1–2 Nehemiah's memoir seems to resume from the point reached in 7.73a, though it is soon interrupted again in 11.3 by various lists, mostly from a time later than Nehemiah. Those who are forcibly removed by lot from the villages in order to repopulate Jerusalem are honored by being called those who willingly offered. 11.3–19 These Jerusalemite family heads and clergy are contemporary with Nehemiah (another version of

7 And these are the Benjaminites: Sallu son of Meshullam son of Joed son of Pedaiah son of Kolaiah son of Maaseiah son of Ithiel son of Jeshaiiah. ⁸And his brothers^b Gabbai, Sallai: nine hundred twenty-eight. ⁹Joel son of Zichri was their overseer; and Judah son of Hassenuah was second in charge of the city.

10 Of the priests: Jedaiah son of Joiarib, Jachin, ¹¹Seraiah son of Hilkiah son of Meshullam son of Zadok son of Meraioth son of Ahitub, officer of the house of God, ¹²and their associates who did the work of the house, eight hundred twenty-two; and Adaiah son of Jeroham son of Pelaliah son of Amzi son of Zechariah son of Pashhur son of Malchijah, ¹³and his associates, heads of ancestral houses, two hundred forty-two; and Amashsai son of Azarel son of Ahzai son of Meshillemoth son of Immer, ¹⁴and their associates, valiant warriors, one hundred twenty-eight; their overseer was Zabdiel son of Haggedolim.

15 And of the Levites: Shemaiah son of Hasshub son of Azrikam son of Hashabiah son of Bunni; ¹⁶and Shabbethai and Jozabad, of the leaders of the Levites, who were over the outside work of the house of God; ¹⁷and Mattaniah son of Mica son of Zabdi son of Asaph, who was the leader to begin the thanksgiving in prayer, and Bakkukiah, the second among his associates; and Abda son of Shammua son of Galal son of Jeduthun. ¹⁸All the Levites in the holy city were two hundred eighty-four.

19 The gatekeepers, Akkub, Talmon and their associates, who kept watch at the gates, were one hundred seventy-two. ²⁰And the rest of Israel, and of the priests and the Levites, were in all the towns of Judah, all of them in their inheritance. ²¹But the temple servants lived on Ophel; and Ziha and Gishpa were over the temple servants.

22 The overseer of the Levites in Jerusalem was Uzzi son of Bani son of Hashabiah son of Mattaniah son of Mica, of the descendants of Asaph, the singers, in charge of the work of the house of God. ²³For there was a command from the king concerning them, and a settled provision for the singers, as was required every day. ²⁴And Pethahiah son of Meshezabel, of the descendants of Zerah son of Judah, was at the king's hand in all matters concerning the people.

Villages Outside Jerusalem

25 And as for the villages, with their fields, some of the people of Judah lived in Kiriath-arba and its villages, and in Dibon and its villages, and in Jekabzeel and its villages, ²⁶and in Jeshua and in Moladah and Beth-pelet, ²⁷in Hazar-shual, in Beer-sheba and its villages, ²⁸in Ziklag, in Meconah and its villages, ²⁹in En-rimmon, in Zorah, in Jarmuth, ³⁰Zanoah, Adullam, and their villages, Lachish and its fields, and Azekah and its villages. So they camped from Beer-sheba to the valley of Hinnom. ³¹The people of Benjamin also lived from Geba onward, at Michmash, Aiya, Bethel and its villages, ³²Anathoth, Nob, Ananiah, ³³Hazor, Ramah, Gittaim, ³⁴Hadid, Zeboim, Neballat, ³⁵Lod, and Ono, the valley of artisans. ³⁶And certain divisions of the Levites in Judah were joined to Benjamin.

A List of Priests and Levites

12 These are the priests and the Levites who came up with Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, and Jeshua: Seraiah, Jeremiah, Ezra, ²Amariah, Malluch, Hattush, ³Shecaniah, Rehum, Meremoth, ⁴Iddo, Ginnethoi, Abijah, ⁵Mijamin, Maadiah, Bilgah, ⁶Shemaiah, Joiarib, Jedaiah, ⁷Sallu, Amok, Hilkiah, Jedaiah. These were the leaders of the priests and of their associates in the days of Jeshua.

8 And the Levites: Jeshua, Binnui, Kadmiel, Sherebiah, Judah, and Mattaniah, who with his associates was in charge of the songs of thanksgiving. ⁹And

the list is in 1 Chr 9). 11.20 A heading that rightly applies to 11.25-36. 11.21-24 Supplements to 11.10-19. 11.24 Pethahiah seems to be a governor two generations after Nehemiah. 11.25-36 This list of towns in Judah and Benjamin almost certainly does not belong to Nehemiah's time.

12.1-26 Lists of priests and Levites purportedly from ca. 520 B.C.E. (12.1-9); high priests down to Jaddua, in 323 B.C.E. (12.10-11); priests and Levites from the time of Joiakim, sometime between 520 and 445 B.C.E. (12.12-21, 24-26); and also a note about the source of these lists

Bakbukiah and Unno their associates stood opposite them in the service. ¹⁰Jeshua was the father of Joiakim, Joiakim the father of Eliashib, Eliashib the father of Joiada, ¹¹Joiada the father of Jonathan, and Jonathan the father of Jaddua.

¹²In the days of Joiakim the priests, heads of ancestral houses, were: of Seraiah, Meraiah; of Jeremiah, Hananiah; ¹³of Ezra, Meshullam; of Amariah, Jehohanan; ¹⁴of Malluchi, Jonathan; of Shebaniah, Joseph; ¹⁵of Harim, Adna; of Meraioth, Helkai; ¹⁶of Iddo, Zechariah; of Ginnethon, Meshullam; ¹⁷of Abijah, Zichri; of Miniamin, of Moadiah, Piltai; ¹⁸of Bilgah, Shammua; of Shemaiah, Jehonathan; ¹⁹of Joiarib, Mattenai; of Jediah, Uzzi; ²⁰of Sallai, Kallai; of Amok, Eber; ²¹of Hilkiah, Hashabiah; of Jediah, Nethanel.

²²As for the Levites, in the days of Eliashib, Joiada, Johanan, and Jaddua, there were recorded the heads of ancestral houses; also the priests until the reign of Darius the Persian. ²³The Levites, heads of ancestral houses, were recorded in the Book of the Annals until the days of Johanan son of Eliashib. ²⁴And the leaders of the Levites: Hashabiah, Sherebiah, and Jeshua son of Kadmiel, with their associates over against them, to praise and to give thanks, according to the commandment of David the man of God, section opposite to section. ²⁵Mattaniah, Bakbukiah, Obadiah, Meshullam, Talmon, and Akkub were gatekeepers standing guard at the storehouses of the gates. ²⁶These were in the days of Joiakim son of Jeshua son of Jozadak, and in the days of the governor Nehemiah and of the priest Ezra, the scribe.

Dedication of the City Wall

²⁷Now at the dedication of the wall of Jerusalem they sought out the Levites in all their places, to bring them to Jerusalem to celebrate the dedication with rejoicing, with thanksgivings and with singing, with cymbals, harps, and lyres. ²⁸The companies of the singers gathered together from the circuit around Jerusalem and from the villages of the Netophathites; ²⁹also from Beth-gilgal and from the region of Geba and Azmaveth; for the singers had built for themselves villages around Jerusalem. ³⁰And the priests and the Levites purified themselves; and they purified the people and the gates and the wall.

³¹Then I brought the leaders of Judah up onto the wall, and appointed two great companies that gave thanks and went in procession. One went to the right on the wall to the Dung Gate; ³²and after them went Hoshaiah and half the officials of Judah, ³³and Azariah, Ezra, Meshullam, ³⁴Judah, Benjamin, Shemaiah, and Jeremiah, ³⁵and some of the young priests with trumpets: Zechariah son of Jonathan son of Shemaiah son of Mattaniah son of Micaiah son of Zaccur son of Asaph; ³⁶and his kindred, Shemaiah, Azarel, Milalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nethanel, Judah, and Hanani, with the musical instruments of David the man of God; and the scribe Ezra went in front of them. ³⁷At the Fountain Gate, in front of them, they went straight up by the stairs of the city of David, at the ascent of the wall, above the house of David, to the Water Gate on the east.

(12.22–23). 12.27–43 The story of the dedication of the wall would have been an appropriate topic for Nehemiah's memoir. 12.27–30 The Levite singers, who normally came up to Jerusalem only for their tours of duty, now assemble en masse for this ceremony. 12.31–43 The circumambulation of the walls is carried out by two processions starting at the same place, walking along the top of the wall in opposite directions, and meeting finally in the temple area. Each procession has a choir, a group of lay nobles, seven priests, and eight Levite musicians. With vocal music in front and instrumental music in the rear, they must have been enveloped in stereophonic and Hananiah, with trumpets; ⁴²and Maseiah, Shemaiah, Eleazar, Uzzi, Jehohanan, Malchijah, Elam, and Ezer. And the singers sang with Jezrahiah as their leader. ⁴³They offered great sacrifices that day and rejoiced, for God had made them rejoice with great joy; the women and children also rejoiced. The joy of Jerusalem was heard far away.

Temple Responsibilities

⁴⁴ On that day men were appointed over the chambers for the stores, the contributions, the first fruits, and the tithes, to gather into them the portions required by the law for the priests and for the Levites from the fields belonging to the towns; for Judah rejoiced over the priests and the Levites who ministered. ⁴⁵They performed the service of their God and the service of purification, as did the singers and the gatekeepers, according to the command of David and his son Solomon. ⁴⁶For in the days of David and Asaph long ago there was a leader of the singers, and there were songs of praise and thanksgiving to God. ⁴⁷In the days of Zerubbabel and in the days of Nehemiah all Israel gave the daily portions for the singers and the gatekeepers. They set apart that which was for the Levites; and the Levites set apart that which was for the descendants of Aaron.

Foreigners Separated from Israel

13 On that day they read from the book of Moses in the hearing of the people; and in it was found written that no Ammonite or Moabite should ever enter the assembly of God, ²because they did not meet the Israelites with bread and water, but hired Balaam against them to curse them—yet our God turned the curse into a blessing. ³When the people heard the law, they separated from Israel all those of foreign descent.

The Reforms of Nehemiah

⁴ Now before this, the priest Eliashib, who was appointed over the chambers of the house of our God, and who was related to Tobiah, ⁵prepared for Tobiah a large room where they had previously put the grain offering, the frankincense, the vessels, and the tithes of grain, wine, and oil, which were given by commandment to the Levites, singers, and gatekeepers, and the contributions for the priests. ⁶While this was taking place I was not in Jerusalem, for in the thirty-second year of King Artaxerxes of Babylon I went to the king. After some time I asked leave of the king ⁷and returned to Jerusalem. I then discovered the wrong that Eliashib had done on behalf of Tobiah, preparing a room for him in the courts of the house of God. ⁸And I was very angry, and I threw all the household furniture of Tobiah out of the room. ⁹Then I gave orders and they cleansed the chambers, and I brought back the vessels of the house of God, with the grain offering and the frankincense.

¹⁰ I also found out that the portions of the Levites had not been given to them; so that the Levites and the singers, who had conducted the service, had gone back to their fields. ¹¹So I remonstrated with the officials and said, "Why is the house of sound. The ceremony concludes with many sacrifices (12.43). 12.44-13.3 This is an idealized summary of the postexilic community: the clergy are properly maintained by the community, and they perform the worship of God as prescribed in ancient times. And the integrity of the worshipping community is secured by the exclusion of all foreigners forbidden in the law (cf. Num 21.21-23; 22-24; Deut 23.3-6).

13.4-31 The editor's glowing picture of the postexilic community (12.44-13.3) is followed immediately by Nehemiah's account of his reforms, suggesting a less rosy reality. Or is reality whatever is the best that can be said, rather than the sad exceptions to a happy norm? Nehemiah had gone back to Persia in 432 B.C.E. and on his return finds several matters amiss. 13.4-9 Nehemiah's old enemy Tobiah (2.10; 6.17-19) has during Nehemiah's absence installed himself in a temple apartment with the permission of Eliashib, the temple dean, to whom he was apparently related by marriage (13.4; cf. 6.18). Not only is Tobiah not a priest or Levite, he is an Ammonite (cf. 13.1; Deut 23.3)! This is an act of sacrilege and a defilement that must be cleansed (13.9). It is probably also an attack on Nehemiah's personal authority—which explains Nehemiah's reaction. 13.10-14 In reorganizing the temple storerooms Nehemiah realizes that adequate provisions for the Levites have not been given by the populace. The portions (tithes) of the Levites are their regular income; without them they have to leave Jerusalem and earn their living on their farms (for Levite villages with their pasturelands, see Num

God forsaken?" And I gathered them together and set them in their stations. ¹²Then all Judah brought the tithe of the grain, wine, and oil into the storehouses. ¹³And I appointed as treasurers over the storehouses the priest Shelemiah, the scribe Zadok, and Pedaiah of the Levites, and as their assistant Hanan son of Zaccur son of Mattaniah, for they were considered faithful; and their duty was to distribute to their associates. ¹⁴Remember me, O my God, concerning this, and do not wipe out my good deeds that I have done for the house of my God and for his service.

Sabbath Reforms Begun

15 In those days I saw in Judah people treading wine presses on the sabbath, and bringing in heaps of grain and loading them on donkeys; and also wine, grapes, figs, and all kinds of burdens, which they brought into Jerusalem on the sabbath day; and I warned them at that time against selling food. ¹⁶Tyrians also, who lived in the city, brought in fish and all kinds of merchandise and sold them on the sabbath to the people of Judah, and in Jerusalem. ¹⁷Then I remonstrated with the nobles of Judah and said to them, "What is this evil thing that you are doing, profaning the sabbath day? ¹⁸Did not your ancestors act in this way, and did not our God bring all this disaster on us and on this city? Yet you bring more wrath on Israel by profaning the sabbath."

19 When it began to be dark at the gates of Jerusalem before the sabbath, I commanded that the doors should be shut and gave orders that they should not be opened until after the sabbath. And I set some of my servants over the gates, to prevent any burden from being brought in on the sabbath day. ²⁰Then the merchants and sellers of all kinds of merchandise spent the night outside Jerusalem once or twice. ²¹But I warned them and said to them, "Why do you spend the night in front of the wall? If you do so again, I will lay hands on you." From that time on they did not come on the sabbath. ²²And I commanded the Levites that they should purify themselves and come and guard the gates, to keep the sabbath day holy. Remember this also in my favor, O my God, and spare me according to the greatness of your steadfast love.

Mixed Marriages Condemned

23 In those days also I saw Jews who had married women of Ashdod, Ammon, and Moab; ²⁴and half of their children spoke the language of Ashdod, and they could not speak the language of Judah, but spoke the language of various peoples. ²⁵And I contended with them and cursed them and beat some of them and pulled out their hair; and I made them take an oath in the name of God, saying, "You shall not give your daughters to their sons, or take their daughters for your sons or for yourselves. ²⁶Did not King Solomon of Israel sin on account of such women? Among the many nations

35.1–8). So temple worship has virtually come to a standstill. Nehemiah makes the support of the Levites the responsibility of the lay leaders (officials, 13.11), and appoints treasurers (including priests since their income derives from the Levites'; cf. note on 10.38) to supervise the delivery of the tithes. The community pledge of Neh 10 goes a step further by establishing Levitical depots across the country (10.37) to facilitate collection. 13.15–22 Nehemiah finds also that the sabbath law is being contravened: there is work (against Ex 20.8–11), harvesting (against Ex 34.21), and using animals (against Ex 23.12). And there is buying from non-Jewish merchants—which was not specifically forbidden in the law. Nehemiah makes the family heads responsible for enforcing sabbath observance (13.17) and takes direct action to prevent sabbath trading by posting guards at the city gates (13.19). The community pledge of 10.31, no doubt responding to the same situation, relies on the people's conscience rather than a show of force to ensure obedience. 13.23–29 Intermarriage with non-Jews had obviously not ceased when Ezra's community insisted on divorces of foreign wives (Ezra 9–10). That had been about thirty years previously, in a former generation (if Ezra's date is indeed 458 B.C.E.); if Ezra did not precede Nehemiah but came to Jerusalem in 398 B.C.E., it will of course have been Nehemiah's demands that had been ignored. In either case, Nehemiah, though physically more vigorous than Ezra (13.25), actually takes a more moderate line, for he only forbids intermarriage in the future and takes no action against existing marriages. The fact that the son (or grandson) of the high priest had married into there was no king like him, and he was beloved by his God, and God made him king over all Israel; nevertheless, foreign women made even him to sin. ²⁷Shall we then listen to you and do all this great evil and act treacherously against our God by marrying foreign women?"

²⁸ And one of the sons of Jehoiada, son of the high priest Eliashib, was the son-in-law of Sanballat the Horonite; I chased him away from me. ²⁹Remember them, O my God, because they have defiled the priesthood, the covenant of the priests and the Levites.

³⁰ Thus I cleansed them from everything foreign, and I established the duties of the priests and Levites, each in his work; ³¹and I provided for the wood offering, at appointed times, and for the first fruits. Remember me, O my God, for good.

the family of Nehemiah's archenemy Sanballat (13.28) shows that Nehemiah's views were far from universally accepted. 13.30–31 Nehemiah's summary of his activities shows well how he would like to be remembered: as a religious reformer rather than simply a civil governor and restorer of Jerusalem's walls.

ESTHER

Purim and Esther

THE BOOK OF ESTHER appears in the Hebrew Bible as one of Five Scrolls read on festivals or commemorative days of the Jewish year. Read at Purim, Esther legitimizes this celebration of the deliverance of Jews from a pogrom. Yet tensions exist between the theme of the festival, as set out in ch. 9, and the story in chs. 1–8. Characteristics of the few links between the story and the festival lead many to suggest this connection is a later development in the history of a story of court intrigue and conflict that once ended in triumphant celebration for the Jews, but not the massive slaughter of the enemy described in Esth 9.1–19 (seventy-five thousand in v. 16!) and the particulars of Purim in 9.20–32.

Some suggest Purim reflects a form of New Year's festivities current in the ancient Persian Empire. Diaspora Jewish communities were caught up in the celebrations, which were often linked with casting lots to determine the destinies of peoples and nations for the coming year. The story of Esther and Mordecai served to base this popular celebration (called “Mordecai's Day” in 2 Macc 15.36) in events specific to Jewish history.

Plot, Characters, Themes, and Worldview

The story represents a type found in Hebraic tradition: an account of the trials and triumphs of figures involved in intrigues in foreign courts (see Gen 39–41; Dan 1–6). Readers were naturally attracted to stories of contests and conflicts in contexts where power and wealth were rewards for those shrewd enough to gain royal favor. Moreover, the story is extremely well told, engaging readers through sustained suspense. Coincidences (or possibly providence) combine with human initiative to bring about a resolution in which good triumphs over evil.

Characters are sketched with broad strokes, appearing at times almost as types. Haman is the archetypical villain. The king is a stock figure of ancient court tales. Mordecai and Esther form a more complex duo. Characters like Vashti and Zeresh make brief and telling appearances; others, including ever-present eunuchs, are agents who keep the plot moving.

Emphasis is on plot rather than development of character. A plot laced with twists, turns, and complications joins rather stock characters, leading to rich depths of irony. Readers experience the universe as ultimately just, a satisfaction real life rarely provides. Three among many ironic elements in the story merit attention.

First, the central figure is a woman. Within postexilic Jewish communities women's roles were quite circumscribed; in public arenas they were generally marginal. It is striking that diaspora Jewish communities, themselves marginal within their larger worlds, placed a woman at the center of a story of deliverance from potential destruction (see also Judith).

Second, Esther and Mordecai seem remarkably unconstrained by Torah regulations that defined Jewish identity for many. Esther can conceal her Jewish identity, and nothing about her dress, diet, or behavior reveals her secret.

Third, absence of any direct mention of the deity in a story about Jews delivered from danger in an alien setting has provoked comment by scholars. The "other quarter" mentioned by Mordecai in 4.14 is sometimes understood as an oblique reference to the deity and providential guidance. Nevertheless, failure to mention God in any direct way lends a remarkably secular tone to the story.

The Greek Text

Greek forms of Esther contain what tradition calls "Additions" addressing these distinctive features of the story (see Esther, the Greek Version Containing the Additional Chapters, in the Apocrypha). In spite of qualities of the Greek Esther that align it with traditional Jewish piety, the shorter Hebrew form of the book was in time included in the Writings of the Hebrew Bible. Its inclusion was not accepted without debate and dissent (Esther is not represented among the Dead Sea Scrolls). This form is also preserved in the Protestant OT. Other Christian Bibles preserve fuller Greek forms of Esther, and, like the Protestant, place the story among the historical books. W. Lee Humphreys

1 This happened in the days of Ahasuerus, the same Ahasuerus who ruled over one hundred twenty-seven provinces from India to Ethiopia.^a 2 In those days when King Ahasuerus sat on his royal throne in the citadel of Susa, 3 in the third year of his reign, he gave a banquet for all his officials and ministers. The army of Persia and Media and the nobles and governors of the provinces were present, 4 while he displayed the great wealth of his kingdom and the splendor and pomp of his majesty for many days, one hundred eighty days in all.

5 When these days were completed, the king gave for all the people present in the citadel of Susa, both great and small, a banquet lasting for seven days, in the court of the garden of the king's palace. 6 There were white cotton curtains and blue hangings tied with cords of fine linen and purple to silver rings^b and marble pillars. There were couches of gold and silver on a mosaic pavement of porphyry, marble, mother-of-pearl, and colored stones. 7 Drinks were served in golden goblets, goblets of different kinds, and the royal wine was lavished according to the bounty of the king. 8 Drinking was by flagons, without restraint; for the king had given orders to all the officials of his palace to do as each one desired. 9 Furthermore, Queen Vashti gave a banquet for the women in the palace of King Ahasuerus.

King Ahasuerus Deposes Queen Vashti

10 On the seventh day, when the king was merry with wine, he commanded Mehuman, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha and Abagtha, Zethar and Carkas, the seven eunuchs who attended him, 11 to bring Queen Vashti before the king, wearing the royal crown, in order to show the peoples and the officials her beauty; for she was fair to behold. 12 But Queen Vashti refused to come at the king's command conveyed by the eunuchs. At this the king was enraged, and his anger burned within him.

13 Then the king consulted the sages who knew the laws^c (for this was the king's procedure toward all who were versed in law and custom, 14 and those next to him were Carshena, Shethar, Admatha, Tarshish, Meres, Marsena, and Memucan, the seven officials of Persia and Media, who had access to the king, and sat first in the kingdom); 15 "According to the law, what is to be done to

1.1–9 Descriptions of the king and his banquets, the extent of the Persian Empire, and of the royal court and its festivities set an opulent stage for a story in which power and wealth are at stake for those engaged in court intrigues. 1.1 Ahasuerus (Ezra 4.6; Dan 9.1), "the chief of rulers," is usually identified as Xerxes I (486–465 B.C.E.), sometimes (as in the Greek and Josephus) as Artaxerxes II (405–359 B.C.E.). At its fullest extent the Persian Empire comprised thirty-one satrapies. Xerxes had twenty according to Herodotus (History 3.89), each composed of several provinces. 1.2 As a royal and religious complex, the citadel of Susa was a city within the larger city of Susa, the winter residence of Persian rulers, whose capital was Persepolis. 1.3 Most of the terms for officials, ministers, nobles, and governors are general, hinting at the complex administrative structures that managed the vast Persian Empire. 1.5 The king's palace was an open-air colonnade structure. 1.6 Greek authors mention lavish Persian feasts. 1.7–8 Feasting and drinking mark many of the critical events in this story (see 2.18; 3.15; 5.5–8; 7.1–10; 9.22). 1.9 Vashti is otherwise unknown. Herodotus names Amestris, from a noble Persian family, as Xerxes' queen. While women could dine with men in Persia, Vashti's separate banquet is a necessary literary device.

1.10–22 King Ahasuerus deposes Queen Vashti. 1.10 Eunuchs, men who had been castrated, were functionaries in the Persian court; they appear at key points to facilitate the actions of other characters and move the story along. Lists of names (see also v. 14) give the story an air of authenticity. 1.11 Some suggest this summons meant she was to wear only the royal crown. 1.12 It is ironic that Vashti is rejected for disobeying the king by refusing to appear when summoned, while in 4.16–5.1 Esther, who refused to obey royal law and stay away until called, is rewarded for disobedience. The timing of events along with good fortune and the ability to capitalize on it bring success to an able courtier. 1.13 The sages are possibly a privy council (Ezra 7.14; Herodotus History 3.31). 1.14 Only the most trusted officials were allowed physical access to the king. 1.15 The rash decision to do something to Vashti without investigating the causes for her refusal as well as his dependence on others for advice characterize this king as cloaked in

Queen Vashti because she has not performed the command of King Ahasuerus conveyed by the eunuchs?" 16 Then Memucan said in the presence of the king and the officials, "Not only has Queen Vashti done wrong to the king, but also to all the officials and all the peoples who are in all the provinces of King Ahasuerus. 17 For this deed of the queen will be made known to all women, causing them to look with contempt on their husbands, since they will say, 'King Ahasuerus commanded Queen Vashti to be brought before him, and she did not come.' 18 This very day the noble ladies of Persia and Media who have heard of the queen's behavior will rebel against^d the king's officials, and there will be no end of contempt and wrath! 19 If it pleases the king, let a royal order go out from him, and let it be written among the laws of the Persians and the Medes so that it may not be altered, that Vashti is never again to come before King Ahasuerus; and let the king give her royal position to another who is better than she. 20 So when the decree made by the king is proclaimed throughout all his kingdom, vast as it is, all women will give honor to their husbands, high and low alike."

21 This advice pleased the king and the officials, and the king did as Memucan proposed; 22 he sent letters to all the royal provinces, to every province in its own script and to every people in its own language, declaring that every man should be master in his own house.^e

The Search for a New Queen

2 After these things, when the anger of King Ahasuerus had abated, he remembered Vashti and what she had done and what had been decreed against her. 2 Then the king's servants who attended him said, "Let beautiful young virgins be sought out for the king. 3 And let the king appoint commissioners in all the provinces of his kingdom to gather all the beautiful young virgins to the harem in the citadel of Susa under custody of Hegai, the king's eunuch, who is in charge of the women; let their cosmetic treatments be given them. 4 And let the girl who pleases the king be queen instead of Vashti." This pleased the king, and he did so.

Esther and Mordecai

5 Now there was a Jew in the citadel of Susa whose name was Mordecai son of Jair son of Shimei son of Kish, a Benjaminite. 6 Kish^f had been carried away from Jerusalem among the captives carried away with King Jeconiah of Judah, whom King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon had carried away. 7 Mordecai^g had symbols of power but actually malleable and controlled by others. 1.18 These noble ladies included, of course, the wives of those advising the king. 1.19 The unalterable laws of the Persians and the Medes (see 3.12–14; 8.8–14; Dan 6.8) is a literary motif, not otherwise known and historically most improbable. Ironically, because Vashti will not come, she is forbidden ever to come before the king. 1.21–22 All official resources and protocol of state are needed to deal with the danger posed to men by one willful woman! This is the first in a series of letters and decrees sent by means of the famed Persian courier service. Vashti's banishment creates a place for Esther to enter the royal court and the story.

2.1–4 The search for a new queen. 2.1 Just what he remembered of Vashti is left vague; readers must determine among the many possibilities. 2.2 Servants are here personal pages, adept at reading the king's mind and addressing his concerns without his speaking a word. 2.3 Harem, lit. "the house of the women." 2.4 This is an undertaking in which it seems the king can only benefit.

2.5–7 Esther and Mordecai. 2.5 Mordecai, whose name is built upon "Marduk," the Babylonian deity, is introduced as a Benjaminite linked to Saul, Israel's first king. For Shimei, see 2 Sam 16.5–14; 19.16–23; 1 Kings 2.8, 36–46. For Kish, Saul's father, see 1 Sam 9.1. Generations are telescoped, as the phrase son of can mean "descendant of." 2.6 Others understand Mordecai, not Kish, to be the one exiled by Nebuchadnezzar in 597 B.C.E. with Jeconiah, who is elsewhere called Jehoiachin (2 Kings 24.6–17). This poses chronological problems for a story set in the reign of Xerxes; thus the NRSV has v. 6 refer to Kish as Mordecai's great-grandfather and the one exiled. 2.7 Esther, like other Jews in Diaspora, had both Jewish and non-Jewish names (Dan 1.6–7). Hadassah means "myrtle"; Esther is a form of Ishtar, the well known Babylonian deity. As beautiful, Esther clearly fits the requirements of v. 3.

brought up Hadassah, that is Esther, his cousin, for she had neither father nor mother; the girl was fair and beautiful, and when her father and her mother died, Mordecai adopted her as his own daughter. ⁸So when the king's order and his edict were proclaimed, and when many young women were gathered in the citadel of Susa in custody of Hegai, Esther also was taken into the king's palace and put in custody of Hegai, who had charge of the women. ⁹The girl pleased him and won his favor, and he quickly provided her with her cosmetic treatments and her portion of food, and with seven chosen maids from the king's palace, and advanced her and her maids to the best place in the harem. ¹⁰Esther did not reveal her people or kindred, for Mordecai had charged her not to tell. ¹¹Every day Mordecai would walk around in front of the court of the harem, to learn how Esther was and how she fared.

¹² The turn came for each girl to go in to King Ahasuerus, after being twelve months under the regulations for the women, since this was the regular period of their cosmetic treatment, six months with oil of myrrh and six months with perfumes and cosmetics for women. ¹³When the girl went in to the king she was given whatever she asked for to take with her from the harem to the king's palace. ¹⁴In the evening she went in; then in the morning she came back to the second harem in custody of Shaashgaz, the king's eunuch, who was in charge of the concubines; she did not go in to the king again, unless the king delighted in her and she was summoned by name.

¹⁵ When the turn came for Esther daughter of Abihail the uncle of Mordecai, who had adopted her as his own daughter, to go in to the king, she asked for nothing except what Hegai the king's eunuch, who had charge of the women, advised. Now Esther was admired by all who saw her. ¹⁶When Esther was taken to King Ahasuerus in his royal palace in the tenth month, which is the month of Tebeth, in the seventh year of his reign, ¹⁷the king loved Esther more than all the other women; of all the virgins she won his favor and devotion, so that he set the royal crown on her head and made her queen instead of Vashti. ¹⁸Then the king gave a great banquet to all his officials and ministers—"Esther's banquet." He also granted a holiday^h to the provinces, and gave gifts with royal liberality.

Mordecai Discovers a Plot

¹⁹ When the virgins were being gathered together,ⁱ Mordecai was sitting at the king's gate. ²⁰Now Esther had not revealed her kindred or her people, as Mordecai had charged her; for Esther obeyed Mordecai just as when she was brought up by him. ²¹In those days, while Mordecai was sitting at the king's gate, Bigthan and Teresh, two of the king's eunuchs, who guarded the threshold, became angry and conspired to assassinate^j King Ahasuerus. ²²But the matter came to the knowledge of Mordecai, and he told it to Queen Esther, and Esther told the king in the name of Mordecai. ²³When the affair was vv. 9, 15), the reader must wait through nine verses of information about harem protocol to be assured that she wins the favor of the man who matters most. Her beauty and charm seem enough to please him, for he inquires no further about her background. 2.18 This wedding banquet that includes benefits for the king's subjects is next in a series of feasts punctuating this story.

2.8–18 Esther becomes queen. 2.9 Esther's success with those charged with custody of the king's women anticipates her future success with the king himself. Receiving her portion of food, she appears not to observe Jewish dietary laws, a concern to early interpreters. In this she stands in contrast to Daniel (Dan 1.8–20). See also Addition C in the Greek version. 2.10 Secrecy regarding her kindred is necessary for the plot. 2.12 Myrrh was a resin used as an incense and in ointments and perfumes. 2.14 After their first evening with the king, these women became his concubines, were placed under the charge of another eunuch, and resided in a second harem. 2.16 Tebeth, December-January in the Babylonian calendar. It took four years to find a new queen. 2.17 While Esther's success is anticipated (see

2.19–23 Mordecai discovers a plot. 2.19 Sitting in the king's gate, Mordecai is an official of undetermined rank. 2.20 This repetitive stress on Esther's obedience to Mordecai (v. 10) emphasizes Esther's obedience to the men controlling her (see v. 15). 2.21 Xerxes actually fell victim to a plot by his chamber guards. 2.23 Hanged, or "impaled on the stake." The book of the annals, lit. "the book of the things of the days," was the investigated and found to be so, both the men were hanged on the gallows. It was recorded in the book of the annals in the presence of the king.

Haman Undertakes to Destroy the Jews

3 After these things King Ahasuerus promoted Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, and advanced him and set his seat above all the officials who were with him. ²And all the king's servants who were at the king's gate bowed down and did obeisance to Haman; for the king had so commanded concerning him. But Mordecai did not bow down or do obeisance. ³Then the king's servants who were at the king's gate said to Mordecai, "Why do you disobey the king's command?" ⁴When they spoke to him day after day and he would not listen to them, they told Haman, in order to see whether Mordecai's words would avail; for he had told them that he was a Jew. ⁵When Haman saw that Mordecai did not bow down or do obeisance to him, Haman was infuriated. ⁶But he thought it beneath him to lay hands on Mordecai alone. So, having been told who Mordecai's people were, Haman plotted to destroy all the Jews, the people of Mordecai, throughout the whole kingdom of Ahasuerus.

day and for the month, and the lot fell on the thirteenth day^k of the twelfth month, which is the month of Adar. ⁸Then Haman said to King Ahasuerus, "There is a certain people scattered and separated among the peoples in all the provinces of your kingdom; their laws are different from those of every other people, and they do not keep the king's laws, so that it is not appropriate for the king to tolerate them. ⁹If it pleases the king, let a decree be issued for their destruction, and I will pay ten thousand talents of silver into the hands of those who have charge of the king's business, so that they may put it into the king's treasuries." ¹⁰So the king took his signet ring from his hand and gave it to Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, the enemy of the Jews. ¹¹The king said to Haman, "The money is given to you, and the people as well, to do with them as it seems good to you."

¹² Then the king's secretaries were summoned on the thirteenth day of the first month, and an edict, according to all that Haman commanded, was written to the king's satraps and to the governors over all the provinces and to the officials of all the peoples, to every province in its own script and every people in its own language; it was written in the name of King Ahasuerus and sealed with the king's ring. ¹³Letters were sent by couri-

official record of royal actions.

3.1–15 Haman undertakes to destroy the Jews. 3.1 As an Agagite, Haman is an Amalekite, the natural enemy of the Jews (Ex 17.8–16; Num 24.20; Deut 25.17–19) and especially of the Benjaminites Mordecai (1 Sam 15). Ironically Haman is rewarded for no stated reason, while Mordecai is not rewarded in 2.19–23 for service to the king. 3.4 That he was a Jew does not explain Mordecai's refusal, for elsewhere Jews are depicted as bowing before those in authority (Gen 23.7; 42.6; 2 Sam 14.4; 1 Kings 1.16). 3.6 The verb to destroy occurs twenty-five times in this short book, stressing an ever-present threat of violence. 3.7 Nisan (March–April) is the first month in the Babylonian calendar, the time of Passover. The start of a new year was an appropriate time to cast lots to determine the future. Pur, an Akkadian word for lot, provides the name for the festival Purim (see ch. 9). Adar (February–March) is the twelfth month in the Babylonian calendar; the date for the pogrom is fixed well in advance. 3.8 Haman's accusation against the Jews, who are never named by him, moves from truth (scattered and separated) to lies (do not keep the king's laws). It is necessary for the story that Esther's ability to conceal her Jewish identity not be hampered by these laws that are different. 3.9 Ten thousand talents of silver is a huge sum. Inflated figures like this one, the height of Haman's gallows (5.14), and numbers slain by the Jews (9.5–16) give the story an air of the fantastic. 3.10 The signet ring gives Haman authority to author and issue the decree (see 8.8, 10; Gen 41.42). 3.11 The money is given to you may mean the king returns Haman's bribe, or it may mean the money is Haman's to use as he wishes. The king authorizes the pogrom with no further inquiry about the people to be destroyed. 3.12 Ironically, the thirteenth day of the first month is the day before Jews celebrate Passover (Lev 23.5–8), in which they remember how God delivered them in Egypt. 3.13 Couriers formed the heart of the famed Persian postal service (1.22;

ers to all the king's provinces, giving orders to destroy, to kill, and to annihilate all Jews, young and old, women and children, in one day, the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is the month of Adar, and to plunder their goods. ¹⁴A copy of the document was to be issued as a decree in every province by proclamation, calling on all the peoples to be ready for that day. ¹⁵The couriers went quickly by order of the king, and the decree was issued in the citadel of Susa. The king and Haman sat down to drink; but the city of Susa was thrown into confusion.

Esther Agrees to Help the Jews

4 When Mordecai learned all that had been done, Mordecai tore his clothes and put on sackcloth and ashes, and went through the city, wailing with a loud and bitter cry; ²he went up to the entrance of the king's gate, for no one might enter the king's gate clothed with sackcloth. ³In every province, wherever the king's command and his decree came, there was great mourning among the Jews, with fasting and weeping and lamenting, and most of them lay in sackcloth and ashes.

⁴ When Esther's maids and her eunuchs came and told her, the queen was deeply distressed; she sent garments to clothe Mordecai, so that he might take off his sackcloth; but he would not accept them. ⁵Then Esther called for Hathach, one of the king's eunuchs, who had been appointed to attend her, and ordered him to go to Mordecai to learn what was happening and why. ⁶Hathach went out to

Mordecai in the open square of the city in front of the king's gate, ⁷and Mordecai told him all that had happened to him, and the exact sum of money that Haman had promised to pay into the king's treasuries for the destruction of the Jews. ⁸Mordecai also gave him a copy of the written decree issued in Susa for their destruction, that he might show it to Esther, explain it to her, and charge her to go to the king to make supplication to him and entreat him for her people.

⁹ Hathach went and told Esther what Mordecai had said. ¹⁰Then Esther spoke to Hathach and gave him a message for Mordecai, saying, ¹¹"All the king's servants and the people of the king's provinces know that if any man or woman goes to the king inside the inner court without being called, there is but one law—all alike are to be put to death. Only if the king holds out the golden scepter to someone, may that person live. I myself have not been called to come in to the king for thirty days." ¹²When they told Mordecai what Esther had said, ¹³Mordecai told them to reply to Esther, "Do not think that in the king's palace you will escape any more than all the other Jews. ¹⁴For if you keep silence at such a time as this, relief and deliverance will rise for the Jews from another quarter, but you and your father's family will perish. Who knows? Perhaps you have come to royal dignity for just such a time as this." ¹⁵Then Esther said in reply to Mordecai, ¹⁶"Go, gather all the Jews to be found in Susa, and hold a fast on my behalf, and neither eat nor drink for three days, night

8.9–14; Herodotus History 5.14; 8.98). The piling up of the terms to destroy, to kill, and to annihilate and the inclusion of all victims emulates legal language ensuring that the pogrom will be thorough. The Greek version provides a copy of the decree (Addition B). 3.14 Proclamation so far in advance also gives notice to the Jews of the danger, allowing Mordecai and Esther time to act. 3.15 A striking contrast between the leaders and populace ends the scene with another drinking feast that contrasts with those in ch. 1 and 2.18.

4.1–17 Esther agrees to help the Jews. 4.1–3 Torn clothing, sackcloth, ashes, and wailing are all traditional signs of distress and grief (Neh 9.1; Jon 3.6) and are often accompanied by fasting (Esth 4.16) and prayer, the last markedly absent from this story (cf. Addition C in the Greek version). 4.4–9 Mordecai's carefully staged demonstration and documentary evidence are designed to inform Esther and urge her to take advantage of her strategic position. 4.11 Whether this security precaution reflects actual Persian custom or not, it serves to heighten the narrative tension. 4.14 Another quarter is interpreted by some as an oblique reference to the deity, who is so strikingly absent from this story. Many understand Mordecai's statement as an assertion of divine providence. The reference is more allusive than direct and does not lessen the strongly secular character of the story. 4.16 From this point Esther is transformed from one who is passive and obedient to one who takes charge and directs actions to save her people. Mordecai, by contrast, now becomes passive and obedient to her. The Greek version here has prayers by both Mordecai and Esther (Addition C).

or day. I and my maids will also fast as you do. After that I will go to the king, though it is against the law; and if I perish, I perish." ¹⁷ Mordecai then went away and did everything as Esther had ordered him.

Esther's First Banquet

5 On the third day Esther put on her royal robes and stood in the inner court of the king's palace, opposite the king's hall. The king was sitting on his royal throne inside the palace opposite the entrance to the palace. ² As soon as the king saw Queen Esther standing in the court, she won his favor and he held out to her the golden scepter that was in his hand. Then Esther approached and touched the top of the scepter. ³ The king said to her, "What is it, Queen Esther? What is your request? It shall be given you, even to the half of my kingdom." ⁴ Then Esther said, "If it pleases the king, let the king and Haman come today to a banquet that I have prepared for the king." ⁵ Then the king said, "Bring Haman quickly, so that we may do as Esther desires." So the king and Haman came to the banquet that Esther had prepared. ⁶ While they were drinking wine, the king said to Esther, "What is your petition? It shall be granted you. And what is your request? Even to the half of my kingdom, it shall be fulfilled." ⁷ Then Esther said, "This is my petition and request: ⁸ If I have won the king's favor, and if it pleases the king to grant my petition and fulfill my request, let the king and Haman come tomorrow to the banquet that I will prepare for them, and then I will do as the king has said."

Haman Plans to Have Mordecai Hanged

9 Haman went out that day happy and in good spirits. But when Haman saw Mordecai in the king's gate, and observed that he neither rose nor trembled before him, he was infuriated with Mordecai; ¹⁰ nevertheless Haman restrained himself and went home. Then he sent and called for his friends and his wife Zeresh, ¹¹ and Haman recounted to them the splendor of his riches, the number of his sons, all the promotions with which the king had honored him, and how he had advanced him above the officials and the ministers of the king. ¹² Haman added, "Even Queen Esther let no one but myself come with the king to the banquet that she prepared. Tomorrow also I am invited by her, together with the king." ¹³ Yet all this does me no good so long as I see the Jew Mordecai sitting at the king's gate." ¹⁴ Then his wife Zeresh and all his friends said to him, "Let a gallows fifty cubits high be made, and in the morning tell the king to have Mordecai hanged on it; then go with the king to the banquet in good spirits." This advice pleased Haman, and he had the gallows made.

The King Honors Mordecai

6 On that night the king could not sleep, and he gave orders to bring the book of records, the annals, and they were read to the king. ² It was found

5.1-8 Esther's first banquet. 5.2 The Greek both makes this scene more suspenseful and overtly refers to divine providential direction of events (Addition D). 5.3 Herod makes just this exaggerated promise to Salome (Mk 6.23), and Herodotus (History 9.109-11) tells of a similar one that Xerxes offered his mistress Artaynte, which came to haunt him. 5.4 Many motives have been suggested for Esther's delays (see also 5.8) in interceding for her people, for example, to inflate Haman's self-assurance or to allow the king privacy to act against the man he earlier elevated. These delays heighten literary suspense, allowing additional plot complications. 5.6 See note on 5.3. 5.8 In light of what might have happened to Mordecai between Esther's first and second banquet, her second delay tempts fate.

5.9-14 Haman makes plans to have Mordecai

hanged. 5.9-13 Dining alone with the king and queen confirms Haman's elevated position in his own eyes; by contrast the sight of unrepentant Mordecai calls his position into question. 5.10 Friends, lit. "those who love him." 5.11 His sons will be numbered again in their death in 9.7-10. 5.14 Fifty cubits is 75 feet! Haman, Zeresh, and his friends can plot to execute Mordecai, but only the king can condemn someone to death. Hanged, See 2.23.

6.1-11 The king honors Mordecai. 6.1 That the king could not sleep is the first of several coincidences, interpreted by some as providential, that make this an especially fortunate night for Esther and Mordecai. Her second delay in petitioning for deliverance (5.8) could have turned the second private banquet into a wake. The Greek version attributes the king's insomnia to written how Mordecai had told about Bighana and Teresh, two of the king's eunuchs, who guarded the threshold, and who had conspired to assassinate¹ King Ahasuerus. ³Then the king said, "What honor or distinction has been bestowed on Mordecai for this?" The king's servants who attended him said, "Nothing has been done for him." ⁴The king said, "Who is in the court?" Now Haman had just entered the outer court of the king's palace to speak to the king about having Mordecai hanged on the gallows that he had prepared for him. ⁵So the king's servants told him, "Haman is there, standing in the court." The king said, "Let him come in." ⁶So Haman came in, and the king said to him, "What shall be done for the man whom the king wishes to honor?" Haman said to himself, "Whom would the king wish to honor more than me?" ⁷So Haman said to the king, "For the man whom the king wishes to honor, ⁸let royal robes be brought, which the king has worn, and a horse that the king has ridden, with a royal crown on its head. ⁹Let the robes and the horse be handed over to one of the king's most noble officials; let him^m robe the man whom the king wishes to honor, and let him^m conduct the man on horseback through the open square of the city, proclaiming before him: 'Thus shall it be done for the man whom the king wishes to honor.'" ¹⁰Then the king said to Haman, "Quickly, take the robes and the horse, as you have said, and do so to the Jew Mordecai who sits at the king's gate. Leave out nothing that you have mentioned." ¹¹So Haman took the robes and the horse and robed Mordecai and led him riding through the open square of the city, proclaiming, "Thus shall it be done for the man whom the king wishes to honor."

Haman's Downfall and Mordecai's Advancement

¹² Then Mordecai returned to the king's gate, but Haman hurried to his house, mourning and with his head covered. ¹³When Haman told his wife Zeresh and all his friends everything that had happened to him, his advisers and his wife Zeresh said to him, "If Mordecai, before whom your downfall has begun, is of the Jewish people, you will not prevail against him, but will surely fall before him."

¹⁴ While they were still talking with him, the king's eunuchs arrived and hurried Haman off to the banquet that Esther had prepared. ¹So the king and Haman went in to feast with Queen Esther. ²On the second day, as they were drinking wine, the king again said to Esther, "What is your petition, Queen Esther? It shall be granted you. And what is your request? Even to the half of my kingdom, it shall be fulfilled." ³Then Queen Esther answered, "If I have won your favor, O king, and if it pleases the king, let my life be given me—that is my petition—and the lives of my people—that is my request. ⁴For we have been sold, I and my people, to be destroyed, to be killed, and to be annihilated. If we had been sold merely as slaves, men and women, I would have held my peace; but no enemy

God. 6.2 See 2.23. 6.4–5 Ironically Haman's eagerness immediately to be rid of Mordecai brings him early to court, just at the moment the king needs advice on how to reward one who saved his life. 6.6 In his eagerness for recognition Haman fails to note that the king has not named the one he wishes to honor; his inflated self-assurance leads to a fatal assumption. 6.8 Cf. Gen 41.42–43. Horses with royal crowns are depicted in Persian reliefs. 6.9, 11 Mordecai's honor and Haman's chagrin are witnessed by all in the open square. 6.10 If the king really knows that Mordecai is a Jew, he seems not to connect him to the edict issued under his seal (3.12–15). 6.11 The substance of any conversation between Haman and Mordecai or Haman's own feelings are left to readers to supply.

6.12–8.2 Haman's downfall and Mordecai's advancement. 6.12–13 Haman's covered head signals grief for indignities just suffered. Unintentionally it also signals the fate awaiting him, as is clear to his wife and friends, who prove wise after the fact (cf. 5.9–14). 6.14 This escort is a sign of honor. Esther's second banquet is Haman's last hope to redeem a disastrous day. 7.2 See 6.3, 6. Drinking wine, lit. "at the feast of wine," recalls the extensive drinking that opens the story with Vashti's fall from royal favor. Soon a second favorite of the king will fall. 7.4 Their being sold refers to Haman's bribe in 3.9. The last clause of Esther's rationale for her request in v. 3 is not clear. can compensate for this damage to the king."ⁿ 5Then King Ahasuerus said to Queen Esther, "Who is he, and where is he, who has presumed to do this?" 6Esther said, "A foe and enemy, this wicked Haman!" Then Haman was terrified before the king and the queen. 7The king rose from the feast in wrath and went into the palace garden, but Haman stayed to beg his life from Queen Esther, for he saw that the king had determined to destroy him. 8When the king returned from the palace garden to the banquet hall, Haman had thrown himself on the couch where Esther was reclining; and the king said, "Will he even assault the queen in my presence, in my own house?" As the words left the mouth of the king, they covered Haman's face. 9Then Harbona, one of the eunuchs in attendance on the king, said, "Look, the very gallows that Haman has prepared for Mordecai, whose word saved the king, stands at Haman's house, fifty cubits high." And the king said, "Hang him on that." 10So they hanged Haman on the gallows that he had prepared for Mordecai. Then the anger of the king abated.

8 On that day King Ahasuerus gave to Queen Esther the house of Haman, the enemy of the Jews; and Mordecai came before the king, for Esther had told what he was to her. 2Then the king took off his signet ring, which he had taken from Haman, and gave it to Mordecai. So Esther set Mordecai over the house of Haman.

Esther Saves the Jews

3 Then Esther spoke again to the king; she fell at his feet, weeping and pleading with him to avert the evil design of Haman the Agagite and the plot that he had devised against the Jews. 4The king held out the golden scepter to Esther, 5and Esther rose and stood before the king. She said, "If it pleases the king, and if I have won his favor, and if the thing seems right before the king, and I have his approval, let an order be written to revoke the letters devised by Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, which he wrote giving orders to destroy the Jews who are in all the provinces of the king. 6For how can I bear to see the calamity that is coming on my people? Or how can I bear to see the destruction of my kindred?" 7Then King Ahasuerus said to Queen Esther and to the Jew Mordecai, "See, I have given Esther the house of Haman, and they have hanged him on the gallows, because he plotted to lay hands on the Jews. 8You may write as you please with regard to the Jews, in the name of the king, and seal it with the king's ring; for an edict written in the name of the king and sealed with the king's ring cannot be revoked."

9 The king's secretaries were summoned at that time, in the third month, which is the month of Sivan, on the twenty-third day; and an edict was written, according to all that Mordecai commanded, to the Jews and to the satraps

7.6 Esther's demonstrative this in identifying Haman as the enemy is the narrative equivalent of pointing an accusing finger at him. 7.7–8 The king's exit allows Haman one last plea for his life, ironically from the one whom he unknowingly sought to destroy. His attempt seals his fate, as the king mistakes his posture of supplication before the reclining Esther as an assault upon the queen. The shame foreseen in 6.12–13 is complete, as now they covered Haman's face. 7.9–10 The eunuch appears at just the right moment; the ironic reversal of intent and result is complete. 8.1–2 Esther indirectly secures Haman's royal office and power for Mordecai, which he receives with the signet ring (see 3.10). She directly provides him the wealth commensurate with his new position by transferring to him Haman's estate. 8.3–17 Esther saves the Jews. 8.3–5 It is not clear whether this is a second audience with the king or a continuation of that in 8.1–2. Esther's dramatic obeisance and courtly language allow her to imply that Haman, not the king, is responsible for the edict ordering her people's death. This helps win his encouragement to present her additional request, shown as he extends the golden scepter (see 5.2). 8.8 See 1.19. 8.8–13 closely parallels 3.9–15, since the second decree cannot simply annul the first but must allow action by the Jews to counter any who would now act on it even after Haman's fall. The king continues his hands-off administrative style and trusts Esther and Mordecai just as he once trusted Haman. 8.9 Recalling 1.1 and 3.12, this verse sets the stage for the final reversal of Haman's designs, counterbalancing his edict commanding the destruction of the Jews. Sivan is May–June.

and the governors and the officials of the provinces from India to Ethiopia,⁹ one hundred twenty-seven provinces, to every province in its own script and to every people in its own language, and also to the Jews in their script and their language. ¹⁰He wrote letters in the name of King Ahasuerus, sealed them with the king's ring, and sent them by mounted couriers riding on fast steeds bred from the royal herd.^p ¹¹By these letters the king allowed the Jews who were in every city to assemble and defend their lives, to destroy, to kill, and to annihilate any armed force of any people or province that might attack them, with their children and women, and to plunder their goods ¹²on a single day throughout all the provinces of King Ahasuerus, on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is the month of Adar. ¹³A copy of the writ was to be issued as a decree in every province and published to all peoples, and the Jews were to be ready on that day to take revenge on their enemies. ¹⁴So the couriers, mounted on their swift royal steeds, hurried out, urged by the king's command. The decree was issued in the citadel of Susa.

¹⁵ Then Mordecai went out from the presence of the king, wearing royal robes of blue and white, with a great golden crown and a mantle of fine linen and purple, while the city of Susa shouted and rejoiced. ¹⁶For the Jews there was light and gladness, joy and honor. ¹⁷In every province and in every city, wherever the king's command and his edict came, there was gladness and joy among the Jews, a festival and a holiday. Furthermore, many of the peoples of the country professed to be Jews, because the fear of the Jews had fallen upon them.

Destruction of the Enemies of the Jews

9 Now in the twelfth month, which is the month of Adar, on the thirteenth day, when the king's command and edict were about to be executed, on the very day when the enemies of the Jews hoped to gain power over them, but which had been changed to a day when the Jews would gain power over their foes, ²the Jews gathered in their cities throughout all the provinces of King Ahasuerus to lay hands on those who had sought their ruin; and no one could withstand them, because the fear of them had fallen upon all peoples. ³All the officials of the provinces, the satraps and the governors, and the royal officials were supporting the Jews, because the fear of Mordecai had fallen upon them. ⁴For Mordecai was powerful in the king's house, and his fame spread throughout all the provinces as the man Mordecai grew more and more powerful. ⁵So the Jews struck down all their enemies with the sword, slaughtering, and destroying them, and did as they pleased to those who hated them. ⁶In the citadel of Susa

The effect is to reverse in every detail what Haman planned for the Jews. 8.12 The Greek supplies a copy of the letter (Addition E). 8.13 The distribution is like that of the earlier decree (3.14). 8.15 As the scene progresses, attention shifts from Esther to Mordecai, who appears in public arrayed in garb appropriate to his new position, a signal of the change in the fortunes of the Jews (cf. 4.1-2). That the city of Susa shouted and rejoiced contrasts with its confusion in 3.15. 8.16 A reversal of 4.3, 16. 8.17 Some interpret the professing to be Jews by the people of the country to mean they took sides with the Jews. Others suggest that they pretended to be Jews out of fear, while others claim they converted to Judaism (the Greek version claims they were circumcised). This is a final reversal of Haman's schemes: those he sought to set against the Jews now actually join them. The festival provides a final feast in this story punctuated with fateful feasting and drinking. The details for this annual celebration as a holiday or "good day," a term later used for religious celebrations, are given in ch. 9.

the Jews killed and destroyed five hundred people. ⁷They killed Parshandatha, Dalphon, Aspatha, ⁸Poratha, Adalia, Aridatha, ⁹Parmashta, Arisai, Aridai, Vairatha, ¹⁰the ten sons of Haman son of Hammedatha, the enemy of the Jews; but they did not touch the plunder.

¹¹ That very day the number of those killed in the citadel of Susa was reported to the king. ¹² The king said to Queen Esther, "In the citadel of Susa the Jews have killed five hundred people and also the ten sons of Haman. What have they done in the rest of the king's provinces? Now what is your petition? It shall be granted you. And what further is your request? It shall be fulfilled." ¹³ Esther said, "If it pleases the king, let the Jews who are in Susa be allowed tomorrow also to do according to this day's edict, and let the ten sons of Haman be hanged on the gallows." ¹⁴ So the king commanded this to be done; a decree was issued in Susa, and the ten sons of Haman were hanged. ¹⁵ The Jews who were in Susa gathered also on the fourteenth day of the month of Adar and they killed three hundred persons in Susa; but they did not touch the plunder.

¹⁶ Now the other Jews who were in the king's provinces also gathered to defend their lives, and gained relief from their enemies, and killed seventy-five thousand of those who hated them; but they laid no hands on the plunder. ¹⁷ This was on the thirteenth day of the month of Adar, and on the fourteenth day they rested and made that a day of feasting and gladness.

¹⁸ But the Jews who were in Susa gathered on the thirteenth day and on the fourteenth, and rested on the fifteenth day, making that a day of feasting and gladness. ¹⁹ Therefore the Jews of the villages, who live in the open towns, hold the fourteenth day of the month of Adar as a day for gladness and feasting, a holiday on which they send gifts of food to one another.

The Feast of Purim Inaugurated

²⁰ Mordecai recorded these things, and sent letters to all the Jews who were in all the provinces of King Ahasuerus, both near and far, ²¹ enjoining them that they should keep the fourteenth day of the month Adar and also the fifteenth day of the same month, year by year, ²² as the days on which the Jews gained relief from their enemies, and as the month that had been turned for them from sorrow into gladness and from mourning into a holiday; that they should make them days of feasting and gladness, days for sending gifts of food to one another and presents to the poor. ²³ So the Jews adopted as a custom what they had begun to do, as Mordecai had written to them.

²⁴ Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, the enemy of all the Jews, had plotted against the Jews to destroy them, and had cast Pur—that is "the lot"—to crush and destroy them; ²⁵ but when Esther came before the king, he gave orders in writing that the wicked plot that he had devised against the Jews should come upon his own head, and that he and his sons should be hanged on the gallows. ²⁶ Therefore these days are called Purim, from the word Pur. Thus because of all that was written in this letter, and of what

This notice recalls difficulties earlier plunder taken from Agag and the Amalekites (3.1) caused Saul (1 Sam 15). Cf. also Abraham's refusal of plunder in Gen 14.22–24. 9.12 Sensing that Esther is not satisfied, the king gives her carte blanche once again. 9.13–14 See 5.14. As they are already dead, this entails exposure of their bodies, perhaps as a deterrent to others who might attack Jews. 9.15 The second day of killing in Susa accounts for the difference between celebrations of Purim in city and country. 9.16 The total of those killed is huge—seventy-five thousand. 9.17–19 Different patterns in the celebration of Purim are provided a historical basis.

9.20–32 The feast of Purim is inaugurated. 9.20–23 Mordecai, the most powerful official in the Persian government, authorizes the annual celebration on both the fourteenth and fifteenth of Adar (cf. 9.17–19), including exchange of gifts of food and presents to the poor. 9.24–25 This terse summary stresses the theme of retributive justice. 9.26 The name Purim is expressly linked with the word Pur (see 3.7). This letter is presum-

they had faced in this matter, and of what had happened to them, ²⁷the Jews established and accepted as a custom for themselves and their descendants and all who joined them, that without fail they would continue to observe these two days every year, as it was written and at the time appointed. ²⁸These days should be remembered and kept throughout every generation, in every family, province, and city; and these days of Purim should never fall into disuse among the Jews, nor should the commemoration of these days cease among their descendants.

²⁹ Queen Esther daughter of Abihail, along with the Jew Mordecai, gave full written authority, confirming this second letter about Purim. ³⁰Letters were sent wishing peace and security to all the Jews, to the one hundred twenty-seven provinces of the kingdom of Ahasuerus, ³¹and giving orders that these days of Purim should be observed at their appointed seasons, as the Jew Mordecai and Queen Esther enjoined on the Jews, just as they had laid down for themselves and for their descendants regulations concerning their fasts and their lamentations. ³²The command of Queen Esther fixed these practices of Purim, and it was recorded in writing.

Mordecai and the King

10 King Ahasuerus laid tribute on the land and on the islands of the sea. ²All the acts of his power and might, and the full account of the high honor of Mordecai, to which the king advanced him, are they not written in the annals of the kings of Media and Persia? ³For Mordecai the Jew was next in rank to King Ahasuerus, and he was powerful among the Jews and popular with his many kindred, for he sought the good of his people and interceded for the welfare of all his descendants.

ably that sent by Mordecai in 9.20. 9.27–28 The emphasis on keeping the feast annually through the years and generations and the stress on written records and instructions (see 9.20, 23, 29, 32) seem designed to secure a place in the Jewish calendar for a celebration not authorized in the Torah and whose legitimacy might therefore seem in doubt. 9.29 Presumably this second letter is Mordecai's in 9.20. 9.30 See 1.1. 9.31 The phrase their fasts and their lamentations, syntactically disconnected from the rest of the verse in Hebrew, introduces an element into the observance of Purim not mentioned before and contrasting with its tone of joy and celebration.

10.1–3 Mordecai and the king. The story ends as it began, with the focus on the greatness of the king. But now the king's fortunes are firmly linked to those of Mordecai and the Jews. 10.1 The tribute may show the extent of the realm (1.1), including now even the islands of the sea, or it may be an alternative and peaceable way to enrich the royal coffers, making up the loss of Haman's ten thousand talents (3.9). 10.2 Reference to these annals of the kings of Media and Persia (cf. 1 Kings 11.41; 14.19; 15.23; 2 Chr 25.26) gives an air of historical veracity to the story. 10.3 Although the book bears her name, Esther is missing from this final notice of Mordecai's greatness and popularity. The Greek version begins and ends quite differently (Additions A and F).

JOB

THE CENTRAL THEME of the book of Job is the possibility of disinterested righteousness. The author asks whether virtue depends on a universe that operates by the principle of reward and punishment. At stake is the very survival of religious faith. If people will serve God without thought of the carrot or the stick, then religion will outlast any eventuality. Even innocent suffering will not quench the fires of spiritual devotion. Job's response to adversity in the prologue affirms such faith. The author also takes up the problem of undeserved suffering, suggesting how one ought and ought not to behave when calamity strikes. Answers to the problem of innocent suffering vary, indicating their inadequacy—the retributive, disciplinary, probative, eschatological, redemptive, revelatory, ineffable, and incidental.

Structure

The book's structure can be viewed from the standpoint of its diction, drama, or individual components in outline form. A frame narrative, in prose, encloses a poetic debate. The combination is found also in some other ancient wisdom texts, such as the Aramaic Ahikar and the Egyptian Instruction of Ankhsheshonky. Alternatively, three dramatic episodes take place, each introduced by brief comments in 1.1–5; 2.11–13; 32.1–5. Thus the hero is afflicted (1.1–2.10), complains, and is rebuked by three friends (2.11–31.40), and after a young enthusiast takes up the task of demonstrating Job's folly, God rebukes Job but restores him (32.1–42.17). A more natural division consists of Job's affliction (1–2), a dispute between him and three friends (3–31), a monologue by a previously unmentioned person (32–37), two divine speeches and two submissions on Job's part (38.1–42.6), and a prose “happy ending” (42.7–17).

Tensions exist between prose and poetry and even within each literary form: the story's patient hero and the defiant Job of the dialogue; a divinely commended hero in the prose and a rebuked one in the poetry; the divine name Yahweh in the folktale and El, Eloah, and Shaddai in the poetry (with one exception); a “happy ending” despite the argument of the hero that God does not deal with humans on the basis of merit; vanishing characters—the Satan and

Elihu; a hymn (ch. 28) that anticipates the answer provided by the theophany; and two divine speeches and two responses. To be sure, skilled authors can use dissonance effectively, and this technique cannot be ruled out altogether.

Setting

The date of the book and the setting for the action differ considerably. The events are set in patriarchal (or prepatriarchal) times when heroes such as Noah, Danel, and Job (cf. Ezek 14.14, 20) are thought to have lived. The possessions of Job are appropriate to that age: cattle and servants. The monetary unit in the epilogue (42.11) is mentioned elsewhere only in Gen 33.19 (and Josh 24.32, alluding to this incident). Job's three friends and the enemy marauders, Sabceans and Chaldeans, belong to clans from the patriarchal world. His sacrifice of animals accords with practice prior to the time of official priests. The life span of the restored hero is at home in patriarchal times. The name Job, which could be translated "enemy," corresponds to Akkadian names such as "Where is the divine father?" and "Inveterate Foe/Hated One."

Date

The actual date of composition cannot be determined, although many critics place the book in the late sixth or fifth century B.C.E. Several things point to this date: the linguistic evidence, the possible allusion to the Behistun Rock, the mention of caravans from Tema and Sheba, the nomenclature of officials, which seems to follow the practice during Persian times, and the development of the figure of the Satan, corresponding to the stage represented by Zechariah but less developed than that presented in Chronicles. The development of theological ideas in the book may also support this relatively late date when compared with similar literary complexes, Jeremiah's laments, the lyrical hymns in Second Isaiah (Isa 40–55, sixth century B.C.E.), hymnic fragments in the book of Amos, and Pss 37; 49; 73. In addition, the book's monotheism and monogamy may demand a reasonably late date. None of these arguments is decisive, and the date must be left open. The choice of an Edomite for the hero is strange after 587/6 B.C.E., but the patriarchal setting ruled out an Israelite, and the Edomites were celebrated for wisdom. The book's silence about the events of the exile occasions surprise, given the utility of this analogy with the miseries that befell the hero. The Targum of Job and the Testament of Job, works from the Second Temple period, prove that the biblical text of Job was in circulation by the end of the second century B.C.E. The Testament of Job expands the tradition considerably, exaggerating Job's charity, depicting his wife favorably, emphasizing his fight against idolatry, speculating widely about Satan, and alluding to cosmological dualism, magic, and mysticism. The Letter of James recalls the folktale about the endurance of Job (5.11).

Related Texts

Several ancient texts resemble the book of Job to some degree. From the twelfth dynasty in Egypt (1990–1785 B.C.E.) come “The Admonitions of Ipuwer,” “A Dispute Between a Man and His Ba (Soul),” and “The Eloquent Peasant.” Four texts from second-millennium Mesopotamia furnish closer parallels: the Sumerian “A Man and His God,” “I Will Praise the Lord of Wisdom,” “The Babylonian Theodicy,” and “A Dialogue Between a Master and His Slave.” Parallels to the Canaanite Keret legend are more remote. *James L. Job and His Family

1 There was once a man in the land of Uz whose name was Job. That man was blameless and upright, one who feared God and turned away from evil. ²There were born to him seven sons and three daughters. ³He had seven thousand sheep, three thousand camels, five hundred yoke of oxen, five hundred donkeys, and very many servants; so that this man was the greatest of all the people of the east. ⁴His sons used to go and hold feasts in one another's houses in turn; and they would send and invite their three sisters to eat and drink with them. ⁵And when the feast days had run their course, Job would send and sanctify them, and he would rise early in the morning and offer burnt offerings according to the number of them all; for Job said, “It may be that my children have sinned, and cursed God in their hearts.” This is what Job always did.

1.1–2.13 The prologue. A folktale in elevated prose, akin to epic narrative, sets the stage on which the drama of Job's extreme suffering unfolds. The story's action alternates between earth and heaven (e.g., 1.1–5 describes a scene on earth, 1.6–12 one in heaven, with 1.13–22 returning to earth, 2.1–6 occurring in heaven, and 2.7–10 concluding the events on earth). Each scene ends decisively. The first has a remark about Job's habitual conduct; the second and fourth scenes comment on the Adversary's (the Satan's) departure from God's court; and the third and fifth represent the narrator's assessment of Job's innocence despite adverse circumstances. An introduction of Job's three friends (2.11–13) links this earlier story to the poetic dialogue in 3.1–42.6. 1.1 There once was a man. The unusual form in Hebrew (“A man there was” instead of “There was a man”) emphasizes the name Job, well attested in ancient Egypt (letters from Tell el-Amarna and execration texts), Mesopotamia (Mari), and northern Palestine (Alalakh, Ugarit). A possible pun in 13.24 may refer to a popular etymology of the word as “enemy.” Perhaps the unknown Uz plays on the sound of the Hebrew word for “counsel.” Competing traditions place Uz in Hauran and in Edom. The prophet Ezekiel associates Job with ancient heroes Noah and Daniel (Ezek 14.14, 20). According to Israel's sages responsible for the final redaction of Proverbs, Job, Ecclesiastes, Sirach, and the Wisdom of Solomon, the fear of God was the first principle and/or chief ingredient of knowledge (cf. Prov 1.7). 1.2 The numbers seven and three were thought to indicate completion. The Canaanite god Baal had seven sons and three daughters. 1.3 Job's wealth consists of animals and slaves rather than silver and gold. The setting is patriarchal. 1.5 The Hebrew has the verb for “bless” in place of curse here and in 1.11; 2.5, 9, presumably a euphemism to avoid the blasphemous thought of actually cursing the Lord, although this is conceivably a literary device to stress the heinousness of the act. The word in both senses, of blessing and cursing, becomes thematic in the story, along with the Hebrew word translated for nothing (1.9) and for no reason (2.3). 1.6 The article with the word Satan indicates that an office is involved, something like a CIA agent. The Accuser is therefore in the Lord's imperial service. The word occurs elsewhere in the Hebrew Bible only in Zech 3.1–2; 1 Chr 21.1. It seems to represent the

Job Loses Property and Children

¹³ One day when his sons and daughters were eating and drinking wine in the eldest brother's house, ¹⁴a messenger came to Job and said, "The oxen were plowing and the donkeys were feeding beside them, ¹⁵and the Sabeans fell on them and carried them off, and killed the servants with the edge of the sword; I alone have escaped to tell you." ¹⁶While he was still speaking, another came and said, "The fire of God fell from heaven and burned up the sheep and the servants, and consumed them; I alone have escaped to tell you." ¹⁷While he was still speaking, another came and said, "The Chaldeans formed three columns, made a raid on the camels and carried them off, and killed the servants with the edge of the sword; I alone have escaped to tell you." ¹⁸While he was still speaking, another came and said, "Your sons and daughters were eating and drinking wine in their eldest brother's house, ¹⁹and suddenly a great wind came across the desert, struck the four corners of the house, and it fell on the young people, and they are dead; I alone have escaped to tell you."

²⁰ Then Job arose, tore his robe, shaved his head, and fell on the ground and worshiped. ²¹ He said, "Naked I came from my mother's womb, and naked shall I return there; the LORD gave, and the LORD has taken away; blessed be the name of the LORD."

²² In all this Job did not sin or charge God with wrongdoing.

Lord's master spy on the road toward becoming a hostile agent. 1.8 The story uses repetition to great literary effect (e.g., 1.1, 8 and 2.3; 1.22 and 2.10; 1.15, 16, 17, 18, 19; 1.6-8 and 2.1-3). 1.13 An effective illusion of well-being, soon shattered. 1.15 Sabeans, perhaps northern Arabians, not southern Arabians or those living in Africa. The queen of Sheba, said in 1 Kings 10 to have visited King Solomon, traveled from a distant land. 1.17 Chaldeans, probably seminomadic marauders rather than citizens of the Neo-

Babylonian Empire that was founded in the seventh century B.C.E. 1.21 The adverb there refers neither to the mother's womb nor to mother earth; rather the word is a euphemism for the realm of the dead (cf. 3.17-19). This powerful expression of fidelity takes poetic form, using both synonymous and antithetic parallelism.

2.4 Skin for skin, a difficult expression, probably associated with barter, although one normally gives an item in exchange for one of a

the crown of his head. ⁸Job^f took a potsherd with which to scrape himself, and sat among the ashes.

⁹ Then his wife said to him, "Do you still persist in your integrity? Curse^g God, and die." ¹⁰But he said to her, "You speak as any foolish woman would speak. Shall we receive the good at the hand of God, and not receive the bad?" In all this Job did not sin with his lips.

Job's Three Friends

¹¹ Now when Job's three friends heard of all these troubles that had come upon him, each of them set out from his home—Eliphaz the Temanite, Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite. They met together to go and console and comfort him. ¹²When they saw him from a distance, they did not recognize him, and they raised their voices and wept aloud; they tore their robes and threw dust in the air upon their heads. ¹³They sat with him on the ground seven days and seven nights, and no one spoke a word to him, for they saw that his suffering was very great.

Job Curses the Day He Was Born

3 After this Job opened his mouth and cursed the day of his birth. ²Job said:

³ "Let the day perish in which I was born,
and the night that said,
'A man-child is conceived.'"

- ⁴ Let that day be darkness!
May God above not seek it,
or light shine on it.
- ⁵ Let gloom and deep darkness claim it.
Let clouds settle upon it;
let the blackness of the day terrify it.
- ⁶ That night—let thick darkness seize it!
let it not rejoice among the days of the year;
let it not come into the number of the months.
- ⁷ Yes, let that night be barren;
let no joyful cry be heard^h in it.
- ⁸ Let those curse it who curse the Sea,ⁱ
those who are skilled to rouse up Leviathan.
- ⁹ Let the stars of its dawn be dark;
let it hope for light, but have none;
may it not see the eyelids of the morning—
- ¹⁰ because it did not shut the doors of my mother's womb,
and hide trouble from my eyes.

come forth from the womb and expire?"

different kind. 2.8 The scraping was either for relief of the itching or for self-mortification. 2.10 The word for foolish is strong, which suggests that Job did not understand his wife as sympathetically suggesting a form of euthanasia. The later pseudepigraphical Testament of Job depicts the wife quite favorably. Later interpreters emphasize the decisive change in the narrator's summary statement: Job did not sin with his lips, but his heart was a different matter. 2.11 Job's three friends are placed in the vicinity of Edom and Arabia. The former was famous for wisdom, according to various OT texts. The intermezzo of silence has powerful psychological force.

3.1–42.6 The poetic dialogue. A dispute between Job and three friends begins with his lament. Each of the friends addresses Job, and he responds for three cycles of speeches. The third is abbreviated by Bildad's short speech and complete silence on Zophar's part. Job's nostalgic glance backward and graphic description of his present woes is interrupted by a hymn on wisdom's inaccessibility (ch. 28). Then Job pronounces an oath of innocence, demanding that God respond. Instead, a brash Elihu challenges Job; afterward, God speaks to Job from a whirlwind. 3.1 The verb for curse differs from that used in the prologue. This anticomic curse in 3.3–10 uses the language of the creation account in Gen 1.1–2.4 (cf. Jer 20.14–18). 3.3 The unusual word for man-child often refers to someone much older than an infant, at times even a soldier. 3.8 The Hebrew words for day (text note i) and sea are similar, differing only in vowel. Both Sea and Leviathan were thought to represent chaos in ancient myth (cf. Yamm and Lotan in Ugaritic myths). Professional diviners practiced magical cursing (cf. Balaam in Num 22–24).

16 Or why was I not buried like a

Eliphaz Speaks: Job Has Sinned

- 4 Then Eliphaz the Temanite answered:
2 "If one ventures a word with you,
will you be offended?
But who can keep from speaking?
3 See, you have instructed many;
you have strengthened the weak hands.
4 Your words have supported those who were stumbling,
and you have made firm the feeble knees.
5 But now it has come to you, and you are impatient;
it touches you, and you are dismayed.
6 Is not your fear of God your confidence,
and the integrity of your ways
your hope?
7 "Think now, who that was innocent ever perished?
Or where were the upright
cut off?
8 As I have seen, those who plow
iniquity
and sow trouble reap the same.
9 By the breath of God they perish,
and by the blast of his anger
they are consumed.

4.6 Two of Job's four attributes from the story (1.1, 8) recur here, although in different form (the Hebrew lacks the word "God" in fear of God, and your ways qualifies integrity). 4.7-8 The logic of Eliphaz's argument condemns Job's children, and the language of destruction recalls the blast of wind that struck the house in which they perished. Eliphaz appeals here to the Israelite notion of divine retribution, a teaching that raised the issue of theodicy in various quarters (cf. Ps 37.25). 4.9 The breath of God animated the first human couple, according to Gen 2.7, but now that life-giving force seeks destruction. 4.10-11 Five different words for lion occur here; a similar richness of vocabulary in Joel 1.4 mentions four

14 dread came upon me, and trembling,
which made all my bones
shake.

15 A spirit glided past my face;
the hair of my flesh bristled.

16 It stood still,
but I could not discern its appearance.
A form was before my eyes;
there was silence, then I heard
a voice:

18 Even in his servants he puts no

20 Between morning and evening

Its theme, that mortals cannot be purer than their Maker, contrasts with that of the extended theophany, 38.1–42.6, which emphasizes Job's ignorance and weakness. Eliphaz's language echoes the theophanies to Abraham (Gen 15.12, "a deep sleep") and to Elijah (1 Kings 19.12, "a sound of sheer silence"). The use of the unexpected verb steal (v. 12) emphasizes Eliphaz's passive role in the terrifying encounter with God (Eloah, v. 17). 4.14 This description of distress resembles an ancient literary convention, the reaction to a messenger's anticipated bad news.

5.4 Eliphaz's insensitivity erupts in this cruel reference to the death of children. 5.6–7 The pun between the Hebrew words for ground and "mortal" recalls Gen 3.17. The allusion to sparks employs the name of a Canaanite deity, Resheph, who was responsible for plague and pestilence.

Others think of the verb "to destroy." 5.18 An ancient tradition refers to Yahweh as Israel's healer (Ex 15.26). 5.19–20 Six . . . seven. Ascending numerals sometimes refer to a totality (all of them; cf. Am 1.3–2.16) but at other times specify an actual number, with emphasis falling on the higher of the two (cf. Prov 6.16–19; 30.15–16, 18–19, 21–31). 5.21–22 Does the allusion to destruction conceal a play on the divine epithet Shaddai (v. 17)? 5.23 This motif achieves classic expression in Isa 11.6–9. 5.25 Like the grass. The usual phrase is "like the stars" or "like the sands of the sea" (cf. Gen 15.5). 5.26 Eliphaz's view of old age and death contrasts with the dismal portrait in Eccl 11.7–12.7.

Enuma Elish, human beings were created for the purpose of menial service to the gods. 7.5 The Testament of Job develops this idea, stating that the pious hero picked up a worm that had fallen off his skin and placed it back where it belonged. 7.6 Whereas Eliphaz thought Job—and the poor generally—had hope, Job rejected such optimism for caravaneers (6.20) and for himself. A Hebrew wordplay between hope and "thread" occurs here. 7.12, 15 Both Sea and Dragon echo Canaanite myths about the sea as a chaotic force. Baal, the weather god, defeated the sea god. The Hebrew word for death recalls the Canaanite deity Mot.

7.14 Both Sirach and the Wisdom of Solomon emphasize God's use of psychological torment through nightmares to punish the wicked. 7.16 Ecclesiastes uses the word breath thirty-eight times to characterize life as futile, absurd, and empty. 7.17–18 A parody of Ps 8.5. 7.20 Job accepts Eliphaz's notion that virtue and vice in human beings amount to nothing in God's sight and reverses the usual idea of divine guardianship. Job thinks the one who watches over him has evil intentions. 7.21 This verse may allude ironically to Enoch, who according to Gen 5.24 walked with God and "was no more," because God took him.

8.3–7 Bildad addresses Job's legal challenge, denying that God bends the rules of justice and asserting that Job's children deserved their fate. The promise of prosperity in the end accords with conventional wisdom, but Bildad's understanding of Job's former status (v. 7, your beginning was small) does not coincide with the grand picture in the story. 8.8–10 Wisdom is the accumulation of past insights, according to Bildad. 8.11 Two impossible questions (cf. Prov 6.27–28). The words for papyrus and reeds derive from Egyptian terms. 8.13 In 6.8 Job had asked that his hope, death, be granted, but here Bildad pronounces a verdict on all evil persons, one that stretches language itself: their hope perishes. 8.14–19 The image of misplaced trust, the fragility of a spider's web, reinforces that of a wilted flower in 8.12, both of which gain force as a result of the juxtaposition alongside what—at first—appears a more promising image of well-watered roots. 8.20 Bildad cannot know that both God and the narrator attested to Job's integrity. 8.22 Bildad's speech ends with the same Hebrew word that concludes Job's complaint in 7.21.

The phrase once in a thousand occurs in Ecclesiastes with reference to the rarity of virtuous women (cf. Sir 16.3, where childlessness is said to be preferable to having ungodly children). 9.5–10 This hymn, reminiscent of 5.9–16, uses participles expressing chaotic might, whereas Eliphaz stressed power in its ordering capacity. With Job praise has assumed the tone of attack. God's self-manifestation was often associated with an earthquake, and the Israelites coined the epithet "Worker of wonders" to designate this majestic deity. 9.8 An allusion to a combat myth of creation similar to that of the Mesopotamian Tiamat, the biblical Tehom. The same imagery occurs in 9.13 with reference to Rahab, a mythic figure that features prominently in Psalms and Second Isaiah (chs. 40–55, sixth century B.C.E.). 9.9 Four constellations are mentioned here, two of which are also referred to in the similar hymnic fragment in Am 5.8 (perhaps two more in 5.9). 9.15 The universe is perverse when an innocent person must plead for mercy: guilty individuals are the ones for whom the quality of mercy comes into play. 9.16 Job has given up on any hope of obtaining justice in the presence of blind power. 9.17 The addition of the particle translated by without cause carries explosive force in light of its function in the story. 9.19–21 Daring to assert his own integrity against all odds, Job quickly takes it back and rejects life. This time, unlike 7.16, the object of the verb "reject," or loathe (9.21), is expressed. The cumulative testimony of the book supports Job's initial claim, for everyone has attested to his integrity—the narrator (1.1), God (1.8; 2.3), Job's wife (2.9).

Eliphaz (4.6, implicitly), and Bildad (8.20). 9.22 Here Job abandons belief in any positive connection between virtue and reward. 9.24 Virtual monotheism permitted Job no alternative to this disturbing conclusion about divine villainy. 9.33 If God acts as plaintiff, judge, and prosecuting attorney, Job does not stand a chance. Hence he longs for an arbiter, someone to judge between him and the deity, but promptly discards this wishful thinking.

10.1 Again Job specifies the object of his disgust, although the language differs altogether: I loathe, lit. “my soul feels loathing.” 10.7 The phrase about an absence of anyone to deliver from the divine power points to Job’s hopelessness. 10.9 According to ancient tradition, the human

Zophar Speaks: God Is Lenient

- 11 Then Zophar the Naamathite answered:
2 "Should a multitude of words go unanswered,
and should one full of talk be vindicated?
3 Should your babble put others to silence,
and when you mock, shall no one shame you?

dilemma after the Fall was precisely this, to return to dust. Does Job object to this curse, or does he think of premature death? 10.12, 14 The more common expression for divine protection returns here (cf. the irony when set alongside 2.6). In 10.14 the verb watch takes on a negative connotation, like watcher of humanity in 7.20. 10.22 An oxymoron, "it shines like darkness."

11.4 Zophar emphasizes purity (cf. 11.15, blemish), but Job had concentrated on moral integrity. 11.6 This appeal to divine compassion, a forgetting of some evil and letting Job off lightly, clashes with a strict notion of reward and punishment. The struggle to hold together both sides of the equation, justice and mercy, gave rise to the creedal statement in Ex 34.6–7, part of which occurs often in confessional literature of the Bible (cf. Neh 9.17, 31; Ps 86.15; Joel 2.13; Jon 4.2). Wisdom's hiddenness is noted in Sir 6.22: "For wisdom is like her name; she is not

Job Replies: I Am a Laughingstock

readily perceived by many." 11.8 Cf. Sir 1.3. 11.12 A proverbial "impossible task," like Ovid's "then will the stag fly." Zophar may allude to Gen 16.12, which describes Ishmael as a wild ass of a man. This proverb in Job views ignorance, not morality, as the thing that separates mortals from deity. 11.13 Another discussion of divine justice that isolates the heart as the decisive organ in need of attention, Ps 73, clarifies the issue. The problem, according to Zophar and this psalmist, concerns wrong-headedness. 11.20 Against the background of promised hope for those who truly purify themselves, Zophar threatens Job with perishing refuge and empty hope, precisely what he had asked for (3.3; 10.18–22).

12.2 Sarcasm. 12.3 Not inferior to you. Twice in this speech Job insists on equality with the friends, here and in 13.2. 12.4 The reference to a vital relationship (called upon . . . answered me) with God stands in tension with Job's later description in 42.5 of that experience as derivative like a rumor. 12.6 In their hands, a reference to idolatry? 12.7 Animals, Hebrew Behemoth. This allusion to Behemoth, frighteningly described in 40.15–24, seems out of place. Hence the translation animals or "cattle," despite the singular irony. 13.15 No hope, lit. "I will not wait/hope." The qere reading (an ancient alternative to what is written in the Hebrew text) suggests that a later reader considered Job's language excessive, substituting "for him" (lit. "to him") for "not" (cf. text note x). This change hardly justifies a positive understanding of Job's defiant last-ditch stand. 13.16 If sinners cannot appear before God, and Job does so without harm, he achieves vindication regardless of the meaning one assigns to his words in 42.6. This verse therefore focuses the dramatic action of the book. 13.20 Agur in Prov 30.7–9 also asks two things of God: banish deception from me and give me neither poverty nor riches. 13.24 This reference to enemy contains a pun on Job's name in Hebrew. 13.26 Job does not claim to be sinless, but he does assert that he has integrity, having done nothing to deserve such foul treatment. 14.4 Does Job succumb to Eliphaz's low estimate of mortals, calling them guilty as a result of birth? This view occurs in the Sumerian parallel to Job "A Man and His God."

11 As waters fail from a lake,
and a river wastes away and dries up, 12 so mortals lie down and do not rise again;
until the heavens are no more,
they will not awake or be roused out of their sleep.
13 O that you would hide me in Sheol,
that you would conceal me until your wrath is past,
that you would appoint me a set time, and remember me!
14 If mortals die, will they live again?
All the days of my service I would wait until my release should come.
15 You would call, and I would answer you;
you would long for the work of your hands.
16 For then you would not^a number my steps,
you would not keep watch over my sin;
17 my transgression would be sealed up in a bag,
and you would cover over my iniquity.
18 "But the mountain falls and crumbles away,
and the rock is removed from its place;

- 19 the waters wear away the stones;
the torrents wash away the soil of the earth;
so you destroy the hope of mortals.
20 You prevail forever against them,

14.12 Job dismisses the daring thought of life after death, reconciling himself to future oblivion (like Ecclesiastes). Other biblical writers ventured along paths rejected by Job, particularly Dan 12.2; Isa 26.19; and possibly Ps 73.23–28.

15.2 The wind from the eastern desert was hot, so Eliphaz accuses Job of uttering hot air.

15.4 Although Job uses some form of this Hebrew word for meditation several times, only in this instance does anyone else do so. 15.7 A sarcastic response to Job's challenge that the friends consult earth's creatures in search for answers, this jibe undercuts any claim on Job's part to decisive knowledge. The paucity of biblical references outside Genesis to the primal couple is noteworthy. The situation changes with Ben Sira,

Job Has No Hope

- 17 My spirit is broken, my days are extinct,
the grave is ready for me.
2 Surely there are mockers
around me,
and my eye dwells on their provocation.
3 "Lay down a pledge for me with yourself;
who is there that will give surety for me?
4 Since you have closed their minds
to understanding,
therefore you will not let them
triumph.

reward—
the eyes of their children will fail.
6 "He has made me a byword of
the peoples,
and I am one before whom
people spit.
7 My eye has grown dim from grief,
and all my members are like a shadow.
8 The upright are appalled at this,
and the innocent stir
themselves up against the godless.

- 9 Yet the righteous hold to
their way,
and they that have clean hands
grow stronger and stronger.
10 But you, come back now, all
of you,
and I shall not find a sensible person among you.
11 My days are past, my plans are broken off,
the desires of my heart.
12 They make night into day;
'The light,' they say, 'is near to the darkness.'ⁱ
13 If I look for Sheol as my house,
if I spread my couch in
darkness,
14 if I say to the Pit, 'You are my father,'
and to the worm, 'My mother,'
or 'My sister,'
15 where then is my hope?
Who will see my hope?
16 Will it go down to the bars of Sheol?
Shall we descend together into
the dust?"

erous conduct. 19.8 Job's view of the divine enclosure (walled up) differs from that of Satan, the Adversary, who spoke of it as protection from all harm (see 1.10). 19.9 The Hebrew word translated glory can also mean "wealth." 19.16 This negative view of slaves does not recur in 31.13–15. 19.17 My own family, lit. "children of my womb," may reflect the sexist views of the ancient Near East—a wife as a husband's property—or it may be an oblique reference to a clan. Job appears to have forgotten that his children are dead, unless his speech merely accords with conventional laments familiar from Mesopotamia, for example, "I Will Praise the Lord of Wisdom" and "The Babylonian Theodicy." 19.24 Evidence exists for use of lead as a filler in small tablets and in an inscription, the famous Behistun Rock that extols the achievements of the Persian king Darius. Job's eloquence notwithstanding, the written word remains highly unclear in this instance, for its meaning defies understanding in 19.25–27. The prophet Isaiah also mentions a permanent writing (30.8). 19.25–27 Redeemer, an avenger of blood, who, according to Num 35.19; Deut 19.6, would vindicate Job's death by punishing the guilty, in this instance, God. The issue here is revenge, for Job has abandoned any notion of justice. The similarity of Job's cry and a Ugaritic text from the Baal cycle is striking: "And I know that Aleyan Baal is alive," presumably a confession of Baal's annual revivification according to the agricultural calendar. Perhaps the Sumerian patron deity who intercedes with the High God furnishes the background for Job's language.

25.1 Bildad's third speech is brief, and Zophar's missing altogether. Have the friends run out of arguments or has the text fallen into disarray? In favor of the latter alternative, Job's next speech contains sentiments not altogether in line with his previous thoughts. 26.6 This designation of Death as Abaddon probably comes from the Hebrew verb for "perishing." 26.7 In Canaanite mythology Zaphon was a mountain in the north on which the gods (especially Baal) dwelt, like Mount

Job Maintains His Integrity

The Hebrew word translated discourse is the usual one for "likeness," "proverb," or "analogy," sometimes translated "parable." 27.2 As God lives.

Curiously, the oath is in the name of the deity who has, in Job's view, demonstrated a lack of justice. Similarly, Job hopes for justice from God who does not act justly. Contradictions may result from his dire circumstances. Hence he thinks that God cannot be found yet that God attacks Job viciously from all quarters. 27.7–23 The speech, if from Job, must be fully ironical, for he does not trust in divine justice. 27.14–17 Echoes of a curse formula can be heard in these verses. 27.15 The word pestilence is also the 29.2–4 The Hebrew alludes to autumn days, which, contrary to Western notions, refer to vigor. In the Near East, summer's drought gives way to new growth as the rains during autumn

Elihu Rebukes Job's Friends

32 So these three men ceased to answer Job, because he was righteous in his own eyes. ²Then Elihu son of Barachel the Buzite, of the family of Ram, became angry. He was angry at Job because he justified himself rather than God; ³he was angry also at Job's three friends because they had found no answer, though they had declared Job to be in the wrong.^o ⁴Now Elihu had waited to speak to Job, because they were older than he. ⁵But when Elihu saw that there was no answer in the mouths of these three men, he became angry.

⁶ Elihu son of Barachel the Buzite answered:

- "I am young in years,
 and you are aged;
 therefore I was timid and afraid

- 10 And the LORD restored the fortunes of Job when he had prayed for his friends; and the LORD gave Job twice as much as he had before. 11 Then there came to him all his brothers and sisters fire-eating dragon. So does poetic license.

42.5 Hearing was by no means denigrated in ancient pedagogy, which relied heavily on oral presentation. Egyptian instructions emphasize the importance of hearing. Nevertheless, Job elevates sight over hearing, despite an ancient tradition that none could see God and live (see Ex 33.20), one that admitted exceptions in the narratives about Israel's ancestors. 42.6 The translation and meaning of this verse are uncertain. It can be read that Job repented of dust and ashes, i.e., of repentance. Perhaps Job relinquishes his conviction that guilt and innocence are taken into account by the ruler of the universe. Some scholars see irony in Job's response, a concealing of his

continued defiance in the face of divine cruelty.

42.7–17 The epilogue. A prose ending affirms Job's view of God and condemns that of his friends. God restores Job's health and doubles his former wealth. 42.7 When did Job speak correctly? In the defiant speeches that denied divine justice? Or in the submission resulting from a new vision of God? The Testament of Job reads that the friends have not spoken correctly about Job. 42.8–10 Job shall pray for you. In rabbinical interpretation Job's condition changed as a direct consequence of his interceding for the friends, a point that 42.10 seems to make (cf. Gen 20.7). 42.11 Evil . . . upon him. The text freely acknowledges God's responsibility for Job's misfortunes.

and all who had known him before, and they ate bread with him in his house; they showed him sympathy and comforted him for all the evil that the LORD had brought upon him; and each of them gave him a piece of money^a and a gold ring. ¹²The LORD blessed the latter days of Job more than his beginning; and he had fourteen thousand sheep, six thousand camels, a thousand yoke of oxen, and a thousand donkeys. ¹³He also had seven sons and three daughters. ¹⁴He named the first Jemimah, the second Keziah, and the third Keren-happuch. ¹⁵In all the land there were no women so beautiful as Job's daughters; and their father gave them an inheritance along with their brothers. ¹⁶After this Job lived one hundred and forty years, and saw his children, and his children's children, four generations. ¹⁷And Job died, old and full of days.

The monetary unit mentioned here is appropriate for the patriarchal setting of the tale (cf. Gen 33.19; Josh 24.32). This gift was no insignificant one. The Targum of Job, discovered in the area of the Dead Sea, seems to have concluded with v. 11. 42.13 The Septuagint doubles the number of children also. Surprisingly, slaves are missing from this account of Job's restoration. 42.14 Like Baal's three daughters, Job's are named: Jemimah (Dove), Keziah (Cinnamon), and Keren-happuch (Horn of Antinomy). Neither Baal's nor Job's sons are named. Perhaps the emphasis on Job's daughters' beauty and wealth implies that he will easily find husbands for them, often a problem according to Sir 42.9–11. 42.15 Normally daughters did not inherit unless there were no sons. 42.16 One hundred and forty years. The customary life span, according to Ps 90.10, is doubled in Job's case, counting from the time that his calamities ended. 42.17 The same language is used of Abraham and Isaac (Gen 25.8; 35.29).

PSALMS

THE PSALMS, or the Psalter, as it is sometimes called, is a collection of prayers and songs composed throughout Israel's history. Its title, "Psalms," is derived from a Greek term meaning "song." The Hebrew title of the book, Tehillim, means more specifically "hymns" or "songs of praise."

Composition and Authorship

The Psalms are organized into five collections or "books," an arrangement thought to be on analogy with the five books of the Torah. While the rationale for the internal processes of organization is much debated, the book divisions are evident by the closing doxological verses in Ps 41.13; 72.18–19; 89.52; 106.48; 150.1–6.

While many of the psalms are associated in their headings with David, who may have written some of them, the authorship of the individual psalms is unknown. The headings or superscriptions of the psalms are secondary to their composition and identify persons other than David with whom the psalms are associated either because of content (e.g., Pss 72; 127) or because the individuals named had some role in the music and worship of the temple (e.g., Asaph and the Korahites). Musical notations of various sorts appear in these headings, but their meaning is often uncertain. Indications of the type of psalm (e.g., Ps 90) or of its use in worship (e.g., Ps 92) are given on occasion.

The superscriptions also serve to identify collections or groupings of psalms within—or sometimes overlapping—the five "book" divisions. At the end of Book II (72.20), for example, there is a note indicating "the prayers of David son of Jesse are ended." While, in fact, several more psalms—especially toward the end of the Psalter (Pss 138–145)—are associated with David in their headings, most of the psalms in Books I and II have some reference to David in their superscriptions, indicating a sense of these as a collection of Davidic prayers. A few have no name in the title, and there is a small collection of Korahite psalms (Pss 44–49) in their midst. Another collection of Korahite psalms appears in Pss 84–88, while one group of psalms is associated with another musician, Asaph (Pss 73–83; cf. Ps 50). The most obvious collection within the Psalter is the "Songs of Ascents" (Pss 120–134), fifteen psalms that share various features and probably were added as a group (see note on 120.1–7).

Poetry

The poetic character of the psalms is manifest in the balance or symmetry of each line. A line of poetry, which is often identical with a numbered verse, is composed of two or three parts, usually sentences or clauses. The balance between or among the parts of the line—usually called cola (singular, colon)—is evident in three ways, often more approximate than precise: sound or rhythm (accented or stressed syllables), length of line (the number of syllables), and especially parallelism of meaning, in which members or words in one part or colon of a line or verse are seconded or paralleled in some fashion in the next part of the verse. Only the last of these poetic features is evident in the translation.

Psalms Types

The psalms fall generally into certain types or categories that reflect usage in various contexts, especially in the worship life of ancient Israel. The title of the book characterizes the psalms as hymns and thus identifies the praise of God in worship as their purpose. The conclusion to the first half of the Psalter (Pss 1–72), "the prayers of David are ended," indicates, however, that much of this biblical book was understood as prayer, often that of the individual in distress and needing help. In a number of cases, one can see that prayers and hymns that may have been originally intended for a setting in worship have become more like instruction in character. Such a didactic function for the psalms is confirmed by the introduction to the Psalter, Ps 1, with its focus upon the law, or instruction of the Lord, and its study (cf. Ps 119, which, it has been suggested, may have been the conclusion to an earlier form of the Psalter). Thus, prayers for help, songs of praise, and instruction for life were all joined in this book as different and changing intentions shaped its formation.

PRAYERS FOR HELP (LAMENTATIONS)

The largest category of psalms is composed of prayers for help—often called laments—either on the part of the individual or the community as a whole. In some cases, individual prayers have been transformed into community prayers. In other cases, one can hear in the community prayers individual and representative voices. They were prayed in situations of severe distress, although the particular circumstances out of which they originated are no longer discernible except in the broadest sense. Sickness and adversity, betrayal and abandonment, sin and guilt, and slander and false accusation as well as other acts of persecution and oppression by those called "enemies" and "wicked" are aspects of suffering reflected in the individual prayers. For the community prayers, situations of national disaster and defeat are indicated, and in some instances it appears as if the Babylonian destruction of Judah (587 B.C.E.) and the exile of the people that followed are in view (e.g., Pss 74; 79; 137). In all of these prayers, the circumstances and the effects of the distress on the ones who prayed are set forth in generalized, stylized, and metaphorical ways that have served to loosen these prayers from whatever original setting they may have had and made them more broadly applicable in the life of the community over long periods and for different situations.

The focus of the prayers is on petitions or pleas for help that incorporate lamenting descriptions of the psalmist's distress, including references to physical and emotional suffering, divine affliction, or persecution rendered by other persons. Such prayers, however, also express the petitioner's confidence or trust in God's power and willingness to help and often give reasons why the deity should help. These usually have to do with the character of the deity, the plight of the psalmist, or the sufferer's trust in God. Frequently, the one who prays makes vows to sacrifice and to offer praise to God when deliverance comes. One also may see indications in these prayers that the prayer has been heard and God has responded.

SONGS OF THANKSGIVING

The vow of praise is what evokes the song of thanksgiving, another type of psalm. Here the psalmist sings praise to God in gratitude for the help that was given, frequently giving some account of the distress and God's deliverance. Sacrifices may have accompanied these songs. They were, at least, sung in the sanctuary and before the congregation. The song of the psalmist is a testimony inviting others to praise the Lord because of the help God has shown. A few psalms may be communal songs of thanksgiving.

HYMNS

Another form of praise closely related to the song of thanksgiving is the hymn. Here the congregation is called to praise or declares its intent to praise the Lord, and reasons for that praise are then given either briefly or at length. These usually have to do with the character and power of God demonstrated in the works of creation and in God's acts of faithfulness and love toward Israel.

ROYAL PSALMS

A number of psalms center around the king and so have been called royal psalms. They are of different types, however, some, for example, being prayers and songs of thanksgiving for or by the king. Others were composed for occasions such as coronations or weddings. Sporadic references to the king occur in other psalms, and it is possible that some of the times when a voice speaks in the psalms as a representative of the people it is the voice of a king. Various psalms convey divine assurance or warning, perhaps spoken by a priest or prophet.

OTHER TYPES

Other types of psalms occur in smaller numbers, for example, liturgies of thanksgiving or liturgies for entrance into the sanctuary. Some of the other types are developments of particular aspects of the prayer or hymn, for example, the psalms of trust, the songs exalting Zion, and those hymns celebrating God's universal rule (commonly called "enthronement psalms"). There are some psalms whose didactic and instructional character is so prominent that they must have been initially composed with that aim in mind.

Setting of the Psalms

The specific relationship of all of the psalms to corporate and individual acts of worship is much debated. It is likely that a number of psalms were very much a part of public worship. Surely some of them were associated with the great annual festivals. The hymns and liturgies as well as the songs of thanksgiving had their place in the worship of the congregation. The relation of the individual prayers for help to the sanctuary and the priestly officials is less clear. There are certain indications that prayers were uttered in the sanctuary, often at night. They sometimes incorporate or allude to oracles of salvation that may have been mediated through a priest. Some interpreters, however, have claimed that the individual prayers were associated more with the family or clan setting and less with the sanctuary and its priests.

Date of Composition

The date of composition varies from psalm to psalm. In most cases it is impossible to determine. Some psalms were probably composed fairly early in Israel's history (e.g., Pss 18; 29; 68). Many may have been composed after the exile. There are also indications that some psalms have undergone a process of transmission that, in the course of time, has changed them from their original form. That process, which is difficult to reconstruct, has involved adapting individual psalms for communal use, royal motifs for a postmonarchical context, and cultic psalms for noncultic uses.

The formation of the Psalter, therefore, was a long and complex process: individual songs and prayers were composed, some of which were used repeatedly by the community; these were brought together into smaller collections first and eventually formed into the larger whole that is now the Psalter. Pss 1 and 2 were placed as an introduction to the whole, probably late in the process of formation, and Ps 150 seems to have been put at the end as a doxological conclusion. Additional psalms were added in some of the ancient versions as well as in the large Psalms manuscript from Qumran. Patrick D. Miller

BOOK I

(Psalms 1–41)

Psalm 1

The Two Ways

- 1 Happy are those who do not follow the advice of
the wicked,
or take the path that sinners
tread,
or sit in the seat of scoffers;
2 but their delight is in the law of
the LORD,
and on his law they meditate
day and night.
3 They are like trees
planted by streams of water,
which yield their fruit in its season,
and their leaves do not wither.
In all that they do, they prosper.
- 4 The wicked are not so,
but are like chaff that the wind
drives away.
- 5 Therefore the wicked will not stand in the judgment,
nor sinners in the congregation
of the righteous;
- 6 for the LORD watches over the way of the righteous,
but the way of the wicked will perish.

Psalm 2

*God's Anointed Is Established as Ruler over
the Nations*

- 1 Why do the nations conspire,
and the peoples plot in vain?
- 2 The kings of the earth set
themselves,
and the rulers take counsel
together,
against the LORD and his anointed, saying,
- 3 "Let us burst their bonds
asunder,
and cast their cords from us."
- 4 He who sits in the heavens
laughs;
the LORD has them in derision.
- 5 Then he will speak to them in his wrath,
and terrify them in his fury,
saying,
- 6 "I have set my king on Zion, my holy hill."
- 7 I will tell of the decree of the
LORD:
He said to me, "You are my son;
today I have begotten you.
- 8 Ask of me, and I will make the nations your heritage,
and the ends of the earth your possession.
- 9 You shall break them with a rod
of iron,
and dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel."

1.1–6 A psalm exalting God's instruction, or law, and the blessings of attending to it (cf. Pss 19; 119). This psalm, together with Ps 2, serves as an introduction to the Psalter as a book about the way of the righteous, who are devoted to God's instruction, and the ultimate downfall of the wicked, who do not attend to God or God's way. 1.1–3 The way of the righteous. 1.1 Happy, i.e., seen and envied by others as blessed. Scoffers, arrogant people who mock the righteous one's trust in God. 1.2 For a similar joy in God's law, see Ps 119. 1.3 Cf. Jer 17.7–8. 1.4–6 The way of the wicked is ephemeral and unproductive; they will not endure.

2.1–12 A royal psalm perhaps used on occasion of the coronation of a king. It now continues without superscription as part of the introduction to the Psalter, indicating that the ways of the king and the nations are matters to be found within the Psalms. 2.1–3 At a time of transition, subject nations may seek to overthrow the ruling nation. 2.2 Anointed, a term transliterated as "messiah" and referring to God's designated king. Applied to Israel's own kings in the time of the monarchy, the term came to be used in reference to an ideal king who would come in the future and inaugurate God's righteous rule. 2.4–9 The Lord's response to the plot against the king is the installation of the new king, who is given power over the nations. 2.7 Decree, the royal protocol legitimating the king at the time of enthronement. You are my son; today I have begotten you is a formula of adoption of the king, who from that point on is viewed as God's son (cf. 89.26–27; 2 Sam 7.14). 2.9 You shall, perhaps to be read permissively,

- 10 Now therefore, O kings, be wise;
be warned, O rulers of the earth.
11 Serve the LORD with fear,
with trembling ¹²kiss his feet,^a or he will be angry, and you will perish in the way;
for his wrath is quickly kindled.
Happy are all who take refuge
in him.

Psalm 3

Trust in God Under Adversity

A Psalm of David, when he fled from his son Absalom.

- 1 O LORD, how many are my foes!
Many are rising against me;
2 many are saying to me,
“There is no help for you^b in God.” Selah
3 But you, O LORD, are a shield
around me,
my glory, and the one who lifts
up my head.
4 I cry aloud to the LORD,
and he answers me from his holy hill. Selah
5 I lie down and sleep;
I wake again, for the LORD
sustains me.
6 I am not afraid of ten thousands of people
who have set themselves against me all around.

- 7 Rise up, O LORD!
Deliver me, O my God!
For you strike all my enemies on the cheek;
you break the teeth of the
wicked.
8 Deliverance belongs to the LORD;
may your blessing be on your people! Selah

Psalm 4

Confident Plea for Deliverance from Enemies

To the leader: with stringed instruments.
A Psalm of David.

- 1 Answer me when I call, O God of my right!
You gave me room when I was in distress.
Be gracious to me, and hear my
prayer.
2 How long, you people, shall my honor suffer shame?
How long will you love vain
words, and seek after lies? Selah
3 But know that the LORD has set apart the faithful for himself;
the LORD hears when I call
to him.
4 When you are disturbed,^c do not sin;

a Cn: Meaning of Heb of verses 11b and 12a is uncertain b Syr: Heb him c Or are angry

“you may.” 2.10–12 A warning to rebellious rulers to submit to the rule of God’s anointed or they will be destroyed. Happy. See note on 1.1.

3.1–8 A prayer of an individual to God for help. The superscription is not historically factual but may suggest an occasion in David’s life when such words as these would have been appropriate (2 Sam 15–18). 3.1–2 The psalmist laments the threat of enemies and implicitly complains against God. 3.2 Help, or deliverance (see vv. 7–8). Selah, possibly a liturgical or musical direction of unknown meaning. 3.3–6 In contrast to the apparent abandonment by God, the psalmist expresses confidence in God’s protecting care and response to the prayer. 3.4 Holy hill, Zion or the Temple Mount. 3.7 The prayer for the deliverance that others (v. 2) assume God will not bring. 3.8 A final expression of confidence that it is in fact God who alone can deliver from threats.

4.1–8 A prayer for help in trouble. To the leader: with stringed instruments, apparently musical or liturgical directions, perhaps addressed to the director of temple musicians. 4.1 The cry for help. Deliverance is seen in terms of the imagery of having room and not being hemmed in or trapped. 4.2–5 An address to those who have sought to do in the psalmist. 4.2 A claim that some have brought false accusations against or slandered the petitioner. Selah. See note on 3.2. 4.3 The opponents are now challenged to acknowledge the Lord’s protection of the one who prays. 4.4–5 The opponents are cautioned

- ponder it on your beds, and be silent. Selah
- 5 Offer right sacrifices,
and put your trust in the LORD.
- 6 There are many who say, "O that we might see some good!
Let the light of your face shine
on us, O LORD!"
- 7 You have put gladness in my heart
more than when their grain
and wine abound.
- 8 I will both lie down and sleep in peace;
for you alone, O LORD, make me lie down in safety.

Psalms 5

Trust in God for Deliverance from Enemies

To the leader: for the flutes. A Psalm of David.

- 1 Give ear to my words, O LORD;
give heed to my sighing.
- 2 Listen to the sound of my cry,
my King and my God,
for to you I pray.
- 3 O LORD, in the morning you hear
my voice;
in the morning I plead my case
to you, and watch.
- 4 For you are not a God who delights in wickedness;
evil will not sojourn with you.
- 5 The boastful will not stand before your eyes;
you hate all evildoers.
- 6 You destroy those who speak lies;
the LORD abhors the
bloodthirsty and deceitful.
- 7 But I, through the abundance of
your steadfast love,
will enter your house,
I will bow down toward your holy temple
in awe of you.
- 8 Lead me, O LORD, in your
righteousness
because of my enemies;
make your way straight
before me.
- 9 For there is no truth in their mouths;
their hearts are destruction;
their throats are open graves;
they flatter with their tongues.
- 10 Make them bear their guilt,
O God;
let them fall by their own counsels;
because of their many transgressions cast
them out,
for they have rebelled
against you.
- 11 But let all who take refuge in you rejoice;
let them ever sing for joy.
Spread your protection over
them,
so that those who love your name may exult in you.
- 12 For you bless the righteous,
O LORD;
you cover them with favor as
with a shield.

against sinful acts and urged to come into the sanctuary as those who do right and trust in the Lord. Right sacrifices, either those done in the right manner or, more likely, sacrifices acknowledging God's justice and righteousness manifest in the deliverance of the petitioner. 4.6–8 The fruitless longing for God's blessing of those who do not trust in God (v. 5) is contrasted with the joyous confidence of the one who trusts and is kept in safety by God. 4.6 Let the light of your face shine. See note on 31.16.

5.1–12 A prayer for help by an individual in trouble. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. For the flutes, a liturgical notation of uncertain meaning. 5.1–3 The petition for God to pay attention to the prayer. In the morning is often the time when God comes to help (17.15; 90.14; 143.8; 1 Sam 11.9). 5.4–7 The assurance of being heard is grounded in the knowledge that God will not let the wicked appear in the divine presence, but the righteous petitioner may enter the temple and stand before God (see Pss 15; 24). 5.8 The actual petition for God's saving help, i.e., righteousness, and some clear direction for the future, i.e., your way. 5.9–10 A call for judgment upon the wicked who oppress the psalmist. Throats and tongues suggest that the oppression is some kind of slander or false accusation. 5.11–12 A final prayer for protection of the innocent and thus righteous, including the one praying.

Psalm 6*Prayer for Recovery from Grave Illness*

To the leader: with stringed instruments;
according to The Sheminith.
A Psalm of David.

- 1 O LORD, do not rebuke me in your anger,
or discipline me in your wrath.
- 2 Be gracious to me, O LORD, for I
am languishing;
O LORD, heal me, for my bones
are shaking with terror.
- 3 My soul also is struck with terror,
while you, O LORD—how long?
- 4 Turn, O LORD, save my life;
deliver me for the sake of your
steadfast love.
- 5 For in death there is no
remembrance of you;
in Sheol who can give you
praise?
- 6 I am weary with my moaning;
every night I flood my bed with tears;
I drench my couch with my weeping.
- 7 My eyes waste away because of
grief;

they grow weak because of all my foes.

- 8 Depart from me, all you workers
of evil,
for the LORD has heard the sound of my weeping.
- 9 The LORD has heard my
supplication;
the LORD accepts my prayer.
- 10 All my enemies shall be ashamed
and struck with terror;
they shall turn back, and in a moment be put to shame.

Psalm 7*Plea for Help Against Persecutors*

A Shiggaion of David, which he sang to the LORD concerning Cush, a Benjaminite.

- 1 O LORD my God, in you I take refuge;
save me from all my pursuers,
and deliver me,
- 2 or like a lion they will tear me
apart;
they will drag me away, with no
one to rescue.

6.1–10 A prayer for help by an individual in trouble. The first of the seven “penitential psalms” (Pss 6; 32; 38; 51; 102; 130; 143), so called because the early Christian church saw in them a special note of contrition or penitence. To the leader: with stringed instruments. See note on 4.1–8. According to The Sheminith, lit. “according to the eighth.” Meaning uncertain, perhaps referring to a musical instrument. 6.1–5 Petitions for deliverance by the Lord. The language suggesting physical illness may reflect an actual situation in which a sick person prays for healing or it may be metaphorical for trouble in general. 6.1 Illness or whatever has happened to the psalmist is seen as a judgment of God. 6.3 How long? is a typical complaint against God in the cries or prayers for help by the individual or the community. 6.5 Sheol, the abode of the dead. The one praying seems to be near death. Death is seen as a condition in which one is removed from God’s presence and the possibility of worship and praise (cf. Job 10.21–22; Isa 38.18). That fact is given as a motivation to encourage divine assistance. 6.6–7 The psalmist’s physical and emotional distress. 6.7 Grief, better “vexation” or “provocation.” For the suffering caused by the vexation of others, see 1 Sam 1.6–7. 6.8–10 The confidence of the sufferer that God has heard and will deliver. The particular form of evil (v. 8) or enmity (v. 10) is not indicated. It may be the sort of provocation evidenced by Peninnah in the face of Hannah’s personal distress of barrenness (see 1 Sam 1.6–7). 6.10 Terror. See vv. 2–3. The fate of the sufferer becomes the fate of those who have caused suffering.

7.1–17 A prayer for help of a person who has probably been falsely accused of some wrong. The psalm would have had its setting in the sanctuary, where an innocent person could come before God for protection and vindication when falsely accused. See 1 Kings 8.31–32; Deut 17.8–9. The accused would declare innocence before God and await a divine decision. The superscription secondarily assigns this psalm to an incident in David’s life that is unknown in the OT. Shiggaion, a word of uncertain meaning that has been taken to mean “lament.” 7.1–2 The accused invokes God’s protection from those who threaten. 7.2 Like a lion. Enemies in Psalms are often compared to wild animals attacking (10.9;

- 3 O LORD my God, if I have done
this,
if there is wrong in my hands,
4 if I have repaid my ally with harm
or plundered my foe without
cause,
5 then let the enemy pursue and overtake me,
trample my life to the ground,
and lay my soul in the dust. Selah
- 6 Rise up, O LORD, in your anger;
lift yourself up against the fury
of my enemies;
awake, O my God;^d you have appointed a judgment.
- 7 Let the assembly of the peoples
be gathered around you,
and over it take your seat^e on
high.
- 8 The LORD judges the peoples;
judge me, O LORD, according to my righteousness
and according to the integrity
that is in me.
- 9 O let the evil of the wicked come to an end,
but establish the righteous,
you who test the minds and hearts,
O righteous God.
- 10 God is my shield,
who saves the upright in heart.
- 11 God is a righteous judge,
and a God who has indignation
every day.
- 12 If one does not repent, God^f will
whet his sword;
he has bent and strung his bow;

- 13 he has prepared his deadly weapons,
making his arrows fiery shafts.
- 14 See how they conceive evil,
and are pregnant with mischief,
and bring forth lies.
- 15 They make a pit, digging it out,
and fall into the hole that they have made.
- 16 Their mischief returns upon their own heads,
and on their own heads their violence descends.
- 17 I will give to the LORD the thanks
due to his righteousness,
and sing praise to the name of the LORD, the Most High.

Divine Majesty and Human Dignity

- You have set your glory above

- 2 Out of the mouths of babes and infants
you have founded a bulwark

17.12; 22.12–13; 35.17; 57.4; 58.3–6). 7.3–5 A protestation of innocence by the sufferer (cf. Job 31). 7.3 If I have done this. The claim is not of a general innocence but of the alleged specific wrong of which the praying one is accused. 7.5 Selah. See note on 3.2. 7.6–11 The appeal to the Lord as righteous judge to render judgment in this case. 7.8 My righteousness . . . integrity, i.e., "my innocence in this matter." 7.9–11 The justice of God can be counted upon by the psalmist. 7.12–16 The psalmist now expresses confidence that the wicked who falsely accuse will suffer the fate they have sought to effect against the accused. 7.12–13 It is not altogether clear whether the subject of this sentence is God or the wicked. 7.15 Pit. See note on 9.15. 7.17 A vow to give thanks to God when deliverance comes.

8.1–9 A hymn of praise for God's exaltation of the human creature. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. According to The Gittith may refer to a kind of melody. 8.1–2 The glory of God. Out of the mouths of babes and infants may refer to the praise that comes even from the babbling of babies (cf. Mt 21.16). Founded a bulwark may be better translated as "established strength" in parallel with "set your glory." 8.3–9 Human glory as a manifestation of the glory of God. 8.3–4 Awareness of mortals^g that you care for them?

Psalm 9

God's Power and Justice

To the leader: according to Muth-labben.
A Psalm of David.

- 1 I will give thanks to the LORD
with my whole heart;

- I will tell of all your wonderful
deeds.
2 I will be glad and exult in you;
I will sing praise to your name,
O Most High.
- 3 When my enemies turned back,
they stumbled and perished
before you.
4 For you have maintained my just
cause;
you have sat on the throne
giving righteous judgment.
- 5 You have rebuked the nations,
you have destroyed the
wicked;
you have blotted out their name forever and ever.
6 The enemies have vanished in everlasting ruins;
their cities you have rooted out;
the very memory of them has perished.
- 7 But the LORD sits enthroned
forever,
he has established his throne
for judgment.
8 He judges the world with
righteousness;
he judges the peoples with equity.

divine beings or angels: Heb elohim

the awesome universe as God's handiwork raises the question of what value human beings could possibly have in that grand cosmos. 8.3 The moon and the stars that you have established. The heavenly bodies are God's creation and have no independent character as deities. 8.4 For less positive responses to the same question, see 144.3; Job 7.17; cf. Heb 2.6–8. 8.5–6 A similar view of humankind is found in Gen 1.26–28. The terminology used to describe the human creature had its origin in the royal ideology of the ancient Near East. 8.5 God. "Divine beings" or "angels" is probably a better translation, as in text note h (cf. Gen 1.26 ["our image"]; Heb 2.7; and the Septuagint of 8.5).

9.1–10.18 Pss 9 and 10 are to be read as a unit for several reasons. The Septuagint combines them into one. In the Hebrew they generally follow an alphabetic acrostic pattern in which every other verse begins with a successive letter of the alphabet beginning with the first letter in 9.1 and ending with the final letter of the alphabet in 10.17. Note also the absence in Ps 10 of a superscription, which is usually present in most psalms in the first book of the Psalter (Pss 1–41). Furthermore, Selah, which concludes Ps 9, nowhere else comes at the end of a psalm. Within the unity, however, one may recognize in Ps 9 a song of thanksgiving by an individual into which has been incorporated a prayer for help in Ps 10. It is uncertain if the song of thanksgiving is meant to be anticipatory of deliverance or praise because it has happened. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. According to Muth-labben, probably a musical notation whose meaning is uncertain. 9.1–2 A hymnic expression of personal thanksgiving and praise for God's saving activity. 9.3–10 God as righteous judge has dealt justly with the oppressed one and with the peoples of the earth generally. The imagery and activity of God as

- 9 The LORD is a stronghold for the oppressed,
a stronghold in times of trouble.
- 10 And those who know your name
put their trust in you,
for you, O LORD, have not forsaken those who

- 11 Sing praises to the LORD, who dwells in Zion.
Declare his deeds among the peoples.
- 12 For he who avenges blood is mindful of them;
he does not forget the cry of the afflicted.
- 13 Be gracious to me, O LORD.
See what I suffer from those who hate me;
you are the one who lifts me
up from the gates of death,
so that I may recount all your praises,
and, in the gates of daughter Zion,
rejoice in your deliverance.
- 15 The nations have sunk in the pit
that they made;
in the net that they hid has
their own foot been caught.
- 16 The LORD has made himself
known, he has executed
judgment;
the wicked are snared in the work of their own hands.

mortals prevail;
let the nations be judged
before you.

ruler and judge come together as the grounds for praise and thanksgiving. 9.11–12 A call to praise (v. 11) echoes the declaration of praise at the beginning and the reason (v. 12) is a reiteration of the psalmist's experience of God's positive response to the cry of the sufferer. 9.13–14 Anticipating the extended prayer for help in Ps 10 and believing the claim of v. 12, the psalmist seeks God's gracious attention to the suffering now going on. 9.15–18 The psalmist expresses confidence because of the experience of God's delivering judgment in the nation's history. 9.15 The imagery of pit and net as weapons of enemies and evildoers is frequent in the Psalms and is often a way of speaking about the wicked being caught in their own evil schemes (7.15–16; 10.9; 25.15; 31.4; 35.7–8; 57.6; 140.5; cf. Job 18.8). 9.16 Higgaion, translated "melody" in 92.3, perhaps here a musical interlude of some sort. Selah. See note on 3.2. 9.17 Sheol. See note on 6.5. 9.18 The claim here anticipates the fear that is at the heart of Ps 10, that God has forgotten the weak and helpless (see 10.2–4, 11–13). 9.19–20 A concluding call to God to rise up in judgment against the nations (cf. 82.8; 96.13; 98.9). These verses also lead into the complaints and petitions for help of Ps 10. 10.1–11 The psalmist complains to God on behalf of the poor (v. 2; cf. 9.18) and helpless (vv. 8, 10). The wicked believe their successful oppression of the helpless and innocent is a reflection of God's absence or indifference to whatever they do. 10.1 Why . . . do you stand far off? is a frequent complaint to God in cries for help (22.1, 19; 35.22; 38.21; 71.12). Why do you hide yourself? is also a common form of complaint to God (see 55.1; also the related expression "to hide one's face" in 13.1; 27.9; 30.7; 44.24; 69.17; 88.14; 102.2; 143.7; and note on 27.9) as well as an assumption of the wicked (v. 11). See also note on 27.9. 10.2 Cf.

not seek it out";
all their thoughts are, "There is no God."
- 5 Their ways prosper at all times;
your judgments are on high,
out of their sight;
as for their foes, they scoff at
them.
- 6 They think in their heart, "We shall not be moved;
throughout all generations we shall not meet adversity."
- 7 Their mouths are filled with cursing and deceit and oppression;
under their tongues are mischief and iniquity.
- 8 They sit in ambush in the

in hiding places they murder

they lurk that they may seize the

they seize the poor and drag them off in their net.
- 10 They stoop, they crouch,
and the helpless fall by their might.
- 11 They think in their heart, "God has forgotten,
he has hidden his face, he will never see it."
- 12 Rise up, O LORD; O God, lift up
your hand;
do not forget the oppressed.
- 13 Why do the wicked
renounce God,
and say in their hearts, "You will not call us to account"?
- 14 But you do see! Indeed you note trouble and grief,
that you may take it into your hands;
the helpless commit themselves
to you;
you have been the helper of the orphan.
- 15 Break the arm of the wicked and
evildoers;
seek out their wickedness until
you find none.
- 16 The LORD is king forever and ever;
the nations shall perish from
his land.
- 17 O LORD, you will hear the desire of the meek;
you will strengthen their heart,
you will incline your ear
- 18 to do justice for the orphan and
the oppressed,
so that those from earth may strike terror no more.ⁱ

9.15–16. 10.4 Cf. 14.1. 10.8–11 Vivid imagery to describe the scheming, plotting, and treachery by which the wicked and immoral do in the innocent and helpless. 10.12–19 Petitions for help and expressions of confidence that God will aid the helpless. The Lord will see (v. 14) and hear (v. 17). 10.14 Grief, possibly "provocation" or "vexation." 10.16 Victory over oppressors is a demonstration of God's sovereign rule (24.8, 10; 29.10; 47.2; Ex 15.18).

11.1–7 A psalm of confidence and trust in God by someone who knows God's protection against the wicked. It is related to the expressions of confidence in the prayers for help (3.3–6, 8; 4.6–8; 6.8–10; 7.12–16). To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. 11.1–3 Against the advice of friends or counselors who have recommended that the psalmist in trouble flee like a bird to the mountains, the psalmist claims a sufficient protection in trust-

- they have fitted their arrow to the string,
to shoot in the dark at the upright in heart.
- 3 If the foundations are destroyed,
what can the righteous do?"
- 4 The LORD is in his holy temple;
the LORD's throne is in heaven.
His eyes behold, his gaze
examines humankind.
- 5 The LORD tests the righteous and
the wicked,
and his soul hates the lover of
violence.
- 6 On the wicked he will rain coals
of fire and sulfur;
a scorching wind shall be the portion of their cup.
- 7 For the LORD is righteous;
he loves righteous deeds;
the upright shall behold his face.

Psalm 12

Plea for Help in Evil Times

To the leader: according to The Sheminith.
A Psalm of David.

- 1 Help, O LORD, for there is no longer anyone who is godly;
the faithful have disappeared
from humankind.
- 2 They utter lies to each other;
with flattering lips and a double heart they speak.

- 3 May the LORD cut off all flattering lips,
the tongue that makes great
boasts,
- 4 those who say, "With our tongues
we will prevail;
our lips are our own — who is
our master?"
- 5 "Because the poor are despoiled,
because the needy groan,
I will now rise up," says the
LORD;
"I will place them in the safety
for which they long."
- 6 The promises of the LORD are promises that are pure,
silver refined in a furnace on the ground,
purified seven times.
- 7 You, O LORD, will protect us;
you will guard us from this generation forever.
- 8 On every side the wicked prowls,
as vileness is exalted among
humankind.

ing in the Lord. 11.3 See note on 82.5. The advisers recognize the innocence or righteousness of the one who prays. 11.4–7 Confidence in God's righteous rule. 11.4 The imagery of God's throne of judgment is found also in 7.6–8; 9.4, 7; cf. 122.5; Prov 20.8. 11.5 The righteous one places trust in God's determination of who is righteous or innocent and who is wicked.

12.1–8 A general prayer for help that incorporates a divine word of deliverance. A representative figure, possibly priest or prophet, seems to speak on behalf of the community as well as on behalf of God. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. According to The Sheminith. See note on 6.1–10. 12.1–4 Pleas to God against those who do in others by what they say—lies, flattery, arrogance, hypocrisy, and slander. 12.1 Godly, often translated as "faithful," refers to those who live a life faithful to the covenant and the instruction of the Lord. The sense of widespread wickedness and the absence of goodness is similar to that expressed even more sharply in 14.1–3. 12.4 "Who is our master?" has the same force as the quotations in 10.4, 6; 14.1. The wicked assume that God has no effective power over them. 12.5 The response of God, possibly spoken by a representative figure. Rise up. Cf. the petitions asking this of God in, e.g., 3.7; 7.6; 9.19; 10.12; 74.22; 82.8; 132.8. I will place them in the safety for which they long, possibly to be translated, "I will place in safety the witness on their behalf." 12.6–8 The confidence of the people in God even though wickedness presently prevails. 12.6 The promises of the LORD, or "the utterances of the LORD," such as in v. 5, have the integrity and truthfulness that are not present on the lips and tongues of the wicked (vv. 2–4).

13.1–6 The prayer of an individual for help

- 2 How long must I bear pain^k in my soul,
and have sorrow in my heart all day long?
How long shall my enemy be exalted over me?
- 3 Consider and answer me, O LORD
my God!
Give light to my eyes, or I will sleep the sleep of death,
- 4 and my enemy will say, "I have prevailed";
my foes will rejoice because I am shaken.
- 5 But I trusted in your steadfast
love;
my heart shall rejoice in your
salvation.
- 6 I will sing to the LORD,
because he has dealt bountifully
with me.

Psalm 14

Denunciation of Godlessness

To the leader. Of David.

- 1 Fools say in their hearts, "There is no God."
They are corrupt, they do abominable deeds;
there is no one who does good.

- 2 The LORD looks down from heaven on humankind
to see if there are any who are
wise,
who seek after God.
- 3 They have all gone astray, they are all alike perverse;
there is no one who does good,
no, not one.
- 4 Have they no knowledge, all the
evildoers
who eat up my people as they
eat bread,
and do not call upon the LORD?
- 5 There they shall be in great
terror,
for God is with the company of the righteous.
- 6 You would confound the plans of the poor,
but the LORD is their refuge.
- 7 O that deliverance for Israel
would come from Zion!
When the LORD restores the fortunes of his people, Jacob will rejoice; Israel will be glad.

The psalm is repeated in almost the same fashion as Ps 53. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. 14.1–3 The absence of God is experienced in the absence of good. Quoted in Rom 3.10–12. 14.1 Fools are the same as the wicked in the wisdom traditions of Israel (cf. evildoers in v. 4). The quotation of the fools in this psalm is placed on the lips of the wicked in 10.4 (cf. Isa 32.6). There is no God, i.e., God is not present in the world in any effective way. Cf. 10.4, 6, 13; 12.4. There is no one who does good echoes "there is no God." 14.2 Who seek after God. For the moral character of seeking after God, see Am 5.4–6, 7, 10–11, 14–15, where seeking after God is found in hating evil, loving good, and establishing justice. 14.4–6 The refuge of the poor and righteous is the downfall of the evildoers. These verses counter the empirical claim of vv. 1–3 that God is not present because evil is rampant. 14.4 Who eat up my people as they eat bread. The translation is uncertain. For a similar image, see Mic 3.1–3. 14.5 God is with the company of the righteous reflects the primary word of assurance from God to those in distress, "I am with you" (e.g., Gen 26.24; 35.3; Isa 41.10; cf. Isa 7.14 for Immanuel, a Hebrew term that means "God is with us"). 14.7 A prayer wish in hope and anticipation that God will deliver the people. When that happens, there will be great joy.

15.1–5 A liturgy for entrance into the sanctuary. See Ps 24 (cf. Isa 33.14–16; Ezek 18.5–9; Mic 6.6–8). 15.1 The question, perhaps by a priest, asks what the qualifications are for admission into the worshiping congregation and the presence of God. 15.2–5 The requirements for entry are now listed in response to the question. The general qualifications in v. 2 are given concrete specification respectively in v. 3. The characteristics of behavior involve the morality of speech and conduct toward neighbor (vv. 2–3), association (v. 4ab), integrity of oaths sworn (v. 4c), and ill-gotten gains (v. 5). 15.4 Fear the LORD. See note on 34.7. 15.5 For the prohibition of interest, see Ex 22.25; Lev 25.36; Deut 23.19. Lending money was in order to help those in need, and profit from the distress of a neighbor was wrong. For the prohibition of bribes, see Ex 23.8; Deut 16.19; Isa 1.23; Mic 3.11.

16.1–11 A prayer of an individual for divine help in which the primary emphasis is placed upon the confident trust in God of the one who prays. The prayer seems to be more a prayer for continual protection rather than a cry of distress arising out of a particular occasion of suffering, though the latter may have elicited the confidence expressed herein. Miktam, of uncertain meaning but possibly indicating that the psalm was inscribed on a stone or wall. 16.2–11 An elaborate expression of the psalmist's experience of God's guidance and protection and the blessings God has bestowed. 16.2–4 The translation of these verses is for the most part very uncertain. 16.5–6 The terms portion, cup, lot, boundary lines, and heritage express the fact that the one who prays has received much good from the Lord. All the terms except cup have to do with the distribution of the promised land. They may be metaphorical for the richness of life received from God or they may reflect the actual receipt of a rich and valuable allotment of land. It has also been suggested that these words are spoken by a Levite because the tribe of Levi received no portion of land but lived off the offerings of the people. Several texts speak of the Lord as the portion or heritage of the Levites (Num 18.20; Deut 10.9;

- 7 I bless the LORD who gives me

instructs me.
- 8 I keep the LORD always

enemies.
4 The cords of death
encompassed me;
the torrents of perdition
assailed me;

- 5 the cords of Sheol entangled me;
the snares of death
confronted me.
6 In my distress I called upon the
LORD;
to my God I cried for help.
From his temple he heard my
voice,
and my cry to him reached his ears.
7 Then the earth reeled and rocked;
the foundations also of the mountains trembled
and quaked, because he was angry.
8 Smoke went up from his nostrils,
and devouring fire from his mouth;
glowing coals flamed forth
from him.
9 He bowed the heavens, and came down;
thick darkness was under his feet.
10 He rode on a cherub, and flew;
he came swiftly upon the wings
of the wind.
11 He made darkness his covering
around him,
his canopy thick clouds dark
with water.
12 Out of the brightness before him
there broke through his clouds
hailstones and coals of fire.

12.5. 17.15 The psalmist is confident of God's righteous judgment when the night is over.

18.1–50 A royal psalm of thanksgiving, presumably fulfilling a vow to give thanks and praise after God has helped (see 7.17; 13.6). While the superscription may not be historical, it suggests the circumstances in which such a song by a king would be appropriate. The psalm is found also in 2 Sam 22. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. 18.1–3 Hymnic praise of God in extravagant terms that underscore God's protecting help. 18.2 The horn of my salvation. See note on 75.4–5. 18.4–5 An account of the near-death distress that evoked the cry to God for help and God's response. 18.5 Sheol. See note on 6.5.

18.6 From his temple he heard my voice. See 1 Kings 8.37–40. My cry to him reached his ears. See 2 Chr 6.40; Sir 21.5 (cf. Gen 18.21; Ex 2.23–24; 3.7). 18.7–19 The appearance of God to deliver the king in trouble. The description is in typical storm-god imagery, depicting the coming of God as a mighty warrior from the cosmic abode, represented on earth by the sanctuary. The elements of nature are both disturbed and used by the divine warrior (cf. Ex 15; Deut 33.2–3; Judg 5.4–5; Ps 68.7–8; Hab 3.15). 18.10 Cherub, possibly a synonym for "cloud" but also referring to the cherubim or winged figures that served as the throne of the invisible God on the ark of the 19.1–14 A psalm extolling God's glory as revealed in the creation and the perfection and blessings of the instruction, or law, of God (cf. Pss 1; 119). To the leader. See note on 4.1–8.

19.1–6 The glory of God proclaimed by the created order. 19.1–4b In a paradoxical way the knowledge of God is passed on, but it is transmitted in a language without speech or words that can be heard in the customary way. 19.4b–6 The sun is a particular manifestation of the handiwork of God. The focus is upon the regular movement of the sun across the heavens.

u Or from proud thoughts

19.6 Nothing is hid from its heat echoes the ancient Near Eastern notion of the sun god as the god of justice, who has insight into all things, and anticipates the warning that God provides in the law. 19.7–10 God's instruction in the law is characterized in terms of its perfection, clarity, reliability, and truthfulness and its benefits are set forth. The latter include its enlivening (v. 7a) and illuminating (vv. 7b, 8b) effects and its capacity to give joy and delight (cf. 1.2). 19.10 The desirability and value of the law are underscored. 19.11–13 Even with the benefits and warning of the law, the psalmist cannot completely avoid hidden sins and mistakes or the control that presumptuous members of the community could exercise and so needs God's forgiveness. 19.14 A concluding prayer of dedication and offering. See 104.34; 119.108.

20.1–9 A royal psalm seeking God's help for the ruler. It may have been offered as a prayer before the king and the army went out to war or at the time of enthronement. Its liturgical character is suggested by the movement from the intercession of the community to the voice of one who declares God's intention to help and back to the prayer of the people at the end (cf. Ps 12). To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. 20.1–5 A series of prayers all of which would be appropriate when faced by an enemy and its army but also may address more broadly the needs of the king throughout his rule. 20.1 The name of God was understood to be in the sanctuary; this was the way God could be present there while dwelling continually transcendent in the

Psalm 22*Plea for Deliverance from Suffering and Hostility*

To the leader: according to The Deer of the Dawn. A Psalm of David.

- 1 My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?
Why are you so far from helping me, from the words of my groaning?
- 2 O my God, I cry by day, but you do not answer;
and by night, but find no rest.
- 3 Yet you are holy,
enthroned on the praises of Israel.
- 4 In you our ancestors trusted;
they trusted, and you delivered them.
- 5 To you they cried, and were saved;
in you they trusted, and were not put to shame.
- 6 But I am a worm, and not human;
scorned by others, and despised by the people.
- 7 All who see me mock at me;
they make mouths at me, they shake their heads;
- 8 "Commit your cause to the LORD;
let him deliver —

let him rescue the one in whom he delights!"

- 9 Yet it was you who took me from the womb;
you kept me safe on my mother's breast.
- 10 On you I was cast from my birth,
and since my mother bore me you have been my God.
- 11 Do not be far from me,
for trouble is near
and there is no one to help.
- 12 Many bulls encircle me,
strong bulls of Bashan surround me;
- 13 they open wide their mouths at me,
like a ravening and roaring lion.
- 14 I am poured out like water,
and all my bones are out of joint;
my heart is like wax;
it is melted within my breast;

and my tongue sticks to my jaws;

22.1–31 The prayer for help of an individual in great distress and the song of thanksgiving and praise that follows the word of God's response of deliverance. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. The Deer of the Dawn may be a note about the melody. The Septuagint gives an alternate possibility, "Concerning the help at dawn," because of the similarity of the word translated "deer" to the word for "help" in v. 19. 22.1–2 An anguished complaint to God because God is silent and absent in the petitioner's distress. 22.1 The first part of this verse is the cry that is found on Jesus' lips on the cross (Mt 27.46; Mk 15.34). Groaning, better "roaring." 22.3–5 The psalmist's trust in God's protection is renewed in remembering that the earlier community of faith trusted and cried out in trouble and God heard and delivered them. 22.6–8 Remembering the earlier community's deliverance, their not being shamed, makes the psalmist only more aware of the present, as those round about mock and scorn because the one who prayed suffers without release. These verses are alluded to in the passion story of Jesus (Mt 27.39–44; Mk 15.29–32; Lk 23.35–37). 22.9–11 The memory of God's care of the psalmist up to now is a claim of faith in the face of despair and leads to the plea for God to be present and to help. Cf. 71.6; 139.13. 22.12–21a The sufferer plunges back into the depths and recounts at length the persecutions of others and the sense of being close to death. 22.12–13 Bulls, strong bulls, lion. See note on 7.2. Bashan was an area in Transjordan east of the Sea of Galilee noted for producing good cattle (cf. Ezek 39.18; Am 4.1). 22.14–15 The picture of sickness unto death may be metaphorical for severe distress or it may reflect actual illness. 22.16–18 Dogs. See vv. 12–13; note on 7.2. The picture here is of one wasted away by illness and the taunters and persecutors already distributing the victim's clothing as death nears (cf. Mt 27.35; Mk 15.24; Lk 23.34; Jn 19.23–24).

22.19–21a The final desperate petition for God to come and save the life of the sufferer. Dog, lion. See vv. 12–13, 16; note on 7.2. 22.21b–31 The psalmist receives a response from God and renders extravagant praise for God's delivering help. The thanksgiving may be after God's help has been received or in anticipation of its coming because the prayer has been answered. Words of praise (vv. 22–23, 25–27, 29–31a) are followed by reasons for such praise (vv. 24, 28, 31b) as the psalmist evokes an ever-widening circle of those who should praise and worship the Lord because of such a marvelous deliverance. 22.21b Rescued, more accurately "answered." It is likely that this point in the psalm reflects the giving of an oracle of salvation by some priestly or representative figure that is God's promise to be with the psalmist and to help (e.g., Isa 41.8–13). 22.22–26 The community of faith in which the psalmist lives is called to praise the Lord because he has answered the prayer of the sufferer. 22.23 Fear the LORD. See note on 34.7. Cf. 22.25. 22.24 Hide his face. See notes on 10.1; 27.9. 22.27–28 The nations of the earth are called to praise. 22.29–31 Those who have died and those yet unborn are expected to serve the Lord, who has done such a marvelous deed in saving the psalmist from death.

23.1–6 A song of trust that may have been evoked by an experience of deliverance such as the one described in Ps 22. 23.1–3 The imagery of the Lord as shepherd and the people as the flock is developed here in detail (cf. 95.7; 100.3; Isa 40.11; Ezek 34.11–16; Jn 10.11, 14). 23.1 I shall not want, as Israel lacked nothing when wandering in the wilderness (Neh 9.21). 23.4 The confidence here reflects the assuring words of the oracle of salvation that came to those in distress who cried out to God: “Do not fear. I am with you.” Darkest valley is an image for the experience of terrible distress or suffering, the nearness of death. Rod, a club used to fend off wild animals. Staff, an instrument to keep sheep from wandering off. 23.5–6 The image of the Lord as host conveys the psalmist's experience of the goodness of God. These verses may reflect a sacrificial meal in thanksgiving for God's deliverance. 23.5 You prepare a table before me, as God spread a table of provision for Israel in the wilderness (78.19). You anoint my head with oil reflects the custom of pouring oil over the head of an honored guest. 23.6 The psalmist is now pursued by God's goodness and mercy instead of by enemies and persecutors (7.5; 71.11).

24.1–10 A liturgy for entrance into the sanctuary. See Ps 15 (cf. Isa 33.14–16; Ezek 18.5–9; Mic 6.6–8). 24.1–2 A confession that everything belongs to the Lord, who created the world and everything in it. 24.3–6 A question is asked, perhaps by a priest or representative figure, about the qualifications for admission into the sanctuary (v. 3), and those qualifications are then enumerated (v. 4). Cf. Ps 15. A final affirmation accepts these conditions as the requisites for divine blessing (vv. 5–6). 24.6 Selah. See note on 3.2. 24.7–10 The liturgy continues, but at this point it centers on the entrance of the Lord into the city and sanctuary presumably by means of the ark of the covenant; the invisible throne of God, the ark accompanied the people into battle against their enemies (Num 10.35–36; 1 Sam 4.4). 24.7 The call of those who bear the ark for your goodness' sake,

O LORD!
- 8 Good and upright is the LORD;
therefore he instructs sinners in the way.
- 9 He leads the humble in what is right,
and teaches the humble
his way.
- 10 All the paths of the LORD are steadfast love and faithfulness,
for those who keep his covenant and his decrees.
- 11 For your name's sake, O LORD,
pardon my guilt, for it is great.
- 12 Who are they that fear the LORD?
He will teach them the way that they should choose.
- 13 They will abide in prosperity,
and their children shall possess
the land.
- 14 The friendship of the LORD is for those who fear him,
and he makes his covenant
known to them.

as they approach the gates or doors. 24.8a The question is posed by those at the doors. 24.8b–9 The response of those with the ark. 24.10 The question and answer repeated once more (cf. 2 Sam 6.12–15).

25.1–22 An individual's prayer for help in a situation of unspecified trouble. The prayer is marked by various petitions, undergirded by reasons for God's beneficent response, and expressions of trust in God's goodness. 25.1–7 The one who trusts prays for help, direction, and forgiveness. 25.2–3 The shame of the psalmist may be in being afflicted and receiving no response from God (cf. 4.2; 22.2–8; 31.1, 17; 69.7, 19), but those who are wantonly treacherous have probably accused or persecuted the psalmist in some way. 25.4–5 A prayer for instruction in the Lord's way. 25.6–7 A prayer for forgiveness. 25.8–15 Affirmations of the goodness and faithfulness of the Lord, which is the ground of the petitioner's hope for help. 25.11 The realization of God's faithfulness to those who keep God's instruction (v. 10) leads the psalmist, who is mindful of failure to do that in the past, to insert a prayer for forgiveness. 25.12 Fear the LORD. See note on 34.7. Cf. 25.14. 25.15 Net.

- 16 Turn to me and be gracious
to me,
for I am lonely and afflicted.
17 Relieve the troubles of my heart,
and bring me^r out of my distress.
18 Consider my affliction and my trouble,
and forgive all my sins.
19 Consider how many are my foes,
and with what violent hatred
they hate me.
20 O guard my life, and deliver me;
do not let me be put to shame,
for I take refuge in you.
21 May integrity and uprightness
preserve me,
for I wait for you.
22 Redeem Israel, O God,
out of all its troubles.

Psalm 26

Plea for Justice and Declaration of Righteousness

Of David.

- 1 Vindicate me, O LORD,
for I have walked in my
integrity,
and I have trusted in the LORD
without wavering.
2 Prove me, O LORD, and try me;
test my heart and mind.
3 For your steadfast love is before my eyes,
and I walk in faithfulness
to you.^s

- 4 I do not sit with the worthless,
nor do I consort with hypocrites;
5 I hate the company of
evildoers,
and will not sit with the
wicked.
6 I wash my hands in innocence,
and go around your altar,
O LORD,
7 singing aloud a song of
thanksgiving,
and telling all your wondrous
deeds.
8 O LORD, I love the house in which you dwell,
and the place where your glory
abides.
9 Do not sweep me away with sinners,
nor my life with the
bloodthirsty,
10 those in whose hands are evil
devices,
and whose right hands are full
of bribes.
11 But as for me, I walk in my
integrity;
redeem me, and be gracious
to me.
12 My foot stands on level
ground;
in the great congregation I will bless the LORD.

r Or The troubles of my heart are enlarged; bring me
s Or in your faithfulness

See note on 9.15. 25.16–21 Renewed and passionate pleas for deliverance and forgiveness. 25.16 For loneliness as a symptom of the suffering of those who cry for help, see 22.6; 69.8, 20; 102.7; Jer 15.17. 25.22 The prayer of an individual is concluded with a prayer for the whole community in trouble (cf. 14.7; 28.9; 130.7; 131.3).

26.1–12 An individual prayer seeking God's judgment of the psalmist's righteousness. Such a prayer may be that of one who has come before God in the sanctuary seeking vindication in the face of false accusations (vv. 9–10; cf. Ps 7; 1 Kings 8.31–32) or it may be the prayer of one who seeks entrance into the sanctuary and claims to have fulfilled the requirements of a righteous life (vv. 7–8; cf. Pss 15; 24). 26.1 The initial plea to God. Vindicate me, or "judge me." 26.2–8 The petitioner offers to be tested and submits the case for a righteous and faithful life. 26.4–5 See 1.1. 26.6–7 Washing the hands may have been part of a ritual in the sanctuary as a way of testifying to cleanness or innocence. 26.9–12 A concluding sharp contrast is drawn between the ways of sinners and their fate and the way and hope of the righteous one who prays to God. 26.10 Evil devices, a term that often refers to sexual immorality (Lev 18.17; 19.29; 20.14; Job 31.11; Jer 13.27).

Psalm 27*Triumphant Song of Confidence*

Of David.

- 1 The LORD is my light and my salvation;
whom shall I fear?
The LORD is the stronghold^t of my life;
of whom shall I be afraid?
- 2 When evildoers assail me to devour my flesh—
my adversaries and foes—
they shall stumble and fall.
- 3 Though an army encamp against me,
my heart shall not fear;
though war rise up against me,
yet I will be confident.
- 4 One thing I asked of the LORD,
that will I seek after:
to live in the house of the LORD
all the days of my life,
to behold the beauty of the LORD,
and to inquire in his temple.
- 5 For he will hide me in his shelter
in the day of trouble;
he will conceal me under the cover of his tent;
he will set me high on a rock.
- 6 Now my head is lifted up above my enemies all
around me,

and I will offer in his tent
sacrifices with shouts of joy;
I will sing and make melody to
the LORD.

- 7 Hear, O LORD, when I cry aloud,
be gracious to me and answer me!
- 8 "Come," my heart says, "seek his face!"
Your face, LORD, do I seek.
- 9 Do not hide your face from me.

Do not turn your servant away in anger,
you who have been my help.
Do not cast me off, do not
forsake me,
O God of my salvation!
- 10 If my father and mother
forsake me,
the LORD will take me up.
- 11 Teach me your way, O LORD,
and lead me on a level path
because of my enemies.
- 12 Do not give me up to the will of
my adversaries,
for false witnesses have risen
against me,
and they are breathing out
violence.
- 13 I believe that I shall see the goodness of the LORD
in the land of the living.
- 14 Wait for the LORD;
be strong, and let your heart
take courage;
wait for the LORD!

^t Or refuge

27.1–14 A song of trust (vv. 1–6) by one of the faithful is the basis for a prayer for help in the face of false accusations (vv. 7–14). 27.1–6 The psalmist expresses trust in the Lord against all enemies (vv. 1–3) and the joy of being in God's presence (vv. 4–6). 27.2 Devour my flesh. See note on 7.2. 27.4 The beauty of the LORD, i.e., the graciousness or favor of the Lord (cf. 90.17; 135.3). To inquire in his temple probably means to seek after an oracle of salvation from the Lord, though it may also have a more general reference. 27.6 Sacrifices and praise were offered in the sanctuary by the one God delivered from distress.

27.7–13 The prayer of the oppressed. 27.8 Seek his face, seek God's favor. 27.9 Do not hide your face, i.e., "do not withhold your favor"; see also note on 10.1. 27.12 At least one facet of the trouble is false accusation brought against the one praying. They are breathing out violence, more accurately "violent witnesses." 27.13 An expression of trust that the petitioner will be kept alive and well by the Lord. 27.14 A response of encouragement to the prayer of the preceding verses. Wait for the LORD means to expect the Lord's deliverance.

Psalm 28*Prayer for Help and Thanksgiving for It*

Of David.

- 1 To you, O LORD, I call;
my rock, do not refuse to
hear me,
for if you are silent to me,
I shall be like those who go down to the Pit.
- 2 Hear the voice of my
supplication,
as I cry to you for help,
as I lift up my hands toward your most holy sanctuary.^u
- 3 Do not drag me away with the
wicked,
with those who are workers
of evil,
who speak peace with their neighbors,
while mischief is in their hearts.
- 4 Repay them according to their work,
and according to the evil of
their deeds;
repay them according to the work
of their hands;
render them their due reward.
- 5 Because they do not regard the works of the LORD,
or the work of his hands,
he will break them down and build them up no more.

- 6 Blessed be the LORD,
for he has heard the sound of my pleadings.
- 7 The LORD is my strength and my
shield;
in him my heart trusts;
so I am helped, and my heart
exults,
and with my song I give thanks
to him.
- 8 The LORD is the strength of his people;
he is the saving refuge of his
anointed.
- 9 O save your people, and bless your heritage;
be their shepherd, and carry them forever.

28.1–9 An individual's prayer for help when beset by members of the community who are carrying out some sort of persecution or when in fear of being caught up in the judgment that God will bring against them. 28.1–2 The initial plea for God to pay attention to the prayer. 28.1 Pit. See note on 16.10. 28.2 For lifting up hands toward the sanctuary, see 1 Kings 8.38–39. 28.3–4 A cry to God to do in the wicked who persecute the praying one. The psalmist fears being drawn into the punishment that they rightfully deserve. 28.5 A claim that God's just judgment against the wicked will happen. It is either a response to the prayer of the petitioner by a representative figure like a priest or an expression of trust on the part of the one who prays. 28.6–7 A song of thanksgiving by the one who has cried out because God has heeded the prayer. 28.8–9 A final confession and prayer that move the prayer of the individual to one incorporating the community and its ruler. See note on 25.22. 28.8 Anointed. See note on 2.2.

29.1–11 A hymn of praise in honor of God's glory and power as revealed in a thunderstorm. 29.1–2 Opening call to worship God. Heavenly beings refers to the heavenly court of gods or semidivine beings (see 82.1, 6; Ex 15.11; Deut 32.8), who are to acknowledge the supremacy of the Lord as universal ruler. 29.3–9 Description of the thunderstorm as it rises over the Mediterranean, moves inland with devastating effects across the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon mountain ranges, and spends itself in the Syrian desert. 29.3 Waters and mighty waters refer to the Mediterranean Sea, perhaps with mythic overtones relating to the primordial waters of chaos the Lord was said to have vanquished in creating the world

- the God of glory thunders,
the LORD, over mighty waters.
- 4 The voice of the LORD is powerful;
the voice of the LORD is full of

- 5 The voice of the LORD breaks the

the LORD breaks the cedars of Lebanon.
- 6 He makes Lebanon skip like a and Sirion like a young wild ox.

- 7 The voice of the LORD flashes
forth flames of fire.
- 8 The voice of the LORD shakes the

the LORD shakes the wilderness

people!
May the LORD bless his people

Psalm 30

Thanksgiving for Recovery from Grave Illness

A Psalm. A Song at the dedication of the temple. Of David.

- 1 I will extol you, O LORD, for you have drawn me up,
and did not let my foes rejoice
over me.
- 2 O LORD my God, I cried to you
for help,
and you have healed me.
- 3 O LORD, you brought up my soul
from Sheol,
restored me to life from among those gone down to the Pit.^x
- 4 Sing praises to the LORD, O you
his faithful ones,
and give thanks to his holy
name.
- 5 For his anger is but for a moment;
his favor is for a lifetime.
Weeping may linger for the night,
but joy comes with the morning.
- 6 As for me, I said in my prosperity,

^w Or causes the deer to calve ^x Or that I should not go down to the Pit

(see 74.12–14; 89.9–10; Isa 51.9). 29.6 Sirion, Phoenician name for Mount Hermon in the Anti-Lebanon range. 29.8 Kadesh here refers not to the well-known oasis in Sinai (Num 20.1), but to the desert east of the Syrian city of Kadesh on the Orontes River. 29.9 The alternate reading causes the deer to calve is equally plausible in the light of the ancient belief that thunderstorms could induce labor. 29.10–11 Concluding affirmation of confidence, possibly with a polemic thrust. In Canaanite mythology, Baal was enthroned over the conquered flood or primordial waters of chaos. Here is affirmed the universal kingship of the Lord, who dethrones all other powers and thus is the only one able to grant security and peace.

30.1–12 A song of thanksgiving and praise by one who has gone from security and prosperity to near death and has been delivered by God. A Song at the dedication of the temple is a secondary superscription indicating that the psalm came to be used at the Feast of Dedication (Hanukkah) after the cleansing of the temple by Judas Maccabeus in 164 B.C.E. 30.1–3 The psalmist praises God for being healed. While the references to healing may be metaphorical, their sustained use in this psalm suggests physical illness and near death as the plight from which the psalmist was delivered. 30.1 My foes here probably refers to those who declare the sufferer's illness to be the proper punishment from God. 30.3 Sheol. See note on 6.5. Pit. See note on 16.10. 30.4–5 A call to the community to praise God, who is always more inclined toward favor upon the people than anger, and a declaration that the latter is a response to particular sins by the people. 30.6–12 The psalmist recounts what happened and how the Lord helped. 30.6–7 From a position of security the psalmist is thrown into some terrible personal distress. Both situations are seen

- "I shall never be moved."
 7 By your favor, O LORD,
 you had established me as a strong mountain;
 you hid your face;
 I was dismayed.
 8 To you, O LORD, I cried, and to the LORD I made
 supplication:
 9 "What profit is there in my death,
 if I go down to the Pit?
 Will the dust praise you?
 Will it tell of your faithfulness?
 10 Hear, O LORD, and be gracious
 to me!
 O LORD, be my helper!"
 11 You have turned my mourning
 into dancing;
 you have taken off my sackcloth
 and clothed me with joy, 12 so that my soul^y may praise you
 and not be silent.
 O LORD my God, I will give thanks to you forever.

Prayer and Praise for Deliverance from Enemies

To the leader. A Psalm of David.

- 1 In you, O LORD, I seek refuge;
 do not let me ever be put to shame;
 in your righteousness
 deliver me.
 2 Incline your ear to me;
 rescue me speedily.
 Be a rock of refuge for me,
 a strong fortress to save me.

- 3 You are indeed my rock and my fortress;
 for your name's sake lead me
 and guide me,
 4 take me out of the net that is hidden for me,
 for you are my refuge.
 5 Into your hand I commit my spirit;
 you have redeemed me,
 O LORD, faithful God.
 6 You hate^z those who pay regard to worthless idols,
 but I trust in the LORD.
 7 I will exult and rejoice in your
 steadfast love,
 because you have seen my affliction;
 you have taken heed of my adversities,
 8 and have not delivered me into
 the hand of the enemy;
 you have set my feet in a broad place.
 9 Be gracious to me, O LORD, for I am in distress;
 my eye wastes away from grief,
 my soul and body also.
 10 For my life is spent with sorrow,
 and my years with sighing;
 my strength fails because of my misery,^a
 and my bones waste away.
 11 I am the scorn of all my adversaries,
 a horror^b to my neighbors,
 an object of dread to my acquaintances;

See note on 18.19. 31.9–13 A petition (v. 9a) that leads into an extended lament over physical (vv. 9b–10) and social distress (vv. 11–13). The former may be actual sickness unto death or a metaphor of personal dissolution to express suffering. The latter involves both scorn by neighbors and some sort of scheming that threatens the petitioner's life. 31.9 Grief, or

- those who see me in the street

- 12 I have passed out of mind like
one who is dead;
I have become like a broken vessel.
- 13 For I hear the whispering of

against me,
as they plot to take my life.
- 14 But I trust in you, O LORD;
I say, "You are my God."
- 15 My times are in your hand;
deliver me from the hand of my enemies and persecutors.
- 16 Let your face shine upon your
servant;
save me in your steadfast love.
- 17 Do not let me be put to shame,
O LORD,
for I call on you;
let the wicked be put to shame;
let them go dumbfounded to Sheol.

that speak insolently against the
righteous
with pride and contempt.
- 19 O how abundant is your goodness

who fear you,
and accomplished for those who take refuge in you,
in the sight of everyone!
- 20 In the shelter of your presence
you hide them
from human plots;

- you hold them safe under your shelter
from contentious tongues.
- 21 Blessed be the LORD,
for he has wondrously shown
his steadfast love to me when I was beset as a city
under siege.
- 22 I had said in my alarm,
"I am driven far^c from your sight."
But you heard my supplications
when I cried out to you for help.
- 23 Love the LORD, all you his saints.
The LORD preserves the faithful,
but abundantly repays the one
who acts haughtily.
- 24 Be strong, and let your heart take courage,
all you who wait for the LORD.

Psalm 34

Praise for Deliverance from Trouble

Of David, when he feigned madness before Abimelech, so that he drove him out, and he went away.

- 1 I will bless the LORD at all times;
his praise shall continually be in my mouth.
- 2 My soul makes its boast in the LORD;
let the humble hear and be glad.
- 3 O magnify the LORD with me,
and let us exalt his name together.
- 4 I sought the LORD, and he answered me,
and delivered me from all my fears.
- 5 Look to him, and be radiant;
so your^f faces shall never be ashamed.
- 6 This poor soul cried, and was heard by the LORD,
and was saved from every trouble.
- 7 The angel of the LORD encamps around those who fear him,
and delivers them.
- 8 O taste and see that the LORD is good;
happy are those who take refuge in him.
- 9 O fear the LORD, you his holy ones,
for those who fear him have no want.

tions. 33.12 Happy. See note on 1.1. His heritage. See Deut 7.6–8; 32.8–9. 33.13–19 The Lord's discerning and providential watch over all the inhabitants of the earth. 33.20–22 The community of faith expresses its hope in God's steadfast love.

34.1–22 A song of thanksgiving that becomes instructional and didactic in character. The address or instruction to the community that often concludes songs of thanksgiving (see 31.2–4; 32.11) is accentuated in this psalm. The historical superscription is secondarily attached to the psalm (1 Sam 21.10–15; Abimelech is an error for Achish). The psalm is an alphabetic acrostic in its Hebrew text (see note on 9.1–10.18). 34.1–3 Introductory praise and thanksgiving. 34.4–10 Testimony to the goodness of God, who delivers the afflicted from their fears. The psalmist reports on God's hearing the prayer and invites others to know the goodness of the Lord through worship and trust. 34.7 Angel of the Lord, both a messenger of the Lord and an extension of the Lord's power (see 35.5–6; Josh 5.13–15). Fear, an all-encompassing term for worship and obedience, the proper relationship to God (cf. vv. 9, 11). 34.9 His holy ones, members of the commu-

- 11 Come, O children, listen to me;
I will teach you the fear of the
LORD.
- 12 Which of you desires life,
and covets many days to enjoy
good?
- 13 Keep your tongue from evil,
and your lips from speaking deceit.
- 14 Depart from evil, and do good;
seek peace, and pursue it.
- 15 The eyes of the LORD are on the
righteous,
and his ears are open to
their cry.
- 16 The face of the LORD is against
evildoers,
to cut off the remembrance of them from the earth.
- 17 When the righteous cry for help,
the LORD hears,
and rescues them from all their troubles.
- 18 The LORD is near to the brokenhearted,
and saves the crushed in spirit.
- 19 Many are the afflictions of the
righteous,
but the LORD rescues them
from them all.
- 20 He keeps all their bones;
not one of them will be broken.
- 21 Evil brings death to the wicked,
and those who hate the righteous will be condemned.

- 22 The LORD redeems the life of his
servants;
none of those who take refuge
in him will be condemned.

Psalm 35

Prayer for Deliverance from Enemies

Of David.

- 1 Contend, O LORD, with those who contend with me;
fight against those who fight
against me!
- 2 Take hold of shield and buckler,
and rise up to help me!
- 3 Draw the spear and javelin
against my pursuers;
say to my soul,
"I am your salvation."
- 4 Let them be put to shame and dishonor
who seek after my life.
Let them be turned back and confounded
who devise evil against me.
- 5 Let them be like chaff before the wind,
with the angel of the LORD
driving them on.
- 6 Let their way be dark and slippery,
with the angel of the LORD
pursuing them.
- 7 For without cause they hid their
net^g for me;
without cause they dug a pit^h
for my life.
- 8 Let ruin come on them unawares.

^g Heb a pit, their net ^h The word pit is transposed from the preceding line

nity of faith. 34.10 Even when the most successful and self-sufficient, i.e., the young lions, go hungry, those who trust in the Lord do not lack (cf. 23.1). 34.11–14 The psalmist's reported deliverance leads now into wise teaching about what is involved in the fear of the LORD (v. 11). 34.14 Wisdom's teaching is like the prophetic exhortations. See Isa 1.16–17; Am 5.14–15; Mic 6.8; cf. Ps 37.27. 34.15–22 The teaching continues now about the Lord's actions toward the innocent and righteous and toward the wicked. The accent is on God's attention to the cries of the righteous in their sufferings. Righteous often refers to the innocent victims who suffer at the hands of those who do evil.

35.1–28 A prayer for God's help by a person persecuted and falsely accused. The psalm is primarily a series of petitions against the persecutors and tormentors. 35.1–8 Petitions to God to fight against and undo the power of those who pursue the psalmist. 35.3b The persecuted one seeks an oracle of salvation, a divine word giving assurance of God's presence and help. See note on 22.21b. 35.5 Chaff. See 1.4. Angel of the LORD. See note on 34.7. 35.7–8 See note on 9.15.

- And let the net that they hid ensnare them;
let them fall in it—to their ruin.
- 9 Then my soul shall rejoice in the
LORD,
exulting in his deliverance.
- 10 All my bones shall say,
“O LORD, who is like you?
You deliver the weak
from those too strong for them,
the weak and needy from those who despoil them.”
- 11 Malicious witnesses rise up;
they ask me about things I do not know.
- 12 They repay me evil for good;
my soul is forlorn.
- 13 But as for me, when they were sick,
I wore sackcloth;
I afflicted myself with fasting.
I prayed with head bowedⁱ on my bosom,
- 14 as though I grieved for a friend
or a brother;
I went about as one who laments
for a mother,
bowed down and in mourning.
- 15 But at my stumbling they gathered in glee,
they gathered together
against me;
ruffians whom I did not know
tore at me without ceasing;
- 16 they impiously mocked more and more,^j
gnashing at me with their teeth.
- 17 How long, O LORD, will you look on?
Rescue me from their ravages,
my life from the lions!
- 18 Then I will thank you in the great congregation;
in the mighty throng I will praise you.
- 19 Do not let my treacherous
enemies rejoice over me,
or those who hate me without cause wink the eye.
- 20 For they do not speak peace,
but they conceive deceitful
words
against those who are quiet in
the land.
- 21 They open wide their mouths
against me;
they say, “Aha, Aha,
our eyes have seen it.”
- 22 You have seen, O LORD; do not be silent!
O Lord, do not be far
from me!
- 23 Wake up! Bestir yourself for my defense,
for my cause, my God and my
Lord!
- 24 Vindicate me, O LORD, my God,
according to your
righteousness,
and do not let them rejoice
over me.
- 25 Do not let them say to
themselves,
“Aha, we have our heart’s desire.”
Do not let them say, “We have swallowed you^k up.”

Psalm 36

Human Wickedness and Divine Goodness

To the leader. Of David, the servant
of the LORD.

- 1 Transgression speaks to the
wicked
deep in their hearts;
there is no fear of God
before their eyes.
- 2 For they flatter themselves in their own eyes
that their iniquity cannot be found out and hated.
- 3 The words of their mouths are mischief and deceit;
they have ceased to act wisely
and do good.
- 4 They plot mischief while on their beds;
they are set on a way that is not good;
they do not reject evil.

- 5 Your steadfast love, O LORD,
extends to the heavens,
your faithfulness to the clouds.
- 6 Your righteousness is like the mighty mountains,
your judgments are like the great deep;
you save humans and animals
alike, O LORD.
- 7 How precious is your steadfast love, O God!
All people may take refuge in the shadow of your wings.
- 8 They feast on the abundance of your house,
and you give them drink from
the river of your delights.
- 9 For with you is the fountain of
life;
in your light we see light.
- 10 O continue your steadfast love to those who know you,
and your salvation to the upright of heart!
- 11 Do not let the foot of the arrogant tread on me,
or the hand of the wicked drive
me away.
- 12 There the evildoers lie prostrate;
they are thrust down, unable to rise.

Psalm 37

Exhortation to Patience and Trust

Of David.

- 1 Do not fret because of the
wicked;

trouble. 35.28 The afflicted psalmist vows to praise God for the righteousness that supports the weak and undoes the wicked.

36.1–12 An individual's prayer for help that is highly reflective in the manner of the wisdom traditions, especially vv. 1–4. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. Servant of the LORD. See 78.70; 89.3. 36.1–4 A reflection on the character and attitude of the wicked that here serves as a generalized lament in anticipation of the prayer for help against the wicked in v. 11. 36.1 Fear of God. See note on 34.7. 36.4 They plot mischief while on their beds. Cf. Mic 2.1. 36.5–9 The psalmist now praises God as an act of trust, describing the character of God and the protecting and life-giving care of God. 36.7 Shadow of your wings. See notes on 91.1; 91.4. 36.10–12 The attributes of God extolled in the preceding verses, steadfast love (vv. 5, 7) and salvation (v. 6), here become the grounds for the psalmist's prayer for help in the face of the threats of the wicked described in vv. 1–4.

37.1–40 An instructional psalm in which an older, more experienced person (v. 25) instructs others, particularly about the Lord's protection of the righteous and the inevitable judgment that comes upon the wicked. The psalm is an exhortation to trust in the Lord, who will vindicate the righteous, and not to be disturbed by the wicked, who will soon pass away. This is an acrostic psalm

- do not be envious of
wrongdoers,
2 for they will soon fade like the grass,
and wither like the green herb.
- 3 Trust in the LORD, and do good;
so you will live in the land, and enjoy security.
- 4 Take delight in the LORD,
and he will give you the desires of your heart.
- 5 Commit your way to the LORD;
trust in him, and he will act.
- 6 He will make your vindication
shine like the light,
and the justice of your cause
like the noonday.
- 7 Be still before the LORD, and wait patiently for him;
do not fret over those who prosper in their way,
over those who carry out evil
devices.
- 8 Refrain from anger, and forsake
wrath.
Do not fret—it leads only to evil.
- 9 For the wicked shall be cut off,
but those who wait for the LORD shall inherit the land.
- 10 Yet a little while, and the wicked
will be no more;
though you look diligently for their place, they will not be there.
- 11 But the meek shall inherit the
land,
and delight themselves in
abundant prosperity.
- 12 The wicked plot against the
righteous,
and gnash their teeth at them;
13 but the LORD laughs at the
wicked,
- for he sees that their day is coming.
- 14 The wicked draw the sword and bend their bows
to bring down the poor and needy,
to kill those who walk
uprightly;
- 15 their sword shall enter their own
heart,
and their bows shall be broken.
- 16 Better is a little that the righteous person has
than the abundance of many
wicked.
- 17 For the arms of the wicked shall
be broken,
but the LORD upholds the
righteous.
- 18 The LORD knows the days of the
blameless,
and their heritage will abide
forever;
- 19 they are not put to shame in evil
times,
in the days of famine they have abundance.
- 20 But the wicked perish,
and the enemies of the LORD
are like the glory of the pastures;
they vanish—like smoke they vanish away.
- 21 The wicked borrow, and do not pay back,
but the righteous are generous
and keep giving;
- 22 for those blessed by the LORD
shall inherit the land,
but those cursed by him shall
be cut off.
- 23 Our steps¹ are made firm by the

(see note on 9.1–10.18). 37.1 Do not fret is repeated several times (vv. 7–8), suggesting the psalm is addressed to someone who may have come under some persecution or thinks that God's rule is not effective (cf. Prov 24.19–20).

37.9 Inherit the land, i.e., enjoy the rich blessings provided in the land God has given the people (cf. vv. 3, 11, 22, 29, 34). 37.13 The LORD laughs. Cf. 2.4; 59.8. 37.14–15 The language is a metaphorical way of saying that the violent

 yet I have not seen the righteous forsaken or their children begging
 bread.
- 26 They are ever giving liberally and lending,
 and their children become a blessing.
- 27 Depart from evil, and do good;
 so you shall abide forever.
- 28 For the LORD loves justice;
 he will not forsake his faithful ones.
- The righteous shall be kept safe
 forever,
 but the children of the wicked
 shall be cut off.
- 29 The righteous shall inherit the
 land,
 and live in it forever.
- 30 The mouths of the righteous
 utter wisdom,
 and their tongues speak justice.
- 31 The law of their God is in their hearts;
 their steps do not slip.
- 32 The wicked watch for the
 righteous,
 and seek to kill them.
- 33 The LORD will not abandon them
 to their power,
 or let them be condemned
 when they are brought to trial.
- 34 Wait for the LORD, and keep to
 his way,

and he will exalt you to inherit
 the land;
 you will look on the destruction of the wicked.

- 35 I have seen the wicked
 oppressing,
 and towering like a cedar of Lebanon.^q
- 36 Again I^r passed by, and they were no more;
 though I sought them, they could not be found.
- 37 Mark the blameless, and behold
 the upright,
 for there is posterity for the peaceable.
- 38 But transgressors shall be altogether destroyed;
 the posterity of the wicked shall
 be cut off.
- 39 The salvation of the righteous is
 from the LORD;
 he is their refuge in the time of
 trouble.
- 40 The LORD helps them and rescues them;
 he rescues them from the wicked, and saves them,
 because they take refuge
 in him.

to do God's will. Quoted in Heb 10.5-7. 40.7 Scroll of the book is interpreted variously. If the song is by a king, this could refer to the "law of the king" in Deut 17.14-20. More likely, it is the heavenly record of human deeds of good or ill, though some have assumed it referred to the written record of this song of thanksgiving, offered in place of a sacrifice. 40.8 Your law is within my heart. See Jer 31.33. 40.9-10 The one who has been delivered has borne witness to God's love and faithfulness before the community (cf. 22.22-23). 40.11-17 A cry to God for help in a new situation of distress and trouble. Vv. 13-17 are the same as Ps 70. 40.16-17 The prayer concludes with the psalmist's expression of trust and anticipated praise and joy when God's help comes (cf. 35.27).

41.1-13 An individual prayer for help and deliverance from sickness is now set before the congregation as instruction about God's care of the weak and the sick. To the leader. See note on 4.1-8. 41.1-3 A didactic introduction expressing the certainty of the Lord's healing of the sick. It is the ground of confidence on which the prayer that follows was uttered and the conclusion reached by the psalmist in light of the answered prayer. 41.1 Happy. See note on 1.1.

- 3 The LORD sustains them on their sickbed;
in their illness you heal all their infirmities.^y
- 4 As for me, I said, "O LORD, be gracious to me;
heal me, for I have sinned against you."
- 5 My enemies wonder in malice when I will die, and my name perish.
- 6 And when they come to see me, they utter empty words, while their hearts gather mischief;
when they go out, they tell it abroad.
- 7 All who hate me whisper together about me;
they imagine the worst for me.
- 8 They think that a deadly thing has fastened on me,
that I will not rise again from where I lie.
- 9 Even my bosom friend in whom I trusted,
who ate of my bread, has lifted the heel against me.
- 10 But you, O LORD, be gracious to me,
and raise me up, that I may repay them.
- 11 By this I know that you are pleased with me;
because my enemy has not triumphed over me.

- 12 But you have upheld me because of my integrity,
and set me in your presence forever.
- 13 Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel,
from everlasting to everlasting.
Amen and Amen.

Psalm 42

Longing for God's Help in Distress

To the leader. A Maskil of the Korahites.

- 1 As a deer longs for flowing streams,
so my soul longs for you, O God.
- 2 My soul thirsts for God,
for the living God.
When shall I come and behold the face of God?
- 3 My tears have been my food
day and night,
while people say to me continually,
"Where is your God?"
- 4 These things I remember,
as I pour out my soul:
how I went with the throng,^z

^y Heb you change all his bed ^z Meaning of Heb uncertain

41.4–10 The prayer is reported, beginning and ending with petitions for the Lord to be gracious and heal (or raise up) the sick person (vv. 4, 10) and lamenting the malice of those, including friends, who may say kind words but really spread slanderous things and anticipate happily the death of the one who is sick. 41.4 For I have sinned against you reflects the understanding that the illness has also to do with God's judgment for sin and that God's healing involves forgiveness. 41.11–12 Having been healed, the one who was sick acknowledges God's vindication and providential care and the consequent defeat of the enemies. 41.13 A doxological conclusion to the first book of the Psalter (cf. 72.18–19; 89.52; 106.48; 146.1–6), which serves also as praise and thanksgiving for God's deliverance.

42.1–43.5 An individual prayer for help by one who is cut off from the presence of God and oppressed by enemies. The psalmist seeks both to be led again into the sanctuary and defended against those who have dealt unjustly. The absence of a superscription at the beginning of Ps 43, the repetition of the refrain in 42.5, 11; 43.5, the repetition of 42.9b in 43.2b, and the common theme of coming to the sanctuary all suggest that the two psalms are to be read as a single psalm. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. Maskil. See note on 32.1–11. Korahites, a group of temple singers (2 Chr 20.19) who may have collected and transmitted a number of psalms. 42.1–5 The terrible longing to come again into the presence of God is tempered by remembrance of previous pilgrim-

- and led them in procession to the house of God,
with glad shouts and songs of
thanksgiving,
a multitude keeping festival.
- 5 Why are you cast down, O my
soul,
and why are you disquieted
within me?
Hope in God; for I shall again
praise him,
my help ⁶and my God.
- My soul is cast down within me;
therefore I remember you
from the land of Jordan and of Hermon,
from Mount Mizar.
- 7 Deep calls to deep
at the thunder of your cataracts;
all your waves and your billows
have gone over me.
- 8 By day the LORD commands his
steadfast love,
and at night his song is
with me,
a prayer to the God of my
life.
- 9 I say to God, my rock,
“Why have you forgotten me?
Why must I walk about
mournfully
because the enemy
oppresses me?”
- 10 As with a deadly wound in my
body,
my adversaries taunt me,
while they say to me continually,
“Where is your God?”
- 11 Why are you cast down, O my
soul,

and why are you disquieted
within me?
Hope in God; for I shall again
praise him,
my help and my God.

Psalm 43

- 1 Vindicate me, O God, and defend my cause
against an ungodly people;
from those who are deceitful and unjust
deliver me!
- 2 For you are the God in whom I
take refuge;
why have you cast me off?
Why must I walk about
mournfully
because of the oppression of the enemy?
- 3 O send out your light and your truth;
let them lead me;
let them bring me to your holy
hill
and to your dwelling.
- 4 Then I will go to the altar
of God,
to God my exceeding joy;
and I will praise you with the harp,
O God, my God.
- 5 Why are you cast down, O my
soul,
and why are you disquieted
within me?
Hope in God; for I shall again
praise him,
my help and my God.

ages to the sanctuary (cf. 84.1–2). 42.3 “Where is your God?” See note on 79.10. 42.4 Festival, one of Israel’s three great pilgrimage festivals (Deut 16). 42.6–11 In despair again, the psalmist once more remembers God. But that memory makes all the sharper the present experience of distress and the absence of God’s presence and power. 42.6 From the land of Jordan and of Hermon refers to the headwaters of the Jordan and the great Mount Hermon in the north of Syro-Palestine, suggesting that the one praying may have been in that locale. Mount Mizar is unknown but may have been a peak in the Hermon range. 42.10 “Where is your God?” See note on 79.10. 43.1–5 In the final stanza, the sufferer pleads for God’s powerful defense against injustice and asks with greater confidence to be led into the sanctuary to praise and give thanks to God. 43.3 Your holy hill, probably the temple on Zion in Jerusalem, though some have speculated that a sanctuary in the north of Palestine may have been meant.

Psalm 44

National Lament and Prayer for Help

To the leader. Of the Korahites. A Maskil.

- 1 We have heard with our ears,
O God,
our ancestors have told us,
what deeds you performed in their days,
in the days of old:
- 2 you with your own hand drove
out the nations,
but them you planted;
you afflicted the peoples,
but them you set free;
- 3 for not by their own sword did
they win the land,
nor did their own arm give them victory;
but your right hand, and
your arm,
and the light of your countenance,
for you delighted in them.
- 4 You are my King and my God;
you command^a victories for Jacob.
- 5 Through you we push down our
foes;
through your name we tread
down our assailants.
- 6 For not in my bow do I trust,
nor can my sword save me.
- 7 But you have saved us from our
foes,
and have put to confusion
those who hate us.
- 8 In God we have boasted
continually,

and we will give thanks to your name forever. Selah

- 9 Yet you have rejected us and
abased us,
and have not gone out with our armies.
- 10 You made us turn back from
the foe,
and our enemies have gotten spoil.
- 11 You have made us like sheep for slaughter,
and have scattered us among
the nations.
- 12 You have sold your people for a trifle,
demanding no high price for
them.
- 13 You have made us the taunt of our neighbors,
the derision and scorn of those around us.
- 14 You have made us a byword
among the nations,
a laughingstock^b among the
peoples.
- 15 All day long my disgrace is
before me,
and shame has covered my face
- 16 at the words of the taunters and revilers,
at the sight of the enemy and
the avenger.
- 17 All this has come upon us,
yet we have not forgotten you,
or been false to your covenant.
- 18 Our heart has not turned back,

Your royal scepter is a scepter

While the king is called "my son" by God (2.7), nowhere else in the or is the king called "God" or regarded as divine. The sentence is quoted in Heb 1.8. 45.7 The more characteristic understanding of kingship in Israel (as opposed to that in 45.6a) is found here in the notion of the king as the anointed of God. 45.8 Ivory palaces refers to the homes of the wealthy that contained furnishings inlaid with carved ivories.

(e.g., 46.7, 11). 49.13–20 The destiny of the psalmist, who trusts in God, is contrasted with the fate of the foolhardy (v. 13) and the rich (v. 16). 49.13 Selah. See note on 3.2. 49.14 The text of this verse is very uncertain. 49.15 The assurance of the psalmist over against the fear of persecutors (v. 5) and in the knowledge that no one can ransom one's life (v. 7). It is debated as to whether the psalmist envisions a life with God beyond the grave. On receive, see Gen 5.24; 2 Kings 2.3, 5. 49.16–20 The instruction and its assurance are reiterated: one need not fear the rich, who lose everything in death.

50.1–23 A liturgy with priestly or prophetic admonishment of the people, probably to be sung at a festival of covenant renewal (cf. Pss 81; 95 for similar language and character). Asaph, one of David's chief musicians (1 Chr 6.39; 15.17; 16.5–7). The designation may refer to a psalm composed or handed down by Asaph or the guild of singers associated with him or under his leadership, as in the case of the Korahites (e.g., Ps 42). 50.1–6 The coming of God for judgment and the summons of the congregation of the faithful. 50.2 Shines forth. See note on 80.1. Cf. 18.8; Hab 3.3–5. 50.4 The heavens above and . . . the earth are probably called as witnesses to the covenant. See Deut 31.28; 32.1; Isa 1.2. 50.5 This verse suggests a covenant renewal occasion. 50.6 Selah. See note on 3.2. 50.7–15 God's rebuke of the people for misunderstanding the meaning of sacrifice. Its purpose is not to sustain or strengthen the deity, who does not need food, but to represent and manifest thanksgiving to

Prayer for Cleansing and Pardon

To the leader. A Psalm of David, when the prophet Nathan came to him, after he had gone in to Bathsheba.

- 1 Have mercy on me, O God,
according to your steadfast
love;
according to your abundant mercy
blot out my transgressions.
- 2 Wash me thoroughly from my
iniquity,
and cleanse me from my sin.

God for divine help. 50.16–21 God's rebuke of the wicked for their violation of the covenant laws, the Ten Commandments and other laws. Stealing (v. 18a), adultery (v. 18b), and false witness (vv. 19–20) are specifically in view. 50.22–23 God utters a final warning about disobedience (v. 22) and promise to those who bring thanksgiving as sacrifice (v. 23), reflecting the two primary concerns of the divine judgment in this psalm.

51.1–19 A prayer for God's help by an individual who is deeply aware of sin and guilt and needs God's forgiveness. One of the penitential psalms (see note on 6.1–10). To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. A Psalm of David when the prophet Nathan came to him, after he had gone in to Bathsheba is a secondary association of the psalm with that event (2 Sam 12.1–15). Cf. v. 4a; 2 Sam 12.13. 51.1–2 A plea for mercy and God's cleansing of the guilt of the petitioner. 51.3–6 Confession of sin and acknowledgment of guilt. 51.4 The conviction of the sin against God does not mean that there is no sin against the neighbor involved, as the similar statement in 2 Sam 12.13 indicates.

- and done what is evil in your sight,
so that you are justified in your sentence
and blameless when you pass judgment.
- 5 Indeed, I was born guilty,
a sinner when my mother conceived me.
- 6 You desire truth in the inward being;^x
therefore teach me wisdom in my secret heart.
- 7 Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean;
wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.
- 8 Let me hear joy and gladness;
let the bones that you have crushed rejoice.
- 9 Hide your face from my sins,
and blot out all my iniquities.
- 10 Create in me a clean heart,
O God,
and put a new and right^y spirit within me.
- 11 Do not cast me away from your presence,
and do not take your holy spirit from me.
- 12 Restore to me the joy of your salvation,
and sustain in me a willing^z spirit.
- 13 Then I will teach transgressors your ways,
and sinners will return to you.
- 14 Deliver me from bloodshed,
O God,

O God of my salvation,
and my tongue will sing aloud
of your deliverance.

- 15 O Lord, open my lips,
and my mouth will declare your praise.
- 16 For you have no delight in sacrifice;
if I were to give a burnt offering, you would not be pleased.
- 17 The sacrifice acceptable to God^a
is a broken spirit;
a broken and contrite heart,
O God, you will not despise.
- 18 Do good to Zion in your good pleasure;
rebuild the walls of Jerusalem,
then you will delight in right sacrifices,
in burnt offerings and whole burnt offerings;
then bulls will be offered on your altar.

51.5 An expression of the depth of the sense of sin, not a statement about original sin. 51.7–12 Prayer for forgiveness and restoration. 51.7 Purge me with hyssop probably refers to a cleansing ceremony using the hyssop bush (cf. Lev 14.2–9, 48–53; Num 19.6, 18). The petition here may have a metaphorical sense. 51.8 The bones that you have crushed may refer to actual sickness or be metaphorical for any situation of distress. 51.11 Your holy spirit, i.e., God's sustaining, powerful presence. 51.13–15 A vow to instruct and to praise. 51.13 Your ways can refer both to the divine commandments and to God's merciful and forgiving way of dealing with sinners. 51.14 Bloodshed is an enigmatic term that may mean the death that should come either from the illness, if such is to be assumed, or from the guilt acknowledged in the psalm. 51.16–17 A recognition of the need for penitence as the necessary offering to God by the sinner. Cf. 50.7–15, 23. 51.18–19 Probably a later addition relating the prayer to the needs of the larger community and placing sacrifice in the context of proper worship in the temple and a proper spirit. 51.19 Right sacrifices can mean those done according to the appropriate prescriptions of the law or those offered with the right attitude and in the right relationship to God.

Psalm 53*Denunciation of Godlessness*

To the leader: according to Mahalath.
A Maskil of David.

- ¹ Fools say in their hearts, “There
is no God.”

They are corrupt, they commit abominable acts;
there is no one who does
good.

- ² God looks down from heaven on
humankind
to see if there are any who are
wise,
who seek after God.
³ They have all fallen away, they
are all alike perverse;
there is no one who does
good,
no, not one.
⁴ Have they no knowledge, those
evildoers,
who eat up my people as they
eat bread,
and do not call upon God?
⁵ There they shall be in great
terror,
in terror such as has not been.
For God will scatter the bones of the ungodly;^f
they will be put to shame,^g for God has rejected them.

The occasion alluded to in the superscription (cf. 1 Sam 21.1–8; 22.6–19) fits only very loosely with the details of the psalm. 52.1–4 The accusation against the wicked one. For a similar use of questions as an indictment, see 50.16; Isa 22.15–19. The accusation is of scheming to do in members of the community (the godly), who are probably among the poor and less powerful. Vv. 1b–4 suggest that lying is the principal manifestation, slander or false accusation against others, though acts of fraud and deception to secure the wealth of others may be meant. 52.1 Mighty one, a term of sarcasm that points to the power and wealth (v. 7) as well as the self-image of the one accused. 52.3 Selah. See note on 3.2. 52.5–7 An announcement of judgment against the wicked one who believes security is found in riches rather than God. 52.8–9 A song of thanksgiving by the psalmist who, in distinction from the “mighty one,” trusts in God and is delivered (v. 9a).

Psalm 60

Prayer for National Victory After Defeat

To the leader: according to the Lily of the Covenant. A Miktam of David; for instruction; when he struggled with Aram-naharaim and with Aram-zobah, and when Joab on his return killed twelve thousand Edomites in the Valley of Salt.

- 1 O God, you have rejected us,
broken our defenses;
you have been angry; now
restore us!
- 2 You have caused the land to quake; you have torn it
open;
repair the cracks in it, for it is tottering.
- 3 You have made your people
suffer hard things;
you have given us wine to drink
that made us reel.
- 4 You have set up a banner for those who fear you,
to rally to it out of bowshot.^s
Selah
- 5 Give victory with your right hand,
and answer us,^t
so that those whom you love
may be rescued.
- 6 God has promised in his
sanctuary:^u

"With exultation I will divide up Shechem,
and portion out the Vale of Succoth.

- 7 Gilead is mine, and Manasseh is mine;
Ephraim is my helmet;
Judah is my scepter.
- 8 Moab is my washbasin;
on Edom I hurl my shoe;
over Philistia I shout in
triumph."
- 9 Who will bring me to the fortified
city?
Who will lead me to Edom?
- 10 Have you not rejected us, O God?
You do not go out, O God,
with our armies.
- 11 O grant us help against the foe,
for human help is worthless.
- 12 With God we shall do valiantly;
it is he who will tread down our
foes.

Psalm 61

Assurance of God's Protection

To the leader: with stringed instruments.
Of David.

- 1 Hear my cry, O God;
listen to my prayer.

^s Gk Syr Jerome: Heb because of the truth

^t Another reading is me ^u Or by his holiness

60.1–12 A prayer of the community for God's help. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. According to the Lily of the Covenant perhaps refers to a melody. Miktam. See note on 16.1–11. When he struggled with Aram-naharaim and with Aram-zobah. See 2 Sam 8.3–8; 10.6–18. Twelve thousand Edomites in the Valley of Salt. See 2 Sam 8.13. Joab was David's general. These historical allusions are probably secondary. Some event of national defeat lies behind the origin of the psalm, but it is not possible to determine which event with any certainty. 60.1–4 A complaint to God, who is seen as the ultimate source of the national suffering. 60.4 Perhaps to be understood as a request rather than a declaration, i.e., "Set up a banner." Selah. See note on 3.2. 60.5 Plea for help (v. 5a) and motivation offered (v. 5b). 60.5–12 Repeated in 108.6–13. 60.6–8 Divine response asserting God's power and rule over Israel and Judah and their enemies. It was probably delivered by a priest or prophet in the temple. 60.6 I will divide up . . . and portion out is God's claim of ownership. Shechem was one of the main towns in the Northern Kingdom, Israel. 60.6b–7 Vale of Succoth, Gilead, and Manasseh were areas east of the Jordan. Ephraim may be the hill country of the Northern Kingdom or a term for the kingdom as a whole. Judah is the Southern Kingdom, where the Davidic king ruled (i.e., God's scepter). 60.8 Moab, Edom, and Philistia were often in conflict with Israel. Hurl my shoe is an image indicating possession (cf. Ruth 4.7–8). 60.9–12 A plea for help on the part of the king or some representative figure. The meaning of v. 9 is unclear. The complaint of v. 10 echoes the complaint of v. 1 and leads into the final petition (v. 11) and the expression of confidence (v. 12).

61.1–8 A prayer by an individual for help. To the leader: with stringed instruments. See note on 4.1–8. 61.1–2a Cry for help. From the end of the earth suggests the psalmist is distant from the sanctuary (cf. 42.6; 84.2). 61.2b–5 The psalmist

- 2 From the end of the earth I call
to you,
when my heart is faint.
- Lead me to the rock
that is higher than I;
3 for you are my refuge,
a strong tower against the enemy.
- 4 Let me abide in your tent
forever,
find refuge under the shelter
of your wings. Selah
- 5 For you, O God, have heard my vows;
you have given me the heritage
of those who fear your
name.
- 6 Prolong the life of the king;
may his years endure to all
generations!
- 7 May he be enthroned forever
before God;
appoint steadfast love and faithfulness to watch
over him!
- 8 So I will always sing praises to
your name,
as I pay my vows day after day.

Song of Trust in God Alone

To the leader: according to Jeduthun.
A Psalm of David.

- 1 For God alone my soul waits in
silence;
from him comes my salvation.
- 2 He alone is my rock and my
salvation,

- my fortress; I shall never be shaken.
- 3 How long will you assail a person,
will you batter your victim, all
of you,
as you would a leaning wall, a tottering fence?
- 4 Their only plan is to bring down
a person of prominence.
They take pleasure in

they bless with their mouths,
but inwardly they curse. Selah
- 5 For God alone my soul waits in
silence,
for my hope is from him.
- 6 He alone is my rock and my
salvation,
my fortress; I shall not be shaken.
- 7 On God rests my deliverance and
my honor;
my mighty rock, my refuge is in God.
- 8 Trust in him at all times,
O people;
pour out your heart
before him;
God is a refuge for us. Selah
- 9 Those of low estate are but a breath,
those of high estate are a

in the balances they go up;
they are together lighter than a

62.1–12 A prayer of trust in God in the face of persecution. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8.

According to Jeduthun. See note on 77.1–20. 62.1–7 Expression of trust by the psalmist. The theme is set at the beginning (vv. 1–2) and then repeated at the end (vv. 5–7). In between (vv. 3–4) the psalmist laments over the oppression inflicted by others that has evoked this prayer. The psalmist has been battered for some time by the lies, curses (magical incantations), and hypocrisy of the enemies. 62.4 Selah. See note on 3.2. 62.8–10 Instruction to the community also to trust in God and not in immoral and oppressive

Comfort and Assurance in God's Presence

A Psalm of David, when he was in the Wilderness of Judah.

- 1 O God, you are my God, I seek you,
my soul thirsts for you;
my flesh faints for you,
as in a dry and weary land
where there is no water.
2 So I have looked upon you in the sanctuary,
beholding your power and glory.
3 Because your steadfast love is better than life,
my lips will praise you.
4 So I will bless you as long as I live;
I will lift up my hands and call
on your name.
5 My soul is satisfied as with a rich feast,^v
and my mouth praises you with joyful lips
6 when I think of you on my bed,
and meditate on you in the watches of the night;
7 for you have been my help,

- and in the shadow of your wings I sing for joy.
8 My soul clings to you;
your right hand upholds me.
9 But those who seek to destroy my life
shall go down into the depths
of the earth;
10 they shall be given over to the power of the sword,
they shall be prey for jackals.
11 But the king shall rejoice in God;
all who swear by him shall
exult,
for the mouths of liars will be stopped.

Prayer for Protection from Enemies

To the leader. A Psalm of David.

- 1 Hear my voice, O God, in my preserve my life from the dread enemy.

2 Hide me from the secret plots of
the wicked,
from the scheming of evildoers, 3 who whet their tongues like

who aim bitter words like

they shoot suddenly and acts. 62.11–12 Reference to God's promise of protection, possibly an oracle of salvation, that evokes the confidence expressed in the prayer.

63.1–11 A prayer for help in the sanctuary, in which the psalmist is confident of God's overthrow of those who are persecuting. When he was in the Wilderness of Judah may refer to 1 Sam 23.14–15 or 24.1. This secondary historical allusion may be suggested by v. 1b. 63.1–2 The longing of the psalmist for the divine presence. 63.1 Cf. 42.1–2. 63.2 It is unclear if the psalmist is looking for or has already seen God in some way in the sanctuary (cf. 5.3; 27.4). 63.3–8 Confident of God's help, the psalmist gives praise. 63.6 Cf. 4.4; 16.7; 77.2, 6. Watches. See note on 90.4. There may be allusion here to waiting through the night in the sanctuary for God's help in the morning. 63.7 Shadow of your wings. See notes on 91.1; 91.4. 63.9–10 Confidence of the psalmist in the downfall of the oppressors. Here, as elsewhere, they may be false accusers or slanderers (see v. 11b). 63.11 A form of intercession for the king as God's representative. By him, i.e., by the king. For oaths sworn in the name of the king, see 1 Sam 17.55; 25.26; 2 Sam 11.11; 15.21.

64.1–10 A prayer by an individual for help. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. 64.1–2 Cry for help. 64.2–6 Beginning already in the plea, the psalmist lays out the distress brought about by wicked enemies. Cf. notes on 10.1–11.

2 O you who answer prayer!
To you all flesh shall come.
3 When deeds of iniquity
overwhelm us,
you forgive our transgressions.

We shall be satisfied with the

- 5 By awesome deeds you answer us

O God of our salvation;
you are the hope of all the ends

- 6 By your^z strength you established the mountains;
you are girded with might.
- 7 You silence the roaring of the seas,
the roaring of their waves,
the tumult of the peoples.
- 8 Those who live at earth's farthest bounds are awed by your signs;
you make the gateways of the morning and the evening
shout for joy.
- 9 You visit the earth and water it,
you greatly enrich it;
the river of God is full of water;
you provide the people with grain,
for so you have prepared it.
- 10 You water its furrows abundantly,
settling its ridges,
softening it with showers,
and blessing its growth.
- 11 You crown the year with your bounty;

64.7–9 God's destruction of the enemies. These verses are probably to be read as a past-tense report of what God did and the testimony to it by those who witnessed it. 64.7 Shoot his arrow, poetic justice—the judgment of God corresponds to the sins of the wicked (vv. 3–4). 64.10 Concluding call to praise.

Either particular or repeated occasions in which Israel experienced a good harvest may have given rise to the singing of this hymn. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. 65.1–5 The people give praise to God, who dwells in Zion and has

See note on 1.1. 65.6–8 Praise to God as the creator of the world. God's subduing of the waters of chaos may lie behind v. 7 (cf. 74.12–14; 89.9–10; note on 77.16). 65.9–13 Praise to God, who nourishes the earth and so provides bountiful harvest and many flocks. 65.9 River of God. See note on 46.4. 65.11 Your wagon tracks, either the imagery of God riding the clouds in a chariot (e.g., 68.4, 33) or a poetic way of speaking about God's providential presence in the land.

67.1–7 A prayer of benediction or blessing together with a call to all peoples to praise the Lord who blesses Israel. To the leader: with stringed instruments. See note on 4.1–8. 67.1–2 Prayer for God's blessing in the language of the Aaronite benediction (Num 6.24–26). The reason for the blessing is that Israel's experience of God's favor may be a witness to all the nations (cf. Pss 117; 126.2). 67.1 Make his face to shine upon us. See note on 31.16. Selah. See note on 3.2. 67.3–5 Call to the nations to praise the Lord who rules justly over all peoples. 67.6–7 A final prayer for God's blessing in the provision of produce from the land. V. 6 perhaps should be read like v. 1, i.e., as a prayer, "May the earth yield its increase; may God, our God, bless us."

68.1–35 A hymn of praise for God's awesome appearance to the people in power and victory. The unity and order of the hymn are difficult to discern and some have seen it as a collection of fragments. Its interpretation as a whole is problematic. It may have been associated in its origin with God's appearance at one of the sanctuaries, but in its present form it has been adapted for worship in the Jerusalem temple (v. 29). The various references to marching and procession (vv. 7–8, 17–18, 24–27) and to music (vv. 4, 25, 32) suggest use of the psalm in the festivals of Israel's worship. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. 68.1–3 Call to God to go forth in victory against the enemy. The words are a form of the ancient Song of the Ark in Num 10.35. It was sung as the Lord, enthroned on the ark, went forth to war, leading the people (cf. 1 Sam 4). 68.4–6 Hymn of praise exalting God as protector of the weak. 68.4 Rides upon the clouds is an ancient epithet of the Canaanite storm god applied to the Lord of Israel. Prayer for Deliverance from Persecution

To the leader: according to Lilies. Of David.

- 1 Save me, O God,
for the waters have come up to my neck.
- 2 I sink in deep mire,
where there is no foothold;
I have come into deep waters,
and the flood sweeps over me.

My eyes grow dim

my enemies who accuse me
falsely.
What I did not steal

72.1-19 A royal psalm possibly on the occasion of the coronation of a king. Cf. the concluding doxology (vv. 17-18) with David's doxology upon hearing of the coronation of Solomon (1 Kings 1.48). The ascription to Solomon is suggested by several features of the psalm, including his being a king's son and a wise judge (v. 1), the broad extent of his rule (v. 8), and rulers coming to him from afar bearing tribute and gifts (vv. 8-11, 15; cf. 1 Kings 10). 72.1-7 A prayer for the king to live long, ruling justly. Justice, or "judgments" in the Hebrew, possibly refers to the specific righteous judgments of the king (cf. 2 Sam 15.1-6; 1 Kings 3.16-28). 72.4 The particular concern of the just king is the poor and the needy, who could appeal to the king when there was no other way of gaining justice. 72.8-14 The rule of this righteous king is universal (vv. 8-11) because (v. 12) he is totally committed to delivering the weak and the poor from violence and oppression (vv. 12-14). 72.15-17 A reiteration of the prayer for the long life of the king and blessings upon him and through him. 72.15 Gold of Sheba. Sheba, located most likely in the southwest of the Arabian peninsula, was known in the or for its gold and legendary wealth (see 1 Kings 10.2; Isa 60.6; Ezek 27.22). 72.17 May all nations be blessed in him is an allusion to the blessing to the nations through Abraham (Gen 12.3; 18.18; 22.18; 28.14). It is through the righteous king that that blessing shall be effected in a kingdom of righteousness and

- 2 But as for me, my feet had

loftily they threaten oppression.

In fact, later psalms in the Psalter are also ascribed to him.

See note on 50.1–23. 73.1–3 In a basic affirmation of trust, the psalmist agrees with others that God is good to the upright (Pss 1; 37; 49) but tells of almost being temptation to think and act like the wicked is felt and resisted, but trying to comprehend is troublesome. 73.17–20 In the turning point of the psalm (v. 17), an encounter with God (cf. Job 42.1–6) in the sanctuary gives the psalmist an understanding that in the end God will deal justly with the wicked (vv. 18–20; cf. Ps 37). 73.21–28 The psalmist now sees the stupidity of focusing on the prosperity of the wicked (vv. 21–22) and expresses confidence in God's presence (vv. 23, 27–28), guidance (v. 24), and 10 How long, O God, is the foe to scoff? Is the enemy to revile your name forever?

 11 Why do you hold back your hand; why do you keep your hand in^a your bosom?
 12 Yet God my King is from of old, working salvation in the earth.
 13 You divided the sea by your might; you broke the heads of the dragons in the waters.
 14 You crushed the heads of Leviathan; you gave him as food^b for the creatures of the wilderness.
 15 You cut openings for springs and torrents; you dried up ever-flowing streams.
 16 Yours is the day, yours also the night; you established the luminaries^c and the sun.
 17 You have fixed all the bounds of the earth; you made summer and winter.

- 18 Remember this, O LORD, how the enemy scoffs, and an impious people reviles your name.
 19 Do not deliver the soul of your dove to the wild animals; do not forget the life of your poor forever.
 20 Have regard for your^d covenant, for the dark places of the land are full of the haunts of violence.

military standards. 74.9–11 A complaint to God over the absence of divine intervention. 74.9 Emblems, probably to be translated as "signs" here. It may mean that the prophetic signs that promised a quick end to suffering have not come true. There is no longer any prophet may mean that the speakers have lost all confidence in those prophets still around. There is no prophet who knows how long the suffering is to last. For prophetic signs that tell how long something will last, see 2 Kings 19.29; Isa 7.14–16. Such failure of contemporary prophecy may be demonstrated in Jer 28.1–4. 74.10 How long? See note on 6.3. 74.12–17 Expression of trust and praise of the creator. 74.13–15 The picture is of the mythological creation battle in which the watery forces of chaos, portrayed as monsters, are defeated by the Lord at the beginning of creation. See 93.3: 104.7–9; Job 38.8–11; cf. Isa 27.1. Israel associated this language with God's "creation" of the people in the crossing of the sea (cf. Ex 15.1–18; Isa 51.9–11). Both images may be in view here. 74.18–23 A series of petitions urging God to help and giving various motivations that suggest that God's cause, name, and covenant are at stake in Israel's distress.

75.1–10 A community prayer of thanksgiving. The psalm gives thanks to God and announces divine judgment on the arrogant wicked. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. Do Not Destroy. Meaning uncertain. Asaph. See note on 50.1–23. 75.1 The community praises God for marvelous

Psalm 76

Israel's God—Judge of All the Earth

To the leader: with stringed instruments.
A Psalm of Asaph. A Song.

- 1 In Judah God is known,
his name is great in Israel.
- 2 His abode has been established in Salem,
his dwelling place in Zion.
- 3 There he broke the flashing
arrows,
the shield, the sword, and the weapons of war. Selah
- 4 Glorious are you, more majestic
than the everlasting

- 5 The stouthearted were stripped
of their spoil;
they sank into sleep;
none of the troops
was able to lift a hand.
- 6 At your rebuke, O God of Jacob,
both rider and horse lay

- 7 But you indeed are awesome!
Who can stand before you when once your anger is roused?

judgment;
the earth feared and was still acts of deliverance. 75.2–5 The Lord speaks through a prophetic or priestly voice to announce righteous judgment. 75.3 TotTERS. See 46.2–3, 6. Selah. See note on 3.2. 75.4–5 Horn, a symbol of might or power (cf. v. 10). 75.6–8 God's judgment of the wicked. 75.7 Putting down one and lifting up another is a frequent way of expressing God's vindication of the innocent and righteous and judgment of the wicked (see 113.7; 145.8; 146.6). 75.8 Cup, a symbol of divine judgment (see 11.6; Isa 51.17; Jer 25.15, 28; Hab 2.16). 75.9–10 The themes of praise and divine judgment are brought together in the conclusion. I, either the community or its representative in v. 9 but the Lord in v. 10.

See note on 4.1–8. Asaph. See note on 50.1–23. 76.1–2 God's abode and place of powerful activity is Zion or Jerusalem. 76.2 Abode, lit. "lair" or "covert" (of a fierce animal). Salem, an ancient name for Jerusalem (see Gen 14.18). 76.3–6 The Lord's battle against the armies. 76.3 God's destruction of all the weapons of war is associated with the divine activity from Zion (see 46.9). Flashing arrows, lit. "flames of the bow," may refer to the fire arrows of besiegers. Selah. See note on 3.2. 76.4–6 The destruction of the weapons is matched by rendering the warriors powerless, a theme of Israel's ancient holy wars. 76.6 Rider and horse. See Ex 15.1. 76.7–9 The victory is an act of divine judgment against the oppressive rulers and of salvation for the weak

God's Mighty Deeds Recalled

To the leader: according to Jeduthun. Of Asaph. A Psalm.

- 1 I cry aloud to God, aloud to God, that he may
hear me.
2 In the day of my trouble I seek
the Lord;
in the night my hand is stretched out without

my soul refuses to be

I meditate, and my spirit faints.

I meditate and search my spirit:ⁱ
7 "Will the Lord spurn forever,
and never again be favorable?
8 Has his steadfast love ceased

Are his promises at an end for all time?
9 Has God forgotten to be gracious?
Has he in anger shut up his

10 And I say, "It is my grief that the right hand of the Most 11 I will call to mind the deeds of

the LORD;
I will remember your wonders

12 I will meditate on all your work,
and muse on your mighty

13 Your way, O God, is holy.
What god is so great as you have displayed your might

and afflicted. 76.10 The underlying Hebrew of this verse is uncertain and ambiguous. Human wrath could also be read as God's "wrath against humans." The meaning, at any rate, is something like, when God crushes those that rise against him, it will resound to God's praise. God's wrath in the OT is a dimension of God's righteousness and justice directed against evildoers. It is also tempered by God's love and compassion (see 103.8; Ex 34.6; Num 14.18; Isa 54.7–8; Hos 11.8–9; Jon 4.2). 76.11–12 An exhortation to the community to praise the God (v. 11), who does what the psalm has declared so vividly (v. 12).

77.1–20 A prayer for help that moves into a hymn as the psalmist recalls God's wondrous acts. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. According to Jeduthun, i.e., in the style of one of David's musicians (1 Chr 9.16; 16.38). Asaph. See note on 50.1–23. 77.1–10 The prayer for help. 77.1–3 A cry to God. 77.2, 6 In the night is often the time of prayer. My hand is stretched out in prayer. 77.3 Selah. See note on 3.2. 77.4–10 A complaint against God that centers in questions about God's love and faithfulness. 77.11–20 The song of praise. 77.11–15 As a way of gaining confidence that God has not forgotten to be gracious (v. 9) but will give help in the present distress, the praying one recalls the wonderful redemptive acts

Psalm 78

God's Goodness and Israel's Ingratitude

A Maskil of Asaph.

- 1 Give ear, O my people, to my teaching;
incline your ears to the words
of my mouth.
2 I will open my mouth in a parable;
I will utter dark sayings from
of old,
3 things that we have heard and known,

- that our ancestors have told us.
4 We will not hide them from their children;
we will tell to the coming generation
the glorious deeds of the LORD,
and his might,
and the wonders that he has done.
5 He established a decree in Jacob,
and appointed a law in Israel,
which he commanded our ancestors
to teach to their children; 6 that the next generation might know them,
the children yet unborn,
and rise up and tell them to their
children,
7 so that they should set their hope in God,
and not forget the works of God,
but keep his commandments;
8 and that they should not be like their ancestors,
a stubborn and rebellious
generation,
a generation whose heart was not steadfast,
whose spirit was not faithful to God.

of God for the people in the past. 77.16–20 A recollection of the powerful appearance of God at the crossing of the Red Sea by the Israelites in their escape from Egypt. 77.16 The waters and the very deep may be the primeval waters of chaos at the creation as well as the waters of the Red Sea. 77.17 Your arrows, i.e., lightning bolts. 77.19 Your way was through the sea in leading the Israelites across the Red Sea. Yet your footprints were unseen refers to the appearance and work of God that is without visible proof, in the present as well as in the past. 77.20 Moses and Aaron, the leaders of Israel during the exodus and the journey through the wilderness. See the book of Exodus.

78.1–72 A historical psalm (cf. Pss 105; 106; 136) recounting the story of God's care of Israel and the people's response of continuing sin and faithlessness. The account goes only down to the time of David (vv. 70–71). It may be compared with Deut 32. The recital is meant to be instructive. Maskil. See note on 32.1–11. Asaph. See note on 50.1–23. 78.1–8 Passing on God's instruction (vv. 1–5) so that each generation might learn to trust in God and not forget the divine teaching (vv. 6–8). 78.1 The speaker of this verse is probably some priest or teacher of wisdom. 78.2 Parable, a poem or song that is didactic in character. Dark sayings, lit. "riddles." The story is seen as having mysterious or enigmatic dimensions, possibly the puzzle of why Israel rebelled against the God who cared for them. 78.5 Decree, i.e., covenant. See the term "covenant" in parallel with "law" in v. 10 as "decree" is in parallel with it here. 78.8 Cf. the Deuteronomic law for punishing a "stubborn and rebellious" son in Deut 21.18–21. 78.9–16 The people forgot all that the Lord had done for them in the deliver-

- turned back on the day of battle.
- 10 They did not keep God's covenant,
but refused to walk according to his law.
- 11 They forgot what he had done,
and the miracles that he had shown them.
- 12 In the sight of their ancestors he worked marvels
in the land of Egypt, in the fields of Zoan.
- 13 He divided the sea and let them pass through it,
and made the waters stand like a heap.
- 14 In the daytime he led them with a cloud,
and all night long with a fiery light.
- 15 He split rocks open in the wilderness,
and gave them drink abundantly as from the deep.
- 16 He made streams come out of the rock,
and caused waters to flow down like rivers.
- 17 Yet they sinned still more against him,
rebellng against the Most High in the desert.
- 18 They tested God in their heart by demanding the food they craved.
- 19 They spoke against God, saying,
"Can God spread a table in the wilderness?"
- 20 Even though he struck the rock so that water gushed out and torrents overflowed,
can he also give bread,
or provide meat for his people?"
- 21 Therefore, when the LORD heard,
he was full of rage;
a fire was kindled against Jacob,
his anger mounted against Israel,
because they had no faith in God,
and did not trust his saving power.
- 23 Yet he commanded the skies above,
and opened the doors of heaven;
he rained down on them manna to eat,
and gave them the grain of heaven.
- 25 Mortals ate of the bread of angels;
he sent them food in abundance.
- 26 He caused the east wind to blow in the heavens,
and by his power he led out the south wind;
he rained flesh upon them like dust,
winged birds like the sand of the seas;
- 28 he let them fall within their camp,
all around their dwellings.
- 29 And they ate and were well filled,
for he gave them what they craved.
- 30 But before they had satisfied their craving,
while the food was still in their mouths,
the anger of God rose against them
and he killed the strongest of them,
and laid low the flower of Israel.

Cf. Ex 15.8. 78.14–16 God's leading and care of the Israelites in the wilderness. Cf. Ex 17.1–6;

Num 20.2–13. 78.17–31 The people continued to rebel in the wilderness despite God's provision (Ex 16–17). So God came in wrath against them. 78.18 Tested God. - 32 In spite of all this they still sinned;
they did not believe in his wonders.
- 33 So he made their days vanish like
a breath,
and their years in terror.
- 34 When he killed them, they sought
for him;
they repented and sought God
earnestly.
- 35 They remembered that God was their rock,
the Most High God their redeemer.
- 36 But they flattered him with their
mouths;
they lied to him with their tongues.
- 37 Their heart was not steadfast toward him;
they were not true to his
covenant.
- 38 Yet he, being compassionate,
forgave their iniquity,
and did not destroy them;
often he restrained his anger,
and did not stir up all his
wrath.
- 39 He remembered that they were but flesh,
a wind that passes and does not come again.
- 40 How often they rebelled against him in the wilderness
and grieved him in the desert!
- 41 They tested God again and again,
and provoked the Holy One of Israel.
- 42 They did not keep in mind his power,
or the day when he redeemed
them from the foe;
- 43 when he displayed his signs in Egypt,
and his miracles in the fields of Zoan.
- 44 He turned their rivers to blood,
so that they could not drink of their streams.
- 45 He sent among them swarms of flies, which devoured them,
and frogs, which destroyed
them.
- 46 He gave their crops to the caterpillar,
and the fruit of their labor to
the locust.
- 47 He destroyed their vines with
hail,
and their sycamores with frost.
- 48 He gave over their cattle to the
hail,
and their flocks to
thunderbolts.
- 49 He let loose on them his fierce
anger,
wrath, indignation, and distress,
a company of destroying angels.
- 50 He made a path for his anger;
he did not spare them from
death,
but gave their lives over to the plague.
- 51 He struck all the firstborn in Egypt,
the first issue of their strength
in the tents of Ham.
- 52 Then he led out his people like sheep,
and guided them in the wilderness like a flock.
- 53 He led them in safety, so that they were not afraid;
but the sea overwhelmed their
enemies.
- 54 And he brought them to his holy
hill,
to the mountain that his right hand had won.
- 55 He drove out nations before
them;
he apportioned them for a

See note on 78.12. 78.51 Ham, a son of Noah and traditionally viewed as the ancestor of the Egyptians according to Gen 10.6. 78.52–55 The journey from Egypt into Canaan as a divine leading. 78.54 Holy hill, mountain, probably the land of

with their high places;

with their idols.
- 59 When God heard, he was full of

and he utterly rejected Israel.
- 60 He abandoned his dwelling at Shiloh,
the tent where he dwelt among mortals,
- 61 and delivered his power to captivity,
his glory to the hand of
the foe.
- 62 He gave his people to the sword,
and vented his wrath on his heritage.
- 63 Fire devoured their young men,
and their girls had no marriage
song.
- 64 Their priests fell by the sword,
and their widows made no lamentation.
- 65 Then the Lord awoke as from sleep,

- like a warrior shouting because
of wine.
- 66 He put his adversaries to rout;
he put them to everlasting disgrace.
- 67 He rejected the tent of Joseph,
he did not choose the tribe of Ephraim;
- 68 but he chose the tribe of Judah,
Mount Zion, which he loves.
- 69 He built his sanctuary like the

like the earth, which he has

Psalm 79

Plea for Mercy for Jerusalem

A Psalm of Asaph.

- 1 O God, the nations have come into your inheritance;
they have defiled your holy
temple;

Canaan. 78.56–66 The people's sin and God's consequent anger, now in the time of settlement in Canaan, the period of the judges. 78.56 Decrees, the commandments and statutes that made up the requirements of the covenant. See note on 78.5. 78.58 High places, sites of idolatrous worship. 78.60 Dwelling at Shiloh, the tent shrine at the central sanctuary of Israel during the period of the judges (Josh 18.1; 1 Sam 1.9). Its destruction is mentioned by Jeremiah in Jer 7.12–15; 26.6. 78.61 His power and his glory are references to the ark of the covenant, which was taken by the Philistines at the battle of Ebenezer (1 Sam 4.1–7.1). The Philistine conquest was an act of judgment upon Israel by the Lord. 78.65–66 The defeat of the Philistines through the victories of Saul and David. The imagery is of God as a mighty warrior roused for battle and stimulated by wine. 78.67–72 God's choice of Zion as the place of divine dwelling and of David as king. The psalm sees the culmination of the story of Israel in the rejection of the northern tribes (Ephraim) and the choice of Judah as the locus of divine dwelling and human leadership. 79.1–13 A prayer by the community for help because Jerusalem and the temple have been destroyed, probably the Babylonian destruction in 587 B.C.E. The frequent use of "your" in reference to God indicates that the community sees the destruction as in some sense an attack on God and expects a divine response as a defense of God's own reputation. Asaph. See note on 50.1–23. 79.1–5 A complaint to God because of the destruction of Jerusalem and its people. 79.1 Your inheritance. See Deut 32.8–9. Judah's loss is God's

- 3 They have poured out their blood like water all around Jerusalem, and there was no one to bury them.

- 6 Pour out your anger on the nations that do not know you, and on the kingdoms that do not call on your name.
- 7 For they have devoured Jacob and laid waste his habitation.
- 8 Do not remember against us the iniquities of our ancestors; let your compassion come speedily to meet us, for we are brought very low.

Let the avenging of the

To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. On Lilies. See note on 45.1–17. Covenant, sometimes translated as "testimony" (cf. The image is associated with kings and rulers (e.g., Jer 23.1–6; Ezek 34). Enthroned upon the cherubim refers to the Lord's invisible abode upon the cherubim of the ark of the covenant (1 Sam 4.4). Shine forth is a way of speaking of God's appearing in might to do battle (cf. 50.2; 94.1). Before Ephraim and Benjamin and Manasseh may refer to all the tribes of the Northern Kingdom or to those left after other tribal groups had been exiled by the Assyrians. The tribes were understood to march in this order behind the ark in the journey through the wilderness (Num 2.32–34). 80.3 A refrain (see Num 29). 81.5a For the identification of the Festival of Tabernacles (or Booths) as a regulation from the time of the exodus out of Egypt, see Lev 23.41–43. Joseph, a term for Israel in Egypt. 81.5b–16 A prophetic or priestly voice speaks for God. 81.5b–10 The Lord's deliverance of Israel in the exodus is a lesson for the people. The one who redeemed the Israelites called them to an uncompromising loyalty as God's people. 81.5b A voice I had not known probably refers to the mysterious voice of the Lord, thus giving authority to the words of God that are quoted in the following verses. 81.6 Burden, basket, referring to the labors in Egypt. 81.7 In distress you called. 82.1–8 A call for God's rule of the nations to ensure justice for the weak. The psalm is a literary report of the action of the divine council or heavenly assembly similar to the prophetic reports recounted in 1 Kings 22.19–23; Isa 6.1–13; Jer 23.18–22. A common conception in the ancient Near East, the council of the gods was understood to be the place in which the governance of the universe was carried out. Asaph. See note on Ps 50.1–23. 82.1–4 The God of Israel rises in the council of the gods to accuse the gods of the nations of not having maintained the right to justice of the weak and the poor, the primary criterion of a just order in ancient Israel. 82.2 How long? is the typical complaint against God of the sufferer

Prayer for Judgment on Israel's Foes

A Song. A Psalm of Asaph.

- 1 O God, do not keep silence;
do not hold your peace or be still, O God!
- 2 Even now your enemies are in tumult;

- those who hate you have raised their heads.
- 3 They lay crafty plans against your people;
they consult together against those you protect.
- 4 They say, "Come, let us wipe them out as a nation;
let the name of Israel be remembered no more."
- 5 They conspire with one accord;
against you they make a covenant —

Philistia with the inhabitants of Tyre;
8 Assyria also has joined them;
they are the strong arm of the children of Lot. Selah

as to Sisera and Jabin at the Wadi Kishon,
10 who were destroyed at En-dor,

It also becomes a part of prophetic indictment of the wickedness of the people (Jer 4.14; 13.27; 23.26; Hos 8.5; Hab 2.6). Selah. See note on 3.2. 82.5 Either blindly or intentionally the gods do not know the way of justice. As a consequence, the just order of the universe is undermined. 82.6–7 The God of Israel strips the heavenly powers of their divine character and condemns the immortal gods to mortality. V. 6a is quoted in Jn 10.34. 82.8 The psalmist, perhaps a priestly or prophetic voice, calls upon God to take over the rule of the nations from all the other gods.

83.1–18 A prayer of the community for God's help against enemies. Asaph. See note on 50.1–23. 83.1–8 A plea to God not to be inactive and quiescent in the face of the conspiracy of the nations against Israel. In their plotting against Israel they conspire also against God (v. 5) and so are God's enemies as well (v. 2). The fate of the Lord of Israel is seen as allied to the fate of the Lord's people. 83.6–8 There is no particular historical moment with which such a grouping of nations against Israel can be associated. 83.8 Children of Lot, the Moabites and Ammonites (Gen 19.36–38). Selah. See note on 3.2. 83.9–18 Petitions for God's destruction of the enemies. 83.9 Midian alludes to Gideon's destruction of the Midianites (Judg 6–8). Sisera and Jabin were defeated by the Israelites under the leadership of Deborah and Barak (Judg 4–5). 83.11 Oreb and Zeeb, Zebah and Zalmunna, Midianite leaders defeated by Israel (Judg 7.25; 8.4–21).

The Joy of Worship in the Temple

To the leader: according to The Gittith. Of the Korahites. A Psalm.

- 1 How lovely is your dwelling place,
O LORD of hosts!
2 My soul longs, indeed it faints
for the courts of the LORD;
my heart and my flesh sing
for joy
to the living God.
3 Even the sparrow finds a home,
and the swallow a nest for herself,
where she may lay her young,
at your altars, O LORD of hosts,
my King and my God.
4 Happy are those who live in your house,
ever singing your praise. Selah

- 5 Happy are those whose strength
is in you,
in whose heart are the

6 As they go through the valley of Baca
they make it a place of springs;
the early rain also covers it with pools.
7 They go from strength to strength;
the God of gods will be seen in Zion.
8 O LORD God of hosts, hear my
prayer;
give ear, O God of Jacob! Selah
9 Behold our shield, O God;
look on the face of your
anointed.
10 For a day in your courts is better than a thousand elsewhere.
I would rather be a doorkeeper
in the house of my God
than live in the tents of wickedness.
11 For the LORD God is a sun and
shield;
he bestows favor and honor.
No good thing does the LORD withhold
from those who walk uprightly.
12 O LORD of hosts,
happy is everyone who trusts
in you.

Psalm 86

Supplication for Help Against Enemies

A Prayer of David.

- 1 Incline your ear, O LORD, and answer me,
for I am poor and needy.
- 2 Preserve my life, for I am devoted to you;
save your servant who trusts in you.
You are my God; ³be gracious to me, O Lord, abounding in steadfast love to all who call on you.

- 6 Give ear, O LORD, to my prayer;
listen to my cry of supplication.
- 7 In the day of my trouble I call on you,
for you will answer me.
- 8 There is none like you among the gods, O Lord,
nor are there any works like yours.

^t Gk: Heb but let them not turn back to folly

See note on 42.1–43.5. 85.1–3 Recollection of God's forgiveness and favor in the past. The particular occasion referred to is not indicated in the psalm. It may have been the return from exile in Babylon. Selah. See note on 3.2. 85.4–7 The prayer itself that God may grant forgiveness and favor in the present distress. 85.8–13 The word of the Lord is declared in this situation. It is an announcement of salvation by the psalmist or possibly by a priest or prophet. The message is one of peace or well-being (v. 8), which is then elaborated in the following verses. 85.9 Fear. See note on 34.7. 85.10–13 Steadfast love, faithfulness, righteousness, and peace are divine attributes here personified as messengers or servants who meet in concord (v. 10), fill and cover the earth (v. 12), and go before the Lord as heralds before a king (v. 13). Cf. 89.14.

86.1–17 An individual prayer for help. 86.1–7 A series of petitions for God's attention (vv. 1, 6–7) and help (vv. 2–4) are grounded in a number of reasons justifying the prayer and God's help. The reasons have to do with the plight of the psalmist (vv. 1b, 7a), the devotion of the psalmist (vv. 2a, 2b, 3b, 4b), and the nature of God (vv. 2b, 5, 7b). 86.8–13 Praise and thanking for God's help. 86.8–10 Hymnic exaltation of the power and glory of God. 86.8 See Ex

See note on 6.5. 86.14–17 The prayer for help is renewed; the reasons set forth are rooted in God's gracious character (vv. 15, 17b). 86.14 The enemies of the psalmist are often characterized as arrogant and indifferent toward God. 86.15 The psalmist characterizes God in terms of the ancient confessional and liturgical formula of Ex 33.19; 34.6; Num 14.18; Pss 103.8; 145.8. Cf. 86.5. 86.16 Child of your serving girl, a synonym for your servant; cf. 116.16.

"hills of holiness," possibly reflecting the fact that Jerusalem is built on several hills, but maybe referring to a more mythological notion of primeval mountains. The dwellings of Jacob, probably the other towns and cities. City of God. See 46.4; 48.1. 87.4 Selah. See note on 3.2. 87.4–6 Zion is the mother city of all who know the Lord, wherever they are born. 87.4 The places may represent proselytes to the worship of the God of Israel, or Israelites who have been dispersed to those countries and cities, or both. Rahab, the name of an ancient mythological monster defeated by the Lord, later used as a poetic name for Egypt (89.10; Job 26.12; Isa 30.7; 51.9). 87.5 Most High. See Deut 32.8, where this epithet is used to designate God as the one who allotted the nations. 87.6 The Lord records probably refers to the book of life or the book of remembrance, in which are recorded the names of the faithful worshipers of the Lord (Ex 32.32–33; Ps 69.28; Isa 4.3; Dan 12.1; Mal 3.16; Rev 3.5; 13.8; 20.12,

A Complaint to God

A Song. A Psalm of the Korahites. To the leader: according to Mahalath Leannoth. A Maskil of Heman the Ezrahite.

- 1 O LORD, God of my salvation,
when, at night, I cry out in your presence,
2 let my prayer come before you;
incline your ear to my cry.
3 For my soul is full of troubles,
and my life draws near to Sheol.
4 I am counted among those who
go down to the Pit;
I am like those who have no
help,
5 like those forsaken among the dead,
like the slain that lie in the grave,
like those whom you remember
no more,
for they are cut off from your hand.
6 You have put me in the depths of the Pit,
in the regions dark and deep.
7 Your wrath lies heavy upon me,
and you overwhelm me with all your waves. Selah

- 8 You have caused my companions
to shun me;
you have made me a thing of horror to them.
I am shut in so that I cannot escape;
9 my eye grows dim through sorrow.
Every day I call on you, O LORD;
I spread out my hands to you.
10 Do you work wonders for the dead?
Do the shades rise up to praise
you? Selah
11 Is your steadfast love declared in the grave,
or your faithfulness in Abaddon?
12 Are your wonders known in the darkness,
or your saving help in the land
of forgetfulness?
13 But I, O LORD, cry out to you;
in the morning my prayer
comes before you.
14 O LORD, why do you cast me off?
Why do you hide your face
from me?
15 Wretched and close to death
from my youth up,
I suffer your terrors; I am

your dread assaults destroy me.

If the plight of the psalmist is sickness, it is understood as the result of divine punishment. The psalmist is again depicted as near death and suffering the loss of community and companionship. 88.14 Hide your face. See notes on 10.1; 27.9.

It is not the name of a mountain but has been identified by some as referring to the Amanus range in Lebanon. Tabor, a mountain in northern Israel, south of the Sea of Galilee. Hermon, a mountain in Syria, frequently mentioned in the Bible because of its great height (cf. 93.1–5 A hymn of praise celebrating God's rule over the world. It belongs to a group of psalms (Pss 47; 93; 95–99) that have been called "enthronement psalms" because they may have been used on festival occasions when God was declared to be king (see 93.1; 95.3; 96.10; 97.1; 98.6; 99.1). Similar language and themes are to be found in the prophecy of Isa 40–55. 93.1–2 The establishment of God's rule. The LORD is king, or "The LORD has become king." It is to be understood as a declaration of God's enduring kingship or, in the latter case, as the declaration that at a particular moment in the festival celebration the Lord's enthronement is formally declared. The psalm assumes that God's rule as sovereign is from eternity (v. 2; cf. 29.10), but it is possible that at one of the annual festivals, perhaps the Festival of Booths, or Tabernacles, in the fall, the Lord's victory over the forces of chaos and disorder (see vv. 3–4) was celebrated by the people as a ritual act of enthronement, the Lord's rule being declared afresh ritually and hymnically. 93.3–4 The establishment of God's eternal rule is accomplished by the defeat of the powers of chaos as represented in the floods and waters. Lying behind this notion are Mesopotamian and Canaanite conceptions of divine kingship being established by victory over the sea and the deep (cf. 74.13; 104.7–9; Job 38.8–11; Isa 27.1; 51.9–10). 93.5 Praise of the Lord is also because of the reliability of God's law and God's holy house, the temple.

94.1–23 A prayer for God's help by an individual whose present suffering at the hands of the powerful is representative of the larger community's distress. 94.1–2 The initial call for God to render judgment. 94.1 Vengeance, i.e., vindication and compassion for the righteous or innocent and judgment for the wicked (cf. Deut 32.35–36; Rom 12.19). Shine forth. See note on 80.1. 94.2 Judge of the earth. See 7.8; 9.8–9; 58.11; 76.8–9; 82.8; Gen 18.25. 94.3–7 The complaint

- how long shall the wicked
exult?
- 4 They pour out their arrogant
words;
all the evildoers boast.
- 5 They crush your people,
O LORD,
and afflict your heritage.
- 6 They kill the widow and the stranger,
they murder the orphan,
- 7 and they say, "The LORD does

- 8 Understand, O dumbest of the

- 9 He who planted the ear, does he

- 10 He who disciplines the nations,
he who teaches knowledge to

- 12 Happy are those whom you discipline, O LORD,
and whom you teach out of
your law,
- 13 giving them respite from days of

wicked.
- 14 For the LORD will not forsake his
people;
he will not abandon his
heritage;
- 15 for justice will return to the
righteous,
and all the upright in heart will follow it.
- 16 Who rises up for me against the
wicked?
Who stands up for me against
evildoers?
- 17 If the LORD had not been my
help,
my soul would soon have lived in the land of silence.
- 18 When I thought, "My foot is slipping,"
your steadfast love, O LORD,
held me up.
- 19 When the cares of my heart are many,
your consolations cheer my
soul.
- 20 Can wicked rulers be allied

those who contrive mischief by statute?
- 21 They band together against the life of the righteous,
and condemn the innocent to
death.
- 22 But the LORD has become my

iniquity

V. 20 suggests that the oppression is judicial in character, carried out by judges and rulers who use the courts to do in the weak, possibly even committing legal murder (cf. 1 Kings 21). 94.8–11 The foolishness of the wicked, who think that God does not see and care about their wickedness. - 1 O come, let us sing to the LORD;

let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation!
- 2 Let us come into his presence
with thanksgiving;
let us make a joyful noise to him with songs of praise!
- 3 For the LORD is a great God,
and a great King above all gods.
- 4 In his hand are the depths of the earth;
the heights of the mountains
are his also.
- 5 The sea is his, for he made it,

hands have formed.
- 6 O come, let us worship and bow

let us kneel before the LORD,

- 7 For he is our God,
and we are the people of his pasture,
and the sheep of his hand.

O that today you would listen to his voice!

- 8 Do not harden your hearts, as
at Meribah,
as on the day at Massah in the wilderness,
- 9 when your ancestors tested me,

and put me to the proof,
though they had seen my
work.

- 10 For forty years I loathed that

- 11 Therefore in my anger I swore,
"They shall not enter my rest."

sing to the LORD, all the earth.
- 2 Sing to the LORD, bless his name;

- 3 Declare his glory among the nations,
his marvelous works among all

but the LORD made the

95.1–11 A liturgy of praise and admonition. This psalm may have been a temple liturgy consisting of a procession into the sanctuary (vv. 1–5) and prostration before God's presence (vv. 6–7a), followed by words of admonition (vv. 7b–11), perhaps in preparation for the public reading of the Torah or law of God at the Festival of Booths, or Tabernacles (Deut 31.10–11). Cf. Pss 50; 81 for similar language and character. 95.1–7a Praise of God's kingship and rule over all. 95.1–2 A call to praise. Rock of our salvation. See 89.26; cf. 94.22. 95.3–5 The reason for praise is God's greatness and rule (cf. 93.1–2; 96.10) above all gods (cf. 82; 96.4–5), the depths and heights, i.e., the whole earth, and the sea and the dry land (Gen 1.9–10; cf. Ps 24.1). 95.6–7a A call to worship God who is not only creator and ruler of the universe (vv. 3–5) but also of the people (Isa 43.1, 15). The shepherd image is a royal one, signifying rule of the people (100.3; cf. 80.1; Isa 40.11). 95.7b–11 A word of admonition to be spoken by a priest or prophet in preparation for hearing God's law (cf. 81.8–9). On Meribah, "place of contention," and Massah, "place of testing," see Ex 17.1–7; Num 20.1–13; also Pss 78.18–20; 81.7; 106.32. 95.11 Rest, the divine gift of the land. A Prayer of One Afflicted

A prayer of one afflicted, when faint and pleading before the LORD.

- 1 Hear my prayer, O LORD;
let my cry come to you.
2 Do not hide your face from me
in the day of my distress.
Incline your ear to me;
answer me speedily in the day
when I call.
3 For my days pass away like smoke,
and my bones burn like a furnace.
4 My heart is stricken and withered
like grass;
I am too wasted to eat my
bread.
5 Because of my loud groaning
my bones cling to my skin.
6 I am like an owl of the wilderness,
like a little owl of the waste
places.
7 I lie awake;
I am like a lonely bird on the 8 All day long my enemies

taunt me;
those who deride me use my name for a curse.
9 For I eat ashes like bread,
and mingle tears with my drink,

anger;
for you have lifted me up and thrown me aside.
11 My days are like an evening

I wither away like grass.
12 But you, O LORD, are enthroned
forever;
your name endures to all
generations.
13 You will rise up and have compassion on Zion,
for it is time to favor it;
the appointed time has come.
14 For your servants hold its stones
dear,
and have pity on its dust.

and all the kings of the earth

16 For the LORD will build up Zion;
he will appear in his glory.

and will not despise their

from heaven the LORD looked

you whose years endure
throughout all generations." 25 Long ago you laid the foundation
of the earth,
and the heavens are the work
of your hands.
26 They will perish, but you endure;
they will all wear out like a garment.
You change them like clothing,
and they pass away;
27 but you are the same, and your years have no end.

shall live secure;
their offspring shall be established in your

That history, therefore, is the ground for continued pleas for help as well as praise and thanksgiving (vv. 47–48). Psalm 107

Thanksgiving for Deliverance from Many Troubles

- 1 O give thanks to the LORD, for he
is good;
for his steadfast love endures
forever.
2 Let the redeemed of the LORD
say so,
those he redeemed from
trouble
3 and gathered in from the lands,
from the east and from the west,
from the north and from the south.^h
4 Some wandered in desert wastes,

- finding no way to an inhabited
town;
5 hungry and thirsty,
their soul fainted within them.
6 Then they cried to the LORD in
their trouble,
and he delivered them from their distress;
7 he led them by a straight way,
until they reached an inhabited
town.
8 Let them thank the LORD for his
steadfast love,
for his wonderful works to
humankind.
9 For he satisfies the thirsty,
and the hungry he fills with good things.
10 Some sat in darkness and in gloom,
prisoners in misery and in irons, 11 for they had rebelled against the words of God,
and spurned the counsel of the Most High.
12 Their hearts were bowed down
with hard labor;
they fell down, with no one
to help.
13 Then they cried to the LORD in
their trouble,
and he saved them from their
distress;
14 he brought them out of darkness
and gloom,
and broke their bonds asunder.
15 Let them thank the LORD for his
steadfast love,
for his wonderful works to
humankind.

106.47 Gather us from among the nations suggests that the psalm was composed during the time of exile or later, when the people were dispersed among different nations, for example, Babylon and Egypt. 106.48 A doxology closing the fourth book of the Psalter. See note on 41.13.

107.1–32 A liturgy of thanksgiving. Four different situations of distress are described (vv. 4–5, 10–12, 17–18, 23–27). In each case the psalmist recounts how those in peril cried out to the Lord, i.e., prayed (vv. 6a, 13a, 19a, 28a), and God delivered them (vv. 6b–7, 13b–14, 19b–20, 28b–29).

Because of this they are now called to give thanks and praise (vv. 8–9, 15–16, 21–22, 31–32). 107.1–3 Introductory general call to give thanks. 107.1 This verse of the general call to give thanks is echoed in the particular calls that follow (vv. 8, 15, 21, 31). 3 I will give thanks to you, O LORD,

Who will lead me to Edom?
11 Have you not rejected us, O God?

5 The Lord is at your right hand;
he will shatter kings on the day
of his wrath.
6 He will execute judgment among
the nations,
filling them with corpses;
he will shatter heads
over the wide earth.
7 He will drink from the stream by
the path;
therefore he will lift up his head.

Psalm 111

Praise for God's Wonderful Works

- 1 Praise the LORD!
I will give thanks to the LORD
with my whole heart,
in the company of the upright,
in the congregation.
2 Great are the works of the LORD,

109.30–31 Vow of praise and thanksgiving.
109.31 He stands at the right hand of the needy, over against the efforts of the persecutors to place an accuser on his right (v. 6).

110.1–7 A royal psalm declaring God's establishment of the ruling and priestly office of the king. The psalm probably originally had to do with rights and traditions given to the king at his enthronement in Jerusalem. Textual problems prohibit a clear and certain reading of the text.
110.1 An oracle probably delivered by a prophetic or priestly figure. My lord, i.e., the king. At my right hand is the place of power and honor of a ruler, here the Lord (cf. 1 Kings 2.19). Your foot- stool refers to the practice of victorious kings placing their feet on the backs of captured enemies.
110.2 The scepter of the king is given by God as a symbol of rule over enemies. 110.3 On the day
you lead your forces probably should be read "On the day of your power," i.e., on the day of the king's enthronement. The second half of the verse may be another oracle referring to the divine adoption of the king: "From the womb of the morning, like dew I have begotten you" (cf. 2.7).
For the reference to dew, cf. 72.6. 110.4 A further oracle giving the king priestly functions and prerogatives (cf. 2 Sam 6.13–14, 18; 8.18; 24.25; 1 Kings 3.4; 8.14, 55). Melchizedek, a figure who seems to have been a king of Jerusalem: he was called "priest of God Most High" in the pre-Israelite era (Gen 14.17–20). Israel seems to have taken over traditions from the Jebusites, who inhabited Jerusalem prior to David's conquest of the city (1 Sam 5.6–10). In the Letter to the Hebrews, Jesus' priestly role is associated with Mel-chizedek, as this verse is cited (Heb 5.6, 10; 6.20–7.10, 15–17). 110.5–6 God's defeat of the enemies of the king. 110.7 The meaning of the verse is uncertain but it may refer to some ritual

act of the king at the enthronement.

111.1–10 A hymn of praise and thankgiv-
ing. Its conclusion and its alphabetic acrostic form (see note on 9.1–10.18) show that it was composed for instruction as well as praise. While it is an individual voice that gives thanks in the psalm,
the focus is upon the wonderful deeds of God for the people rather than the particular way in which God has helped an individual, as is the case in such psalms as Pss 18; 22; 30; 116. Ps 66 gives an example of the combination of thanksgiving for the works of God on behalf of the people and the help rendered to an individual in distress.

- studied by all who delight
in them.
- 3 Full of honor and majesty is his work,
and his righteousness endures
forever.
- 4 He has gained renown by his wonderful deeds;
the LORD is gracious and merciful.
- 5 He provides food for those who fear him;
he is ever mindful of his
covenant.
- 6 He has shown his people the power of his works,
in giving them the heritage of
the nations.
- 7 The works of his hands are faithful and just;
all his precepts are trustworthy.
- 8 They are established forever and uprightness.

he has commanded his covenant forever.
Holy and awesome is his name.

beginning of wisdom;
all those who practice it^v have a good understanding.
His praise endures forever.

Blessings of the Righteous

- 1 Praise the LORD!
Happy are those who fear
the LORD,

- who greatly delight in his
commandments.
- 2 Their descendants will be mighty
in the land;
the generation of the upright
will be blessed.
- 3 Wealth and riches are in their houses,
and their righteousness endures
forever.
- 4 They rise in the darkness as a light for the upright;
they are gracious, merciful, and
righteous.
- 5 It is well with those who deal
generously and lend,
who conduct their affairs with
justice.
- 6 For the righteous will never be moved;
they will be remembered
forever.
- 7 They are not afraid of evil
tidings;
their hearts are firm, secure in
the LORD.
- 8 Their hearts are steady, they will not be afraid;
in the end they will look in triumph on their foes.
- 9 They have distributed freely, they have given to the poor;
their righteousness endures

their horn is exalted in honor.

they gnash their teeth and melt away;
the desire of the wicked comes
to nothing.

Like the chaff, with which they are compared, they are worthless and disappear.

113.1–9 A hymn in praise of God who does wonderful things on behalf of the weak and needy. In Jewish tradition this is one of the "Egyptian Hallel" ("praise") psalms (Pss 113–118), sung before (Pss 113–114) and after (Pss 115–118) the Passover meal (cf. Mt 26.30; Mk 14.26). Because of vv. 7–9 particularly, the song stands in a line of tradition with 1 Sam 2.1–10; Lk 1.46–55. 113.5 Cf. Ex 15.11. 113.6 Cf. 14.2; 138.6. 113.7–8 Cf. 1 Sam 2.8. 113.9 Cf. 1 Sam 2.5.

114.1–8 A hymn in praise of God's marvelous power in bringing Israel out of slavery in Egypt and across the Jordan into the promised land. One of the Hallel psalms (see note on 113.1–9). 114.2 Judah became God's sanctuary suggests a date of composition after Jerusalem had become the site of the central sanctuary.

114.3–6 The miraculous phenomena of nature during the exodus and the crossing of the Jordan are here given poetic interpretation as manifestations of divine power. The sea looked and fled refers to turning back of the waters during the exodus. Jordan turned back. Cf. Josh 3.14–17. 114.8 See Ex 17.6; Num 20.11.

115.1–18 A liturgical prayer of the people. The way in which the personal pronouns change suggests antiphonal or alternating speakers in the course of the prayer. One of the Hallel psalms (see note on 113.1–9). 115.1–2 While the first verse ascribes glory to God, the second is more a complaint suggesting some experience of distress on the part of the people. Their situation is understood to be a challenge to God's glory and honor. Their words are therefore praise and a call

- for the sake of your steadfast love and your faithfulness.
- 2 Why should the nations say,
“Where is their God?”
- 3 Our God is in the heavens;
he does whatever he pleases.
- 4 Their idols are silver and gold,
the work of human hands.
- 5 They have mouths, but do not speak;
eyes, but do not see.
- 6 They have ears, but do not hear;
noses, but do not smell.
- 7 They have hands, but do not feel;
feet, but do not walk;
they make no sound in their throats.
- 8 Those who make them are like
them;
so are all who trust in them.
- 9 O Israel, trust in the LORD!
He is their help and their
shield.
- 10 O house of Aaron, trust in the
LORD!
He is their help and their
shield.
- 11 You who fear the LORD, trust in
the LORD!
He is their help and their
shield.
- 12 The LORD has been mindful of us; he will bless us;
he will bless the house of Israel;
he will bless the house of Aaron;

- 13 he will bless those who fear the
LORD,
both small and great.
- 14 May the LORD give you increase,
both you and your children.
- 15 May you be blessed by the LORD,
who made heaven and earth.
- 16 The heavens are the LORD’s heavens,
but the earth he has given to human beings.
- 17 The dead do not praise the LORD,
nor do any that go down into
silence.
- 18 But we will bless the LORD
from this time on and
forevermore.
Praise the LORD!

Thanksgiving for Deliverance from Death

my voice and my supplications.
- 2 Because he inclined his ear to me,
therefore I will call on him as long as I live.

the pangs of Sheol laid hold

I suffered distress and anguish.

for demonstration of God’s glory. 115.2 “Where is their God?” See note on 79.10. 115.3–8 As a response to the taunt of the nations, Israel or a representative voice declares the vitality and power of the God of Israel over against the impotent idols worshipped by the nations. 115.9–11 A voice or voices follow up this claim by calling upon priests and people to trust in the Lord, whose power over the gods of the nations has just been described. 115.11 You who fear the LORD. See note on 34.7 (cf. 115.13). Some would interpret this as a reference to proselytes in the postexilic community (cf. 1 Kings 8.41–45; Isa 56.6; Acts 13.16, 26) as distinct from the Israelite laity (O Israel, v. 9) and priests (O house of Aaron, v. 10). 115.12–13 The people respond, expressing their confidence in God’s blessing of them. It is possible, however, to understand these verses as the voice of a representative figure announcing that God has heard the prayer and will bless the people. 115.14–15 A priestly voice (cf. Num 6.22–27) prays a blessing prayer for the people. 115.16–18 Concluding hymn of praise by the people. 115.17 See note on 6.5.

116.1–19 A song of thanksgiving for God’s help in time of distress. As in most of the prayers for help, the nature of the distress is not indicated except to say that the psalmist felt close to death (vv. 3, 8, 15). One of the Hallel psalms (see note on 113.1–9). 116.1–2 The basic word of gratitude because God has heard the prayer for help and delivered the sufferer. The testimony of the psalmist before the congregation (v. 18; cf. 22.22–25; 40.9–10; 107.32) begins at this point. 116.3–11 Testimony about the distress and God’s deliverance. 116.3–4 The suffering and the prayer it evoked. 116.5–9 The graciousness of God manifest in the salvation of the sufferer. 116.10–11 Looking back, the psalmist reports a continuing trust in God even when complaining and lamenting over affliction and persecution. Everyone is a liar may indicate the distress was due to slander or false accusation or may have been a general reaction of despair in the face of how everyone responded to the afflicted. 116.12–19 Fulfillment of the vow of thanksgiving that was part of the cry for help. 116.13 In the worship, the grateful psalmist now offers a libation and praises the name of the God who delivered. 116.15 The Lord cares about those who trust in the Lord and will seek to keep them from the defeat of death. 116.16 Child of your serving girl. who recounts the cry to the Lord in distress and how the Lord helped. Vv. 10–14, with their references to being surrounded by the nations, have suggested the possibility that the original speaker was a king. While that is possible, a composition date after the exile would require a nonroyal speaker who was either using royal motifs or in some sense being beset by people of other nationalities. Nehemiah and the community of his time would be an example of this, though there is nothing to associate the psalm with him. 118.5 A summary report of the cry for help and God's answer. A broad place. See note on 18.19. 118.6–9 Expressions of confidence in God. 118.6 Quoted in Heb 13.6. I do not fear may reflect the suppliant's receiving an oracle of salvation with the assuring words "Do not fear" (cf. note on 22.21b). 118.8–9 Cf. 60.11; 146.3. 118.10–13 Account of the situation of distress.

118.14–18 Praise and thanksgiving to God for the help that was given. 118.14 Cf. Ex 15.2; Isa 12.2. 118.15–16 Perhaps an ancient victory song. 118.19–21 These verses suggest that the previous verses are part of a processional to the gates of the temple, where the suppliant now asks for entry to continue to give thanks to the Lord before the assembled congregation. 118.19 The request for entry. 118.20 The qualifications for entry into the sanctuary (cf. Pss 15; 24), probably spoken by a priest. 118.21 The thanksgiving of the individual now in the sanctuary. 118.22–27 The voices of the congregation or singers are heard praising God for the marvelous deliverance of the one in distress. 118.22 This verse may be either the words of the particular individual or those of the congregation. Quoted in Mt 21.42; Mk 12.10; Lk 20.17; Acts 4.11; 1 Pet 2.7. 118.23 Quoted in Mt 21.42; Mk 12.11.

The Glories of God's Law

- 1 Happy are those whose way is
blameless,
who walk in the law of the
LORD.
- 2 Happy are those who keep his
decrees,
who seek him with their whole
heart,
- 3 who also do no wrong,
but walk in his ways.

heart,
when I learn your righteous
ordinances.
- 8 I will observe your statutes;
do not utterly forsake me.
- 9 How can young people keep their way pure?
By guarding it according to your word.
- 10 With my whole heart I seek you;
do not let me stray from your
commandments.
- 11 I treasure your word in my heart,
so that I may not sin
against you.
- 12 Blessed are you, O LORD;
teach me your statutes.
- 13 With my lips I declare all the ordinances of your mouth.
- 14 I delight in the way of your decrees
as much as in all riches.
- 15 I will meditate on your precepts,
and fix my eyes on your ways.
- 16 I will delight in your statutes;
I will not forget your word.

118.25–26 Quoted or alluded to in Mt 21.9; Mk 11.9; Lk 19.38. Save us is the translation of the Hebrew expression "Hosanna." V. 26 is probably a blessing uttered upon the one who comes to give thanks. 118.27 The horns of the altar were four projections at the corners of the altar. 118.28 The act of thanksgiving by the individual in the sanctuary. 118.29 Concluding praise of the people or singers (cf. 2 Chr 5.13).

119.1–176 A prayer for God's help in time of trouble as well as in the keeping of the law. It may be a collection or anthology of psalm pieces. Elements of prayers for help and songs of thanksgiving intermix with exaltation of the law and expressions of commitment to it, giving the psalm the character of both instruction and prayer. It is an alphabetic acrostic psalm (see note on 9.1–10.18) made up of twenty-two stanzas of eight lines each. Following the order of the Hebrew alphabet, each stanza uses one letter of the alphabet to begin each of its eight lines. Eight different terms for the law (commandments, statutes, ordinances, decrees, words, precepts, promise, and law) are used, most of them in each stanza, and all of them in four stanzas. In its delight in the law of the Lord and commitment to it, the psalm is to be compared with Pss 1; 19. 119.1–8 Praise of the law and the benefits of keeping God's instruction. 119.1–2 Happy. See note on 1.1. 119.9–16 Prayer for help in keeping the law.

- 17 Deal bountifully with your servant,
so that I may live and observe your word.
- 18 Open my eyes, so that I may behold wondrous things out of your law.
- 19 I live as an alien in the land;
do not hide your commandments from me.
- 20 My soul is consumed with longing
for your ordinances at all times.
- 21 You rebuke the insolent, accursed ones,
who wander from your commandments;
22 take away from me their scorn
and contempt,
for I have kept your decrees.
- 23 Even though princes sit plotting
against me,
your servant will meditate on your statutes.
- 24 Your decrees are my delight,
they are my counselors.
- 25 My soul clings to the dust;
revive me according to your word.
- 26 When I told of my ways, you answered me;
teach me your statutes.
- 27 Make me understand the way of your precepts,
and I will meditate on your wondrous works.
- 28 My soul melts away for sorrow;
strengthen me according to your word.
- 29 Put false ways far from me;
and graciously teach me your law.
- 30 I have chosen the way of faithfulness;
I set your ordinances before me.
- 31 I cling to your decrees, O LORD;
let me not be put to shame.
- 32 I run the way of your commandments,
for you enlarge my understanding.
- 33 Teach me, O LORD, the way of your statutes,
and I will observe it to the end.
- 34 Give me understanding, that I may keep your law
and observe it with my whole heart.
- 35 Lead me in the path of your commandments,
for I delight in it.
- 36 Turn my heart to your decrees,
and not to selfish gain.
- 37 Turn my eyes from looking at vanities;
give me life in your ways.
- 38 Confirm to your servant your promise,
which is for those who fear you.
- 39 Turn away the disgrace that I dread,
for your ordinances are good.
- 40 See, I have longed for your precepts;
in your righteousness give me life.
- 41 Let your steadfast love come to me, O LORD,
your salvation according to your promise.
- 42 Then I shall have an answer for those who taunt me,
for I trust in your word.
- 43 Do not take the word of truth utterly out of my mouth,
for my hope is in your ordinances.
- 44 I will keep your law continually,
forever and ever.
- 45 I shall walk at liberty,
for I have sought your precepts.
- 46 I will also speak of your decrees before kings,
and shall not be put to shame;
- 47 I find my delight in your commandments,

119.17-24 Prayer for help against enemies as the one who prays keeps all the law. 119.25-32 Prayer to be strengthened and rejuvenated through keeping the way of God's commandments. 119.33-40 Plea for understanding in order to keep God's law. 119.35 Delight. See 1.2. 119.38 Fear you (also vv. 63, 74, 79). See note on 34.7. 119.41-48 Prayer for God's deliverance so that the taunts of persecutors will be answered by the one who trusts and

- because I love them.
 48 I revere your commandments,
 which I love,
 and I will meditate on your
 statutes.
- 49 Remember your word to your
 servant,
 in which you have made
 me hope.
- 50 This is my comfort in my distress,
 that your promise gives me
 life.
- 51 The arrogant utterly deride me,
 but I do not turn away from
 your law.
- 52 When I think of your ordinances
 from of old,
 I take comfort, O LORD.
- 53 Hot indignation seizes me
 because of the wicked,
 those who forsake your law.
- 54 Your statutes have been my songs
 wherever I make my home.
- 55 I remember your name in the night, O LORD,
 and keep your law.
- 56 This blessing has fallen to me,
 for I have kept your precepts.
- 57 The LORD is my portion;
 I promise to keep your words.
- 58 I implore your favor with all my
 heart;
 be gracious to me according to
 your promise.
- 59 When I think of your ways,
 I turn my feet to your decrees;
- 60 I hurry and do not delay
 to keep your commandments.
- 61 Though the cords of the wicked
 ensnare me,
 I do not forget your law.
- 62 At midnight I rise to praise you,
 because of your righteous
 ordinances.
- 63 I am a companion of all who fear you,
 of those who keep your
 precepts.
- 64 The earth, O LORD, is full of
 your steadfast love;
 teach me your statutes.
- 65 You have dealt well with your
 servant,
 O LORD, according to your word.
- 66 Teach me good judgment and knowledge,
 for I believe in your
 commandments.
- 67 Before I was humbled I went astray,
 but now I keep your word.
- 68 You are good and do good;
 teach me your statutes.
- 69 The arrogant smear me with lies,
 but with my whole heart I keep your precepts.
- 70 Their hearts are fat and gross,
 but I delight in your law.
- 71 It is good for me that I was humbled,
 so that I might learn your
 statutes.
- 72 The law of your mouth is better
 to me
 than thousands of gold and silver pieces.
- 73 Your hands have made and fashioned me;
 give me understanding that I may learn your
 commandments.
- 74 Those who fear you shall see me
 and rejoice,
 because I have hoped in your word.
- 75 I know, O LORD, that your judgments are right,
 and that in faithfulness you have humbled me.
- 76 Let your steadfast love become my comfort
 according to your promise to
 your servant.
- 77 Let your mercy come to me, that I may live;
 for your law is my delight.
- 78 Let the arrogant be put to shame,

keeps God's law. 119.49–56 Prayer for help (v. 49) and expressions of confidence in the face of the arrogant and the wicked because God's servant (v. 49) keeps the law. 119.57–64 Prayer, praise, and commitment to God's law.

119.65–72 The psalmist has experienced God's chastening help and has learned from it the value of the law of the Lord. 119.73–80 Prayer for help and understanding of God's command-

- because they have subverted me
with guile;
as for me, I will meditate on
your precepts.
- 79 Let those who fear you turn
to me,
so that they may know your
decrees.
- 80 May my heart be blameless in
your statutes,
so that I may not be put to
shame.
- 81 My soul languishes for your
salvation;
I hope in your word.
- 82 My eyes fail with watching for
your promise;
I ask, "When will you comfort me?"
- 83 For I have become like a wineskin
in the smoke,
yet I have not forgotten your
statutes.
- 84 How long must your servant
endure?
When will you judge those who persecute me?
- 85 The arrogant have dug pitfalls
for me;
they flout your law.
- 86 All your commandments are enduring;
I am persecuted without cause;
help me!
- 87 They have almost made an end
of me on earth;
but I have not forsaken your
precepts.
- 88 In your steadfast love spare my
life,
so that I may keep the decrees
of your mouth.
- 89 The LORD exists forever;
your word is firmly fixed in heaven.
- 90 Your faithfulness endures to all
generations;
you have established the earth,
and it stands fast.
- 91 By your appointment they stand
today,
for all things are your servants.
- 92 If your law had not been my delight,
I would have perished in my misery.
- 93 I will never forget your precepts,
for by them you have given me life.
- 94 I am yours; save me,
for I have sought your
precepts.
- 95 The wicked lie in wait to destroy me,
but I consider your decrees.
- 96 I have seen a limit to all perfection,
but your commandment is exceedingly broad.
- 97 Oh, how I love your law!
It is my meditation all day long.
- 98 Your commandment makes me wiser than my enemies,
for it is always with me.
- 99 I have more understanding than all my teachers,
for your decrees are my meditation.
- 100 I understand more than the aged,
for I keep your precepts.
- 101 I hold back my feet from every evil way,
in order to keep your word.
- 102 I do not turn away from your
ordinances,
for you have taught me.
- 103 How sweet are your words to my taste,
sweeter than honey to my
mouth!
- 104 Through your precepts I get
understanding;
therefore I hate every
false way.
- 105 Your word is a lamp to my feet
and a light to my path.
- 106 I have sworn an oath and to observe your righteous

ordinances.

- give me life, O LORD, according to your word.
- 108 Accept my offerings of praise,
O LORD,
and teach me your ordinances.
- 109 I hold my life in my hand
continually,
but I do not forget your law.
- 110 The wicked have laid a snare
for me,
but I do not stray from your
precepts.
- 111 Your decrees are my heritage
forever;
they are the joy of my heart.
- 112 I incline my heart to perform
your statutes
forever, to the end.
- 113 I hate the double-minded,
but I love your law.
- 114 You are my hiding place and my
shield;
I hope in your word.
- 115 Go away from me, you evildoers,
that I may keep the commandments of my God.
- 116 Uphold me according to your promise, that I may live,
and let me not be put to shame
in my hope.
- 117 Hold me up, that I may be safe
and have regard for your statutes continually.
- 118 You spurn all who go astray from
your statutes;
for their cunning is in vain.
- 119 All the wicked of the earth you count as dross;
therefore I love your decrees.
- 120 My flesh trembles for fear of you,
and I am afraid of your judgments.
- 121 I have done what is just and
right;
do not leave me to my oppressors.
- 122 Guarantee your servant's
well-being;
- do not let the godless
oppress me.
- 123 My eyes fail from watching for your salvation,
and for the fulfillment of your righteous promise.
- 124 Deal with your servant according
to your steadfast love,
and teach me your statutes.
- 125 I am your servant; give me
understanding,
so that I may know your
decrees.
- 126 It is time for the LORD to act,
for your law has been broken.
- 127 Truly I love your commandments
more than gold, more than fine gold.
- 128 Truly I direct my steps by all your precepts;^c
I hate every false way.
- 129 Your decrees are wonderful;
therefore my soul keeps them.
- 130 The unfolding of your words
gives light;
it imparts understanding to the simple.
- 131 With open mouth I pant,
because I long for your
commandments.
- 132 Turn to me and be gracious
to me,
as is your custom toward those who love your name.
- 133 Keep my steps steady according to your promise,
and never let iniquity have dominion over me.
- 134 Redeem me from human
oppression,
that I may keep your precepts.
- 135 Make your face shine upon your
servant,
and teach me your statutes.
- 136 My eyes shed streams of tears
because your law is not kept.
- 137 You are righteous, O LORD,
and your judgments are right.

^c Gk Jerome: Meaning of Heb uncertain will instruct the psalmist. 119.129–136 Praise of God's law and prayer for help against oppression. 119.135 Make your face shine. See note on 31.16. 119.137–144 Praise of the Lord's righteousness purpose draw near;

decrees
that you have established them

I love them exceedingly.

O LORD;

as seen in the law. 119.145–152 A cry for help and confidence in God's presence. 119.151 Cf. Deut 4.7–8; 30.14. 119.153–160 A plea for Psalm 120*Prayer for Deliverance from SlanderersA Song of Ascents.*

- 1 In my distress I cry to the LORD,
that he may answer me:
- 2 "Deliver me, O LORD,
from lying lips,
from a deceitful tongue."

- 3 What shall be given to you?
And what more shall be done
to you,
you deceitful tongue?
- 4 A warrior's sharp arrows,
with glowing coals of the broom tree!
- 5 Woe is me, that I am an alien in Meshech,
that I must live among the tents
of Kedar.
- 6 Too long have I had my dwelling
among those who hate peace.
- 7 I am for peace;
but when I speak,
they are for war.

Psalm 121*Assurance of God's ProtectionA Song of Ascents.*

- 1 I lift up my eyes to the hills—
from where will my help come?
- 2 My help comes from the LORD,
who made heaven and earth.
- 3 He will not let your foot be moved;
he who keeps you will not slumber.
- 4 He who keeps Israel
will neither slumber nor sleep.
- 5 The LORD is your keeper;
the LORD is your shade at your right hand.

asks God to hear the cry for help and to save in order that praise may come forth from God's servant.

120.1–7 A prayer by an individual for help. A Song of Ascents, the superscription to each psalm in the collection Pss 120–134. Most of the psalms are brief, often reflecting concerns of and images from the family and agricultural life of the common people. The meaning of the superscription is debated. It may refer to an ascending style of poetic form. More likely, it has some reference to the ascent of pilgrims on their way to Jerusalem and/or to the sanctuary there. These psalms may have been sung on such pilgrimages. 120.5 Meshech, listed in Gen 10.2 as a descendant of Japheth, in the OT usually refers to a distant region and its inhabitants in eastern Asia Minor near the Black Sea. Kedar, a descendant of Abraham and Hagar via Ishmael (see Gen 25.12–13; 1 Chr 1.29) and a general designation for certain Arab tribes inhabiting the northern regions of the Arabian peninsula (cf. Jer 49.28–33). The psalmist here uses these names symbolically, representative of warlike people among whom he is forced to live (see v. 6).

121.1–8 A song of confidence in God's providential care. A Song of Ascents. See note on 120.1–7. 121.1–2 The psalmist asks a question about the source of help when one is in trouble of any sort and then answers it. 121.1 Hills, probably those around Jerusalem. 121.3–8 A representative figure, possibly a priest, elaborates the answer, identifying the constancy of the Lord's care through all of life in every circumstance.

- 6 The sun shall not strike you
by day,
nor the moon by night.
- 7 The LORD will keep you from all evil;
he will keep your life.
- 8 The LORD will keep your going out and your coming in
from this time on and
forevermore.

Psalm 122

Song of Praise and Prayer for Jerusalem

A Song of Ascents. Of David.

- 1 I was glad when they said to me,
"Let us go to the house of the LORD!"
- 2 Our feet are standing within your gates, O Jerusalem.
- 3 Jerusalem—built as a city
that is bound firmly together.
- 4 To it the tribes go up,
the tribes of the LORD,
as was decreed for Israel,
to give thanks to the name of
the LORD.
- 5 For there the thrones for judgment were set up,
the thrones of the house of David.
- 6 Pray for the peace of Jerusalem:
"May they prosper who love you.

- 7 Peace be within your walls,
and security within your towers."
- 8 For the sake of my relatives and friends
I will say, "Peace be within you."
- 9 For the sake of the house of the LORD our God,
I will seek your good.

Psalm 123

Supplication for Mercy

A Song of Ascents.

- 1 To you I lift up my eyes,
O you who are enthroned in
the heavens!
- 2 As the eyes of servants
look to the hand of their master,
as the eyes of a maid
to the hand of her mistress,
so our eyes look to the LORD
our God,
until he has mercy upon
us.
- 3 Have mercy upon us, O LORD,
have mercy upon us,
for we have had more than enough of contempt.
- 4 Our soul has had more than its fill
of the scorn of those who are
at ease,
of the contempt of the proud.

121.4 Sleep. Cf. 44.23; 78.65. 121.6 The moon by night. While some have seen here a belief in negative effects of the moon on human life, it is likely that the phrase is simply a poetic parallel to the sun . . . by day, indicating that the Lord's care is day and night, i.e., continual.

122.1–9 A song of Zion probably sung on pilgrimage to the holy city. A Song of Ascents. See note on 120.1–7. 122.1–2 The joy of the psalmist in anticipating the pilgrimage to Jerusalem with others and in arriving there. 122.3–5 Jerusalem is praised as a secure city (v. 3), the center of Israel's worship (v. 4), and as a place where just judgment may be found (cf. Deut 17.8–13; Isa 2.2–4; Mic 4.1–4). 122.5 See 1 Kings 7.7. On the responsibility of kings for rendering justice and judgment in Jerusalem, see 2 Sam 15.1–6; 1 Kings 3.16–28; Jer 21.12; 22.15–16. 122.6–9 Prayer for Jerusalem's peace and well-being. The Hebrew of these verses contains several instances of wordplay on the sounds of the last part of the word "Jerusalem," including the word for peace (shalom).

123.1–4 A community prayer for help. It may have been uttered by an individual on behalf of the whole community or leading them in prayer. A Song of Ascents. See note on 120.1–7. 123.1–2 The petitioner and the people pray in an attitude of dependence. 123.3–4 The cry for help against the taunts and ridicule of others (cf. 44.14; 79.4; and notes).

Psalm 124*Thanksgiving for Israel's Deliverance*

A Song of Ascents. Of David.

- 1 If it had not been the LORD who
was on our side
—let Israel now say—
- 2 if it had not been the LORD who
was on our side,
when our enemies attacked us,
- 3 then they would have swallowed
us up alive,
when their anger was kindled
against us;
- 4 then the flood would have swept
us away,
the torrent would have gone
over us;
- 5 then over us would have gone
the raging waters.
- 6 Blessed be the LORD,
who has not given us
as prey to their teeth.
- 7 We have escaped like a bird
from the snare of the fowlers;
the snare is broken,
and we have escaped.
- 8 Our help is in the name of
the LORD,
who made heaven and earth.

Psalm 125*The Security of God's People*

A Song of Ascents.

- 1 Those who trust in the LORD are like Mount Zion,

which cannot be moved, but abides forever.

- 2 As the mountains surround
Jerusalem,
so the LORD surrounds his
people,
from this time on and
forevermore.
- 3 For the scepter of wickedness
shall not rest
on the land allotted to the
righteous,
so that the righteous might not stretch out
their hands to do wrong.
- 4 Do good, O LORD, to those who are good,
and to those who are upright in their hearts.
- 5 But those who turn aside to their own crooked ways
the LORD will lead away with
evildoers.
Peace be upon Israel!

Psalm 126*A Harvest of Joy*

A Song of Ascents.

- 1 When the LORD restored the fortunes of Zion,^d
we were like those who dream.
- 2 Then our mouth was filled with laughter,
and our tongue with shouts
of joy;

^d Or brought back those who returned to Zion

124.1–8 A song of thanksgiving by the community. A Song of Ascents. See note on 120.1–7. 124.1–7 An account of the Lord's deliverance of the people from their enemies. 124.1 Let Israel now say, liturgical direction. Cf. 118.2–4; 129.1. 124.4–5 See note on 69.1–2. 124.6 Exclamation of thanksgiving and praise. 124.8 A concluding confession of faith in hymnic form.

125.1–5 A community prayer for help against national enemies. A Song of Ascents. See note on 120.1–7. 125.1–3 Expression of confidence and trust in the Lord. 125.3 Scepter of wickedness probably refers to a foreign power that oppresses the people of Israel in the land. The land allotted refers to the Lord's granting or allotting the land of Canaan to Israel. So that the righteous might not . . . do wrong expresses a concern that the dominance of a foreign and ungodly power will lead those in the community to fall into immoral practices and an unfaithful way of life. 125.4–5 Prayer for help to secure the confidence expressed in v. 3. God is asked to do good to those who keep the covenant and do right and to remove the wicked power and those who are influenced by it away from the righteous way.

126.1–6 A community prayer for help. A Song of Ascents. See note on 120.1–7. 126.1–3 The community looks back in memory to the Lord's deliverance of Zion and its joy on that occasion. It is possible that these verses are to

then it was said among the nations,

“The LORD has done great things for them.”

- 3 The LORD has done great things
for us,
and we rejoiced.

- 4 Restore our fortunes, O LORD,
like the watercourses in the Negeb.

- 5 May those who sow in tears
reap with shouts of joy.

- 6 Those who go out weeping,
bearing the seed for sowing,
shall come home with shouts
of joy,
carrying their sheaves.

Psalm 127

God's Blessing in the Home

A Song of Ascents. Of Solomon.

- 1 Unless the LORD builds the house,
those who build it labor in vain.
Unless the LORD guards the city,
the guard keeps watch in vain.
2 It is in vain that you rise up early
and go late to rest,
eating the bread of anxious toil;
for he gives sleep to his beloved.^e
3 Sons are indeed a heritage from
the LORD,
the fruit of the womb a reward.

- 4 Like arrows in the hand of a warrior
are the sons of one's youth.
5 Happy is the man who has his quiver full of them.
He shall not be put to shame
when he speaks with his enemies in the gate.

Psalm 128

The Happy Home of the Faithful

A Song of Ascents.

- 1 Happy is everyone who fears the
LORD,
who walks in his ways.
2 You shall eat the fruit of the labor of your hands;
you shall be happy, and it shall go well with you.
3 Your wife will be like a fruitful vine
within your house;
your children will be like olive shoots
around your table.
4 Thus shall the man be blessed
who fears the LORD.
5 The LORD bless you from Zion.
May you see the prosperity of Jerusalem
all the days of your life.

^e Or for he provides for his beloved during sleep

be read in a future tense as a dreaming anticipation of restoration. 126.1 Restored the fortunes of Zion, if in reference to the past, may have in mind the return of the exiles from captivity in Babylon and the rebuilding of Jerusalem. 126.2 The restoration of Zion evokes the joy of the people and the testimony of other nations to the Lord's marvelous work for Israel. 126.3 Israel echoes the testimony and affirms it to be true. 126.4–6 The present prayer for restoration that assumes the community is in distress again and wishes God's help so that its weeping may once again be turned into joy. 126.4 Watercourses in the Negeb, the dry beds in the desert that become torrential streams in times of rain and flood.

127.1–5 Instruction about the Lord as the source of security and of the gift of children. A Song of Ascents. See note on 120.1–7. Solomon was the master builder in Israel's history, building houses (1 Kings 3.1–2; 7; 8.13; 9.1) and cities (2 Chr 8.1–11). 127.1–2 Human labors to build structures and secure human communities are useless unless God is involved in these enterprises. 127.1 House can mean a building, such as the house of the Lord (the temple), or a human household or family line (see v. 4). 127.2 Sleep. The text is quite uncertain here. The reference may be to honor or prosperity—rather than sleep—as given by God rather than the fruit of driven, frantic work. 127.3–5 Many children are a gift of God to provide security for parents. The text has sons particularly in mind as able to protect against enemies.

128.1–5 Instruction about the rewards of living in obedience to the Lord. A Song of Ascents. See note on 120.1–7. 128.1 Happy. See note on 1.1. Fears the LORD is a way of speaking of the right relationship to God. See note on 34.7.

- 6 May you see your children's
children.
Peace be upon Israel!

Psalm 129*Prayer for the Downfall of Israel's Enemies*

A Song of Ascents.

- 1 "Often have they attacked me
from my youth"
—let Israel now say—
2 "often have they attacked me
from my youth,
yet they have not prevailed
against me.
3 The plowers plowed on my
back;
they made their furrows
long."
4 The LORD is righteous;
he has cut the cords of the
wicked.
5 May all who hate Zion be put to shame and turned backward.
6 Let them be like the grass on the housetops
that withers before it grows
up,
7 with which reapers do not fill their hands
or binders of sheaves their arms,
8 while those who pass by do
not say,
"The blessing of the LORD be
upon you!
We bless you in the name of
the LORD!"

Psalm 130*Waiting for Divine Redemption*

A Song of Ascents.

- 1 Out of the depths I cry to you,
O LORD.
2 Lord, hear my voice!
Let your ears be attentive
to the voice of my supplications!
3 If you, O LORD, should mark
iniquities,
Lord, who could stand?
4 But there is forgiveness with you,
so that you may be revered.
5 I wait for the LORD, my soul
waits,
and in his word I hope;
6 my soul waits for the Lord
more than those who watch for
the morning,
more than those who watch for
the morning.
7 O Israel, hope in the LORD!
For with the LORD there is
steadfast love,
and with him is great power to redeem.
8 It is he who will redeem Israel
from all its iniquities.

Psalm 131*Song of Quiet Trust*

A Song of Ascents. Of David.

- 1 O LORD, my heart is not
lifted up,

129.1–8 A community song of thanksgiving or trust. A Song of Ascents. See note on 120.1–7. 129.1–4 The people recount their long history of being oppressed and how God freed them from the wicked oppressors. 129.1 Let Israel now say. See note on 124.1. 129.5–8 Expression of confidence that God will put the oppressors to naught. 129.5–6 These verses may be translated as a prayer wish, "May all . . . be put to shame," or as a declaration, "They will all . . . be put to shame." 129.8 For the blessing given to reapers, see Ruth 2.4. No harvesting means no blessings exchanged during the harvest.

130.1–8 A prayer for help by one who seeks

God's forgiveness and favor. One of the penitential psalms (see note on 6.1–10). A Song of Ascents. See note on 120.1–7. 130.1–2 The plea of the psalmist for God to hear the prayer. 130.3–6 Trust in God's forgiveness and eager expectation that it will be granted. 130.6 There may be allusion here to the fact that confirmation of God's help often came in the early morning after a night of praying and waiting (cf. 5.3; 30.5; 46.5; 88.13; 90.14). 130.7–8 The hope of the individual is now commended to the community as the ground of its confidence also (cf. 131.3).

131.1–3 A prayer of humility and trust in God. A Song of Ascents. See note on 120.1–7.

- my eyes are not raised too high;
 I do not occupy myself with things
 too great and too marvelous for me.
 2 But I have calmed and quieted my soul,
 like a weaned child with its mother;
 my soul is like the weaned child that is with me.^f
 3 O Israel, hope in the LORD
 from this time on and forevermore.

Psalm 132

The Eternal Dwelling of God in Zion

A Song of Ascents.

- 1 O LORD, remember in David's favor
 all the hardships he endured;
 2 how he swore to the LORD
 and vowed to the Mighty One of Jacob, 3 "I will not enter my house
 or get into my bed;
 4 I will not give sleep to my eyes
 or slumber to my eyelids,
 5 until I find a place for the LORD,

a dwelling place for the Mighty
 One of Jacob."

- 6 We heard of it in Ephrathah;
 we found it in the fields of Jaar.
 7 "Let us go to his dwelling place;
 let us worship at his footstool."
 8 Rise up, O LORD, and go to your resting place,
 you and the ark of your might.
 9 Let your priests be clothed with righteousness,
 and let your faithful shout for joy.
 10 For your servant David's sake
 do not turn away the face of your anointed one.
 11 The LORD swore to David a sure oath
 from which he will not turn back:
 "One of the sons of your body
 I will set on your throne.
 12 If your sons keep my covenant
 and my decrees that I shall teach them,
 their sons also, forevermore,
 shall sit on your throne."
 13 For the LORD has chosen Zion;

^f Or my soul within me is like a weaned child

131.1 Great and . . . marvelous usually refers to the great and marvelous deeds of the Lord. 131.2 Calmed and quieted suggests some struggle of the soul. Like the weaned child that is with me suggests that the one speaking in the prayer is a mother. 131.3 The trust of the psalmist is commended to the larger community (cf. 130.7–8).

132.1–18 A royal psalm celebrating God's election of Zion and the sanctuary there as the divine abode on earth and the election of David and the Davidic line as God's ruling representatives. A Song of Ascents. See note on 120.1–7. 132.1–5 A prayer for God to remember David (and so the Davidic dynasty; cf. vv. 11–12) as the one who swore an oath to build a sanctuary for the Lord. This prayer may have been uttered by a priest or prophet or possibly by the king himself. 132.5 A dwelling place refers to the tent David set up as a sanctuary for the ark of the covenant (2 Sam 6.17). 132.6–10 Recollection of the bringing of the ark into the sanctuary on Zion. 132.6–7 While these verses are customarily understood as referring to David's finding the ark in the old sanctuary in Kiriath-jearim (1 Sam 7.1–2), i.e., Jaar (v. 6), and his bringing it to Jerusalem (2 Sam 6), they may refer to David's finding the ark (v. 6) and then worshiping before it in the old tent shrine where it had remained for some time. 132.7 Dwelling place, probably the tent shrine in which the ark had been situated before David brought it to Jerusalem. 132.8–10 The call to God to go forth in triumph to the place of new abode in Zion. 132.8 Go to your resting place is probably better translated as "Go from your resting place," i.e., from the old shrine where the ark had lodged to the new shrine David had set up in Jerusalem. The verse is reminiscent of the war song of the ark in Num 10.35 and thus signals this section as a call to God to march forth in victory into the new sanctuary (cf. Ps 24). 132.11–12 God's oath electing David and his line as rulers over the people in perpetuity. The covenant with the Davidic dynasty, however, is made explicitly conditional on the obedience of David's successors (cf. 2 Sam 7.14–15). 132.13–18 God's choice of David as

- he has desired it for his habitation:
 14 "This is my resting place forever; here I will reside, for I have desired it.
 15 I will abundantly bless its provisions; I will satisfy its poor with bread.
 16 Its priests I will clothe with salvation, and its faithful will shout for joy.
 17 There I will cause a horn to sprout up for David; I have prepared a lamp for my anointed one.
 18 His enemies I will clothe with disgrace, but on him, his crown will gleam."

Psalm 133*The Blessedness of Unity*

A Song of Ascents.

- 1 How very good and pleasant it is when kindred live together in unity!
- 2 It is like the precious oil on the head, running down upon the beard, on the beard of Aaron, running down over the collar of his robes.
- 3 It is like the dew of Hermon,

which falls on the mountains of Zion.
 For there the LORD ordained his blessing,
 life forevermore.

Psalm 134*Praise in the Night*

A Song of Ascents.

- 1 Come, bless the LORD, all you servants of the LORD, who stand by night in the house of the LORD!
- 2 Lift up your hands to the holy place, and bless the LORD.
- 3 May the LORD, maker of heaven and earth, bless you from Zion.

Psalm 135*Praise for God's Goodness and Might*

- 1 Praise the LORD!
Praise the name of the LORD; give praise, O servants of the LORD,
- 2 you that stand in the house of the LORD, in the courts of the house of our God.
- 3 Praise the LORD, for the LORD is good; sing to his name, for he is gracious.

king is now paired with God's choice of Zion as the divine dwelling place on earth. It is now the permanent resting place (cf. v. 8) of the ark, the visible throne of the invisible God. 132.17 Horn. See note on 89.17.

133.1–3 A didactic or wisdom poem transformed into a song for communal worship that may have been used in connection with journeys to Jerusalem. A Song of Ascents. See note on 120.1–7. 133.1 When kindred live together in unity is to be seen in relation to such texts as Deut 25.5; Gen 13.6; 36.7 and refers to the custom of clan and family groups living in proximity to each other. 133.2 Precious oil refers to the custom of anointing the head of an honored guest with the finest oil. Beard of Aaron. See Ex 29.7; Lev 8.12. 133.3 Hermon was the highest mountain in Syro-Palestine.

134.1–3 A liturgy of praise and blessing. A Song of Ascents. See note on 120.1–7. 134.1–2 A call to the people who are gathered in the sanctuary, apparently during the night and possibly at one of the major festivals, to praise and give thanks, i.e., bless the Lord (see note on 103.1–2). 134.1 Servants of the LORD could be a reference to the priests, but in Psalms it does not ordinarily have that restricted reference. 134.3 A blessing is prayed over the people, probably by a priest or priests (cf. Num 6.22–27).

135.1–21 A hymn of praise to God. Pieces and elements from other biblical texts have been woven together into a new and unified vehicle of praise. 135.1–4 Call to praise (vv. 1–3b) and the reason for praise (vv. 3b–4). 135.1 Cf. 113.1. Servants of the LORD. See note on 134.1. 135.2 Cf. 134.1. 135.3 Cf. 100.4–5; 136.1.

- 4 For the LORD has chosen Jacob
for himself,
Israel as his own possession.
- 5 For I know that the LORD is great;
our Lord is above all gods.
- 6 Whatever the LORD pleases he does,
in heaven and on earth,
in the seas and all deeps.
- 7 He it is who makes the clouds
rise at the end of the earth;
he makes lightnings for the rain
and brings out the wind from his storehouses.
- 8 He it was who struck down the firstborn of Egypt,
both human beings and animals;
- 9 he sent signs and wonders
into your midst, O Egypt, against Pharaoh and all his
servants.
- 10 He struck down many nations
and killed mighty kings—
- 11 Sihon, king of the Amorites,
and Og, king of Bashan,
and all the kingdoms of Canaan—
- 12 and gave their land as a heritage,
a heritage to his people Israel.
- 13 Your name, O LORD, endures
forever,
your renown, O LORD,
throughout all ages.
- 14 For the LORD will vindicate his
people,
and have compassion on his
servants.
- 15 The idols of the nations are silver
and gold,
the work of human hands.
- 16 They have mouths, but they do not speak;
they have eyes, but they do not see;
- 17 they have ears, but they do not hear,
and there is no breath in their
mouths.
- 18 Those who make them
and all who trust them
shall become like them.
- 19 O house of Israel, bless the LORD!
O house of Aaron, bless the
LORD!
- 20 O house of Levi, bless the LORD!
You that fear the LORD, bless
the LORD!
- 21 Blessed be the LORD from Zion,
he who resides in Jerusalem.
Praise the LORD!

Psalm 136

God's Work in Creation and in History

- 1 O give thanks to the LORD, for he
is good,
for his steadfast love endures
forever.
- 2 O give thanks to the God of gods,
for his steadfast love endures
forever.
- 3 O give thanks to the Lord of 135.4 Cf. Ex 19.5; Deut 7.6. 135.5–7 A singer praises the Lord as the creator and ruler of the natural world. 135.5 Cf. 95.3. 135.6 Cf. 115.3. 135.7 Cf. Jer 10.13; 51.16. 135.8–12 Praise continues, now for God's liberating the people from slavery in Egypt and bringing them safely into the land. The focus is upon the plagues in Egypt, the victory over the foreign kings on the way into the land, and the granting of the land to Israel. 135.8 Cf. 136.10. 135.10–12 Cf. 136.17–22. Sihon, Og. See Num 21.21–35; Deut 2.26–3.11. 135.13–14 Praise of God's compassionate care of the people. 135.13 Cf. Ex 3.15. 135.14 Cf. Deut 32.36. 135.15–18 Using 115.4–8, the psalmist contrasts implicitly the impotence of the idols of the nations with the God who has been praised in the preceding verses. 135.19–21 Concluding call to praise. On the enumeration of the groups in vv. 19–20, see note on 115.11; Ps 118.2–4. The house of Levi has been added to the list. In formal worship after the exile, the Levites were a group who assisted the Aaronite priests.

136.1–26 A hymn of praise for God's marvelous works. The second half of each verse was probably a response by the people (cf. Ps 106). 136.1–3 Call to the community to offer thankful praise of God. 136.1 See note on 106.1. The paradigm of praise and thanksgiving in v. 1 provides the vehicle of congregational response throughout the remainder of the psalm.

g Or Sea of Reeds

136.4–9 Praise of God for the marvelous works of creation. 136.4 The praise begins with a general reference that incorporates all the particular wonderful deeds that follow in the rest of the hymn. 136.10–22 Praise of God for the wonderful deeds on behalf of the people at the beginning of their history. 136.10–15 The deliverance from slavery in Egypt. 136.16 God's guidance and care of the people in the wilderness. 136.17–22 The victory over opposing kings and God's allotment (heritage) of the land of Canaan to Israel. 136.19–20 See Num 21.21–35; Deut 2.26–3.11. 136.23–25 Summary praise of God for the mercy and protection shown to the people. 136.26 The initial call to praise and thanksgiving is reiterated at the end.

Psalms 137*Lament over the Destruction of Jerusalem*

- 1 By the rivers of Babylon—
there we sat down and there we wept
when we remembered Zion.
- 2 On the willows^h there
we hung up our harps.
- 3 For there our captors
asked us for songs,
and our tormentors asked for
mirth, saying,
“Sing us one of the songs of Zion!”
- 4 How could we sing the LORD’s
song
in a foreign land?
- 5 If I forget you, O Jerusalem,
let my right hand wither!
- 6 Let my tongue cling to the roof
of my mouth,
if I do not remember you,
if I do not set Jerusalem
above my highest joy.
- 7 Remember, O LORD, against the Edomites
the day of Jerusalem’s fall,
how they said, “Tear it down!
Tear it down!
Down to its foundations!”
- 8 O daughter Babylon, you devastator!ⁱ
Happy shall they be who pay you back
what you have done to us!
- 9 Happy shall they be who take your little ones
and dash them against the rock!

Psalms 138*Thanksgiving and Praise*

Of David.

- 1 I give you thanks, O LORD, with my whole heart;
before the gods I sing your
praise;
- 2 I bow down toward your holy
temple
and give thanks to your name for your steadfast love and
your faithfulness;
for you have exalted your name
and your word
above everything.^j
- 3 On the day I called, you answered me,
you increased my strength of soul.^k
- 4 All the kings of the earth shall praise you, O LORD,
for they have heard the words
of your mouth.
- 5 They shall sing of the ways of the

- 6 For though the LORD is high, he regards the lowly;
but the haughty he perceives
from far away.

137.1–9 A prayer of the community for God to destroy its oppressors and enemies. While it refers to the exile in Babylon, it is probably a reference in recollection after the exile as the psalmist looks back on the event. 137.1–4 Lament over Jerusalem’s destruction and the plight of the exiles in Babylonian captivity. 137.3 Songs of Zion, such as Pss 46; 48; 76; 84. 137.5–6 Glorification of Zion in the form of a self-imprecation. The psalmist vows always to remember and care about Jerusalem. 137.7–9 An imprecation or curse prayer in which the psalmist calls for God’s destruction of those who destroyed Jerusalem and sent the people into captivity. 137.7 Edomites joined in the sacking and pillaging of Jerusalem and handed over fleeing survivors to the Babylonians (Ob 8–14; cf. Ezek 25.12–14; 35.2–9). 137.8–9 Happy. See note on 1.1.

138.1–8 A song of thanksgiving for deliverance by God. 138.1–3 Expression of thanksgiving (vv. 1–2) and testimony to what the Lord did to help (v. 3). Before the gods probably means before the heavenly assembly that surrounds the Lord of hosts, but the expression could refer to the gods of the nations, whose power is understood to be nothing in comparison to that of the Lord. 138.4–6 The kings of the nations are called to praise the ways of the Lord. Cf. 67.3–5;

- 7 Though I walk in the midst of trouble,
you preserve me against the wrath of my enemies;
you stretch out your hand,
and your right hand delivers me.
- 8 The LORD will fulfill his purpose for me;
your steadfast love, O LORD, endures forever.
Do not forsake the work of your hands.

Psalms 139*The Inescapable God*

To the leader. Of David. A Psalm.

- 1 O LORD, you have searched me and known me.
2 You know when I sit down and when I rise up;
you discern my thoughts from far away.
3 You search out my path and my lying down,
and are acquainted with all my ways.
4 Even before a word is on my tongue,
O LORD, you know it completely.
5 You hem me in, behind and before,
and lay your hand upon me.
6 Such knowledge is too wonderful for me;
it is so high that I cannot attain it.
- 7 Where can I go from your spirit?
Or where can I flee from your presence?
8 If I ascend to heaven, you are there;

- if I make my bed in Sheol, you are there.
- 9 If I take the wings of the morning
and settle at the farthest limits of the sea, 10 even there your hand shall lead me,
and your right hand shall hold me fast.
- 11 If I say, "Surely the darkness shall cover me,
and the light around me become night," 12 even the darkness is not dark to you;
the night is as bright as the day,
for darkness is as light to you.
- 13 For it was you who formed my inward parts;
you knit me together in my mother's womb.
- 14 I praise you, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made.
Wonderful are your works;
that I know very well.
- 15 My frame was not hidden from you,
when I was being made in secret,
intricately woven in the depths of the earth.
- 16 Your eyes beheld my unformed substance.
In your book were written all the days that were formed for me,
when none of them as yet existed.
- 17 How weighty to me are your thoughts, O God!
How vast is the sum of them!
- 18 I try to count them—they are more than the sand;

68.32; 126.2. 138.6 Cf. 113.5–8. 138.7–8 An expression of confidence by the psalmist ending in a prayer for God's continued care. 138.8 Work of your hands can refer to any of God's works from creation to the redemption of an individual.

139.1–24 A prayer for God's help against certain enemies or persecutors by one who claims to be innocent and offers to be tested by God. To the leader. See note on 4.1–8. 139.1–6 Everything about the psalmist, even the innermost thoughts, are known to the Lord. Nothing the psalmist does or thinks has escaped the Lord. 139.7–12 There is nowhere that one can hide or escape from the presence of God. 139.13–19 The beginning (vv. 13–16a) and end

- I come to the end!^l—I am still with you.
- 19 O that you would kill the wicked,
O God,
and that the bloodthirsty would depart from me—
20 those who speak of you maliciously,
and lift themselves up against you for evil!^m
- 21 Do I not hate those who hate
you, O LORD?
And do I not loathe those who rise up against you?
22 I hate them with perfect hatred;
I count them my enemies.

Prayer for Deliverance from Enemies

To the leader. A Psalm of David.

- 1 Deliver me, O LORD, from
evildoers;
protect me from those who are violent,
2 who plan evil things in their minds
and stir up wars continually.
3 They make their tongue sharp as a snake's,

protect me from the violent
who have planned my downfall.
5 The arrogant have hidden a trap

along the road they have set

Psalms 141*Prayer for Preservation from Evil*

A Psalm of David.

- 1 I call upon you, O LORD; come quickly to me;
 give ear to my voice when I call to you.
 2 Let my prayer be counted as incense before you,
 and the lifting up of my hands as an evening sacrifice.
 3 Set a guard over my mouth, O LORD;
 keep watch over the door of my lips.
 4 Do not turn my heart to any evil,
 to busy myself with wicked deeds
 in company with those who work iniquity;
 do not let me eat of their delicacies.
 5 Let the righteous strike me;
 let the faithful correct me.
 Never let the oil of the wicked anoint my head,^s
 for my prayer is continually^t
 against their wicked deeds.
 6 When they are given over to those who shall condemn them,

- then they shall learn that my words were pleasant.
 7 Like a rock that one breaks apart and shatters on the land,
 so shall their bones be strewn at the mouth of Sheol.^u
 8 But my eyes are turned toward you, O God, my Lord;
 in you I seek refuge; do not leave me defenseless.
 9 Keep me from the trap that they have laid for me,
 and from the snares of evildoers.
 10 Let the wicked fall into their own nets,
 while I alone escape.

Psalms 142*Prayer for Deliverance from Persecutors*A Maskil of David. When he was in the cave.
A Prayer.

- 1 With my voice I cry to the LORD;
 with my voice I make supplication to the LORD.
 2 I pour out my complaint before him;
 I tell my trouble before him.
 3 When my spirit is faint,
 you know my way.
 In the path where I walk
 they have hidden a trap for me.
 4 Look on my right hand and see—
 there is no one who takes notice of me;

141.1–10 An individual prayer for help against the danger of being drawn into association with the wicked. 141.1–2 Plea to God to hear and respond to the prayer. 141.2 Incense. Cf. Ex 30.8. Evening sacrifice. Cf. Ex 29.38–42; Num 28.3–8. Accounts are given of prayer offered at the time of the evening sacrifice and with incense in Ezra 9.4–5; Dan 9.20–21; Jdt 9.1. 141.3–7 Specific petitions whose primary content is the prayer for God to keep the psalmist from harmful speech and from association with the wicked (cf. 1.1). Vv. 5–7 are difficult to interpret because of the condition of the Hebrew text.

141.4 Eat of their delicacies, i.e., enjoy their fancy hospitality. 141.7 Sheol. See note on 6.5. 141.8–10 Further pleas for God's help to keep the petitioner from being drawn in and caught up by those who do wrong. 141.10 The prayer for help against the enticement of the wicked is also a prayer for their judgment; cf. 7.15–16; 9.15.

142.1–7 An individual prayer for help against persecutors. Maskil. See note on 32.1–11. When he was in the cave. See note on 57.1–11. 142.1–3a Cry for help. 142.3b–4 Lament over the psalmist's distress. Enemies are plotting and there is no one who will help or pay any attention

no refuge remains to me;
no one cares for me.

- 5 I cry to you, O LORD;
I say, "You are my refuge,
my portion in the land of the living."
6 Give heed to my cry,
for I am brought very low.

Save me from my persecutors,
for they are too strong for me.

- 7 Bring me out of prison,
so that I may give thanks to
your name.
The righteous will surround me,
for you will deal bountifully
with me.

Psalm 143

Prayer for Deliverance from Enemies

A Psalm of David.

- 1 Hear my prayer, O LORD;
give ear to my supplications in
your faithfulness;
answer me in your
righteousness.
2 Do not enter into judgment with
your servant,
for no one living is righteous
before you.
3 For the enemy has pursued
me,
crushing my life to the ground,
making me sit in darkness like those long dead.

- 4 Therefore my spirit faints
within me;
my heart within me is appalled.

- 5 I remember the days of old,
I think about all your deeds,
I meditate on the works of your
hands.

- 6 I stretch out my hands to you;
my soul thirsts for you like a parched land. Selah

- 7 Answer me quickly, O LORD;
my spirit fails.
Do not hide your face from me,
or I shall be like those who go
down to the Pit.

- 8 Let me hear of your steadfast
love in the morning,
for in you I put my trust.
Teach me the way I should go,
for to you I lift up my soul.

- 9 Save me, O LORD, from my
enemies;

I have fled to you for refuge.^v

- 10 Teach me to do your will,
for you are my God.
Let your good spirit lead me
on a level path.

- 11 For your name's sake, O LORD,
preserve my life.
In your righteousness bring me
out of trouble.

- 12 In your steadfast love cut off my
enemies,
and destroy all my adversaries,
for I am your servant.

^v One Heb Ms Gk: MT to you I have hidden

to the suffering of the petitioner. 142.5–7 Further cries for help (vv. 5a, 6, 7a) intermingled with expressions of trust (vv. 5b, 7b). 142.7 Bring me out of prison may be a metaphorical reference to the experience of distress or it may refer to an actual imprisonment or captivity of the one who cries out in the psalm; cf. 107.10–16. So that I may give thanks to your name is a vow of praise, which often concludes a prayer for help (cf. 7.17; 13.6; 35.28; 59.16–17; 61.8).

143.1–12 An individual prayer for help. One of the penitential psalms (see note on 6.1–10). 143.1–2 Cry for help. 143.2 The implicit acknowledgment of inadequacy before God's judgment has led to the inclusion of this psalm in the penitential psalms. 143.3–4 Description of the affliction from oppressive elements and the internal distress it has caused. 143.5–6 Recollection of God's saving works in the past is the ground for the present plea. Selah. See note on 3.2. 143.7–12 Urgent pleas for help are followed by laments and expressions of confidence that are submitted as grounds for God's attention. 143.7 Hide your face. See notes on 10.1; 27.9. Pit. See note on 16.10. 143.8b–10 In addition to the plea for help, these verses seek divine instruction in the proper way to go. 143.11–12 The plea for help is rooted in the character of God as the psalmist pleads for the Lord to act in accordance with God's own nature.

Psalm 144*Prayer for National Deliverance and Security*

Of David.

- 1 Blessed be the LORD, my rock,
who trains my hands for war,
and my fingers for battle;
- 2 my rock^w and my fortress,
my stronghold and my deliverer,
my shield, in whom I take refuge,
who subdues the peoples^x
under me.
- 3 O LORD, what are human beings
that you regard them,
or mortals that you think of
them?
- 4 They are like a breath;
their days are like a passing
shadow.
- 5 Bow your heavens, O LORD, and
come down;
touch the mountains so that they smoke.
- 6 Make the lightning flash and scatter them;
send out your arrows and rout
them.
- 7 Stretch out your hand from on
high;
set me free and rescue me from
the mighty waters,
from the hand of aliens,
- 8 whose mouths speak lies,
and whose right hands are
false.

- 9 I will sing a new song to you,
O God;
upon a ten-stringed harp I will play to you,
- 10 the one who gives victory to
kings,
who rescues his servant David.
- 11 Rescue me from the cruel sword,
and deliver me from the hand
of aliens,
whose mouths speak lies,
and whose right hands are
false.
- 12 May our sons in their youth
be like plants full grown,
our daughters like corner pillars,
cut for the building of a palace.
- 13 May our barns be filled,
with produce of every kind;
may our sheep increase by thousands,
by tens of thousands in our fields,
- 14 and may our cattle be heavy
with young.
May there be no breach in the walls,^y no exile,
and no cry of distress in our streets.
- 15 Happy are the people to whom
such blessings fall;
happy are the people whose
God is the LORD.

144.1–11 A royal prayer for God's help. The psalm uses themes and traditions found in Ps 18 (2 Sam 22), a royal song of thanksgiving. 144.1–2 The king gives thanks and praise for God's instruction, protection, and victory over other nations (cf. Pss 18.2; 34; 46–47). 144.3–4 Reflection on human frailty in anticipation of the prayer that follows (cf. Job 7.17–18; Pss 8.4; 90.5–6; 103.15–16; 146.3–4). 144.5–8 Prayer for God's help couched in the theophanic language of 18.7–19; see notes there. 144.7 Aliens, hostile nations or peoples. Whose right hands are false refers to violating oaths sworn by raising the right hand. The verse may refer to nations that have broken political alliances or treaties (cf. v. 11b). 144.9–11 Vow of praise and further plea for help (cf. vv. 7–8). 144.9–10 The basis for associating the psalm with a king and particularly with David, who was a musician and also experienced God's deliverance from his enemies, is seen in these verses. David could refer to a member of the Davidic line (cf. Ezek 34.23; Hos 3.5). 144.12–15 A community prayer for God's blessing of the nation in prosperity and security. The relation of these verses to the royal psalm in vv. 1–11 is unclear. They may have been a prayer uttered by the king or they may have been originally a separate prayer later joined to the royal psalm. 144.15 Happy. See note on 1.1.

145.1–21 A hymn of praise. An alphabetic acrostic psalm (so also Pss 9–10; 25; 34; 37; 111; 112; 119; Lam 1–4), each verse beginning with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet (see note on 9.1–10.18). 145.1–2 An individual makes a vow of praise and thanksgiving to the Lord that is carried out in the verses that follow (cf. 7.17; 9.1–2; 13.6; 116.12–19; 138.1–2; 144.9–10). 145.3–7 The praise of the psalmist becomes a part of a chain of praise that stretches out across the generations (cf. 22.30). 145.8–9 The substance of the praise of God is found in these verses, which draw upon the ancient confession of Ex 34.6; cf. note on 103.8 as well as the paradigm song of praise and thanksgiving (see note on 106.1). 145.10–13a All of God's creatures as well as all the faithful members of the congregation are now called to praise the splendor of the Lord's eternal rule, the kingdom of God. 145.13b–20 These verses echo vv. 8–9, praising the faithfulness and compassion of God, especially for the weak and afflicted (vv. 13b–14, 17b), the providence of God (vv. 15–16, 20a), the justice of God (vv. 17a, 20b), and God's presence and responsiveness to those who cry out for help (vv. 18–19). The comprehensiveness and inclusiveness of these divine ways and deeds is seen in the repetition of the word all in these verses and vv. 10–13. 145.19 Fear him. See note on 34.7.

145.21 A concluding expression of the purpose of the psalm, the praise of the Lord by the psalmist (cf. vv. 1–2, 5–6) joined with the praise by all flesh (cf. vv. 10–13).

146.1–10 A hymn of praise. 146.1–2 Introductory call to praise as self-exhortation (cf. note on 145.1–2). 146.3–4 Reflection on the inadequacy of human help addressed as a warning to the congregation (cf. 56.11; 118.6–9). 146.5–9 Over against human inadequacy, the psalmist points out the benefits of trusting in the Lord by enumerating the many ways God cares, particularly for the weak, the suffering, and the oppressed (cf. 1 Sam 2.1–10; Ps 145.14–20). 146.5 Happy. See note on 1.1. The God of Jacob, a divine title often found in psalms that focus on Zion (v. 10; 20.1; 24.6; 46.7, 11;

76.6; 84.8). 146.6 The power of God is attested first in praise of God as creator of all that is. 146.7 Cf. Pss 82; 107.10–16; 140.12; 142.7. 146.9 The way of the wicked. Cf. 1.6. 146.10 Concluding praise of God's eternal rule (cf. Ex 15.18; Pss 29.10; 145.13; 93; 95–99).

147.1–20 A hymn of praise. Motifs and themes from other psalms, Job, and Isa 40–66 appear throughout the psalm. 147.1–6 Call to praise (v. 1) and the reason for praise, which is found in the Lord's power and care. The psalmist joins praise of God's power and wisdom in creation with God's attention to the lowliest and weakest creatures. 147.2 The Lord builds up Jerusalem. Cf. 51.18; 102.16; 127.1. Outcasts of Israel. Cf. Neh 1.9; Isa 11.12; 56.8; Zeph 3.19. 147.3 Cf. 6.2; 30.2; 34.18; 41.4; Isa 61.1.

149.1–9 A hymn of praise for God's salvation. 149.1–4 Call for the congregation to praise the Lord because of God's favor seen in saving the humble, i.e., the lowly and helpless, which is how the community sees itself. 149.1 Sing to the LORD a new song. Cf. 33.3; 40.3; 96.1; 98.1; 144.1; Isa 42.10. 149.5–9 Call for the people to praise and go forth in battle. It is debated as to whether these verses describe a ritual occasion of martial singing and dancing during one of the religious festivals or envision an eschatological victory celebration. The opening verses of the psalm tend to suggest a liturgical event of praise and celebration of God's victory and rule over the nations. 149.5–6 Cf. Jdt 15.13. 149.7 Cf. Isa 34.8; 61.2; 62.1–2.

Whereas in other hymns in Psalms the emphasis is often upon the reasons for praise in God's marvelous works, here the emphasis is upon the call to praise and the universality of that praise in all the earth, by every creature, and with every instrument that can make music.

- 2 Praise him for his mighty deeds;
praise him according to his surpassing greatness!
- 3 Praise him with trumpet sound;
praise him with lute and harp!
- 4 Praise him with tambourine and dance;

- praise him with strings and pipe!
- 5 Praise him with clanging cymbals;
praise him with loud clashing
cymbals!
- 6 Let everything that breathes
praise the LORD!
Praise the LORD!

PROVERBS

THE BOOK OF PROVERBS is a series of collections whose authorship was traditionally attributed to Solomon, as was the composition of Ecclesiastes and Song of Solomon. Actually, the book received its final editing during the post-exilic period (sixth century B.C.E. and later), and while many of its sayings may well have originated during the earlier periods, it is clear that the ascription to Solomon is an honorary one, making sense in light of his fabled wisdom (1 Kings 3–4). The authors of these collections of (mostly) two-line sayings were the sages, a social class that served as counselors, bureaucrats, and teachers during the Divided Kingdom and as preservers of tradition in the later periods. Hence, Proverbs, like Job and Ecclesiastes, reflects the worldview of the intellectual elite, and though aspects of that outlook changed as cultural conditions altered, a few key emphases remain constant.

Leading Ideas

The sages rooted their theology in knowledge about God gained through the study of creation and human nature. Covenant, historical redemption, and the legal tradition, while known to the sages, are less important in the “wisdom” books than elsewhere. This is in part because the world of wisdom is an international one: many of the sages’ writings have direct parallels from Mesopotamia and Egypt (in fact, Prov 22.17–24.22 derives in some way from the earlier Egyptian Instruction of Amenemope), and the bureaucracies of Judah and Israel were modeled after those of their more powerful neighbors.

One of the key concepts of the sages, “fear of the LORD,” shows that whatever the origin of the wisdom teachers’ cosmopolitan outlook, it had been fully hebraized. “Fear of the LORD” refers to more than simple fear; it is the awe, obedience, and proper relationship to God that necessarily undergirds all attempts at gathering knowledge or living wisely. Contrasts between the “righteous” or “wise” and the “wicked” or “foolish” show the sages’ concern for Israelite morality as it was lived out on a day-to-day basis.

Concern with retribution also marks the thinking of this group, for they believe that certain actions invariably produce reliable consequences. The wise person will consider these causes and effects before acting. The belief in inevitable relationships between act and consequence makes it easy to blame fools for their foolishness and related misfortunes or to recommend corporal punishment for children lest their disobedience produce worse consequences later in life. It is at such points that we become most aware that we are listening to the discourse of a privileged, elite group. However, the sages also know that life is not so easily understood, that appearances can be deceptive, and that God's purposes cannot be thwarted by mere human wisdom. The books of Job and Ecclesiastes also reflect the wisdom movement's inner debate over the nature of retribution.

Woman Wisdom

The figure of Woman Wisdom, the personification of the sages' teachings in the form of a woman who reaches out to the world of humans, is another intriguing feature of the book. The meaning of this exalted female figure in a strongly male-centered society has been the topic of much debate, for female imagery begins (chs. 1–9) and ends (ch. 31) the book, providing both the theological introduction and human postscript to the collections of individual sayings. Some find in this figure—and in her direct opposites, Woman Folly (NRSV, “foolish woman,” 9.13–18), Woman Stranger (NRSV, “loose woman,” 2.16–19), and the adulteress—the remnant of ancient customs of goddess worship within Israelite society or see her as suggestive of the goddesses who served as scribal patrons in ancient Near Eastern societies. Others see her as an extension of God's attributes, which have subsequently taken on independent life (i.e., a hypostasis), or as a prophet. To others she is modeled after the real roles of teacher, counselor, and household planner played by Israelite women in their homes and societies. At any rate, this intriguing figure speaks with divine authority (1.20–33), played a role in creation (ch. 8), and resists categorization as a simple literary device of personification.

Formal Characteristics

The literary forms that make up the book are as diverse as the sages' observations on life, though all conform to the canons of parallelism in Hebrew poetry. In parallelism, a poetic verse consists of two (sometimes three) lines, the second of which in some way restates the thought of the first. In synonymous parallelism, the second line agrees with the first; in antithetic parallelism, the relationship is one of contrast between the two lines; and in formal or synthetic parallelism the second line advances the thought of the first in some way, but does not directly agree or disagree. Because the sages are concerned with the inculcation of moral values, they often use antithetic parallelism to heighten the contrast between approved and disapproved behaviors.

Prov 1–9 consists primarily of lengthy “wisdom poems,” which celebrate the virtues of Woman Wisdom, and “instructions.” The instruction, a form borrowed from the Egyptian wisdom tradition, is an extended poem characterized by positive and negative admonitions to youth, issued in direct address from parent to child or teacher to pupil (1.8–19; 2.1–22; 3.1–12, 21–35; 4.1–9, 10–19, 20–27; 5.1–23; 6.20–35; 7.1–27; 22.17–24.22; 31.1–9). Prov 31.1–9 is extraordinary because it purports to be an instruction by a queen mother. The acrostic poem on the Woman of Worth, or the capable wife, in 31.10–31, in which each line begins with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet, is another type of extended composition found within the book.

In chs. 10–30, readers encounter the highly crafted, two-line artistic proverbs of the sages. Most of these go beyond simple observation into the realm of moral teaching. Specialized forms of proverbs are the “better than” sayings (e.g., 3.14; 15.16–17), their “not right” variation (e.g., 17.26a; 18.5a), and riddles. Riddles are infrequent in Proverbs (but see 23.29–35). Admonitions and prohibitions add a motivation to the proverbial observations (4.21–22; 5.7–10). “Numerical sayings,” a favorite among Israel’s neighbors, use the pattern of x number in the first line followed by $x + 1$ in the next (“Three things are stately in their stride; four are stately in their gait,” 30.29). The arrangement of these forms is not haphazard: the sages used wordplays, key words, alliteration, content, and other devices in their ordering and editing of diverse sayings.

1 The proverbs of Solomon son of David, king of Israel:

Prologue

2 For learning about wisdom and instruction,

for understanding words of insight,

3 for gaining instruction in wise dealing,
righteousness, justice, and equity;

4 to teach shrewdness to the simple,

1.1–9.18 Using antithesis, these instructional poems identify and interrelate certain fundamental values: wisdom vs. folly, good vs. evil, life vs. death, parental instruction vs. the lure of outsiders’ speech. These concepts are often presented metaphorically by means of two contrasting female figures, personified Wisdom and the strange woman (see 2.16; text note b).

1.1–7 A general introduction to the book as a whole. 1.1 In the royal ideology, the king’s wisdom gave him the capacity to administer legal justice and bring righteous order to society (see also 8.14–16; 16.10, 13; 20.26, 28; 25.1–7; 28.2–3, 15–16; 29.2, 12, 14, 16, 26; 30.27–31; 31.1–9; 1 Kings 3.4–28; 4.29–34; 10.1–13). The proper nouns in this verse, Solomon, David, and Israel, have the numerical equivalent of 930. 1.2–5 The concatenation of terms related to wisdom (learning, instruction, understanding, . . . skill), hard to distinguish in meaning, show the fullness and importance of wisdom discourse (see also 2.2–11; 3.13, 21; 4.1, 5, 7; 5.1–2; 8.1, 5, 12, 14). 1.3 The association of wise dealing with righteousness, justice, and equity is typical of wisdom thought: worldly wisdom makes one right with God (see also 2.9; 3.33–35; 8.8, 18–20). Equity, from the Hebrew root meaning “straight, (up)right,” the concept is common in Proverbs in both the concrete and the abstract sense and is often found with path or way (see, e.g., 2.7, 13, 15, 21; 3.6, 32; 4.11, 25–26; 5.6; 8.8–9; 9.15; 11.3, 5, 6; 28.10; 29.27; 30.20). 1.4 Proverbs has at least two categories of fool. Here the simple and young can be trained; elsewhere recalcitrant students without sense become the doomed scoffers, scorners, and fools [who] hate knowledge (see, e.g., 1.7, 22, 32;

- knowledge and prudence to the young—5 let the wise also hear and gain in learning,
 and the discerning acquire skill,
 6 to understand a proverb and a figure,
 the words of the wise and their riddles.
 7 The fear of the LORD is the beginning of knowledge;
 fools despise wisdom and instruction.

Violent Men

- 8 Hear, my child, your father's instruction,

- and do not reject your mother's teaching;
 9 for they are a fair garland for your head,
 and pendants for your neck.
 10 My child, if sinners entice you, do not consent.
 11 If they say, "Come with us, let us lie in wait for blood;
 let us wantonly ambush the innocent;
 12 like Sheol let us swallow them alive
 and whole, like those who go down to the Pit.
 13 We shall find all kinds of costly things;
 we shall fill our houses with booty.
 14 Throw in your lot among us;

3.34; 6.32; 7.7; 9.4, 6, 7, 12, 16; 10.1, 8; 14.9; 21.24; 27.22; 29.1, 8). The message is: wisdom leads to life, folly to death. 1.5 The search for knowledge is lifelong (see also 9.7–12). Skill implies the ability to trim one's sails in harmony with the winds one cannot control. 1.6 Proper and truthful speech is a central concern, both as a practical skill and as a manifestation of an orderly society; listening and speaking well can be a matter of life and death (see, e.g., 1.23; 2.1, 6, 12, 16; 4.4–5, 10, 20, 24; 5.2–3, 7, 13; 6.2, 17, 19; 7.2, 21, 24; 8.6–8, 13; 10.11, 13, 19–21, 31–32; 25.11–15; 26.4–5, 7, 9, 22–25, 28; 29.20). Proverb, riddles, identifiable wisdom forms of speech (cf. note on 6.16–19; Judg 14.14, 19). 1.7 Fear of the Lord, defined as a righteous life or the hatred of evil, i.e., the proper relationship to God, is the touchstone of wisdom (see also 1.29; 2.5; 3.7; 8.13; 9.10; 15.33; 19.23; 28.14; 29.25; 31.30; Job 28.28). On the beginning of knowledge/wisdom, cf. Prov 4.7. Fools. See note on 1.4.

1.8–19 Parental warning against men whose greed breeds violence. 1.8 Hear, my child, a typical formula to introduce an instruction; sometimes it appears without hear, sometimes in the plural, children (see also 1.10, 15; 2.1; 3.1, 21; 4.1, 10, 20; 5.1, 7; 6.1, 3, 20; 7.1, 24; 8.32; 27.11). Students of the time were usually male; "Hear, my son" in the rsv translation may be more accurate. Both mother and father are regularly named as teachers (see also 4.3; 6.20; 10.1; 15.20; 23.22; 28.7, 24; 29.3, 15, 17; 30.17; 31.1). Instruction, teaching (Hebrew torah), along with discipline, reproof, counsel, words typical of wisdom discourse (see, e.g., 1.25, 30; 3.1, 11–13; 4.1; 5.12; 6.20, 23; 7.2; 9.7–9; 10.17; 11.14; 29.1). Torah, elsewhere a term for covenant law, in Proverbs usually refers to more general parental instruction (cf. command- ment, 2.1; 10.8; for exceptions, see 28.4, 7, 9; 29.18; perhaps 31.26). 1.9 Fair garland, also Woman Wisdom's prize (4.9); parental instruction is thus associated with Wisdom's authority. The depiction of virtue visibly worn is common; it is unclear whether it is intended literally (see also 3.3, 22; 6.21; 7.3; Job 31.35–36; Song 8.6). 1.10–19 The motif of the violent men to be avoided appears also in 2.12–15; 3.31–32; 6.11–19; 28.17, 24; 29.10. 1.10 My child. See note on 1.8. 1.11–14 Though the instructor purports to quote the sinners' speech, the rhetoric shows it to be his own construction (see also 7.14–20; 8.4–36; 9.4–6, 16–17). 1.11 Lie in wait is also used of the Strange Woman (7.12; 23.28). 1.12 Sheol, Pit, the place of the dead. In Canaanite myth, Death was depicted as having a gaping maw with which to swallow victims; the sinners thus equate themselves with personified Death (see also 5.5; 7.27; 9.18; 23.27; 27.20; 30.16). 1.13 Find. Seeking and finding is a common motif usually applied to the quest for wisdom (1.28; 2.4–5; 3.13; 4.22; 8.9, 17), though it is used once of the Strange Woman's seduction of the simple youth (7.15; see also 25.2–3; 28.11–13, 28; 29.10). Costly things. Wealth and treasure are among the blessings of seeking Wisdom (8.18, 21; cf. 25.11–12); only sinners quest for the things in themselves (2.1, 4; 3.14–15; 8.10–11, 19). Houses. The choice of which house to enter becomes important in developing the portraits of Woman Wisdom and Woman Stranger/Folly (2.18; 3.33; 5.8, 10; 7.6, 8, 11, 19, 27; 9.1, 14; 14.1; cf. 31.15). Booty, or gain, is also what the good wife brings her husband (31.11). 1.14 One purse, a temptingly egalitarian offer to a young man in a society where the family patriarch controlled the wealth until his death.

- we will all have one purse” — 15 my child, do not walk in
 their way,
 keep your foot from their paths;
 16 for their feet run to evil,
 and they hurry to shed blood.
 17 For in vain is the net baited
 while the bird is looking on;
 18 yet they lie in wait—to kill
 themselves!
 and set an ambush—for their own lives!
 19 Such is the end^a of all who are greedy for gain;
 it takes away the life of its possessors.

Woman Wisdom

- 20 Wisdom cries out in the street;
 in the squares she raises her
 voice.
 21 At the busiest corner she cries out;
 at the entrance of the city gates
 she speaks:
 22 “How long, O simple ones, will you love being simple?
 How long will scoffers delight in their scoffing
 and fools hate knowledge?

- 23 Give heed to my reproof;
 I will pour out my thoughts
 to you;
 I will make my words known
 to you.
 24 Because I have called and you refused,
 have stretched out my hand
 and no one heeded,
 25 and because you have ignored all my counsel
 and would have none of my reproof,
 26 I also will laugh at your calamity;
 I will mock when panic
 strikes you,
 27 when panic strikes you like a storm,
 and your calamity comes like a whirlwind,
 when distress and anguish
 come upon you.
 28 Then they will call upon me, but I will not answer;
 they will seek me diligently, but
 will not find me.
 29 Because they hated knowledge and did not choose the fear of
 the LORD,

^a Gk: Heb are the ways

1.15–16 My child. See note on 1.8. Way, paths, imagery for life decisions, often concretized with images of feet that run or walk in one moral direction or another (see, e.g., 2.7–20; 3.6, 17, 23; 4.11–19, 26–27; 5.5–8, 21; 6.23; 7.25; 8.13, 20, 32; 9.6; 10.9; 11.5; 28.6). 1.17 An originally independent proverb included here for persuasion: greed is its own snare (see also 3.26; 5.22; 6.2, 5; 7.22–23; 12.13; 29.6, 25), though the sinners are too foolish to see it. 1.18 Lie in wait, ambush. The sinners' own words are repeated, but with the meaning inverted to reveal their folly. 1.19 End, lit. ways. See note on 1.15–16. All who are greedy for gain—especially those seeking to circumvent the patriarchal inheritance system (cf. 1.14)?

1.20–33 Female personified Wisdom appears first as a prophet or street teacher (see also 3.13–18; 4.5–9; 5.15–19; 7.4–5; 8.1–36; 9.1–6). Though she forms the antithesis to the Strange Woman (see 2.16–19; 5.3–14, 19–20; 6.24–35; 7.1–27), there are many similarities in their portrayals. Shared vocabulary also links her to the capable wife (31.10–31). 1.20–21 Cries out, raises her voice. Her approach is personal and verbal, as is the Strange Woman's (1.24; 8.1; 9.3, 15).

Street, squares, corner, city gates. Woman Wisdom is found where the economic and juridical life of society takes place, as are the Strange Woman and the capable wife (7.8, 12; 8.2–3; 9.3, 14; 31.23, 31). 1.22 How long evokes prophetic as well as psalmic speech (e.g., Jer 4.14, 21; 12.4; Pss 6.3; 74.10). Simple ones, scoffers, fools. See note on 1.4. One relates to Wisdom in the personal terms of love or hate (see also 1.29; 4.6; 5.12; 6.16; 8.13, 17–21, 36; 9.8; 29.3). 1.23 Pour out. Wisdom is like a fountain or spring (see also 13.14; 16.22; 25.26). Words. See note on 1.6. 1.24–33 The prophet (called, refused, stretched out my hand; see Isa 6.9–10; 65.1–2) and the sage (counsel, reproof; see note on 1.8) are evoked by this vocabulary. Strikingly, Woman Wisdom speaks in her own behalf, rather than in God's. 1.26–27 Laugh. See 31.25. Panic. The effect of accepting or rejecting Wisdom is experienced internally as well as externally (see 1.33; 3.25–26; 4.16; 6.22). 1.28 Call. Wisdom's approach should be matched by the student's (see 1.20; 2.3). Seek, find. See note on 1.13; elsewhere the terms describe the worshiper's relationship to God (Hos 5.6; Am 8.12; 2 Chr 15.2). 1.29 Hated knowledge. See note on

- 30 would have none of my counsel,
and despised all my reproof, 31 therefore they shall eat the fruit of their way
and be sated with their own
devices.
32 For waywardness kills the simple,
and the complacency of fools
destroys them;
33 but those who listen to me will be secure
and will live at ease, without dread of disaster.”

The Value of Wisdom

- 2 My child, if you accept my words
and treasure up my commandments within you,
2 making your ear attentive to wisdom
and inclining your heart to
understanding;
3 if you indeed cry out for insight,
and raise your voice for
understanding;
4 if you seek it like silver,
and search for it as for hidden treasures—
5 then you will understand the fear
of the LORD
and find the knowledge
of God.

- 6 For the LORD gives wisdom;
from his mouth come knowledge and
understanding;
7 he stores up sound wisdom for
the upright;
he is a shield to those who walk
blamelessly,
8 guarding the paths of justice
and preserving the way of his faithful ones.
9 Then you will understand righteousness and justice
and equity, every good path;
10 for wisdom will come into your
heart,
and knowledge will be pleasant
to your soul;
11 prudence will watch over you;
and understanding will guard you.
12 It will save you from the way of
evil,
from those who speak
perversely,
13 who forsake the paths of uprightness
to walk in the ways of darkness, 14 who rejoice in doing evil
and delight in the perverseness
of evil;
15 those whose paths are crooked,

1.22. Fear of the LORD. See note on 1.7. 1.30 Counsel, reproof. See note on 1.8. 1.31 Eat the fruit, be sated. Food is a metaphor for attitude and action (see also 4.17; 9.2, 5, 17; 18.21; 26.22; 27.7, 18; 28.7; 30.20). Way. See note on 1.15–16. 1.32–33 The sages' fundamental choice, between life and death, is often symbolized as the choice between two women, Wisdom and Stranger (2.18–19; 3.2, 16, 18, 22; 4.4, 10, 13, 22; 5.5–6, 11–12, 23; 6.23, 26; 7.2, 27; 8.4, 35–36; 9.6, 18). 1.32 A proverb suggesting evil brings its own reward (perhaps without God's direct action; see also 26.27–28). Simple, fools. See note on 1.4. 1.33 Be secure (lit. “dwell secure”); the same phrase describes faithful Israel's life in the land (Deut 33.28). Dread. See 1.26–27.

2.1–22 An instruction repeating several key themes from ch. 1 and introducing treasure as a symbol for wisdom (2.1, 4; see note on 1.13). 2.1 My child. See note on 1.8. Words. See note on 1.6. Commandments, here the words of a human teacher, elsewhere in the Bible God's commandments (see note on 1.8; also 3.1; 4.4; 6.20, 23; 7.2). 2.2–11 Wisdom. See note on 1.2–5. 2.2 The heart, the seat of the will, must be connected to the ear (cf. the “understanding mind,” lit. “listening heart” requested by wise Solomon, 1 Kings 3.9; see, e.g., Prov 3.5; 4.20–21, 23; 5.1, 13; 6.18, 25; 7.3, 25; 15.14; 25.12). 2.3 Cry out, raise your voice. The same verbs describe Wisdom's call (1.20; cf. 1.28). 2.4–5 Seek, find. See note on 1.13. 2.5 Fear of the LORD. See note on 1.7. Human wisdom includes knowledge of God (see also 9.10). 2.6–12 The LORD is the source of wisdom and its protective power, yet wisdom, prudence, and understanding are active agents in 2.10–12 (see also 3.21–26; 4.6; 6.24). 2.6 Mouth. See note on 1.6. 2.7–8 Upright, walk, paths. See notes on 1.3; 15–16. 2.9 On wisdom and righteousness. See note on 1.3. 2.12–15 Cf. the portrayal of the violent men in 1.10–19. Perverse speech is as much at issue as evil actions (see note on 1.6). Way, paths. See note on 1.15–16. Uprightness, crooked. See note on 1.3. 2.13 Darkness suggests both evil and ignorance; cf. the light of wisdom and who are devious in their ways.

- 16 You will be saved from the loose^b woman,
from the adulteress with her smooth words, 17 who forsakes the partner of her youth
and forgets her sacred covenant;
18 for her way^c leads down to death,
and her paths to the shades;
19 those who go to her never come back,
nor do they regain the paths of life.
20 Therefore walk in the way of the good,
and keep to the paths of the just.
21 For the upright will abide in the land,
and the innocent will remain in it;
22 but the wicked will be cut off from the land,
and the treacherous will be rooted out of it.

Admonition to Trust and Honor God

- 3 My child, do not forget my teaching,
but let your heart keep my commandments;
2 for length of days and years of life
and abundant welfare they will give you.
3 Do not let loyalty and faithfulness forsake you;
bind them around your neck,
write them on the tablet of your heart.
4 So you will find favor and good repute
in the sight of God and of people.
5 Trust in the LORD with all your heart,
and do not rely on your own insight.
6 In all your ways acknowledge him,
and he will make straight your paths.
7 Do not be wise in your own eyes;

b Heb strange c Cn: Heb house

(see also 4.18–19; 6.23; 7.9). 2.16–19 These verses introduce a key female figure typically described with two closely related Hebrew words. Better than loose woman, adulteress are the more literal translations “strange woman,” “foreign (alien) woman” (cf. the masculine form, 5.10; 20.16; 27.2, 13). Extramarital sexuality functions as a metaphor for what is strange, foreign, and thus deadly (see also 5.3–14, 19–20; 6.24–35; 7.1–27). Woman Stranger is equated with Woman Folly in 9.13–18 (cf. 5.22–23). The figure, probably a response to the threat of cultural assimilation in the postexilic period (sixth century B.C.E. and later; see also 5.10), creates a patriarchal symbol of evil transcending specific social context. 2.16 The woman’s smooth words mirror the evil men’s perverse speech (see note on 1.6; 2.12). 2.17 Marital faithlessness is linked with religious deviation (cf. Mal 2.10–16; also cf. Prov 5.15–18; 7.4). 2.18–19 Way parallels paths (see note on 1.15–16), but the images of the “way” and the woman’s deadly house (see text note c) are often connected (see 1.13, 15; 5.8, 10; 7.8, 11, 19, 27; 9.13–15; note on 1.13). Death, life. See note on 1.32–33. 2.20–22 Land. See note on 1.33. 2.21 Upright. See note on 1.3.

3.1–35 This chapter’s patchwork of literary forms is stitched together with the motifs of commandments (3.1; cf. the list in 3.27–31), long life (3.2, 16), honor (3.4, 9, 16, 35), virtue imaged as adornments (3.3, 22), and material blessings (3.2, 8, 10, 16, 33; cf. 4.8, 10, 22; 5.9–11; 6.33; 8.18–20; 9.11).

3.1–12 The father’s teaching and commandments (3.1) are aligned with the LORD’s discipline (3.11–12; see notes on 1.8; 2.1). This wisdom, though human, has a status beyond the “merely” human; thus one should not rely on your own insight or be wise in your own eyes (3.5, 7; see also 12.15; 26.5, 12, 16; 28.11; 28.26). 3.1 My child. See note on 1.8. 3.3, 5 Loyalty (Hebrew chesed; see 31.26) and faithfulness, elsewhere in the Bible religious virtues; here they are linked with the command to trust in the LORD (see also 28.25; 29.25) with all your heart (see note on 2.2). 3.3 Neck. See 1.9. 3.4 Social approval or disapproval (often termed honor and shame) defined the relationship of the individual to society (see 3.16, 35; 4.8; 5.9, 14; 6.33–35; 8.18; 11.16; 15.33; 18.12; 20.3; 25.2–3, 7c–10, 27; 26.1, 8; 27.11; 28.7; 29.15, 23). 3.6 Ways, paths. See note on 1.15–16. Straight. See note on 1.3. 3.7 Fear the

- fear the LORD, and turn away from evil.
- 8 It will be a healing for your flesh
and a refreshment for your body.
- 9 Honor the LORD with your substance
and with the first fruits of all your produce;
- 10 then your barns will be filled with plenty,
and your vats will be bursting
with wine.
- 11 My child, do not despise the LORD's discipline
or be weary of his reproof,
- 12 for the LORD reproves the one he loves,
as a father the son in whom he delights.

The True Wealth

- 13 Happy are those who find
wisdom,
and those who get
understanding,
- 14 for her income is better than silver,
and her revenue better than gold.
- 15 She is more precious than jewels,
and nothing you desire can compare with her.
- 16 Long life is in her right hand;
in her left hand are riches and honor.

- 17 Her ways are ways of pleasantness,
and all her paths are peace.
- 18 She is a tree of life to those who lay hold of her;
those who hold her fast are called happy.

God's Wisdom in Creation

- 19 The LORD by wisdom founded
the earth;
by understanding he established
the heavens;
- 20 by his knowledge the deeps broke
open,
and the clouds drop down
the dew.

The True Security

- 21 My child, do not let these escape
from your sight:
keep sound wisdom and prudence,
- 22 and they will be life for your soul
and adornment for your neck.
- 23 Then you will walk on your way securely
and your foot will not stumble.
- 24 If you sit down,^d you will not be afraid;
when you lie down, your sleep
will be sweet.
- 25 Do not be afraid of sudden panic,
or of the storm that strikes the
wicked;

^d Gk: Heb lie down

LORD. See note on 1.7. 3.8 On healing vs. destruction of the body, see also 4.22; 5.11; 6.33. 3.9–10 An admonition to observe ritual law (Lev 2.14; Num 28.6), rare in wisdom literature.

3.13–18 Hymn to personified Wisdom (see 1.20–33) using several conventional motifs: comparison to treasure (see 1.13); long life, riches, honor as Wisdom's gifts (see 3.1–12); and calling her a tree of life (see also 11.30; 13.12; 15.4). 3.13 Happy are those, a typical wisdom formula identical to that in the Beatitudes (see also 8.34; 20.7; 28.14; 29.18; 31.28). Find. See note on 1.13. Wisdom, understanding. See note on 1.2–5. 3.16 The Egyptian goddess Maat, depicted with symbols of life and wealth in her hands, is possibly a source for female Wisdom. 3.17 Ways, paths. See note on 1.15–16. 3.18 Lay hold of, hold . . . fast. Strong words of physical embrace describe the student's relationship to Woman Wisdom or the Strange Woman (see also 4.4, 8, 13; 5.2, 20; 7.13). 3.19–20 A short hymn to the creator God, unusual for its ascription of wisdom to the deity. The connection between God, Wisdom, and creation is elaborated in 8.22–36. 3.21–26 A brief poem on the inner and outer effects of wisdom and wickedness. 3.21 My child. See note on 1.8. Sound wisdom, prudence. See note on 1.2–5. 3.22 The artistry of the couplet is hard to capture in translation. Adornment (Hebrew hen) forms an alliteration with life (Hebrew chayyim). The first line (life, soul) seems to represent an inner state, while the second line (adornment, neck) its outer manifestation. But the word for soul (Hebrew nephesh) can also mean "throat," breaking the inner-outer distinction in typical Israelite fashion. On virtue as adornment, see 1.9. 3.23 See note on

- 26 for the LORD will be your confidence and will keep your foot from being caught.
- 27 Do not withhold good from those to whom it is due,^e
when it is in your power to do it.
- 28 Do not say to your neighbor, “Go, and come again, tomorrow I will give it”—when you have it with you.
- 29 Do not plan harm against your neighbor
who lives trustingly beside you.
- 30 Do not quarrel with anyone without cause,
when no harm has been done to you.
- 31 Do not envy the violent and do not choose any of their ways;
- 32 for the perverse are an abomination to the LORD,
but the upright are in his confidence.
- 33 The LORD’s curse is on the house of the wicked,
but he blesses the abode of the righteous.
- 34 Toward the scorners he is scornful,
but to the humble he shows favor.

- 35 The wise will inherit honor,
but stubborn fools, disgrace.

Parental Advice

- 4 Listen, children, to a father’s instruction,
and be attentive, that you may gain^f insight;
- 2 for I give you good precepts:
do not forsake my teaching.
- 3 When I was a son with my father,
tender, and my mother’s favorite,
- 4 he taught me, and said to me, “Let your heart hold fast my words;
keep my commandments,
and live.
- 5 Get wisdom; get insight: do not forget, nor turn away from the words of my mouth.
- 6 Do not forsake her, and she will keep you;
love her, and she will guard you.
- 7 The beginning of wisdom is this:
Get wisdom,
and whatever else you get, get insight.
- 8 Prize her highly, and she will exalt you;
she will honor you if you embrace her.

1.15–16. 3.24–26 See 1.26–27. 3.26 Caught. See 1.17. 3.27–32 Ethical admonitions define the righteous life of the wise. The apodictic do not is like that of the Ten Commandments. 3.27–28 Good. The context suggests the connotation “payment.” On the sages’ concern for financial obligations, see 6.1–5; 7.19–20. 3.31–32 See 1.8–19. 3.32 Upright. See note on 1.3. 3.33–35 Wicked/righteous, wise/fools, two central word pairs, here equated (cf. 1.3; 5.21–23), elsewhere independent (see, e.g., ch. 10; 25.5). 3.33 House. See note on 1.13. 3.34 Scorners. See note on 1.4. 3.35 A proverb closes the instruction with persuasive force (see 1.17). Honor, disgrace. See note on 3.4.

4.1–5.23 Woman Wisdom, the Violent Men, and the Strange Woman elaborated. 4.1–9 An instruction poem focused on love of Woman Wisdom (see 1.20–33). Though the speaker’s mother is mentioned, the poem presents a father’s teaching of his father’s instruction; thus, the children are most likely sons (see note on 1.8), Wisdom

(see note on 1.2–5) the woman they should love (see note on 1.22). 4.4–6 Not turning away from the father’s words and not forsaking Woman Wisdom are poetically identified, female imagery increasing the desirability and authority of male teaching. If the student keeps the commandments, Woman Wisdom will keep, guard him (see 2.7–8). 4.4 Heart. See 2.2. Hold fast. See note on 3.18. Words, commandments. See notes on 1.6; 2.1. Live. See note on 1.32–33. 4.5, 7 Get wisdom, get insight. The same verb describes the Lord’s approach to Wisdom in (see note on) 8.22. 4.7 Note the tautology; cf. 1.7. 4.8–9 A scene of a marriage festival with the groom in kingly array (cf. Song 3.6–11), or of a ceremony in which a high-status woman confers honor (see note on 3.4) on her protégé? Imagery of Woman Wisdom as lover and guardian is mixed throughout Prov 1–9 (see 1.20–33; 2.10–12), perhaps merging in the idealization of the wife (5.15–18; 12.4; 31.10–31). Embrace. See note on 3.18. Garland, crown. See 1.9.

- 9 She will place on your head a fair
garland;
she will bestow on you a beautiful crown."

Admonition to Keep to the Right Path

- 10 Hear, my child, and accept my
words,
that the years of your life may be many.
11 I have taught you the way of wisdom;
I have led you in the paths of
uprightness.
12 When you walk, your step will not be hampered;
and if you run, you will not
stumble.
13 Keep hold of instruction; do not let go;
guard her, for she is your life.
14 Do not enter the path of the
wicked,
and do not walk in the way of
evildoers.
15 Avoid it; do not go on it;
turn away from it and pass on.
16 For they cannot sleep unless they have done wrong;
they are robbed of sleep unless they have made someone
stumble.
17 For they eat the bread of wickedness
